Privy Council Documents: Introduction

In 1907 the then-separate countries of Canada and Newfoundland agreed that the dispute over the location of their common boundary in the Labrador Peninsula should be sent to arbitration. The highest court of appeal in the British Empire was the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London, which agreed to hear the case. The hearing took place in 1926. Each side submitted arguments and counter-arguments, and thousands of documents. The decision was announced on 1 March, 1927.

The result of the case had important ramifications for both Canada and Newfoundland, and the 12 volumes of documents submitted to the court form a valuable historical resource used by students of Labrador history.

In 2003 the Newfoundland and Labrador Heritage Web Site began placing all 12 volumes on its web site in as close a layout to the original printed version as was reasonably possible. The project was huge totalling over 3300 web files.

In the summer of 2012 the Newfoundland and Labrador Heritage Web Site undertook to upgrade the web site from html 4 to html5 using a faceted design approach, and making the site responsive to mobile devices and tablets. To include the Labrador Boundary Dispute documents in this upgrade would have been prohibitively costly.

Instead we decided to convert all 12 volumes into one pdf file. Its size, however, is huge, totaling more than 56 thousand kb. We were required to combine all volumes because there were frequent hot links between them which would have been broken if each volume was placed into its own pdf file.

The screenshot shows a web browser window with a navigation menu on the left and a main content area on the right. The navigation menu includes links for 'Confederation 1864-1949', 'The Labrador Boundary', and 'Privy Council Documents' with sub-links for volumes I through XII. The main content area displays the title page of 'In the Privy Council' for the matter of the boundary between the Dominion of Canada and the Colony of Newfoundland in the Labrador Peninsula. The page is titled 'VOLUME I OF JOINT APPENDIX' and contains the text: 'IN THE MATTER OF THE BOUNDARY BETWEEN THE DOMINION OF CANADA AND THE COLONY OF NEWFOUNDLAND IN THE LABRADOR PENINSULA BETWEEN THE DOMINION OF CANADA of the one part AND THE COLONY OF NEWFOUNDLAND of the other part. VOLUME I OF JOINT APPENDIX. CONTAINING CASE on behalf of the COLONY of NEWFOUNDLAND. CASE of the DOMINION OF CANADA. COUNTER-CASE on behalf of the COLONY of NEWFOUNDLAND. COUNTER-CASE of the DOMINION OF CANADA.'

In the original web documents up to five printed pages were included in one web page, yet with some documents over 60 pages in length, visitors would need to be able to move from one web page to the next within any single document. To achieve this we placed at the bottom of each web page a bar containing hot-linked numbers. Each number corresponds to a web page of the document

------	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	----	----	----

Number bar that appears in many document pages.

We retained these links in the pdf file and they still perform the same function.

Visitors can use the Heritage Web Site's own search engine to search a subject in the pdf file. Alternatively, they can use a major search engine such as google.com. We have also kept a link to the old Labrador Boundary html pages in the Heritage Partners section of the site.

between the DOMINION of CANADA and the
COLONY of NEWFOUNDLAND in the LABRADOR PENINSULA.

JOINT APPENDIX.

I. p. 125.

SECTION I.—INTRODUCTORY.

1. By an agreement in writing, dated the 11th day of November, 1920, and made between the Government of the Dominion of Canada and the Government of the Colony of Newfoundland, the said respective Governments agreed to submit for reference by His Majesty to the Judicial Committee of His Majesty's Privy Council for their decision the following question, viz.:

What is the location and definition of the Boundary as between Canada and Newfoundland in the Labrador Peninsula, under the Statutes, Orders in Council and Proclamations?

And the two said Governments have further agreed to present a Petition to His Majesty praying him to refer the said matter to the said Judicial Committee to hear and consider the same and to advise His Majesty thereon.

2. The Colony of Newfoundland submits that the correct answer to the question referred to in paragraph 1 hereof is that the boundary should be a line drawn due north from Anse Sablon as far as the fifty-second degree of North latitude, and should be traced from thence northwards to Cape Chidley along the crest of the watershed of the rivers flowing into the Atlantic Ocean. This line of boundary is shown coloured blue on the map, marked "A," which will be found in the pocket of, and forms part of, this Case. The Colony of Newfoundland submits that this contention is justified:

His enterprise was inspired by the determination to develop the British Navy which marked the reign of Henry VII., and was, as will be seen, the keynote of British policy in relation to Newfoundland until the nineteenth century. During the years between 1497 and 1583, Portuguese and Basque fishermen, and others from Normandy and Brittany, resorted to the Newfoundland coast in considerably greater numbers than the English. In 1583 Sir Humphrey Gilbert obtained a commission from Queen Elizabeth as Governor of the Island and a large grant of land there. In Hakluyt's words, "he was the first of our nation that carried people to erect an habitation and government in these northerly countries of America." But this attempt at colonization failed, and he himself perished on the return journey.

granting them the territory between Cape St. Mary's and Cape Bonavista. Under the protection of this Charter John Guy of Bristol settled in Conception Bay, issuing decrees as Governor and starting the long conflict with the transitory fishermen and seamen which supplies the key to the whole history of the island. This conflict, which continued for two centuries, was the result of divergent interests and opposing policies. On the one hand were those who wished to found a settlement in Newfoundland and make it a colony with ordered and established Government, and on the other those who preferred that it should be treated simply as a fishery and a training round for seamen from the west coast towns and villages of England. The latter party represented the consistent policy of the British Government for the next two hundred years, and as a result rules and regulations were drawn up in the Star Chamber in 1633, and confirmed with some variations (unnecessary to be specified for this purpose) by Act of Parliament in 1698 (10 and 11 Will. III. c. 25), which definitely decided the issue against colonization. By this Act, the system of fishing admirals was introduced. The first captain to arrive from England at any harbour for the spring was "ipso facto" admiral for the season, the second vice-admiral, and the third rear-admiral. The admirals performed not only executive but judicial functions, a right of appeal being reserved to the officer commanding the convoy of the King's ships. The Act further provided for the inclusion in the crews of the fishing vessels from England of a specified proportion of "green men," i.e., men untrained in and new to the work.

Meantime, in 1534, Cartier had made his first voyage to the Bay des Chaleurs and Gaspé. In the next year is the first mention of "Canada," the river now known as the St. Lawrence being referred to as the Grand River Hochelaga, "the waterway of Canada." The word Canada was at that time used to describe the central portion of the territory between Montreal and Anticosti, though from the arrival of Champlain in 1603, Canada and New France seem often to be used interchangeably to connote the French possessions around the St. Lawrence. Champlain can fairly be called the founder of New France. In 1608 he formed a settlement at Quebec, and soon afterwards a further settlement at Three Rivers. In 1641, shortly after his death, a settlement was formed at Montreal. These three settlements (very sparsely populated, for there were only two hundred persons in Quebec in 1641) formed the districts upon which the French organisation was based, and the arrangements made by General Monckton and Lord Amherst after the fall of Quebec in 1759 show that the same division was maintained by the British until Quebec was made into a Province by the Royal Proclamation of 1763. In 1628 an expedition sent from England under Sir David Kirke appeared in the St. Lawrence to challenge the French possession of their settlements, and in 1629 an expedition sent from Quebec was surrendered by Champlain to Kirke. But by Article III of the Treaty of St. Germain-en-Laye (concluded after the Duke of Buckingham's failure at La Rochelle), Charles I. rendered and restored to Louis XIII. all the places possessed in New France, Acadia (i.e. Nova Scotia), and Canada by the subjects of Great Britain, Port Royal, Port Quebec, and Cape Briton being particularly mentioned.

C.—The Charter of the Hudson's Bay Co., 1670, and the Treaty of Utrecht, 1713.

During the latter half of the sixteenth century Frobisher saw Hudson's Straits, and Davis crossed the mouth of the Straits and sailed down the coast of Labrador to the fifty-second degree of North latitude, landing at what are now known as Davis and Hamilton Inlets. In 1610 Hudson sailed into Hudson's Bay.

In 1670 the Hudson's Bay Co. obtained from Charles II. a royal charter giving them sole rights of trade and commerce of all those seas, straits, bays, rivers, lakes, creeks and sounds in whatsoever latitude they should be, that lie within the entrance of Hudson's Straits, together with all the lands and territories upon the countries, coasts, and confines of the seas, etc., as aforesaid, that were not actually possessed by or granted to any of His Majesty's subjects or possessed by the subjects of any other Christian Prince or State. The Company were also granted the proprietorship of the territories so described and the full right and power to govern such territories.

It is unnecessary to trace in detail the history of the conflicts which followed between the British established under the authority of this Charter on the shores of Hudson's Bay and the French who were making their way north to Hudson's Bay from New France. In 1697, by the Treaty of Ryswick, the French obtained from Great Britain a cession of the territories bordering on Hudson's Bay. But war soon broke out again, and in 1713, by the Treaty of Utrecht, Article X, France restored to Great Britain to be possessed in full right for ever the Bay and Straits of Hudson, together with all lands, seas, sea-coast, rivers and places situate in the said Bay and Straits, and which belonged thereunto, no tracts of land or of sea being excepted, which were then possessed by the subjects of France. The Article went on to provide that it was agreed on both sides to determine by Commissaries to be forthwith named by each party the limits which were to be fixed between the said Bay of Hudson and the places appertaining to the French, which limits both the British and French subjects should be wholly forbidden to pass over or thereby to go to each other by sea or by land. The same Commissaries were also to have orders to describe and settle in like manner the boundaries between the other British and French colonies in those parts. Commissaries were duly appointed and proposals and counter-proposals were made, but no definite decision was ever reached. The French proposal would have included in New

France the territory south-east of a line from Cape Chidley to a point half-way between the French post at Lake Nemiskau and Fort Rupert; by the British proposal the dividing line would be drawn from Cape Grimington to the middle of Lake Mistassini and thence south-west to the forty-ninth degree of North latitude.

The Treaty of Utrecht further declared Newfoundland to belong in exclusive sovereignty to Great Britain, but reserved fishing rights to the French between Cape Bonavista and Cape Riche.

The Labrador peninsula connotes all the area, some 420,000 square miles in all, east of a line joining St. James' Bay and the River St. Lawrence. No further modifications in the position between France and Great Britain in Newfoundland or Canada or on the Labrador peninsula were made by Treaty between 1713 and 1763, and accordingly though the war which was concluded by the Treaty of Paris involved the capture of Quebec by the British in 1759 after the battle of the Heights of Abraham, and the capture in 1762 of St. John's Carbonar and Trinity by the French and their recapture in the same year by Lord Colville, yet the situation which The Treaty of Paris was designed to modify was that established as a result of the Treaty of Utrecht. That position was that the island of Newfoundland itself was subject to the British Crown, but that the only territories on the Labrador peninsula subject to the British Crown were those granted to or acquired by the Hudson's Bay Company under their Charter of 1670, and that though the boundaries of those territories of the Hudson's Bay Company were not definitely ascertained, they did not extended anywhere (save possibly in respect of the area between Cape Chidley and Cape Grimington) further into the interior than the height of land, which formed their boundary in 1857. (See the map attached to the Report of the Select Committee of the House of Commons appointed in that year to consider the state of the British possessions in North America under that Company's control.) It is indeed probable that those responsible for the Royal Proclamation of the 7th October, 1763, accepted as the Southern Boundary of the Hudson's Bay Company's territories the line shown on the small map inset in Mitchell's Map (1755) of the British Colonies in North America, which represents the British proposal after the Treaty of Utrecht.

5. Before considering the words of the Proclamation under the Treaty of Paris, it will be convenient to state shortly the circumstances in relation to which those words have to be construed.

In 1763 the Labrador peninsula was regarded as of importance almost solely on account of the fisheries carried on, on the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, mainly for whale, sea-cow (walrus), and seals, in the straits of Belle Isle, and each year a little further north of those straits, principally for cod, and on the rivers along all the extend of coast mentioned for salmon. Before the Treaty of Paris, 1763, the French had made grants of territory along the northern shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence to French subjects; few, if any, of such grants extended more than four leagues into the interior, and none of them seems to have extended further east than Blanc Sablon. Traffic with the native inhabitants in fur and hunting in the interior were interests not wholly overlooked by the French and English, but they were of very subsidiary importance compared with the fishing. The interior of the country was bleak and uninviting, swampy and unsuitable for cultivation, and was inaccessible except from the sea shore. The native population as small and migratory, and in the area no claimed by the Newfoundland Government no Europeans were settled. Even to-day the interior country is largely unknown, and between the River Saguenay and

Cape Chidley there are no settlements out of sight of sea or river water, which even in the western part of Canadian Labrador, between Natashquan and the Saguenay, apart from the most rudimentary agriculture and a pulp mill established some ten years ago and Seven Islands, there is no industry except fishing and furring.

6. The aboriginal inhabitants of the Labrador Peninsula have altered very little, either in numbers or otherwise, since 1763. They may be roughly divided into three tribes: First the Esquimaux, to be found along the coast, particularly north of the Straits of Belle Isle (there are now no Esquimaux south of the Hamilton Inlet); next the Mountaineers, living further inland than the Esquimaux, and principally south of the Hamilton River, with their main hunting-grounds near the North West River, though they hunted on both sides of the height of land; and thirdly, the Nascopies, occupying the central portion of the area south of the Hudson's Straits. The number of these native inhabitants varied probably between two thousand and four thousand in all. These Indians (apart from the Esquimaux who depended principally upon fishing) lived by hunting and trafficking in furs. The Mountaineers and Nascopies (particularly the latter who had a large admixture of

SECTION II.—1763-1774.

7. By virtue of the Royal Proclamation issued under the Treaty of Paris on the 7th October, 1763: -

(a) The Government of Quebec was bounded on the Labrador Coast by the River St. John, and from thence by a line drawn from the head of that river, through the Lake St. John, to the South end of the Lake Nipissim; from whence the said line crossing the River St. Lawrence and the Lake Champlain in 45 degrees of North Latitude, passes along the high lands which divide the rivers that empty themselves into the River St. Lawrence, from those which fall into the sea, and also along the north coast of the Baye des Chaleurs, and the coast of the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Cape Rosières, and from thence crossing the mouth of the River St. Lawrence by the West end of the Island of Anticosti, terminates at the aforesaid River St. John.

(b) All the Coast of Labrador from the River St. John to Hudson' Straits, together with the Islands of Anticosti and the Magdalen and all smaller islands lying upon the said coast, was put under the care and inspection of the Governor of Newfoundland.

(c) There was reserved to the Crown, "for the use of the Indians, all the lands and territories not included within the limits of our said three new Governments,"(i.e., E. and W. Florida and Quebec), or within the limits of the territory "granted to the Hudson's Bay Company; as also the lands and territories lying to the westward of the sources of the rivers which fall into the sea" (i.e., the Atlantic Ocean) "from the West and North West."

8. The eighteenth and nineteenth century maps show that it was generally believed at the material dates between 1763 and

1825, that the River St. John had its source of the River Romaine, i.e., at or near the 52nd degree of north latitude. There were good reasons to account for the choice of the River St. John as the boundary; for west of it it was desirable both by reason of the French grants of land made before the Treaty, and on account of the nature of the fishery carried on there, that a "sedentary fishery," i.e., a fishery based upon established settlements, should be created, whereas east of the river the opportunity could be seized to create another nursery for seamen from the west of England, like that already in existence round the island of Newfoundland itself. For the maintenance of this nursery for seamen, it had been found essential to prohibit all settlement and colonization. The two systems, that of the established sedentary fishery and that of the nursery for seamen, were diametrically opposed, and they naturally came into conflict in the area between the River St. John and Blanc Sablon, since there had been some French posts further east than St. John. And the Quebec Act of 1774, referred to in paragraph 13 hereof, was passed with the object of putting an end to this conflict.

9. In the years between 1763 and 1774 the Government of Newfoundland showed considerable activity in its new dependency. In particular, Hugh Palliser, who became Governor some six months after the Royal Proclamation, not only issued Regulations for the Fishery on the coast of Labrador (on the 8th April and 28th August, 1765), but clearly regarded himself, and in the light of his instructions rightly regarded himself, as charged with duties towards the native inhabitants, viz.:

(i) to ensure that they were fairly and properly treated;

(ii) to foster trade with them;

(iii) to protect and encourage the missionaries who went among them ; and

(iv) to prevent the subjects of foreign states from trading with them.

(See his letter to the Lords of Trade, 1st September, 1764, and his orders of the 8th April and 10th August, 1765, and the Representation to His Majesty upon the complaints of the Court of France dated the 16th April, 1765.) Governor Palliser himself interviewed at Pitts Harbour four hundred or five hundred of the savages "who come yearly from the North to the Straits of Belle Isle" (cf. his reports of the 11th September and 30th October, 1765). The missionaries, whom Governor Palliser encouraged to go among the Esquimaux inhabitants, were Moravian Brethren of the Society of the Unitas Fratrum, and by an Order-in-Council dated the 3rd May, 1769, 100,000 acres at Esquimaux

Bay were granted to them (no doubt in response to their Petition of 23rd February, 1765). It appears from a report of two of the brethren to Lord Sydney, dated the 26th May, 1784,

- that the Society established settlements in 1770 at Nain, in 1776 at Okkak, and in 1782 at Hopedale. The Governors of Newfoundland exercised jurisdiction by means of the missionaries in these jurisdiction by means of the missionaries in these settlements. See the Report by James Hutton, Secretary of the Unitas Fratrum, dated 6th December, 1773, from which it appears that as far north as 59 deg. 30 min. of North latitude, the governor's orders in reference to the punishment of crime were made known to the Esquimaux; and cf. Governor Palliser's Report of the 20th October, 1768, and Governor Shuldham's Proclamation of the 4th May, 1772.
10. It is clear from the documents dated 5th December, 1765, containing the account of the voyage of the four missionaries from May to November, 1765, that Governor Palliser did not restrict his interest to those native inhabitants who lived along the margin of the sea; his inquiries were directed to the possibility of trade and intercourse with the inhabitants of the interior. The first of these inquiries is shown in the Governor's Report in answer to the questions of the Board of Trade, on the 19th March, 1766; in his Report Governor Palliser suggested the establishment of a fur trade with the mountaineers, whom he described earlier in the Report as living "inland far from the coast." Such a fur trade was, in fact, established (cf. Governor Shuldham's remarks in obedience to his instructions for the years 1772-3, Article 25). It required, as George Cartwright pointed out in his Memorial of the 6th January, 1773, "a thorough knowledge of the interior part of the country, which, on account of the deep snows and the rigour of the furring season, is only to be acquired by slow degrees." In addition to Cartwright, other fishermen frequented Newfoundland established themselves early in the fur trade on the Labrador. Jeremiah Coghlan (who extended his operations from Fogo to Cape Charles and afterwards to Alexis River) in his letter to Governor Montague of Newfoundland of the 30th August, 1777, writes

- of employing on the Labrador one hundred men in the seal and cod fisheries, and forty men in the salmon and furring business. And it appears from Cartwright's Memorial already referred to that Mr. Pinson, the pioneer of the import trading house of Noble & Pinson, was beginning to establish himself thus early on the Labrador.
11. In order further to consolidate the position of the British Crown in the area under his government, Governor Palliser suggested on the 13th May, 1766, the erection of blockhouses to encourage the adventurers and to establish the possessory right to the country at a place in the centre of the whole coast. This course was sanctioned in a letter from the Duke of Richmond to the Lords of Admiralty, dated the 28th May,

p. 939.

12. The Governor of Newfoundland also took steps from the first for the administration of justice on the coast of Labrador, as witness the surrogate commission given by Governor Graves to Captain Saxon of H.M.S. "Pearl" for the area from the entrance of Hudson's Straits to the river St. John on the 20th June, 1763, and the similar commission, dated 13th April, 1765, and given by Governor Palliser to the Captain of the sloop "Zephyr," from the River St. John to Cape Charles, and to Sir Thomas Adams of H.M.S. "Niger," from the entrance of Davis Straits to York Harbour inclusive. It was natural that these early Governors, in establishing in their new dependency a second nursery for seamen similar to that already formed in the island of Newfoundland itself, should set up the same system of administering justice by means of naval surrogates as was in force in the island. In the island of Newfoundland, as in Labrador, large tracts of the interior country are to this day practically unknown and wholly uninhabited, and in both in the early stages the surrogate system was sufficient, since almost all those for whom justice has to be administered were to be found by the sea shore.

13. The Royal Proclamation had not long been issued when it became apparent that some of the grants made by the French before the Treaty of Paris for the seal and sea-cow fishery extended further east than the River St. John; and those who had settled on the coast east of that river were early discontented with the energetic way in which Governor Palliser enforced the regulations for a non-sedentary cod fishery. Cf. Governor Palliser's Report of the 30th October, 1765, and the Representation of the Lords of Trade of the 27th March, 1766. On the 14th August, 1767, Governor Palliser refused the request of Governor Carleton of Quebec that these settlers should be protected in possession of their settlements. On the 19th December, 1772, the Lords of Trade took the matter again into their consideration, and on the 22nd April, 1773, there is a Minute of the Privy Council showing that the question was discussed of annexing to Quebec the area between the River St. John and Bay Phillippeaux (which is the same bay as Brador Bay).

Eventually in 1774 an attempt was made to solve the difficulty by an Imperial Statute annexing to Quebec all the territory added to the Government of Newfoundland by the Proclamation. In the Preamble of the Act of the Parliament of Great Britain giving effect to this decision (the Quebec Act 1774, 14 Geo. III. c. 83), it was recited that certain parts of the territory of Canada where sedentary fisheries had been established and carried on by the subjects of France, inhabitants of the said Province of Canada, under grants and concessions from the Government thereof, had been by the Royal Proclamation of the 7th October, 1763, annexed to the Government of Newfoundland and thereby subjected to regulations inconsistent with the nature of such fisheries. The Act then went on to enact that all such territories, islands, and countries which had since the 10th February, 1763 (the date of the Treaty of Paris), been made part of the Government of Newfoundland should be annexed to and made part and parcel of the Province of Quebec. Consequently the area now in question became part of that Province, and Governor Carleton received instructions as to policy in regard to it. But as appears from Articles 30, 34, 35 and 36 of the Instructions to Governor Carleton, after the passing of the Act referred to, these sedentary established settlements east of the River St. John covered but a small district of the coast, and the policy of the Home Government was to continue on the remainder of the coast the non-sedentary cod-fishery for the benefit of the west of England seamen and the British Navy. It is not surprising that the Quebec Government did nothing to support this latter policy, with which they were unfamiliar and had no sympathy, in an area too far distant from their seat of Government for effective control to be maintained without considerable effort and expenditure. It is clear that the Quebec Act was too heroic a remedy for the evil which it was designed to cure.

14. By the Quebec Act, the boundaries of the Province of Quebec as now extended, were defined as reaching "Northward to the Southern Boundary of the territory granted to the Merchant Adventurers of England trading to Hudson's Bay," and it was provided, as already stated, that "all such territories islands and countries which have since the 10th February 1763 been made part of the Government of Newfoundland" were. . . "during His Majesty's pleasure annexed to and made part and parcel of the Province of Quebec, as created and established by the Royal Proclamation of the 7th October, 1763." The result of this Act, according to the submission of the Colony of Newfoundland, was that the areas coloured green, red, blue, and yellow on the map, marked "A," which will be found in the pocket of this Case, were all under the government of the Province of Quebec.

15. By virtue of the Quebec Act the Government of Newfoundland was deprived from 1774 until 1809 of jurisdiction in Labrador, but the Act left Quebec with an area which she could not administer, and this mistake, as will subsequently appear, was remedied later. Throughout the period from 1774 to 1809 the Governors of Newfoundland continued, in their capacity as admirals commanding in chief the ships on the station, to undertake without reference to the Province of Quebec duties and responsibilities in those parts of Labrador formerly within the jurisdiction of Newfoundland, while the Province of Quebec in fact exercised no jurisdiction there. The responsibilities of the Governor of Newfoundland in the area referred to appear not only from the terms of the instructions to the various Governors during the period, but also from the instructions given on the 28th April, 1775, by the Earl of Dartmouth to the Lords of the Admiralty for transmission to Rear-Admiral Duff (then Governor of Newfoundland) to inspect the fisheries on the coast of Labrador and to protect the Unitas Fratrum, and from the instructions given through Lord George Germain to Governor Montagu of Newfoundland for the protection of one William Thomas in his fishing post on the coast of Labrador. The Governor of Newfoundland had further the duty of controlling the issue of ordnance material for fishermen on the Labrador, and the distribution of arms and ammunition for the defence of Alexis River, Temple Bay, and Chateau Bay - see the letter from Lord George Germain to Governor Edwards dated the 2nd April, 1779, and Governor Edwards' report dated the 12th September, 1779.

16. On the 3rd July, 1778, the merchants concerned in the fisheries on the coast of Labrador in a Petition to Lord George Germain complained that ever since the said coast had been put under the Government of Quebec, no notice had been taken of the area, nor had any steps whatever been taken for the protection and encouragement of the fisheries there, and they pressed for the appointment of a superintendent for these purposes. Lord George Germain, in a letter to the Lords of the Treasury dated the 9th July, 1778, informed them that the King had decided to appoint such a superintendent, and that an allowance was to be made for him on the Quebec estimate. On the 16th March, 1779, Nicholas Coxe was appointed to the post by the Home Government; but as appears from a report enclosed in Mr. Lymburner's letter of the 1st July, 1791, neither the Governor of Quebec nor the superintendent had it in their power to make or enforce a single regulation or rule for the coast, as they had no vessel under their direction to carry the persons necessary to see their orders properly put into execution. Indeed, though the Government of the Province of Quebec actively administered the western part of the north shore of the St. Lawrence, nothing whatever was done (apart from the appointment of the superintendent) for the area east of the River Saguenay.

17. On the 9th July, 1784, the Brethren of the Unitas Fratrum pointed out in a dispatch to the Secretary of the Home Department that the missionaries on the Labrador coast were out of reach of the Government of Quebec in every point of view, that no communication, inspection, or protection was possible, and that they had since the annexation to Quebec applied to the Governors of Newfoundland and always found them ready to do whatever was in their power so far as their commission reached. They therefore urged the advantage of reuniting the coast of Labrador with Newfoundland.

18. The evidence given by John Reeves, Chief Justice of Newfoundland, before the Committee appointed by the House of Commons in 1792 to inquire into the state of the trade to Newfoundland, confirmed the assertions of the Unitas Fratrum referred to in paragraph 17 hereof and supported their conclusion. He pointed out that the influence which the coast felt from a centre so far removed was very small, and that in truth there was no Government whatsoever there. His opinion was that it was the attempt of the Governors of Newfoundland to apply to the seal fisheries the system properly adapted to the non-sedentary cod fisheries, which was the cause of the trouble that gave rise to the Quebec Act. On the 9th September, 1807, Governor Holloway, of Newfoundland, in a dispatch to Lord Castlereagh, suggested the re-annexation of the coast of Labrador to Newfoundland as the most effectual mode of suppressing the illicit trade carried on by the Americans who fished on the Labrador, continuing a practice which they had originally enjoyed as of right when they were British subjects. He pointed out that the annexation to Quebec was on account of a few grants to individuals which extended but to a small district. It is curious in view of this explanation that the Imperial Government, when in 1809 they adopted the main proposition pressed on them, did not at once detach from the area re-annexed to Newfoundland the small district covered by the grants, but for whatever reason this correction was not made until the Act of 1825.

III. c. 27) "such parts of the Coast of Labrador from the River St. John to Hudson's Straits and the Island of Anticosti and all other smaller islands so annexed to the Government of Newfoundland by the Proclamation of the 7th October, 1763" (except the island of Magdalen) were separated from the Government of Lower Canada and again re-annexed to the Government of Newfoundland. The effect of this Act, according to the submission of the Colony of Newfoundland, was to restore to the Government of Newfoundland the areas coloured green and red on the map, marked "A," which will be found in the pocket of this Case.

20. In 1825 by an Imperial Act (6 Geo. IV. c. 59) "so much of the said coast of Labrador as lies to the westward of a line drawn due North and South from the bay or harbour of Anse Sablon inclusive as far as the fifty-second degree of North Latitude with the island of Anticosti, and all other islands adjacent to such part as last aforesaid of the Coast of Labrador" was "re-annexed to and made part of the said Province of Lower Canada." The effect of this Act, according to the submission of the Colony of Newfoundland, was to detach from the Government of Newfoundland the area coloured red on the map, marked "A," which will be found in the pocket of this Case.

21. It will be observed that the Legislature considered that the area to be re-annexed to Quebec was effectually defined by reference to so much of the coast of Labrador as lies to the westward of a line drawn due north and south from the bay or harbour of Anse Sablon as far as the fifty-second degree of North latitude. The line so described is itself some forty miles in length, and the area lying to the westward of it, which is by the Act re-annexed to Quebec, involves in some places distances of not less than 120 miles between the sea-shore and the fifty-second degree of North Latitude. Yet the whole of this area is referred to as "so much of the said coast of Labrador."

22. Before turning to the evidence of the active interest taken by Newfoundland in the restored territories a gradual change is to be recorded in the constitutional development of Newfoundland from its original position as a nursery for seamen from Great Britain with settlements prohibited towards the status of a normal and established colony. So early as the 10th January, 1798, Captain Ambrose Crofton, in his report to Governor Waldegrave, described the Island of Newfoundland as having "more the appearance of a colony rather than a fishery" by reason of the great number of persons remaining there during the winter and the increase in houses and occupied land. On the 18th November, 1808, Governor Holloway lamented to Lord Castlereagh the development of residency, while Governor Duckworth, on the 2nd November, 1812, assured Earl Bathurst that the fisheries were decidedly sedentary, and that after so long a war he doubted whether any change of the system would be possible on the restoration of peace. He accordingly advocated the permission of the cultivation of land and of grants of land by the Governor. The instructions to Governor Keats in 1813 show how important this question was considered by the Imperial Government, and in the same year this Governor in fact made grants of land at St. John's, while on the 12th November, 1815, High Sheriff Bland, in his report to the same Governor, roundly asserted that if Newfoundland was not a colony in law it was so in fact. Side by side with this constitutional development there was a gradually extending and corresponding development on the coast of Labrador of an established administration for judicial and revenue purposes, and the foundation of religious, educational, and charitable institutions.

The fishery remained and remains the principal and overshadowing interest both in Newfoundland and in its dependency, and consequently activity was still mainly confined to the sea-shore area; but the system of Government introduced became, as the constitution developed, more consonant with a colony than a fishery.

23. From 1809 onwards the Newfoundland Government found it necessary from time to time to make provision for the administration of justice on the coast of Labrador. The Act of 1809 referred to in paragraph 19 hereof, conferred on the Supreme Court of Newfoundland jurisdiction within the area re-annexed to Newfoundland. Owing to an oversight the Act did not sanction the institution of surrogate Courts there, and it was found necessary to pass in 1811 an Imperial Act, 51 Geo. III. c. 45, to remedy this omission. By an Act of 1824 the Governor of Newfoundland was empowered to institute a Court of civil jurisdiction at any such parts or places on the coast of Labrador as had been re-annexed to the Government of Newfoundland. This Act remained in force until the Court created under it was abolished in 1834 by an Act of the newly-constituted Newfoundland legislature, because the work which it was called upon to do was insufficient to justify the expense of its upkeep. Between the years 1826 and 1834 this Court was actively engaged in the Labrador. Judge Patterson presided over it, and its records show that among the places to which he went to administer justice were various settlements on the Hamilton Inlet between the Narrows and the mouth of the river (e.g., Mullins Cove and Rigolet). In 1828 he arrived on the 19th July at Rigolet for Kinnamish, and on the 22nd July he was at Kinnamish and viewed the salmon brooks in dispute between J. C. Bennet & Co. and J. Baird, while on the 24th he went to North West Brook. Again in 1829 the Court went to Kinnamish and North West Water, but there being no cases then to be heard, returned to Rigolet.

tration of justice on the coast of Labrador (showing that the matter engaged the attention of the Newfoundland Government), it was not until 1863 that a statute was passed establishing a Civil Court again on the coast of Labrador. This Court over which first Judge Sweetland and later Judge Pinsent and Judge McNeil presided, continued in existence until 1874, after which judges were no longer sent to Labrador, since it was felt that the amount of business was not sufficient to justify the expenditure involved. Thereafter justice was administered by justices of the Peace (see, for instance, the 1879 documents in connection with Matthew Fortescue of Rigolet), and in occasional special cases by stipendiaries.

25. The Annual Reports of the Judges, both of the 1826-34 and the 1863-74 periods, show that their work was by no means confined to their judicial duties. Judge Patterson, as one of the Justices of the Court of Sessions established for Labrador in 1826, helped to collect licenses for the sale of liquor and the 6d. a month deducted from the wages of the fishermen employed in the Labrador fisheries for the benefit of Greenwich Hospital.

His instructions from Governor Cochrane of the 11th August, 1826, directed him in addition to inform himself as to the state of the fishery, the fur trade, the native inhabitants, the Moravian settlements, the number and stations of any Europeans and Americans remaining during the winter, and generally to collect all the information he could of that imperfectly known country that could in any way tend to the advancement of science or commerce. The same policy, by means of which the Judges were made the pioneers of government, was adopted in the 1863-74 period. Their annual reports, beginning with Judge Sweetland's for 1863, cover census returns, proposals for roads, reports on schools, poor relief, churches, and the fur trade. Judge Sweetland also reported in 1864 on the vegetables grown at North West River, and in 1865 on the salmon fisheries in Sandwich Bay and in the Hamilton Inlet at North West River and the Kinnemichie. Judge Pinsent in 1867, in addition to the matters already referred to, reported on the distribution of medicines, and suggested sending a surgeon each year in the revenue and circuit vessel, and also advocated the establishment of postal communication with St. John's. In 1868 he proposed the appointment of further Justices of the Peace and of one or two laymen to celebrate marriages in the District Sandwich Bay, Hamilton Inlet, and thence northward where there was no resident clergyman. In consequences of this recommendation Thomas Graves, of Rigolet, was licensed on 22nd May, 1869, to celebrate marriages. In 1869 Judge Pinsent urged that it was the duty of the merchants with establishments on the Labrador to make winter provision in the shape of stocks of Indian meal for the resident inhabitants who dealt with them during the summer. In 1870 he made proposals for the permission of exclusive occupation of salmon posts. In 1871 he recommended an extension of the Labrador Mail Service, which had been established in 1870. In 1873 he recorded a visit to North West River, where Mr. Crowdy (who was appointed Government Vaccinator for the Labrador on the 10th June, 1873), vaccinated the Montaineer Indians trading with the Hudson's Bay Company's posts. During the years 1863-74 the vessel which carried the Labrador Judge on his circuit took also the collector of Customs duties, and the judges made constant references in their reports to the collectors' work. The medical man several times suggested by the Judges for the Labrador coast was appointed on the 19th July, 1875, in the person of Dr. William Allen.

26. In 1826 when Judge Patterson was initiating the civil court in Labrador, the collection of revenue there was begun by the appointment of William Langley as sub-collector. He collected £585 18s. 11d. the three years during which he held his appointment. No other officer was appointed until 1831, and again from 1833-1840 no officer was employed on this service, but duties seem nevertheless still to have been collected on the coast of Labrador during this period. In 1840 Mr. Elias Rendell was appointed to collect not only sums due in respect of Imperial Revenue, but also colonial duties levied on the Labrador under the Annual Colonial Revenue Acts. The merchants on the coast protested to the Imperial Government in 1841 against the collection of these colonial duties, complaining that the Newfoundland Government had no legal right to impose duties on the Labrador at all, but the Colonial Secretary, Lord John Russell, on the 5th July, 1841, expressed the same view as his predecessor Lord Glenelg had taken in that the Labrador coast as a dependency of Newfoundland was subject to the same laws, whether fiscal or otherwise, to which every part of the island was amenable and that no payment had been exacted which was not strictly due. The Attorney-General for Newfoundland in 1842, after a careful survey of the history of the collection of revenue on the coast, reiterated the opinion previously given by the Colonial Secretaries. In 1850 a Preventive Officer was appointed for the West Coast of Newfoundland and the coast of Labrador, and part of his duty was to secure the due collection of customs revenue. After the establishment in 1855 of responsible Government in Newfoundland the Governor after notice by Proclamation that it was intended to collect revenue there, sent Mr. Prendergast as acting sub-collector to the coast of Labrador in 1856. The Newfoundland Act of 1863, already referred to as establishing a civil court in Labrador, further authorised the Government to collect on the Labrador the same duties as in Newfoundland, the revenue so collected to be applied first towards defraying the cost of protecting the fisheries and of carrying out the objects of the Act, and thereafter to the general purposes of the colony. Objections were taken on constitutional grounds to this Act, but by an Order in Council, transmitted by the Duke of Newcastle as Colonial Secretary to the Governor, the Act was left to its operation on the coast. The Secretary of State at the same time informed the Governor-General of Canada that the Law Officers of the Crown were of opinion that it was competent to the Legislature of Newfoundland to pass laws binding on the Labrador coast. On the 11th August, 1864, at North-West River Mr. Smith (afterwards Lord Strathcona), the Head Agent of the Hudson's Bay Company, without hesitation paid the duties payable by the Company, saying that it was not their intention to present any opposition to the payment, the Act having received the Royal Assent. See Mr. Winter's Report of the 26th October, 1864, from which it appears that other traders also, including Messrs. De Quetvill, paid the duties without protest though some continued to resist. The amount collected from the Hudson's Bay Company in 1865 was considerable, and the duties for the year on the Labrador coast from all sources amounted to $3,301, and this total increased in 1866 to $7,900. Again, in 1868, the Hudson's Bay Company seem from Mr. Winter's Report to have paid duties without protest, and thenceforward they have paid regularly and made no protest. (In the same way they have later made the payments required of them under the Newfoundland Profits Tax Act, 1917.) Indeed, no difficulty was experienced in the collection of revenue after 1868 (see, e.g., the Report on the Newfoundland and Labrador Fisheries 1872), except from Revillon Frères, who only started to trade on the Labrador coast some twenty years ago at North-West River and for a time at Muddy Bay near Cartwright, and have always paid duties to the Newfoundland Government under protest.

27. A report of the 24th July, 1821, shows that Captain Martin of H.M.S. "Clinker" was sent by Governor Sir Charles Hamilton to the head-waters of the Hamilton Inlet to report on the conditions of the settlers and Indians there. The same vessel was sent in the same and the following years north of the Hamilton to visit the Moravians. Again in 1879, as appears from the Fortescue documents, Governor Glover thought it necessary himself to visit the Hamilton Inlet in view of the prevailing distress due to the failure of the salmon fisheries.

III. p. 1529. The same documents, together with a letter to Mr. F. C. Berteau from the Colonial Secretary of Newfoundland of the 10th September, 1881, show that the Newfoundland Government was ready to provide money to relieve this distress. The same policy was pursued throughout the bad years that followed.

The Revenue Act of 1864 (27 Vict. c. 1) provided for payment of the collector at Labrador, the Customs Act of the same year (27 Vict. c. 2) included among the customs officials a collector for the Labrador and his sub-collectors, and the Supply Act (27 Vict. c. 17) provided for the sum of £400 towards defraying the expenses of the Revenue cruiser at Labrador. In 1865 in addition to similar sections to the above in the Revenue and Supply Acts, there were in the latter provisions of $200 towards the encouragement of education at Labrador, and of $250 towards providing medical attendance there. By the Indemnity Act of 1867 (30 Vict. c. 20) a sum of $1,296.70 was voted on account of the Labrador Court.

Such items as those mentioned above reappear annually in the Newfoundland statutes, and from time to time provision is made for new requirements and emergencies; e.g., in and after 1870 for steam communication to Labrador for postal and other purposes (including a special service for the Hamilton Inlet in and after 1907); in several years for poor relief; in 1874 for a retiring pension for Judge Pinsent of the Court of Labrador; in 1882 to regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors on the coast of Labrador; in 1887 for two educational districts each for the Church of England and the Methodists. After 1888 the items for schools and medical attendance show continual increases. In 1911 an Act was passed to prevent the removal of Esquimaux from the Labrador for exhibition purposes without the permission of the Newfoundland Government. This measure was found necessary after the experiences of the Esquimaux from Labrador at the Chicago Exhibition in 1893.

In 1898 a new system was adopted with regard to financial legislation in Newfoundland, and the various items involving expenditure already mentioned were thereafter included in a comprehensive annual Public Service Act. In 1903 and 1904 money was set aside in this Act for the building of a Customs House at Rigolet.

29. No protest or objection was ever made by the Governments of the Province of Lower Canada, Canada, or Quebec, or by the Government of the Dominion of Canada, to the exercise of jurisdiction by the Government of the Colony of Newfoundland on the Labrador in and by the acts referred to in paragraphs 23 to 28 (inclusive) hereof.

30. In 1880, by an Imperial Order in Council dated 31st July, 1880, all British territories and provinces in North America not already within the Dominion of Canada, and all Islands adjacent to any of such territories or possessions, with the exception of Newfoundland and its dependencies, became annexed to the Dominion of Canada. This Order in Council expressly protects the Colony of Newfoundland from the loss of any part of its jurisdiction, and it is submitted that the only effect of the said Order in Council upon the matters now in dispute is to limit the territories in Labrador claimed by the Colony of Newfoundland to territories acquired by the said Colony before the 31st July, 1880.

31. It is submitted that the effect of the Proclamation and Statutes hereinbefore referred to is to give the Colony of Newfoundland jurisdiction over all the Coast of Labrador, from the River St. John to Hudson's Straits and the adjacent islands, except—

(a) The Magdalen Islands, the only territory taken away by the Quebec Act 1774, and not restored by the Act of 1809, and

(b) The area west of the due North and South line from Anse Sablon to the 52nd degree of North Latitude, and the Island of Anticosti, which were taken away by the Act of 1825.

32. By a Canadian Statute passed in 1898 (61 Viet. c. 3) the Canadian Parliament purported to lay down certain boundaries as being the boundaries of the Province of Quebec. In 1912, by a Canadian Statute (2 Geo. V. c. 45), the Canadian Parliament purported to extend the boundaries of the Province of Quebec. It is submitted that in so far as the boundaries described in the said Canadian statutes encroach upon territories subject, at the dates of the passing of the said statutes, to the jurisdiction of the Colony of Newfoundland the said statutes are ultra vires and of no effect. The Dominion of Canada had no power to enlarge the jurisdiction and territories of one of its provinces to the detriment of a self-governing colony. In support of this submission the Colony of Newfoundland will rely (inter alia) upon the Colonial Laws

Validity Act 1865 and the Colonial Boundaries Act 1895. It is also to be observed that the Canadian Statute of 1912 was passed some nine years after the present boundary dispute definitely began. For these reasons it is submitted that the said Canadian Statutes are to be wholly disregarded in determining the matters now in question. As appears from paragraph 30 the material date for the purposes of the present case is 31st July, 1880.

33. Wherever the interior boundary may be found to be, it is submitted that the territory under the jurisdiction of the Newfoundland Government extends inland from the indented coast-line as a base, that is to say from the line where the salt water touches the land. The tracing of the coastline necessarily involves in this instance, as it involved in the case of the Alaska Boundary Dispute, following the windings of the coast round the heads of inlets or arms of the sea such as the Hamilton Inlet, whether or not the waters contained therein are territorial waters. A consideration of the reason for the annexation of the coast to the Government of Newfoundland supports this conclusion: for "coast put under the care and inspection of a Governor to the end that open and free fishing may be extended to and carried on" thereupon, clearly connotes the sinuosities of a coast line as the basis for the establishment of the fishery. But it is submitted that the use of the term "coast" would of itself lead to the same result, even without the assistance to be derived from the purpose of the annexation. Lord Alverstone observed in his opinion, in the Alaska Arbitration, at he knew of no recognised rule of international which would by implication give a recognized meaning to the word "coast" as applied to the sinuosities and waters which he was discussing, different from the coast itself.

Mr. Taylor, in his argument for the United States in the same case, suggested that only two possible coast-lines were known to international law, namely (1) where the salt water touches the land, which is the coast-line for boundary purposes, and (2) the political coast-line—that invisible thing superimposed on the physical coast by the operation of law, which exists for the purpose of jurisdiction. It was unsuccessfully contended by the British Government in the Alaska Arbitration that "coast" means lands bordering on the ocean and cannot properly be applied to the shoreline of a narrow bay, gulf or river, and that an inlet or fiord less than six miles wide, though it is an indentation of the coast, is not a part of the coast itself. It was pointed out that where an inlet is less than six miles wide, the three marine leagues from low-water mark (over which international law gives a maritime state a certain property right in the ocean) are to be measured outside the line joining the headlands.

It is submitted that the result of the Alaska Boundary Arbitration is to establish the United States contention that "coast" for boundary purposes means the line where in physical fact the salt water touches the land. The headland to headland line has no application to "coast" in this sense; it owes its origin to the conception of the territoriality of certain waters, for it is the natural and logical outcome of the notional three-mile limit of jurisdiction. There is no necessary distinction between the waters within the three miles limit from low-water mark and the waters of inlets where the entrance is less than six miles across and the entire land boundary forms part of the territory of the same state. The waters in each case are territorial on the same principle, namely that potestas finitur ubi finitur armorum vis, and on the same assumption that three miles is the limit quousque tormenta exploduntur. Accordingly it is submitted that in however wide a sense the waters within the maritime belt are to be regarded as part of the territory of the adjoining state, the expression "coast" still means the line where land meets salt water, and that in precisely the same way even if waters inter fauces terræ may be regarded as forming part of the adjoining territory, the meaning of the expression "coast" remains unaltered and the coastline is not to be determined for boundary purposes, any more than in physical fact, by notional lines drawn from headland to headland, but involves following the actual sinuosities of bays, inlets and creeks.

34. It is next submitted that it is clear that more than a mere strip of littoral was intended and understood to be annexed to and placed under the Government of Newfoundland by virtue of the Statutes Orders-in-Council and Proclamations hereinbefore referred to. In the Commissions issued to Thomas Graves dated the 25th April, 1763, to Hugh Palliser, dated the 20th March, 1764, and to their successors as Governors of Newfoundland, the following words appear: "and we do hereby require and command all officers civil and military and all other inhabitants of our said islands and the coast and territories of Labrador and the islands adjacent . . . to be obedient unto you in the execution of this our commission and the powers and authorities therein contained." In the same way in Article 12 of Governor Palliser's instructions 1764, he is directed "from time to time, as the nature of the services will allow, to visit all the coasts and harbours of the said islands and territories" under his Government. Again, in their Instructions to Governor Palliser of the 14th May, 1765, the commissioners for the office of Lord High Admiral refer to the coast of Labrador as "that country."

III. p. 1156.

35. The evidence to be derived from maps affords strong confirmation of this submission. Indeed, it appears from them that the expression "the coast of Labrador" was commonly used at the material dates as equivalent to "Terra Labrador" so as to include the whole or almost the whole of the Labrador peninsula.

But more definite indications of the considerable extent of the territory annexed to and placed under the Government of Newfoundland under the description of "the coast of Labrador" appear from—

1. 21.

(a) The Privy Council Order of the 2nd December, 1774, approving a grant to John Agnew and others of all mines, minerals, metals, and ores whatsoever within the island of Newfoundland or upon such part of the sea-coasts of Labrador as lie within sixty miles of low-water mark in the open sea between the River St. John and the southern limits of the territory granted to the Hudson's Bay Company.

(b) The words of the Royal Proclamation of the 7th October, 1763—the source of Newfoundland's original jurisdiction on the Labrador—whereby the Government of Quebec was "bounded on the Labrador coast by the River St. John and from thence by a line drawn from the head of that river, etc." These words show that the "coast" comprised an area extending inland at least so far as the length of the River St. John, as it was then understood to run, i.e., to about the source of the modern River Romaine, or some 120 miles.

(c) The words of the Act of 1825 (6 Geo. IV. c. 59), whereby "so much of the said coast of Labrador" (i.e., from the River St. John to Hudson's Straits) "as lies to the westward of a line to be drawn due North and South from the Bay or Harbour of Anse Sablon inclusive, as far as the 52nd degree of North latitude," was re-annexed to Lower Canada. From these words it appears that the "said coast" comprised an area extending inland at least as far as from Ance Sablon to the 52nd degree of North Latitude or some forty miles.

36. Finally it is submitted on behalf of the Colony of Newfoundland that the boundary as between Canada and Newfoundland in the Labrador Peninsula under the Statutes,

Orders-in-Council and Proclamations, is so located and defined as to include within the jurisdiction of the Colony of Newfoundland the Eastern and South-Eastern watersheds of the Labrador Peninsula (together with the bays, harbours, inlets, creeks and rivers within that area), but less the territory west of a line drawn due north and south from the bay or harbour of Ance Sablon inclusive, as far as the 52nd degree of North Latitude.

The evidence between the years 1854 (when the final step was taken to make Newfoundland a responsible self-governing colony) and 1880 when the Order-in-Council referred to in paragraph 30 hereof was issued makes any other view untenable. These years are of peculiar importance in this dispute, because in them the question of the interior boundaries of the peninsula first assumed practical importance. In 1857 the Committee of the House of Commons referred to in paragraph 4 hereof, was appointed to inquire into the affairs of the Hudson's Bay Company's territories. The question was raised whether Fort Nascopie (situate on the second northern bay of Lake Petitsikapau, practically at the height of land at the source of the Hamilton River) was within the jurisdiction of the Company or of Newfoundland, and the evidence on this point of Sir George Simpson for many years Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company should, it is submitted, be given great weight, as expressing the official view of the Company as to what was understood to be and was treated as the area comprised in the "coast" of Labrador. Sir George Simpson considered that Fort Nascopie was within the jurisdiction of the Newfoundland Government. Cf. his evidence before the Committee, and also a letter dated 17th January, 1849, to Sir Henry J. Tetley, forwarding from Earl Grey a despatch from the Governor General of Canada with letters from one Kennedy, making charges against the Hudson's Bay Company, and Sir George Simpson's reply. In this correspondence Mr. Kennedy described a journey from Hudson's Straits with Indians six hundred miles through the interior of Labrador, and the murder in 1840 of one Indian by another at Fort Nascopie. Sir George Simpson replied that even if he had known of this murder earlier he could have done nothing, because the murder was "committed within the jurisdiction of Newfoundland, where the Company have no exclusive rights of trade, but are merely as one in the crowd of traders," the only difference being that the Company penetrates to parts of the country inaccessible to many others.

I. pp. 217-244.

In the same Report of the Hudson's Bay Company Committee, Questions and Answers 26, 739, and 3106 support the submission that it was generally believed and understood that the boundaries in Labrador were determined on a "watershed" or "height-of-land" basis. Moreover J. Arrowsmith's map (dated 1857), which was referred to in the proceedings, and is attached to the Report and was ordered by the House of Commons to be printed, emphasises this height of land basis, and assigns to Newfoundland the boundaries claimed by her in this Arbitration. This map was included in the Atlases on both sides in the Alaska boundary dispute, in which it was described by Mr. Dickinson for the United States as fairly to be considered as an official map. It is supported by other authoritative maps of the period, and must, it may confidently be assumed, have been before those responsible between 1867 and 1880 for the British North America Acts, the Ruperts Land Acts, and the Order-in-Council of 1880. These statutes and Order-in-Council were definitely concerned with the interior limits of territory in the Labrador Peninsula, so that it is important to observe what strong confirmation is given to the evidence already mentioned by two official acknowledgments made by the Canadian Government, first by their official maps of the period, which assign to Newfoundland precisely the area which she now claims, and secondly by the correspondence in 1874 between the Canadian Government and the British Embassy at Washington in reference to the boundary now in dispute. In the course of this correspondence Lord Dufferin, then Governor General of Canada, stated that the line of division in the interior had only been defined as far north as the 52nd degree of north latitude, but that it had always been assumed that the boundary line in the interior would have taken the direction laid down on the accompanying map which followed the height of land. (It has not been possible to trace the actual map so described.)

37. In support of the submission in paragraph 36 hereof the Colony of Newfoundland will rely upon:

(a) a consideration of the maps which will be submitted to the Judicial Committee, as affording

p. 33

III. p. 984, 1. 44.

evidence that according to the general belief and reputation prevailing at all material times, the jurisdiction of the Government of Newfoundland extended as far inland as the height of land; and

pp. 975, 982.

(b) the facts referred to in paragraphs 9 to 12 (inclusive), 15 to 18 (inclusive), 23 to 29 (inclusive), as showing that from 1763 to 1880 Newfoundland and Newfoundland alone effectively controlled and occupied the area from the coastline back to the height of land. The Government of Newfoundland in exercising jurisdiction was consciously claiming possessory rights, as appears as early as 1766 from Governor Palliser's proposals for military blockhouses for the purpose (inter alia) of establishing the possessory right to the whole country (cf. the Appendices to the Report of the Lords of Trade dated 13th May, 1766).

38. Even apart from the considerations urged 20 in paragraphs 36 and 37 it is submitted that in any event the conclusion suggested in paragraph 36 necessarily follows from the use of the expression the "coast of Labrador." The line of the crest of the watershed is the only boundary in the interior for which any principle of reason or law can fairly be advanced. At the dates material to be considered for the purposes of the present arbitration, the occupation of a coast would have conferred upon the occupying state a right to the hinterland as far as the height of land, and it is contended that by parity of reasoning the grant of a coast would, in the absence of indication to the contrary, confer jurisdiction over an area similarly limited; and in the present instance, so far from there being any indication to the contrary, the reasons put forward in paragraphs 36 and 37 support the conclusion which would normally be reached, and there is in addition the consideration that the crest of the watershed would be a natural limit to impose in a "grant to the end that open and free fishing . . . might be extended to and carried on upon the coast of Labrador," since it would be contemplated that the fishing to be encouraged would be for cod on the sea-shore, but also for salmon along the rivers, as far as the fishermen cared to go.

I. 14.

In support of the proposition that at the material dates the occupation of a coast would have conferred upon the occupying state a right to the hinterland as far as the height of land, reference can be made to the Louisiana boundary controversy. The American Commissioners contended that the correct principle was that settlements on the seacoast should be taken to extend to the crest of the watershed. They pointed out that it was impossible to accept either of the extreme views, viz. : on the one hand that settlement only entitled the settler to the area actually occupied by him (which in the normal case of occupation by one or a few ships under a commission would have been so small as to be valueless), and, on the other hand, that settlement on a part of an unappropriated or partly unappropriated continent entitled the settler to the whole or the whole of the unappropriated parts of that continent. Messrs Pinckney & Monroe, in a letter of the 20th April, 1805, to Don Pedro Cevallos, setting out the American case say: "The principles are those which have been recognised by European Powers in similar transactions, and which, of course, ought to govern the present one . . . The first of these is that when any

p. 2124.

European nation takes possession of any extent of sea-coast that possession is understood as extending into the interior country to the sources of the rivers emptying within that coast, to all their branches and the country they cover." They point out how necessary "it is that there should be some such defining principle, and how just this principle is as well as practicable. Nature seems to have destined a range of territory so described for the same society, to have connected its several parts together by the ties of a common interest, and to have detached them from others." Spain did not challenge the principle thus contended for. The United States' Secretary of State, in a letter to Don Luis de Onis of the 12th March, 1818, observed that in the letter of the 20th April, 1805, Messrs. Pinckney & Monroe "lay down and establish by a chain of reasoning that neither Mr. Cevallos at the time, nor your Government at any period since then, ever attempted to break, three principles sanctioned alike by immutable . . . " . . . justice, and the general practice of European nations which have formed settlements and held possessions in this Hemisphere, and by the application of which to the facts also stated in their note this question of the Western Boundary ought to have been and ultimately must be settled." The first of these principles was that set out above, i.e., the watershed theory.

Nor is it immaterial to note that in the Ontario-Manitoba Boundary dispute, which came before the Privy Council in 1884 after a previous arbitration at Ottawa in 1878, the Dominion of Canada contended that the northern boundary of Ontario was the height of land dividing the rivers flowing into Hudson's Bay from the waters flowing into the Great Lakes. The issue largely turned upon the construction of the words of the Quebec Act 1774, defining the northern boundary of that Province as the "Southern boundary of the territory granted to the Merchant Adventurers Trading to Hudson's Bay," and the words of the Order-in-Council and Proclamation of 1791 which divided Quebec into Upper and Lower Canada, and carried the dividing line "north until it strikes the boundary line of Hudson's Bay." The Dominion of Canada did not regard this Northern boundary as of great consequence, but it is noteworthy that in their case, prepared for the 1878 Arbitrators, they supported the proposition that possession of a sea-coast is understood as extending into the interior country to the sources of the rivers emptying within that coast, by reference to Phillimore 2nd Edn., Vol. I, pp. 277-9, the U.S. case in the Louisiana dispute, Twiss Oregon, pp. 209-11, 226, 300. Their case further points out that the Commissioners appointed in 1871 by the Governments of the Dominion and

Ontario, to settle the north and west boundaries of that Province, received from the Dominion instructions, of which the following is an excerpt: "You will then proceed to trace out survey and mark eastwardly the aforementioned Southern boundary of the territory granted to the Merchant Adventurers of England trading to Hudson's Bay. This is well understood to be the height of land dividing the waters which flow into Hudson's Bay from those emptying into the valleys of the Great . . ."

39. The Colony of Newfoundland accordingly submits that the Judicial Committee should define as the boundary north of the 52nd degree of north latitude the line of the crest of the watershed, which is the height of land, for the following (among other)—

REASONS.

(1) Because the expression "coast" at all times material for the purposes of the present inquiry was understood to include and connote the whole area between the sea and the height of land.

(2) Because the evidence adduced in respect of the crucial years 1854 to 1880 (from the proceedings of the Select Committee of the House of Commons of Great Britain inquiring into the affairs of the Hudson's Bay Company, from the maps issued by the Canadian Government and others, and from the correspondence between the Canadian Government and the British Embassy at Washington) is inconsistent with any other conclusion.

(3) Because in the law of nations at the times material to be considered for the purposes of the present inquiry, the occupation of a "coast" conferred a right to the hinterland as far as the height of land.

(4) Because Newfoundland and Newfoundland alone between 1763 and 1880 effectively controlled and occupied the area from the coast-line back to the height of land.

(5) Because the maps between 1763 and 1880 show that according to the general belief and reputation prevailing at all material times, the jurisdiction of the Government of Newfoundland extended as far inland as the height of the land.

(6) Because no other precise interior boundary had ever been suggested for which definite reasons can be advanced.

I.
THE QUESTION.

1. The Government of the Dominion of Canada and the Government of the Colony of Newfoundland having agreed to petition His Majesty the King to refer to the Judicial Committee of His Privy Council, under the Judicial Committee Act 3-4 Wm. IV. (Imp.), chap. 41, sec. 4, the question:

the following case, setting forth the contention of the Government of Canada upon the question, is delivered pursuant to the agreement dated the 11th day of November, 1920, made between the two governments, as varied by the agreement dated the 2nd day of November, 1922.

The Labrador Peninsula referred to in the question is that portion of the British dominions in North America bounded by the waters of the River and Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Strait of Belleisle on the south and south-east, the North Atlantic Ocean on the east and north-east, Hudson's Strait and Hudson and James Bays on the north and north-west, and joined to the rest of Canada on the south-west by the isthmus which lies between James Bay and the St. Lawrence.

EXPLANATORY.

p. 329. 2. During the French occupation of Canada, there were conflicting claims between France and Great Britain as to the limits of their respective territories in the Peninsula; these were never settled. By the Treaty of Utrecht concluded in 1713, France restored to Great Britain, to be possessed in full right forever, "la baye et le détroit d'Hudson avec toutes les terres, mers, rivages, fleuves et lieux qui en dépendent et qui y sont situés." It was also agreed to determine within a year, by a commission to be named for that purpose, the limits which were to be fixed between Hudson's Bay and the places appertaining to the French, but although the Commission was appointed, its negotiations led to no result.

p. 330. Under the Treaty of Paris of the 10th February, 1763, France ceded to Great Britain in the most ample form and without restriction, Canada with all its dependencies as well as the Island of Cape Breton and all the other islands and coasts in the Gulf and River of St. Lawrence, and in general, everything that depends on the said countries, lands, islands and coasts. The territory so ceded included the whole of the peninsula of Labrador except the portion which, by the Treaty of Utrecht, 1713, had been restored to Great Britain and belonged to the Hudson's Bay Company.

p. 329.

It is not in controversy, or open to controversy that:—

(i) In 1809, immediately before the passing of the Newfoundland Act, 1809, 49 Geo. III., chap. 27

(Imperial), Newfoundland had no rights in or over any part of the Labrador Peninsula, and the extent of territory affected by that Act was then embodied in, and formed part of, the Provincial Territory of Lower Canada as constituted under and in pursuance of the provisions of the Clergy Endowments Canada Act, 1791, also known as the Constitutional Act, of 1791, 31 Geo. III., c. 31 (Imperial).

Vol. 1, p. 164.

(ii) The provincial territory of Lower Canada as so constituted, subject to any rights lawfully created since by competent authority—and the only legislation which purports to create such rights is the Newfoundland Act, 1809, above cited—forms to-day by virtue of the British North America Act, 1840, 3 & 4 Vict. c. 35 (Imperial), and the British North America Act, 1867, 30 & 31 Vict. c. 3 (Imperial), part of the Dominion of Canada, and is subject, as such, to the exclusive governmental and legislative authority of the Dominion of Canada and of the Province of Quebec in which it lies.

Vol. 1, p. 214.

Vol. 1, p. 217.

(iii) All that portion of the Labrador Peninsula which formed part of the Hudson's Bay Company's territory by virtue of the Royal Charter from King Charles of the 2nd May, 1670, conferring on that Company—

Vol. 2, p. 368.

"The sole trade and commerce of all those seas, straits, bays, rivers, lakes, creeks and sounds, in whatsoever latitude they shall be, that lie within the entrance of the straits, commonly called Hudson's Straits, together with all the lands and territories upon the countries, coasts and confines of the seas, bays, lakes, rivers, creeks and sounds aforesaid, that are not already actually possessed by or granted to any of our subjects or possessed by the subjects of any other Christian Prince or State . . . and that the said land be from henceforth reckoned and reputed as one of our Plantations or Colonies in America, called 'Rupert's Land'"

was embodied in the Dominion of Canada by the Imperial Order-in-Council of the 23rd June, 1870, made under the authority conferred by sec. 146 of the British North America Act, 1867 and the Rupert's Land Act, 1868, 31-32 Vict. chap. 105 (Imperial).

(iv) On the 1st September 1880 all British territories and possessions in North America, not already included within the Dominion of Canada, and all islands adjacent to such territories and possessions (with the exception of the Colony of Newfoundland and its dependencies) were, by Imperial Order-in-Council of the 31st July, 1880, annexed to and made part of the Dominion of Canada and subject to the laws of Canada. The Colonial Boundaries Act, 1895 (58-59 Vict. (Imp.), chap. 34), puts beyond question the validity of this exercise of authority by the Crown.

Vol. 1, p. 244.

Vol. 1, p. 245.

It follows that the question to be submitted for decision reduces itself to this:— Over what portion, if any, of the Labrador Peninsula did Newfoundland, by the Act of 1809 above referred to, acquire any rights? That the whole Peninsula forms part of the Dominion of Canada, subject only to such rights as Newfoundland has so acquired, is beyond question. The extent of territory over which Newfoundland so acquired rights must be determined by examination, and interpretation—so far as that may be needful—of the different legislative enactments cited and discussed below. While such rights must, of course, rest upon the operative effect of the Newfoundland Act, 1809, the terms of that enactment make it necessary, for the definition of the extent of territory affected by such rights, to refer to the earlier measures cited below.

Vol. 1, p. 195.

II. LEGISLATION.

3. The pertinent legislation, cited in chronological order, is the following:—

(i) By Commission, dated 25th April, 1763, passed under the Great Seal of Great Britain, His Majesty appointed Captain Thomas Graves to be,—

Vol. 1, p. 149.

"Our Governor and Commander in Chief in and over Our said Island of Newfoundland and all the Coasts of Labradore, from the Entrance of Hudson's Streights to the River St. Johns which discharges itself into the sea, nearly opposite the west end of the Island of Anticosti including that Island with any other small Islands on the said Coast of Labradore and also the Islands of Madelaine in the Gulf of St. Lawrence as also all our Forts and Garrisons erected and established, or that shall be erected and established in Our said Islands of Newfoundland Anticosti and Madelaines or on the Coast of Labradore within the Limits aforesaid."

The powers and authority conferred upon the Governor by this Commission were subject to the following proviso:—

"Provided neither you nor they" (i.e., officers whom he was authorized to appoint) "do any thing by Virtue of this Commission or the Powers hereby granted contrary or roppugnant to the Act for encouraging the Trade to Newfoundland passed in the 10th and 11th years of the reign of King William the third" (the Newfoundland Fishery Act) "nor any way obstruct the Powers thereby given and granted to the Admirals of Harbours or Captains of Our Ships of War or any other matter or thing either prescribed by the said Act or by such instructions as you shall receive from Us as aforesaid."

(ii) By the Royal Proclamation of the th October, 1763, His Majesty announced the provisions made for the government of the territories in America secured to the Crown by the Treaty of Paris of 1763, and the action which he had taken by the Commission, just cited, in respect of the coast of Labrador. That Proclamation is, in part, as follows:—

"WHEREAS We have taken into Our Royal Consideration the extensive and valuable Acquisitions in America, secured to our Crown by the late Definitive Treaty of Peace, concluded at Paris, the 10th day of February last; and being desirous that all Our loving Subjects, as well of our Kingdom as of our Colonies in America, may avail themselves with all convenient speed, of the great Benefits and Advantages which must accrue therefrom to their Commerce, Manufactures, and Navigation, We have thought fit, with the Advice of our Privy Council, to issue this our Royal Proclamation, hereby to publish and declare to all our loving

Vol. 1, p. 154.

"First—The Government of Quebec bounded on the Labrador Coast by the River St. John, and from thence by a Line drawn from the Head of that River through the Lake St. John, to the South end of the Lake Nipissim; from whence the said Line, crossing the River St. Lawrence, and the Lake Champlain, in 45 Degrees of North Latitude, passes along the High Lands which divide the Rivers that empty themselves into the said River St. Lawrence from those which fall into the Sea; and also along the North Coast of the Baye des Chaleurs, and the Coast of the Gulph of St. Lawrence to Cape Rosieres, and from thence crossing the Mouth of the River St. Lawrence by the West End of the Island of Anticosti, terminates at the aforesaid River of St. John.

And be it further enacted, that it shall be lawful for the said Supreme Court of Judicature of the Island of Newfoundland to hold Plea of all Crimes and Misdemeanors, committed, and of all Suits and Complaints of a Civil Nature arising within such Parts of the Coast of Labrador from the River Saint John to Hudson's Streights and the said Island of Anticosti, and all other smaller Islands so re-annexed to the Government of Newfoundland or on the Islands, Seas, and

And whereas under and by virtue of a certain Act passed in the forty-ninth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Third, intituled 'An Act for establishing courts of judicature in the island of Newfoundland, and in the islands adjacent; and for re-annexing part of Labrador, and the islands lying on the said coast to the Government of Newfoundland'; and of the Act passed in the fifth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled 'An Act for the better administration of justice in Newfoundland, and for other purposes,' the coast of Labrador, from the river Saint John to Hudson's Streights, and the Island of Anticosti, and all the Islands adjacent to the said coast, except the islands of Madelaine, are annexed to and form part of the government of Newfoundland; and it is expedient that certain parts of the said coast of Labrador should be re-annexed to and form part of the province of Lower Canada: Be it therefore enacted that so much of the said coast as lies to

CANADA'S CONTENTION.

4. Canada submits, as the basis of her contention, the two following propositions :—

1. The extent of territory within the peninsula of Labrador to-day subject to the authority of Newfoundland is the "coast" which, by the Commission of the 25th April, 1763, hereinabove recited, was, as declared by the Royal Proclamation of the 7th October of that year, put under "the care and inspection" of the Governor of Newfoundland, less the portion thereof re-annexed to the Province of Lower Canada by the British North America (Seigniorial Rights) Acts, 1825, 6 Geo. IV., chap. 59 (Imperial).

2. That the "coast," so described, is a strip of maritime territory, extending from Cape Chidley, at the entrance to Hudson Strait, to the eastern headland of the bay or harbour of Blanc Sablon on the Strait of Belleisle, and comprising, in its depth inland, only so much of the land immediately abutting on the sea, above low-water mark, as was accessible and useful to the British fishermen annually resorting to that coast, in the ordinary conduct of their fishing operations, for the purposes of "the open and free fishery" extended to that coast by the Royal Proclamation and carried on there, and for those purpose only.

These two propositions are, it is submitted, respectively established by the reasons set forth below.

FIRST PROPOSITION.

5. The Newfoundland Act, 1809, 49 Geo. III., chap. 27, sec. 14 (Imperial), constitutes Newfoundland's title to whatever

Vol. 1, p. 195.

Vol. 1, p. 210.
Vol. 2, p. 190. [sic]

rights within the Labrador Peninsula she to-day possesses, but the title which it confers is a title by relation—a title by relation to the Royal Proclamation of 1763 which, with the antecedent Commission, above cited, gives the definition of the extent of territory affected. This is made indisputably clear by the terms of that Act. By it, such parts of the coast of Labrador as His Majesty by His Royal Proclamation of the 7th October, 1763, had been pleased to declare he had put under the care and inspection of the Governor of Newfoundland, were re-annexed to the Government of that island.

The parts of the coast affected by this disposition are not otherwise described or defined by the Act than by recital of, and reference to, the Royal Proclamation of 1763. They are, in the words of the enacting clause of the statute, "such parts of the coast of Labrador from the River Saint John to the Hudson's Straights," etc.... "so annexed to the Government of Newfoundland by the said Proclamation," i.e., of 1763—a limitation which explicitly throws the interpreter back upon the language of the Royal Proclamation. That Proclamation and the Commission of the 25th April, 1763, of which it proclaimed the effect, are, for the purpose of identifying and defining such parts of the coast, Newfoundland's title. Her rights extend over precisely the extent of coast described in those instruments, less, of course, the part which the British North America (Seignorial Rights) Act, 1825 (6 Geo. IV., chap. 59), withdrew and embodied in the Province of Lower Canada. The Newfoundland Act, 1809, dealt solely with the extent of coast (neither increased nor diminished), which the legislation of 1763 had put under the care and inspection of the Governor of Newfoundland.

Vol. 1, pp. 210, 211.

V. SECOND PROPOSITION.

6. The length of the extent of coast now under the authority conferred on the Government of Newfoundland is certain and not a matter of dispute.

It originally extended from the mouth of the River St. John, which empties into the Gulf of St. Lawrence nearly opposite the west end of the Island of Anticosti, to Cape Chidley at the entrance from the Atlantic Ocean to Hudson Strait.

The British North America (Seignorial Rights) Act, 1825, withdrew from Newfoundland's authority and re-annexed to the Province of Lower Canada, the part of the coast extending from mouth of the River St. John to the Bay of Blanc Sablon at the inner entrance to the Strait of Belleisle, including that bay, or as the statute describes it, "so much of the coast as lies to the westward of a line to be drawn due north and south from the bay or harbour of Ance Sablon inclusive, as far as the fifty-second degree of north latitude."

The landward depth of this coast is the matter in dispute, the boundary line between it and the main or inland territory never having been located.

7. The word "coast" as defined by lexicographers from the time Dr. Johnson's great work was first published in 1755 down to the present day, means, "The edge or margin of the land next to the sea, the shore." "It is not used," Johnson's work adds, "for the banks of less waters," e.g., of rivers or lakes. "Sea-shore" is defined as, "The coast of the sea." The words "coast," "sea-shore," and "sea-coast," accordingly, mean and designate the same thing. Such is the primary and natural meaning of the word "coast" when used in its geographical sense; and that is the meaning which the term has invariably been given by the Courts both in England, Canada and the United States. (Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway v. Treat, 121 L.T.R. (P.C.) 657, 658, affirming judgment of the Court of Appeal (B.C.), 1918, 3 W.W.R. 685; The King v. Forty-nine Casks of Brandy, 3 Hagg. Adm.

257; 275, Gammell v. Commissioners of Woods and Forests, 3 Macq. A.C. 419, 460; Regina v. Cox (1859), 1 P.E.I. 170; Soult v. l'Africaine (1804), Bee's Adm. Rep. 204; *United States v. There can, therefore, be no presumption or other reason for construing the term "coast," as used in the Commission and Proclamation of 1763 and in the Acts cited, in any larger sense than is strictly required for the full attainment of the object which the legislator had in view.

8. Canada submits that the true meaning of the term "coast" as used in these instruments—i.e., its meaning as applied to the subject-matter with regard to which it was used, and for the object the legislator had in view—is correctly stated in the second of the above propositions. The precise terms fixing the length of the coast, the declared purpose of the enactments, the description of the power in respect of the coast conferred on the Governor, the nature of his functions and of the power he exercised in Newfoundland itself, the conditions prevailing in that Island, and the purposes and policy of its Government; all these unite to show that the term "coast" was used in that sense.

Vol. 1, p. 49.

9. The precision with which the Commission to Graves fixed the terminal points of the length of that coast restricts its depth well within the limits assigned to by the Dominion's contention. The Commission defines the "coast" as extending "from the entrance of Hudson's Streights" to "the River St. John, which discharges itself into the sea, nearly opposite the west end of the Island of Anticosti." That definition is of a line of "coast" extending from one point to another point; its terms exclude the idea of depth of land upon the coast of Hudson Strait at the one end, or upon the banks of the River St. John at the other.

10. In the Royal Proclamation of 1763, the object which the Crown, as legislator, had in view

when it included the coast of Labrador in the Commission to the Governor of Newfoundland, cited above, is explicitly declared in the following words, viz., "to the end that the open and free fishery of our subjects may be extended to and carried on upon the coast of Labrador and the adjacent islands." It was "that coast"—a "coast" upon which it was physically possible to carry on the operations of the fishery, the coast available and useful for that purpose, that His Majesty was pleased to declare he had put under the "care and inspection" of the Governor of Newfoundland. The purpose so declared is the measure of the depth of that coast. It, that coast, comprises clearly the whole of the coastal area used or susceptible of use for the purposes of fishery referred to, but is as clearly restricted to that area.

11. What was that fishery and what was the extent of coast to which it could be extended and upon which it could be carried on? From the terms of the Commission to Graves above cited, and many other State documents, it is abundantly clear that the fishery described as "the open and free fishery of our subjects" in the Proclamation of 1763 was the free British fishery then carried on upon the coasts of Newfoundland under the rules and regulations of the Newfoundland Fishery Act (10 & 11 Wm. III., chap. 25 (1699), (Imperial)). It is essential, in order to form a clear conception of the nature of this fishery, to advert to the peculiar conditions attaching to the Island of Newfoundland and to the maritime policy with which that fishery was identified.

From its first discovery (Cabot, 1497-98) under Henry VII., Newfoundland became, and has ever since remained, the seat of a great cod fishery. no such protection for themselves and were opposed to its being afforded to others because of the encouragement it would give to the forming of settlements which would, they believed, involve interference with their operations. The controversy which grew out of these conflicting interests early presented for decision the question whether the Island should be allowed, by countenancing settlement, to become a colony, or whether it should be maintained solely and simply as a station for the convenience of English fishermen. The decision finally arrived at by the King in Council, not without some vacillation, was that there should be no colony, and, accordingly, it became the settled policy of the British Government to discourage and even to prevent, colonization of the Island and to treat it solely as a station for its fishery, which was regarded, of course, for its merchantable value but principally as a training ground for seamen and the source from which the Navy drew its best recruits. The Act of 10 & 11 Wm. III., C. 25, was founded upon this policy, and was little more than an enactment, with some alterations, of the regulations which had been theretofore prescribed by the King in Council. The policy of this measure was pursued and strengthened by several later Acts (viz., 15 Geo. III. (1775, chap. 31); 26 Geo. III. (1786, chap. 26); 29 Geo. III. (1789, chap. 53)), and was not abolished before the enactment of the Imperial Act 5 Geo. IV. (1824, chap. 51).

12. The fishery promoted and carried on under the regulations of the Act of 10 & 11 Wm. III., c. 25, was a deep-sea cod fishery, including the right to take bait. All British subjects, in general, were free to engage in this sea fishery, but the right to use the shore and the land contiguous thereto for the purposes of the fishery was reserved exclusively for British subjects going out to fish there in ships annually fitted out from some port in Great Britain. The coast of Labrador was put under the Governor of Newfoundland, because it was evidently thought that, as a fishery, it would form a natural appendage to this Newfoundland fishery.

Vol. 1, pp. 250-251.

13. Unlike the fishermen engaged in the sea fishing in the waters surrounding Great Britain, where they had not, at common law, any right to use the land above high-water mark, the British fishermen who came out annually to Newfoundland were, under the Act of 10 & 11 Wm., c. 25, granted

"liberty to go on shore . . . for the curing, salting, drying and husbanding of their Fish, and for making of Oil, and to cut down Woods and Trees there for building and making or repairing of Stages, Ship-rooms, Trainfats, Hurdles, Ships, Boats, and other Necessaries for themselves and their Servants, Seamen, and Fishermen, and all other Things which may be useful or advantageous to their Fishing Trade."

For the purposes so specified, but none other, the fishermen were at liberty to use the sea-shore and the contiguous land, on the coasts of Newfoundland, and likewise on the coast of Labrador when that fishery was, in 1763, made a part of the Newfoundland fishery.

The depth of the coast above high-water mark that can be used for these purposes can be determined, it is submitted, only upon evidence of the extent of coast which has been used in connection with this and other like fisheries, and of what, in the judgment of experienced persons, can be used for such purposes. There will be found in the Joint Appendix to this case evidence of both classes, which, it is confidently submitted, affords convincing proof that the "coast" is nothing more than the limited strip of maritime territory defined in the second of the above propositions; and furthermore, that that "coast," having regarding to the maximum area required for the free and full pursuit of the fishery and for every possible economic use of the coast in connection with the fishery, can have, at the utmost, a depth from the high-water mark on the sea-shore of one mile.

Vol. 1, p. 154.

14. The terms used in the Proclamation of 1763 to describe the authority conferred on the Governor of Newfoundland further confirm the Dominion's contention with regard to the depth of the coast. The Proclamation declares that the King had put that coast and the adjacent islands "under the care and . . ."

p. 56

" . . . inspection" of the Governor of Newfoundland. These words are most apt as descriptive of supervision, to be given from the ocean to a strip of coast adjoining it, by a naval officer with his seat of government—so far as his functions can be called government—upon board a man-of-war. They are singularly ill-chosen, if there was any intention to make provision for the government of a vast Province, extending inland many miles from the sea. The inference to be drawn from these terms—indeed, the inference which they impose—finds striking confirmation not only in what has been said in the preceding paragraphs, but in what is stated in the next paragraph in regard to the nature of the Governor's authority and functions at Newfoundland itself, the conditions prevailing in that Island, and the peculiar maritime policy pursued by the Mother Country, before and throughout the whole period of the legislation (1763-1825) in regard to that Island and its government.

15. The Commission of Governor of the Island was invariably given, at the request of the Admiralty, to the naval officer chosen by the Admiralty to command the King's ships on that station. His most important functions were the supervision and control of the fishery. He came out every year at the opening of the fishing season and left at its close. He had no power to make laws, neither was he authorised to make grants of land. He was given certain powers in regard to the administration of justice, but these were required to be exercised in subservience to the due execution of the fishery laws, and were, in truth, simply those necessary for the maintenance of order in the fishery. As a contemporary writer expressed it, in an elaborate treatise prepared in 1752 for the use of Pelham, the First Lord of the Treasury, and Granville, the President of the Council, "the object of that government relates to a kind of police amongst fisher men and to them only." That, indeed, was the entire object of his government. Official documents and contemporary statesmen and publicists speak of Newfoundland itself as a great ship, provisioned and outfitted by the Mother Country, and moored near the banks during the fishing season for the convenience of English fishermen; and of its government, as a floating government. Edmund Burke, speaking in the House of Commons, described the Governor as "A military officer living on board a man-of-war." He neither possessed nor exercised the powers essential for the civil government of any territory. He was equipped for the care and inspection of a fishery, but nothing more.

Newfoundland, as has been stated, was not considered to be a colony, such as the other Provinces in America were. The entire policy pursued with regard to the Island, was to maintain it solely and simply as a fishing station for the use and benefit of the fishermen from England and of the trade of the merchants in that country who employed and supplied them. It was essentially a nautical policy, founded upon the principle that a temporary or transitory fishery provided the best nursery for able and experienced seamen to man the Royal Navy. That end was constantly kept in view, and anything in the nature of settlement in the Island was frowned upon and discouraged as tending to defeat it. Conditions on the Island were such as the policy indicated would naturally produce. Newfoundland was a temporary fishery, and nothing more. The Labrador coast

Graham,

Vol. 3, p. 909.

was to be a temporary fishery, and nothing more. In neither was any permanent residence or settlement intended, and therefore no civil government was either necessary or could be established in such places. Both were to be preserved as temporary fisheries, "under such regulations and such administration of justice" as the Lords of Trade stated in their report of the 8th July, 1763, "as is best suited to that end." The care and inspection that was sufficient for the one was sufficient for the other. These were the reasons, as the Lords of Trade stated, which induced His Majesty to put the coast of Labrador, as a fishery, under the supervision of the Governor of Newfoundland.

16. Newfoundland itself has consistently followed out the policy of dealing with the coast of Labrador as a fishing coast and nothing more. She was not, at the time that coast was first confided to the care and inspection of her Governor, and has never since

Vol. 3, pp. 1639-1645.

been, equipped or in a position effectively to extend her government to the extensive inland territory of the Peninsula. It may without exaggeration be said that she has never attempted or pretended to do so. Her entire action—till within very recent years when she seems to have been tempted to reach out to appropriate the timber wealth of the interior—may be invoked as demonstrating that her own comprehension of the extent of the coast under her care and inspection was that which Canada herein contends it to be.

Vol. 3, pp. 893 to 1235.

17. Canada submits that its contention with regard to the meaning of the term "coast" as used in the Statutes, Orders-in-Council and Proclamations, is fully established by the reasons stated above, and that this is the precise and unambiguous meaning of the term which the language of those instruments with the evidence afforded or indicated by them, does itself declare. Though, in view of this conclusion, it is not necessary to refer to other evidence for the purpose of elucidating the intention of the legislator, there will be found in the Joint Appendix a series of documents which show that the contemporaneous interpretation of the legislation, so far as the same can be found in the words and actions of those concerned or charged with their enactment or execution, is not only consistent with, but abundantly confirms, the meaning which Canada has given to the term "coast" as being the meaning which the legislator himself attached to that term.

Vol. 1, p. 61.

The effect of this evidence is set forth in the form of an historical narrative in an Annex set out hereafter. It is thought that such a narrative may serve as a guide to the examination of the documents contained in the Joint Appendix, so far as much examination may be considered necessary.

18. The "coast" to which Newfoundland's rights extend being essentially limited to the narrow margin of land immediately bordering on the sea-coast of the Peninsula useful for purposes connected with the fishery—that is, the coast, as an adjunct of the sea and the sea fishery—it follows, as a logical corollary, that wherever rivers cut the coastline throughout its length from Blanc Sablon to Cape Chidley, the rivers themselves are to be treated precisely in the same way as the land through which they flow, that is to say the physical line represented by the high-water mark on the sea-coast (from which the boundary line of the coast inland is to be measured and located) is to be taken as crossing the mouth of each river at the point which marks the limit between the river and the sea. Most of the rivers discharging on the coast are inconsiderable streams, but at one place, namely, at that point on the coast where the Hamilton River system through its outlet, the river known as the "Narrows," falls into the sea or inlet, the location of the coast-line is a matter of special importance. This is by reason of the fact that the area affected is probably the most valuable portion of the territory in dispute. It was attempted encroachments by Newfoundland within this territory that brought the question of the boundary now submitted to a definite issue. The Hamilton River system, of which the Narrows is the channel of discharge, is one of the principal river systems of the Peninsula. It includes, in addition to the great trunk stream of that name and its large expansion, Lake Melville, many tributaries of which the most important are the Northwest (the outlet of Grand Lake and its tributaries) and the Kenamou rivers. These rivers flow into Lake Melville near its head.

The outlet from Lake Melville by the Narrows is divided by a large island—Henrietta island—into two relatively shallow streams, one passing to the westward and the other to the eastward of the Island. These streams join on the north-east side of the Island in a single stream which flows in a channel, confined for the most part by bold, rocky banks, and of an average width of little over a mile for a distance of about seven miles to Double Mer and Lester Points. Below these Points, the channel widens out slightly and in this part is joined by the long, narrow water-way called Double Mer which opens up to the west-ward. Further on, the channel contracts to a width of about two miles and terminates, at a distance of about seven miles from Double Mer and Lester Points, in two points called Ticoralak and Turner headlands, where it discharges into the open expanse of the Hamilton inlet. Lake Melville is tidal though the rise is small. Sea fish, such as cod and other forms of marine life, do not inhabit its waters. The behaviour of the flow and the character of the water in the Narrows are distinctively characteristic of a tidal river.

That the coast-line crosses the river below a line connecting Lester and Double Mer Points is, it is submitted, clearly established by the results of the various surveys, tests and investigations carried out in these waters and set forth in the reports by the Canadian Hydrographic and Tidal Survey Branch, the Geodetic Survey of Canada, and the Geological Survey of Canada, and by the other documents which will be found in the joint appendix. Where this line is to be located cannot be stated with exactitude, but the conditions all indicate that the coastline would be properly drawn between Ticoralak and Turner headlands.

VI. CONCLUSION.

The Dominion of Canada, therefore, submits that the true boundary between Canada and Newfoundland in the Labrador peninsula is a line demarking the area of the coast accessible and useful for the fishery, in accordance with the second of the above propositions. It is recognized that it may be found impracticable to lay down such a line upon the land. Neither party should suffer by reason of this difficulty. Canada, however, suggests, though it involve some sacrifice of territory on her part, that the boundary be located and defined as a line to be drawn from the eastern headland of the bay or harbour of Blanc Sablon, on the south, to Cape Chidley, on the north, at a distance from high-water mark on the sea-coast of the peninsula of Labrador of one mile.

HISTORICAL NARRATIVE

It will be convenient to set out the facts to be adverted to under this heading in the order of the historical periods signalled by the several legislative changes affecting the governmental administration of the coast of Labrador.

FIRST PERIOD: FROM TREATY OF PARIS, 1763 TO THE BRITISH NORTH AMERICA (QUEBEC) ACT, 1774.

1. In consequence of the Treaty of Paris of the 10th February, 1763, it became necessary for the British Government to make plans for the government and administration of Canada and the other newly acquired territories in North America. The first measures taken by Great Britain were to make effective, on her part, the exclusive possession of the valuable fisheries on the coasts of Labrador as well as on the coasts of Newfoundland and in contiguous waters.

Vol. 1, p. 330.

On the 8th March, 1763, the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations (hereinafter referred to as the Lords of Trade) were instructed by the Secretary of State to consider the fifth and sixth Articles of the Treaty with relation to French fishing rights with a view to proposing any necessary changes in the instructions to the Governor of Newfoundland.

Vol. 2, p. 386.

On the 15th March, they reported that, these fisheries having become a matter of infinite extent and of the utmost importance, some additional measures and additional instructions were absolutely necessary for securing the exclusive possession of them to His Majesty's subjects and preventing the French from partaking of the benefit thereof. With regard to the coast of Labrador, it would be impossible, they said, to secure the exclusive possession of the fisheries on this coast within the Gulf or to prevent the French continuing to have the full benefit of their former commerce with the Indians on that coast, unless some British settlements should be made there or sufficient cruisers stationed with instructions to the commanders to seize all French ships coming within a certain distance of that coast.

Vol. 2, p. 387.

2. As it was not of the policy of the Government to encourage settlements on that coast, the former alternative was set aside and the problem of a coast guard was solved by the King's decision to extend the jurisdiction of the Governor of Newfoundland to the coast of Labrador. This decision was communicated by the Secretary of State to the Lords of Trade on the 24th March, and they were, accordingly, instructed to prepare drafts of a fresh commission and amended instructions for the Governor of Newfoundland.

Vol. 2, p. 389.

3. The new Commission dated April 25th, 1763, appointed Captain Thomas Graves to be Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Island of Newfoundland and the coast of Labrador in the terms hereinabove quoted. His powers, as set forth in his Commission, were similar to those given in the commissions of previous Governors. He was given power to appoint judges and commissioners of Oyer and Terminer for the hearing of all criminal causes (treason excepted) according to law, and for awarding execution thereupon, and justices of the peace with other necessary officers for the administration of justice and keeping the peace of the said Island and coast.

Vol. 1, p. 149.

But he was enjoined that, in the exercise of the powers conferred upon him by the Commission, neither he nor any of the officers whom he might appoint should do anything repugnant to the Act of 10 & 11 William III., chap. 25, and he was particularly forbidden to interfere with the Admirals of Harbours or Captains of His Majesty's ships of war, in the performance of their duties under this Act.

The commissions given to the succeeding Governors, during this period (Captain Hugh Palliser, 1764-1768; Captain John Byron, 1769-1771, and Commodore Shuldham, 1771-1774) were similar, in all material respects, to Graves' commission.

4. His Instructions, dated 29th March, 1763, set forth in 76 articles, related mainly to the general supervision and protection of the fishery, the enforcement of the regulations of the Act of 10 & 11 William III., chap. 25, with relation to the trade and fishery at Newfoundland, and reporting on the state of the trade and fishery there.

Vol. 2, p. 411.

These Instructions were reinforced by the Instructions which he received from the Lords of the Admiralty, on the 2nd May, as Commander of the Kings's ships on the Newfoundland station. He was directed, inter alia, to settle and guard the fisheries on the coasts of Newfoundland and Labrador as far north as British subjects should be employed in catching and drying fish.

Vol. 2, p. 391.

5. So far the measures of the Government were confined to securing the exclusive possession of the fisheries on the coasts of Labrador and Newfoundland. On the 5th May, 1763, the Lords of Trade were ordered to report by what regulations the most extensive advantages might be derived from the cessions on the continent of North America made by France and Spain by the Treaty of Paris and How those advantages might be rendered most permanent and secure to His Majesty's trading subjects. In their report of the 8th June, 1763, the Lords of Trade discussed at length the different advantages arising from the cessions made by the Treaty of Peace. In considering how these advantages could be rendered most permanent and secure to His Majesty's trading subjects, they had to take into account three separate interests, fortunately so localised that conflict between them was unnecessary. These interests were: (1) the settled portion of the country, which was occupied by French inhabitants and a steadily increasing number of British people from Great Britain and the older colonies; (2) the tribes of Indians whose hunting grounds lay to the east, north, west and south of the settled districts; and (3) the British fishermen whose seasonal operations in Newfoundland waters were being extended to the waters on the coast of Labrador.

Vol. 2, p. 406.

Vol. 3, p. 899.

Vol. 3, p. 903.

6. The Lords of Trade submitted, as their opinion, that the advantages resulting from the cessions could only be secured and improved by an immediate establishment of regular civil governments in all such places where planting and settlement as well as trade and commerce were the immediate objects. They, accordingly, proposed the erection of a civil government in the settled portion of Canada. This section was but a small portion of the immense tract of country which had been possessed and claimed by the French as Canada. Within the limits proposed for this area the inhabitants were to have the advantages of a regular civil government.

"But as no such regular civil Government is either necessary or, indeed, can be established, where no perpetual residence or planting is intended; It will there be sufficient," the Lords of Trade stated dealing now with the other two interests referred to above, "to provide for the free Trade of all Your Majesty's subjects under such Regulations, and such Administration of Justice as is best suited to that End. Such We apprehend to be the case of Newfoundland, where a temporary Fishery is the only object, and this We suppose has been the reason, which induced Your Majesty to annex the Coast of Labrador to that Government; And such we apprehend will be the Case of that Territory in North America which in Your Majesty's justice and Humanity as well as sound Policy is proposed to be left, under Your Majesty's immediate Protection to the Indian Tribes for their hunting grounds; where no Settlement by planting is intended, immediately at least, to be attempted; and consequently where no particular form of Civil Government can be established. In such Territory we should propose, that a free Trade with the Indian Tribes should be granted to all Your Majesty's Colonies and Subjects under such Regulations as shall be judged most proper for that End, and under the protection of such Military Force, to be kept up in the different Posts & Forts in the Indian Country as may be judged necessary, as well for the Protection of Trade and the good Treatment of the Indians as the Maintenance of Your Majesty's Sovereignty and the general defence of North America."

Vol. 3, p. 915.

Pending the receipt of more exact information the Lords of Trade proposed that a large tract of country around the Great Lakes and beyond the sources of the rivers which fall into the River St. Lawrence from the North, should be left as an Indian country, open to trade, but not to grants and settlements.

7. On the 14th July, 1763, the Lords of Trade were informed that their report had been considered by the King and that he approved of the proposed erection of the three new governments of Canada, East Florida, and West Florida. But, with regard to the Indian territory, His Majesty, foreseeing difficulties arising from the lack of some form of civil government in the Indian territory, as proposed, and from the possibility of some foreign power taking possession of this territory as derelict, was of the opinion, that the Great Lakes should be included, with the country, as far north and west as the limits of the Hudson's Bay Company and the Mississippi; and also that all lands whatsoever ceded by the late treaty and which were not already included within the limits of His Majesty's ancient colonies, or intended to form the Governments of East and West Florida, should be assigned to the Government of Canada, but, under the restriction recommended as to grants and settlements, unless their Lordships had some other suggestion to make for obviating the difficulties mentioned.

Vol. 3, p. 919.

8. In a representation of the 5th August, 1763, the Lords of Trade concurred in His Majesty's opinion as to the propriety of putting the Indian territory under a particular government by Commission under the Great Seal, but pointed out objections to attaching it to any one existing government and particularly that of Canada. They proposed, instead, that a commission for the government of this country should be given to the Commander-in-Chief of His Majesty's troops, but, as the preparation of the instructions to such Governor would require a great variety of information, they suggested that the issuing of such commission and instructions should be delayed until they were able to make a full and particular report on the subject. In the meantime, they proposed that a proclamation be immediately issued "as well on account of the late complaints of the Indians and the actual . . . "

Vol. 3, p. 920.

" . . . disturbances in consequence, as of your Majesty's fixed determination, to permit no grants of lands nor any settlements to be made within certain fixed bounds . . . leaving all that territory within it free for the hunting grounds of those Indian nations subjects of Your Majesty," &c.

Vol. 3, p. 921.

On the 19th September, 1763, His Majesty, through the Secretary of State, approved of the proposal of the Lords of Trade and of the issue of the Proclamation recommended, and expressed his opinion that such proclamation might, with great propriety, provide for the other matters which are dealt with in it. The Royal Proclamation was accordingly, approved and published on the 7th October, 1763.

Ante pp. 43-45.

The material parts of this Proclamation are hereinabove set out.

9. Arrangements were made in accordance with the terms of the Proclamation. On November 21st, 1763, a Commission issued appointing James Murray Captain and Governor-in-Chief of the Province of Quebec, and in his Instructions, which were passed on the 17th December, he was authorised to dispose of the Crown lands of the Province, as directed by the Proclamation. In the provisions for the establishment of a civil government, and the promoting of settlement by the granting of Crown lands to intending settlers in that Province, the difference may be seen between the royal intentions as respects Quebec, on the one hand, and Newfoundland, on the other, with which the fortunes of the coast of Labrador were identified. In the latter case, there was no Civil Government established, nor were any provisions made for permanent settlements.

Vol. 2, p. 411.

10. Captain Hugh Palliser was, on the 9th April, 1764, appointed Governor of Newfoundland and served in that capacity for the unusual period of four years (1764-1768). To him fell the task of carrying into execution the royal intentions with regard to the extension of "the open and free fishery" to the coast of Labrador. He undertook this duty with memorable spirit and ability. His proceedings and the controversies to which they gave rise set in a clear light the policy which, with some modifications, was continuously pursued by the British Government with regard to that coast until 1824. Quite clear and definite was his conception of the area of the coast which had been placed under his authority, for in his official reports and correspondence with the home authorities, he repeatedly referred to the coast of Labrador as "the fishing coast," "that new fishing coast" and "the new fishing coast of Labrador"; and he formally defined the coast of Labrador under his authority as "an extent of 310 leagues of sea-coast." A later Governor, Commodore Shuldham, defined the coast in substantially the same terms.

Palliser, in accordance with his Commission and Instructions, pursued the traditional policy of the British Government with regard to the Newfoundland fishery and endeavoured to extend that policy to the Labrador coast which had, in effect, been merged in that fishery. He was confronted by two obstacles: the hostility of the Eskimos inhabiting the Atlantic seaboard northward from the Strait of Belleisle, and the presence on the coast of the Gulf of inhabitants of Quebec claiming, either under French titles or leases granted by General Murray when he was Military Governor of Quebec, the right to exclusive possession and permanent occupation of certain extensive tracts that sea-coast with the adjacent islands, for the carrying on of the sedentary fishery. The latter was a fishery for seal and seacows (walrus), requiring fixed possession and permanent occupation of the places on the sea-coast where it was carried on, whereas the fishery carried on under the Act of 10 & 11 William III., chap. 25, was a transitory cod fishery, for the conduct of which it was essential that the whole sea-coast should remain open and free to the British adventurers from Europe to enjoy their privilege of the first choice of places on shore yearly for the fishery, according to the rules prescribed by that Act.

Vol. 3, pp. 930 to 933,
946.

Vol. 3, p. 942, 943.

In order to extend this free fishery to the new field and to maintain it upon its original principles, Palliser sought, on the one hand, to conciliate the Eskimos, and, on the other, to rid the coast of the sedentary fishermen; to this end, he made and published from time to time regulations for the coast of Labrador. These regulations did not deal with the variety of matters which one would expect, if he had considered the area of the coast under his authority to be an extensive region. They were directed solely to the establishment of the fishery and the regulation of matters incidental thereto. His first regulations were published in 1765. They ordained, inter alia, that all the rules and regulations of the Act of 10 & 11 William III., c. 25, should be strictly observed on the coast; forbade all persons from the colonies (except whale fishers within the Gulf of St. Lawrence who were allowed a limited privilege of landing on that part of the coast to cut up their whales and to make oil) to resort to that coast and reserved the whole coast for the use of the qualified British fishing ships annually arriving from His Majesty's dominions in Europe. In addition, the regulations provided special privileges, in the nature of rewards, to encourage the industry of the British ship fishers in the cod fishery: the first arriving ship in any harbour, in addition to being Admiral, should have the privilege of leaving a crew for the winter seal and whale fishing; the second arriving ship, besides being Vice-Admiral, should have the exclusive right to all the salmon fishing in that harbour during that season, and the third arriving ship, besides being Rear-Admiral, should enjoy the exclusive privilege of trading with the Indians that might come within the limits of that harbour.

By these regulations and the measures he took to enforce them, Palliser conceived that he had laid the coast open and free to all the King's subjects from his dominions in Europe, agreeably to the Newfoundland Fishery Act above cited, which he held to extend, under his Commission and Instructions, to the coast of Labrador. The exclusive possessions on the fishing coast held by the colonists as mentioned above, operated, Palliser held, to the absolute exclusion of the adventurers' ships from Great Britain as well as all other of the King's subjects and, therefore, were directly contrary and repugnant to the true meaning and intent of the Act of 10 & 11 William III., c. 25, and to the provisions of the Royal Proclamation of 1763.

Palliser designed, by his regulations, to annul the grants under which these exclusive possessions were claimed, and determined to remove all the settlers under them. Such of them as were within his reach he did dispossess. His proceedings caused many complaints to be brought before the Lords of Trade and led to a very long inquiry, extending over several years.

11. The transactions of the home authorities show, in the same striking manner as the Governor's proceedings, that they considered and dealt with the coast of Labrador solely as a fishery. In 1765 and again in 1766, the Lords of Trade took occasion to consider the state of the coast of Labrador. They seemed to have been unable at this time, for want of full information, to form a definite opinion as to what plan of commercial regulations it might be proper finally to adopt for securing to the Kingdom every advantage that could be derived from this coast. It appeared, however, to the Board in 1765, from the best information they had been able to collect, that the fisheries on that coast would require a separate consideration and could not properly fall under regulations approved for the Island of Newfoundland, for, although an advantageous cod fishery might be established on some parts of the coast of Labrador, more especially in the northward, yet it was certain that the whale, seal and sea-cow fishery had been, theretofore, and would most probably continue to be, the principal objects of attention and pursuit in those parts of His Majesty's dominions.

On the other hand, it appeared, as the Board in 1766 pointed out, to be the opinion of His Majesty's Governor that the greatest commercial benefit to be derived from this coast was that of a cod fishery, and that the seal and sea-cow fishery neither had been nor ever could be other than a secondary object of attention, confined to particular parts of the coast, and carried on at a season when it would not interfere with the other more important fishery for cod. Although they submitted to His Majesty's termination the question of how far the Governor's regulations were correct in point of policy or in any other respect proper and expedient, they considered at the only difficulty affecting the consideration of the question was the nature of the tenure under which the exclusive posts on the coast were held and claimed, as these regulations did, in their opinion, point out a method by which the Kingdom might avail itself of the benefits of an oil fishery, without the continuance of exclusive possessions in the hands of Americans, operating as monopolies and to the establishment of an illicit trade in foreign products.

Vol. 3, p. 986.

12. A short time later, the Lords of Trade considered the complaints of the Quebec merchants and settlers on the coast. With regard to the exclusion of His Majesty's American subjects from the fishery on the Labrador coast, they were of the opinion that the design of the statute of 10 & 11 William, III., c.25, was only to encourage His Majesty's British subjects in preference to all others, but not (as Governor Palliser seemed to have understood) to exclude from the fishery ships fitted out from America. The Secretary of State approved of this construction of the statute, and, by his direction, the Lords of the Admiralty on the 2nd of June, 1766, issued an additional instruction to Palliser, requiring him "not to interrupt His Majesty's said American subjects in fishing, provided they conform to the established rules of fishing."

Vol. 2, pp. 446-449.

Pursuant to this instruction, Palliser, on the 1st August 1766, published an order giving notice that all vessels from the Plantations would be admitted to the Labrador coast on the same footing as they ever had been admitted at Newfoundland, "the ancient practices and customs established in Newfoundland respecting the cod fishery under the Act of Parliament passed in the 10 & 11 William III., commonly called the Fishing Act, always to be observed."

Vol. 3, p. 1163.

Vol. 3, p. 1010.

Under the authority of the same instruction, Palliser, during this season erected and garrisoned a blockhouse, which was called York Fort, at Pitt's Harbour in Chateau Bay, "for the security and encouragement of the adventurers to that coast." This fort, which was the only one ever erected on the coast, was maintained until August 1775, when, on a report that British ship fishers did not consider this establishment essential to the extension of their interests in the fishery or for the security of their possessions, Commodore Duff caused it to be closed.

13. On the 10th August, 1767, Palliser published further regulations for the encouragement of the ship fishery on the coast. These regulations permitted the ship adventurers (but no one else) who might first clear and make new fishing places and erect new stages and other works on the coast, to enjoy the same so long as they continued to resort to and use them from year to year successively, with fishing ships fitted out from Britain, and no longer, the same to become common and public on the first builders thereof once ceasing to use them during one season. The regulations further declared that, for better securing the ship fishers' works from being destroyed in their absence, no person could be permitted to stay on the coast in the winter, except that, as a reward and encouragement to the most adventurous and industrious ship fishers, the masters of three of the first arriving fishing ships at or within the limits of each principal harbour might choose to leave each a crew of twelve men for the winter's seal fishery.

Vol. 3, p. 1021.

14. On the 3rd March, 1768, the Lords of Trade reported to the King that, having referred certain claims of the inhabitants of the province of Quebec to the exclusive possession of land and fishing posts on the coast of Labrador to the Attorney and Solicitor General for their advice, they were clearly of the opinion that these claims, standing as they did then, could not in any judicial inquiry be allowed as valid and effectual, and ought not, therefore, to stand in the way of any regulations and arrangements His Majesty might make in the government and direction of that coast. They were, moreover, of the opinion that the establishment of such private rights and possessions should not be allowed upon principles of policy and prudence, as they would not only deter adventurers from Britain from carrying on the fisheries on that coast, but would most probably be applied to the introduction of illicit trade and commerce.

p. 72

Vol. 3, p. 1023.

Vol. 3, p. 1055.

15. Subsequently, the Lords of Trade were required to consider an elaborate memorial on behalf of the land holders in Canada, who were proprietors of seal fisheries on the coast of Labrador, and their lessees, complaining of the great loss and detriment which had ensued in consequence of those fisheries being made subject to the regulations of the Governor of Newfoundland. On the 24th June, 1772, they reported to the King that these regulations, which were designed to encourage the fisheries for cod and whales by laying the coast open to the first arrivers, had been found absolutely incompatible with the principles upon which the seal fisheries could alone be conducted, and that to subject the latter fisheries to those regulations was, in effect, to destroy them. Although His Majesty, from such information as was before him when the Proclamation of 7th October, 1763, was published, did, upon the gracious motives therein set forth and with the advice of his Privy Council, think fit to put the coast of Labrador under the care and inspection of the Governor of Newfoundland, yet the experience of succeeding times and the various inconveniences which had since occurred, and which could not at that period be foreseen, had, as their Lordships humbly conceived, reversed the policy of that measure and made it for His Majesty's service and the welfare of his subjects that such part of the coast of Labrador as was situated between the River St. John and the Strait of Belle Isle, together with the islands of Anticosti and Madelaine and all other smaller islands lying upon the said coast, should be re-annexed to the Government of Quebec, leaving, for the present at least, that part of the coast between the Strait of Belle Isle and Hudson Strait, and where they conceived there were very valuable cod fisheries, under the Government of Newfoundland.

Vol. 3, p. 1058.

16. This report was referred back to the Lords of Trade and they were ordered to confer with the Governor of Newfoundland and report how far the seal fisheries might be relieved from the detriment of their being made subject to the rules and regulations of the Government of Newfoundland for the cod and whale fisheries without prejudice to those considerations of policy which had induced His Majesty, by His Royal Proclamation in 1763, to put all the coast of Labrador under the care and inspection of the Governor of Newfoundland.

p. 73

Vol. 3, p. 1069.

On the 2nd March, 1773, the Lords of Trade made a report on petitions from certain adventurers to be secured in their seal and salmon fishery establishments on that coast. They recommended as proper for securing the possessions of persons concerned in these fisheries, a regulation protecting such of His Majesty's subjects of Great Britain who had formed, or should thereafter form, establishments on the Labrador coast for the purpose of carrying on the seal and salmon fisheries, in the possession of such posts, provided they annually fitted out from Great Britain one or more ships to be employed in the cod fishery on the said coast. The proposed regulation was approved by the King and transmitted to the Governor of Newfoundland, who issued a proclamation setting forth the terms of the regulation.

Vol. 3, p. 1072.

17. On the same day the foregoing report was made, the Lords of Trade, having conferred with the Governor of Newfoundland, reported to the King, re-affirming their opinion that the regulations which had been made for the encouragement of the fisheries for cod and whales were incompatible with that permanent residence and continued possession which were essential to the seal and salmon fisheries, and that these fisheries could not be relieved from the loss and detriment which the proprietors of the different posts upon that coast complained of, whilst the regulations aforesaid were continued in force. It was not, however, upon this ground altogether that they recommended the re-annexing to Quebec of that part of the coast described in their previous representation; for when it appeared, upon examination, that a great part of it was claimed as private property under grants from the French Government of Canada and that His Majesty was bound by treaty to admit those claims, the consideration of policy was out of the question, and His Majesty could not, in justice, enforce regulations that were subversive of those rights. As those claims did not appear, upon further examination, to comprehend all the coast between the River St. John and the Strait of Belle Isle but extended no farther than the Ance des Espagnols or Bay Phillippeaux (present Bradore Bay), what therefore lay to the eastward might properly continue with the Government of Newfoundland, and the diasadvantage in point of fishery of re-annexing the remainder to the Government of Quebec, if any, would be less, as by far the greater part of it was rocky and inaccessible, and therefore could be of no use to the cod fishery.

Vol. 1, p. 158.

18. On the 22nd April, 1773, His Majesty in Council approved of the report of the Lords of Trade of the 2nd of March, 1773, recommending that the Labrador coast from the River St. John to Bay Phillipeaux be re-annexed to the Government of Quebec, and accordingly ordered His Majesty's Attorney and Solicitor General to prepare and lay before him a draft of an instrument proper to be passed under the Great Seal of Great Britain for re-annexing to the Government of Quebec such part of the coast of Labrador as was situated between the River St. John and the Ance des Espagnols or Bay Phillippeaux (present Bradore Bay) together with the islands of Anticosti and Madelaine and all other smaller islands upon the said coast. Instead of this being done, the whole coast of Labrador from the River St. John to the entrance of Hudson Strait was annexed to the Province of Quebec by the British North America (Quebec) Act, 1774.

SECOND PERIOD: FROM THE BRITISH NORTH AMERICA (QUEBEC) ACT, 1774, TO THE NEWFOUNDLAND ACT, 1809.

19. On the 22nd June, 1774, the British North America (Quebec) Act, 1774, 14 Geo. III., chap. 83 (Imperial), was assented to.

Vol. 2, pp. 832, 833.

20. In consequence of the changes made by this Act, fresh instructions were given to the Governor of Quebec indicating how he was authorised to deal with the territory newly added to the province. In these Instructions (which were repeated in those given to all the succeeding Governors of Quebec and Lower Canada down to 1839) the term "coast of Labrador" was unquestionably used to designate only the immediate seaboard upon which the fishery operations were carried on—i.e., the fishing coast—and not as including any land in the upper or interior country (vide, Arts. 30 to 36, Instructions to Guy Carleton, 3rd Jan. 1775). They assimilated the regulations which had already been adopted before the Quebec Act was passed, subject to some modifications respecting Canadian possessions on that coast.

Vol. 1, p. 250.

Canadians were to be secured in their exclusive possessions on that coast and left free to carry on their sedentary fisheries, but on all such parts of the coast where there were no Canadian possessions, and more especially where a valuable cod fishery might be carried on, the Governor was to make the interests of British subjects going out to fish there in ships fitted out from Great Britain the first object of his care, and, as far as circumstances would admit, to establish on that coast the regulations, in favour of British fishing ships, contained in the Act of 10 & 11 William III., c. 25. Moreover, he was on no account to allow any possession to be taken, or sedentary fisheries to be established, upon any parts of the coast that were not already private property, by any persons whatever, except only such as should produce annually a certificate of their having fitted out from some port in Great Britain.

Vol. 1, p. 158.

Vol. 1, p. 164.

In light of these instructions, those which were subsequently given to the Governor of Lower Canada after the passing of the Clergy Endowments (Canada) Act, 1791, 31 Geo. III., c. 31 (Imperial), authorising him in the most ample manner to make grants of land upon the banks of any navigable river within the Province without any exception of the rivers flowing to the coast of Labrador, and requiring him to inform the Lords of Trade yearly of the nature and extent of the several fisheries carried on either on the coasts, lakes or rivers of the Province, show very clearly that navigable rivers and lakes were not regarded as part of the coast of Labrador, and that the latter term was used in its narrow sense as applying only to the margin of land next to the sea accessible and useful for the purposes of the fishery.

21. By Order in Council (Imperial) of the 24th August, 1791, the Province of Quebec was divided into two provinces to be called the provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, respectively, by a line of division which was carried up the Ottawa River to Lake Temiskaming and from the head of that lake by a line drawn due north "until it strikes the boundary line of Hudson's Bay." The Province of Lower Canada as thus constituted included the parts of the coast of Labrador which the Quebec Act, 1774, had withdrawn from the care and inspection of the Governor of Newfoundland and annexed to and made part and parcel of the Province of Quebec. By the Clergy Endowment (Canada) Act, 1791, 31 Geo. III., chap. 31 (Imperial), provisions were made for the government of the new provinces by legislative councils and assemblies.

In consequence of this division of the Province of Quebec, fresh instructions were given to the Governor. These contained the provisions with regard to the fisheries on the coast of Labrador, the trade with the Indians of the interior country, and the granting of lands within the province and information respecting the fisheries, to which reference has been made above.

22. Throughout the whole period, during which the coast of Labrador continued to be part of the Province of Quebec (1774-1809), the Governor of Newfoundland was required, not as Governor, but as Commander of the King's ships employed for the protection of the fisheries, to superintend those on the Labrador coast as well as those of Newfoundland; and an inspection of the correspondence of the Governor of Newfoundland with the home authorities which led to the enactment of the Newfoundland Act, 1809, shows that the provision for re-annexing the coast of Labrador to the Government of Newfoundland was inserted in that Act for the purpose of securing the better regulation of the fishermen and others frequenting that sea-coast, and particularly the suppression of the illicit trade which American fishermen had been reported to be carrying on there.

23. On the 30th March, 1809, the Newfoundland Act 1809, 49 Geo. III., chap. 27 (Imperial), received the royal assent. Such parts of the coast of Labrador. His Majesty had, by his Proclamation of 1763, been pleased to declare he had put under the care and inspection of the Governor of Newfoundland were, by section 14 of this Act, re-annexed to the Government of Newfoundland.

Vol. 5, p. 2102.

24. On the 4th June, 1810, Admiral Sir John Thomas Duckworth was appointed Governor of Newfoundland and of all the coast of Labrador and adjacent islands (the Magdalen Islands excepted) as described in the Royal Proclamation of 1763. His commission was, in all material respects, similar to those under which Graves and Palliser had acted; as were also the commissions given to his successors, Admiral Sir Richard Godwin Keats (1813-1816), Vice-Admiral Francis Pickmore (1816-1818), and Vice-Admiral Sir Charles Hamilton (1818-1825). In Duckworth's instructions as Governor, he was directed to encourage the trade and intercourse with the Indians residing in the Island of Newfoundland, but no instructions were given to him with regard to trade with the Indians who frequented the seaboard of Labrador or the land at the back thereof.

25. On 20th October, 1818, a convention was signed in London between Great Britain and the United States whereby it was agreed that:—

Vol. 5, pp. 2104-2106.

"The inhabitants of the said United States shall have for ever, in common with the subjects of His Britannic Majesty, the liberty to take fish of every kind on that part of the southern coast of Newfoundland which extends from Cape Ray to the Rameau Islands, on the western and northern coast of Newfoundland; from the said Cape Ray to the Quirpon Islands; on the shores of the Magdalen Islands; and also on the coasts, bays, harbours and creeks from Mount Joli, on the southern coast of Labrador, to and through . . ."

". . . the Strait of Belleisle, and thence northwardly, indefinitely, along the coast, without prejudice, however, to any of the exclusive rights of the Hudson's Bay Company."

This liberty of fishing, though described as being "in common" with British subjects, did not (as the official records of the negotiations between the British and American plenipotentiaries explicitly show), include the right to fish in any rivers or waters flowing to the coast. The North America Fisheries Act, 1819, 59 Geo. III., chap. 38 (Imperial), was passed to enable His Majesty to carry into execution the stipulations of this convention and to make regulations for that purpose.

26. In 1820, the Governor of Newfoundland reported to the Colonial Secretary that it had been represented to him that there was an extensive inlet on the coast of Labrador called "Gross Water" (Hamilton Inlet) which was said to abound with very fine fir timber fit for naval purposes. An expedition was sent out by the Governor in 1821 and reported that the inlet had been discovered and that Canadian merchants were found settled there engaged in the salmon fishery and doing an extensive fur trade with the Indians. From the description of the expedition it is clear that it was Lake Melville that was "discovered."

Canadian traders and trappers had occupied posts in that region continuously since 1773. The posts which had been established thirty years earlier by the Canadian merchant, Fornel, and abandoned on the outbreak of the Seven Years' War, were re-occupied in 1773, and were the centre of a considerable Indian trade. There is every reason for asserting that no white people other than Canadians had ever dwelt in that country up to and considerably beyond the period of this exploratory voyage. These people were always recognized by the Governments of Quebec and (afterwards) of Lower Canada as under their care and jurisdiction.

27. In 1824, the Imperial Parliament, by the statute 5 Geo. IV., chap. 51, repealed the Act of 10 and 11 Wm. III., chap. 25, and enacted as follows:—

This was the first Act passed by the Imperial Parliament with relation to the fishery on the coast of Labrador. Passed for a period of five years, it was further continued in force until the 31st December, 1834, when it expired. According to the construction given this statute, in its application to Newfoundland, by the Supreme Court of the Island (The King v. Luke Ryan, Nfld., Rep. (1829-45), per Tucker, C.J., at p. 54), it was "the intention of the legislature that the unoccupied part of the sea-coast, with an adequate portion of land for the ordinary purposes of the fishery, should be entirely dedicated to that object." (Vide, also, The King v. Cuddihy, ib. sup. 8, 21, 23).

Vol. 3, p. 1232.

28. In March, 1824, Lord Dalhousie, Governor of the Province of Lower Canada, transmitted to the Earl of Bathurst, Secretary of State, an address which had been presented to him by the Legislative Council of the Province, praying that the coast of Labrador should be re-annexed to the Province of Lower Canada. The principal ground of this prayer was that the Newfoundland Act, 1809, 49 Geo. III., Chap. 27, "has, in its operation, so separated the coast and islands aforesaid from the Province of Lower Canada and placed them under another government and jurisdiction that the proprietors of the soil lying within the coast and islands aforesaid, most of whom it is believed were resident in Canada, are thereby subjected to laws and regulations incompatible with their tenures and usages and which virtually amount in certain cases to a denial of justice"; and that the separation of the coast from Lower Canada had also imposed serious impediments upon the trade and fisheries on the coast in which-the inhabitants of Quebec were largely interested.

29. In May, 1825, the Chamber of Commerce of St. John's, Newfoundland, addressed a petition to the Earl of Bathurst praying that the coast of Labrador might be continued under the Government of Newfoundland. They represented "the very great importance to these fisheries of continuing under the Government of Newfoundland all such parts of that coast as are resorted to from hence"; that between 60 and 70 vessels were annually fitted out from St. John's alone, and nearly 200 from Conception Bay, employing altogether nearly 5,000 men in the Labrador fishery; that since the whole business of supplying these fisheries was involved in a course of settlement to be made in the fall of each year in Newfoundland, it would be absolutely impossible to continue "this fishery" beyond the reach of the Supreme Court of Newfoundland. The memorialists represented the inconvenience and absolute ruin to many fishermen which would be involved by a measure which would require them to attend the courts at Quebec.

30. On the 22nd June, 1825, the British North America (Seigniorial Rights) Act, 1825, 6 Geo. IV., chap. 59 (Imperial), received the royal assent. The part of the coast which lies to the westward of "Ance Sablon, inclusive" was, by section 9 of this Act, re-annexed to and made a part of the Province of Lower Canada, as hereinabove recited. The parliamentary history of this Act shows that, when leave was given by the House of Commons to introduce the bill, the House ordered that Mr. Brogden and Mr. Wilmot Horton "do prepare and bring it in." Mr. Wilmot Horton, M.P., as Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, was principally charged by the Ministry with the preparation and sponsoring of the bill in Parliament. Contemporaneous documents show that, while the bill was in course of preparation, Mr. Horton consulted Lord Dalhousie and Vice-Admiral Sir Charles Hamilton, then Governors of the Province of Lower Canada and the Colony of Newfoundland, respectively, with regard to the proposal that the coast of Labrador should be reannexed to the Province of Lower Canada; that the Governor of Lower Canada agreed to accept, in modification of his Province's claims, the re-annexation of a part, instead of the whole, of the coast of Labrador, and that the decision arrived at, with the acquiescence of the Governor of Newfoundland, was to divide the coast "at a point" fixed upon by the two Governors, viz., Ance Sablon (Blanc Sablon), to the intent that all that part of the coast lying to the westward of "Ance a Sablon, inclusive" should be re-annexed to and made part of the Province of Lower Canada, "so as to comprehend the last Canadian fishing post of any importance on that shore and to leave to Newfoundland its most westerly fishing establishment." There is, also, evidence that the Ministry did not consider that the transfer of this part of the coast of Labrador to the Province of Lower Canada was going to affect any but a wholly migratory population occupied in fishing. The "line to be drawn due north and south from the bay or harbour of Ance Sablon inclusive as far as the fifty-second degree of North latitude" was, it seems, merely the draftsman's device for effecting the division of the coast at the point agreed upon and was probably intended to serve as a boundary monument, as it were, for that purpose.

31. As a result of the change made by the British North America (Seigniorial Rights) Act, 1825, 6 Geo. IV., chap. 59, a fresh commission was issued on the 20th August of that year to the Governor of Newfoundland. By this he was appointed to be

Governor in and over "Our Island of Newfoundland and the islands adjacent and all the coast of Labrador from the entrance of Hudson's Straits to a line to be drawn due north and south from Ance-Sablon on the said coast to the fifty-second degree of North latitude and all the islands adjacent to that part of the said coast of Labrador," etc. This description of the territory under the Governor's authority was carried into the Letters Patent of the 28th March, 1876, passed under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom, for the purpose of constituting permanently the office of Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Island of Newfoundland and its dependencies. The authority of the Governor under the commission last cited was limited by the appointment of a legislative council to advise and assist in the government of the island. He was given no power to make laws, but was authorised, with the advice and consent of his Council, inter alia, to make grants to the inhabitants of such lands as the Crown had power to dispose of.

32. In 1832 the system of representative government was established, and in 1855 responsible government, as practised in Canada, was conceded to Newfoundland. Under the former, the Island was divided into nine electoral districts and the House of Assembly was to consist of fifteen members; under the latter, the nine electoral districts were increased to fifteen and the fifteen members to thirty. But no provision has ever been made for the representation of the coast of Labrador in the Newfoundland Legislature, nor has anyone been appointed to look after its interests. Only one Minister of the Crown, so far as known, has visited the coast. This event occurred in 1908, when the Minister of Marine and Fisheries supervised the placing of some lights on the coast.

33. The history of Newfoundland's relations with the coast of Labrador, during the century which has elapsed since 1825, illustrates, indeed, the persistence, in some of its principles, of the historic policy so long pursued by the Mother Country towards Newfoundland itself and extended in 1763 to that coast. Permanent settlements on the coast, though not positively prohibited, have, at least, been passively discouraged, and to Newfoundland a temporary fishery there is the principal object. Throughout its whole length from the Strait of Belleisle to Cape Chidley, there is not a single town nor even a village properly so called. The artificial segregations of the Eskimo at the Moravian Mission stations form the nearest approach to settlements. Apart from these, the main centres are the places where the trading posts are established. Cartwright, one of the most important of these centres, has but fifteen families. The other permanent of the entire annual return of the Colony from the fisheries. It is the only transitory fishery now remaining in America. Every summer a fluctuating population of from twelve to twenty thousand Newfoundland fisherfolk annually migrate from Newfoundland to the coast of Labrador for the fishery. To them that coast is what Newfoundland was to their forefathers—a temporary fishery. They disperse themselves along the extensive coastline which forms the base of the enterprise, and from June to October are briskly engaged in reaping the harvest of the sea. These fishermen are of two classes—"stationers" and "floaters." The former have temporary establishments in certain harbours and fish nearby, shipping much of their cured product direct to market from the coast; the latter have no fixed location but carry on their venture from their schooners wherever fish is plentiful. They are "green fish catchers" and bring their fares to Newfoundland to be dried or "made." About 1,000 to 1,200 vessels classed as "floaters" are annually engaged in the Labrador fishery. In October the season is over and the fishermen return to their homes in Newfoundland. Many of the temporary establishments of the "stationers" have been long established, but probably none of them has a grant or any other title than that of occupation. The policy of the Newfoundland Government has always been, in theory, to leave the shore and contiguous land free to anyone, so that when one man leaves it another may make use of his former situation. The general rule is that the firstcomer has the choice of the berths. It is, no doubt, a survival of the rule which prevailed under the Act of 10 & 11 Wm. III., chap. 25, of keeping the coast free for the temporary use of the British fisherman.

VI. pp. 2655 to 3086.

35. As might be expected in the very nature of things, the services provided by the Newfoundland Government on the coast are almost wholly identified with facilities intended to subserve the convenience and general interests of the fishery. These consist, for the most part, of the operation during the fishing season, of post offices and a mailboat service from St. John's for the utility and primary convenience of the Newfoundland fishermen, of wireless telegraph stations at different points along the seaboard to facilitate the communication of information with regard to the fishery and of lights along the coast to aid the fishermen in navigation. In addition, medical aid for the fishermen is provided by a medical officer who travels on board the mail steamer; and occasionally, when the fishery fails and starvation threatens the planters on the immediate seaboard, the Government comes to their assistance with small supplies of food. The relief and care of the Indians on the Peninsula has always been, and is, provided for by the Canadian Government. A few denominational schools are conducted on the southern extent of the coast for the benefit of the permanent inhabitants; the bodies in charge of these schools receive a small annual grant from the Newfoundland Government. The administration of justice on the whole coast is entrusted to one or two persons, notably Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, who hold commissions from the Newfoundland Government as Justices of the Peace. All told, the total appropriations for the coast of Labrador, exclusive of the school grant, are, according to Dr. Grenfell, under $30,000 per annum. Newfoundland levies no local taxation on the coast of Labrador, but when trade on the coast is active during the summer months, its revenue officers collect a considerable sum, certainly not less than $150,000.00 per annum, along the coast in the form of customs duties.

I. pp. 128, 147.

By 1892 the question of the delimitation of the boundary between Canada and Newfoundland had become acute and delegates representing the Governments of Canada and Newfoundland met at Halifax in November, 1892, to consider that and other questions at issue between the two Governments. At the meeting the Canadian delegates acquiesced in the proposal advanced by the delegates for Newfoundland to delimit the Labrador boundary whenever the Newfoundland Government was prepared to do so; an examination of the question being in the meantime made by geographical experts.

36. In 1902, the Government of Newfoundland, embarking on a new administrative departure, issued certain timber licences covering large areas land on the north and south sides of the Hamilton

p. 86

River near the head of Lake Melville. As the granting of these licenses constituted an encroachment on its territory, the Dominion Government brought the matter to the attention of the Colonial Secretary with a view to the cancellation of the licences. The Government of Newfoundland, to which the correspondence was referred, not only declined to admit there had been any encroachment on Canadian territory, but contended that the areas covered by their timber licenses were many miles to the eastward of the line which had been laid down by the Imperial Legislation as the boundary between the Dominion and the part of the coast of Labrador under its authority.

In 1907, on the advice of the Colonial Secretary, it was agreed by the two Governments to submit the question of the boundary to the Judicial Committee of His Majesty's Privy Council, for decision, under the provisions of section 4 of the Judicial Committee Act, 1833, 3 & 4 Wm. IV., chap. 41; and on the 11th November, 1920, an agreement was signed on behalf of the two Governments settling the terms of the question to be referred to the Judicial Committee and the procedure upon the reference. This agreement was varied, as regards the procedure, by an agreement dated 2nd November, 1922.

1. The Colony of Newfoundland submits that the Canadian Case affords no answer to the claim presented in the Newfoundland Case, and does not contain valid grounds for fixing any precise interior boundary line other than the line claimed by Newfoundland.

2. Newfoundland concedes the first proposition advanced in the Canadian Case, namely that the extent of territory within the peninsula of Labrador to-day subject to the authority of Newfoundland is the "coast" which, by the Commission of the 25th April, 1763, was, as declared by the Royal Proclamation of the 7th October of that year, put under the care and inspection of the Governor of Newfoundland, less the portion thereof re-annexed to the Province of Lower Canada by the British North America (Seignorial Rights) Act, 1825. But Newfoundland submits that the Canadian Case lays too much stress on the use of the expression "care and inspection" in a purely declaratory recital in the Royal Proclamation of the 7th October, 1763, while, on the other hand, it pays insufficient regard to the plain words of the Commission to Governor

Graves, and the Acts of 1774, 1809, and 1825, which made changes in the Government of the Area in question. The Proclamations of the 7th October, 1763, though it created and established four new governments, including the Government of Quebec, did not profess to effect any change in the provision already made in reference to "all that coast" (i.e., of Labrador) "from the River St. John to Hudson's Streights." By the Commission to Governor Graves of Newfoundland, dated the 25th April, 1763, that area had been added to his government. The words "care and inspection," do not occur in the Commission or in the Acts of 1774, 1809, or 1825 already referred to. The Quebec Act of 1774 treated the Commission to Governor Graves as having "made" the area in question "part of the Government of Newfoundland," while the Newfoundland Act, 1809, described the same area as having been "annexed to the Government of Newfoundland." Newfoundland submits that the interpretation thus given by the statutes is the natural meaning of the language of the Commission.

3. Canada's second proposition is that the "coast" is a strip of maritime territory comprising in its depth inland only so much of the land immediately abutting on the sea, above low-water mark, as was accessible and useful to the British fishermen annually resorting to that coast, in the ordinary conduct of their fishing operations, for the purposes of the "open and free fishery" extended to that coast by the Royal Proclamation and carried on there, and for those purposes only. Canada seeks to establish that proposition by reliance upon:—

(a) The precise terms fixing the length of the coast;

(b) The declared purpose of the enactments;

(c) The description of the power in respect of the coast conferred on the Governor;

(d) The nature of his functions and of the power which he exercised in Newfoundland itself;

(e) The conditions prevailing in that island and the purposes and policy of its Government.

(a) AS TO THE PRECISE TERMS FIXING THE LENGTH OF THE COAST.

4. As to the first of these grounds, Newfoundland contends that in any event the fixation of termini does not exclude the idea of depth of land at either end or in the intervening area. In the Commission to Governor Graves dated the 25th April, 1763, the Proclamation of the 7th October, 1763, and the Newfoundland Act, 1809, one of the termini was the River Saint John, some 120 miles in length, as it was then understood to run. In the same way in the British North America (Seignorial Rights) Act, 1825, one of the termini was a line

pp. 52-3.

some 40 miles in length down the North and South from the bay or harbour of Blanc Sablon inclusive, as far as the 52nd degree of North latitude. Accordingly it is submitted that the precise terms fixing the length of the coast, so far from establishing, are not consistent with, Canada's second proposition.

p. 154, l. 14.

(b) AS TO THE DECLARED PURPOSE OF THE ENACTMENTS.

5. Canada seeks to limit the depth of the coast under the jurisdiction of Newfoundland to the area used or susceptible of use for the purposes of the cod-fishery, on the ground that the declared object of the Crown as legislator was that such a fishery should be extended to and carried on upon the Coast of Labrador and the adjacent islands. Newfoundland submits that the words declaring this object, which occur not in any of the instruments making new provision for the "coast of Labrador," but in the passage already mentioned in the Royal Proclamation, do not in any way limit the depth of the area annexed to the Government of Newfoundland by the relevant Commission and Statutes. In the island of Newfoundland itself the law regarded the interest of the cod-fishery only and forbade colonization, and the purpose of the Government was the development of the cod-fishery; nor was any substantial interest taken in the interior land:

p. 92

yet no one would suggest that the Governor was not Governor of every part of the island. In the same way in the dependency of the island the mere fact that the purpose of the annexation was the same, viz., the development of the cod-fishery, did not prevent the Governor from being the Governor of the whole of the Coast of Labrador. Nor does the expressed purpose in the one case any more than in the other limit the depth of the area put under his Government.

p. 1858, l. 29.
p. 1860, l. 3.

pp. 150-151.

6. Moreover as in Newfoundland, so on the Coast of Labrador, though the cod-fishery was always the main, it was never the exclusive object of the Government's interest. There was not from the first any attempt to prevent fishermen from fishing for salmon in the rivers or from hunting or trapping for fur. Nor was there at any time a rigid enforcement of Statutes or regulations prohibiting settlement. In 1679 1,700 persons were resident in Newfoundland. In 1765 Governor Palliser reported 16,000 as the number of men remaining in Newfoundland during the winter. In the Commission to Governor Graves dated the 25th April, 1763, reference is made to "all such Justices of the Peace and their inferior officers and ministers whom you or they shall appoint among the Planters or inhabitants resident and abiding there," so that at the very time when the coast was being annexed to the Government of Newfoundland, the existence of the resident population in the island of Newfoundland was present to the minds of the Home Government, who contemplated not endeavouring to remove these residents altogether, but using them for the purposes of administering justice. Between the years 1763 and 1809 the resident population of Newfoundland increased, and by the 24th April, 1817, had risen to between 40,000 and 50,000.

And this body of inhabitants—considerable throughout in numbers—subsisted, when the summer cod fishing was over, largely on salmon fishing and furring. Salmon fishing in Newfoundland had begun by 1720 and a Mr. Skeffington, who had the salmon fishing in two or three rivers, cleared lands of wood 40 miles inland; he obtained, within 30 years of the Newfoundland Act, 1699, a sole right of salmon fishing for 21 years and leave to cut timber so long as he did not do so within six miles of the shore. Not only were those pursuits, whether in Newfoundland itself or in its dependency, not objected to by the authorities at home, but they were made the subject of special instructions to the successive Governors. The instructions given to Governor Graves dated the 29th March, 1763, included the encouragement of certain Newfoundland salmon fisheries and of the whale and sea-cow fishery in the Gulf of St. Lawrence on the Labrador Coast. He was further to inquire and report to the Commissioners of Trade and Plantations as to what establishments and forts were necessary in Newfoundland or the other islands and territories under his Government either for the protection of the fishery, the security of the country, or the establishment and carrying on of commerce with the Indians residing in or resorting to the said islands or inhabiting the coast of Labrador. He was further to report as to whether any trade was carried on for beaver or other furs by the Inhabitants or by any others who remained in the country and whether they had any traffic with the Indians. By the Admiralty Instructions given to the same Governor on the 2nd May, 1763 (Article 7), he was directed to encourage and support the Whale Fishery in the Straits of Belle Isle and more particularly the fishery in York Harbour and on the other parts of the coasts of Labrador, to prevent trade by persons other than British subjects with the inhabitants of that country, and to protect the salmon and seal fishery along the coasts. Similar instructions were given to Governor Palliser and his successors. And Governor Palliser rightly refers in his letter to the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations), dated the 22nd April, 1766, to "my commission as Governor of the country" (i.e. the coast of Labrador) "and . . . my instructions . . . relative to every branch of fishery and trade within the limits of my Government."

7. The activities of the Governors of Newfoundland (and particularly of Governor Palliser) between 1763 and 1774 on the coast of Labrador and the establishment by the pioneers of the fur trade and salmon fisheries of the earliest settlements there are described in paragraphs 9 to 11 of the Newfoundland Case, and show that from the beginning no kind of restriction of interest to the cod fishery was sought to be imposed. It is plain from the manner in which the Reports of Governor Palliser and the Petitions of George Cartwright and Noble and Pinson were received by the authorities in England that there was no disposition on the part of the Government to discourage enterprise in the salmon or furring business or to compel settlers of the type of Coghlan, Cartwright, or Pinson to cease to reside on the coast of Labrador, where they began to be established in or about the year 1770.

8. In these circumstances, though the main object of annexing the coast of Labrador to the Government of Newfoundland was undoubtedly to foster the development of the cod-fishery, there is no valid reason for construing the relevant instruments as limiting the grant of jurisdiction so as to exclude areas which would be useful for salmon fishing, furring and trading with the native inhabitants. As has been pointed out above, in the island of Newfoundland itself salmon fisheries and fur trading had become, to the knowledge of the Government, ancillary to the main cod-fishery as offering winter occupation to the crews. It is hard to suggest any reason why adventurers on the coast of Labrador should be confined within any arbitrary distance from the seashore and prohibited from exploring the possibilities of the unknown rivers on that coast for salmon and of the surrounding country for fur. It may confidently be asserted in the light of the instructions to the early Governors and their activities approved by the authorities at home, that nothing would have astonished the Home Government, the Governors, or the merchant adventurers (not to mention the planters) more than a suggestion, had it been made in 1763 or the succeeding years, that the jurisdiction and consequently the activities of the Governor of Newfoundland were restricted and confined to an area bounded by a line drawn one mile from high-water mark.

9. Newfoundland accordingly submits that the declared purpose of the enactments does not in any way tend to establish the second Canadian proposition. Nevertheless apart from showing (as pointed out in paragraph 33 of the Newfoundland Case) the depth of the area inland must be measured from the sinuosities of the coast line as the basis for the establishment of the fishery, the declared purpose of the enactments does afford valuable assistance in this case. For a grant of governmental come over an area of coast "to the end that the one and free fishery of all subjects may be extended and carried on upon the coast of Labrador," when made by the Crown of England, would naturally understood to embrace any area where the public right of fishery subsisted. And by English Law a public right of fishery extends to all tidal waters. "Jus piscandi omnibus commune est in portu et in fluminibus." The public right of fishery in waters influenced by tide is co-extensive with the public right to fish in the sea. Accordingly, since it is conceded in the Canadian Case that Lake Melville is tidal, it cannot be doubted, quite apart from any question as to the depth of the hinterland comprised in the expression "coast," that the whole of Hamilton Inlet (including Lake Melville) was included within the jurisdiction of the Governor of Newfoundland.

(c) AS TO THE DESCRIPTION OF THE POWER IN RESPECT OF THE COAST

p. 56, l. 27.

10. It is next submitted that no inference can be drawn, as suggested in paragraph 14 of the Canadian Case, from the description of the power conferred on the Governor. The words "care and inspection" relied on for this purpose do not occur (as has already been pointed out) in any of the three instruments effecting changes in the Governmental control of the area in question; in the Newfoundland Act, 1809, the operative effect of which admittedly determined the rights of Newfoundland, the terms used are "annexed" and "re-annexed."

(d) AS TO THE NATURE OF THE GOVERNOR'S FUNCTIONS AND OF THE

II. p. 368, l. 11.

11. Newfoundland further submits that the area of the coast of Labrador is not affected by the nature of the Governor's functions or of the power which he exercised in Newfoundland itself. The mere fact that he could not make grants of land or sanction settlement did not prevent him from governing or controlling an area of land on the coast of Labrador any more than in the island of Newfoundland. It is true that the system of Government was designed for the cod-fishery, but in the hands of such men as Governor Palliser it could readily be adapted to do what was necessary for a very sparsely populated hinterland. It was of course known that as in Newfoundland, so on the coast of Labrador, the vast preponderance of interest, business and population would be centred on the margin of the sea, but that did not afford any reason to limit the ordinary effect of the grant of a "coast" which, it is submitted, is correctly stated in the Newfoundland Case, as including the area back to the crest of the water-shed. It was realised that little governmental action would be necessary in the hinterland and the government selected was therefore chosen with a view primarily to the cod-fishery. It is not without importance to observe in this connection that before 1763, as after that year, the enterprises of the Hudson's Bay Co. for trading and administrative purposes were based on settlements established at the water side from which the trade of the interior was conducted. These adventurers trading into Hudson's Bay were granted in 1670 the trade and commerce of all the seas, straits, bays, rivers, lakes, creeks, and sounds, within the entrance of Hudson's Straits "together with" (showing that what follows was an adjunct of what has gone before) "all the lands, countries and territories upon the coasts and confines of the seas, bays, lakes," etc., "aforesaid." Nevertheless though in 1763 (and indeed with trifling exceptions at all times material for the purposes of this case) the posts of the Company were along the edge of the sea, yet the accepted boundaries of the Company were based on the crest of the water-shed. This point gains added significance from the fact that in the Proclamation and the Acts that follow, the Company is treated for jurisdiction purposes as though it were a separate Government under the Crown on a par with the Governments created by the Proclamation.

12. It is further contended that having regard to the matters hereinbefore set out the second proposition in the Canadian Case is not established or supported by the conditions prevailing in the island of Newfoundland and the purposes and policy of its Government. Such conditions, purposes, and policy did not limit the area over which the Governor exercised jurisdiction in the island, nor ought it to be held to have such an effect on the coast of Labrador.

13. For the reasons already advanced the Government of Newfoundland contends that the grounds indicated in paragraph 8 of the Canadian Case are wholly insufficient to establish the contention presented in paragraphs 4 (2) and 13 of the Canadian Case that the area connoted by the expression coast of Labrador in the Statutes, Orders-in-Council, and Proclamations is a strip of maritime territory limited to a depth of one mile from the high-watermark on the sea-shore. In ascertaining the meaning to be attached to the word "coast" in the expression "coast of Labrador" in the Statutes, Orders-in-Council, and Proclamations, which have to be construed in this Reference, it is convenient next to consider the propositions advanced in paragraph 7 of the Canadian Case to the effect (a) that the words "coast," "sea-shore," and "sea-coast" mean and designate the same thing, namely "the edge or margin of the land next to the sea"; (b) that "coast" is not used for the banks of, e.g., rivers or lakes; (c) that the term has invariably been in (a); and (d) that accordingly there can be no presumption or other reason for construing the term "coast," as used in the Commission or Proclamation of 1763 or in the Acts cited, in any larger sense than is strictly required for the full attainment of the object which the legislator had in view.

14. It can hardly be disputed that the word "coast" is capable of very varying significance in accordance with the context in which it is found. (See Corpus Juris (New York: 1917), Vol. XI, pp. 935-6.) Originally, it meant "side" and was thereafter used for "side of the land." (See Murray's New Oxford Dictionary tit. Coast.) In the language of the Authorised Version of the Bible the word "coasts" is sometimes used to designate a neighbouring "or surrounding country" without any necessary connection with the sea-shore, as, for instance, in Deut. xi, 24, and in the expression "the coasts of Tyre and Sidon," Mark vii, 31. "Bethlehem and all the coasts thereof," in Matt. ii, 16, and Acts xiii, 50, where "the Jews . . . raised persecution against Paul and Barnabas and expelled them out of their coasts." And even in cases where the word is used in connection with the sea-shore, it is not confined to the edge of the sea in any narrow or limited sense, cf., the Gold Coast, Guinea Coast, West Coast of Africa, Coromandel Coast, Ivory Coast, and the lisiere, which was the subject of dispute in the Alaska Boundary dispute, e.g., at p. 71, in the British Case, "strip of coast not exceeding 10 marine leagues in width," and the letter from Sir C. Bagot to Canning in the British Appendix I, p. 67, "a line of coast extending 10 marine leagues into the interior." In the same dispute, see also United States Appendix, p. 167, Count Nesselrode to Admiral Mordvinoff, "the width of the coast line necessary for the safe existence and consolidation of our colonies . . . still form subjects of negotiation." In the Charter of the Hudson's Bay Co., 1670, a grant of exclusive trading privileges is given to the Company "to and with all the natives and people inhabiting or which shall inhabit within the territories, limits and places aforesaid, and to and with all other nations inhabiting any of the coasts adjacent to the said . . ."

". . . territories limits and places." Here again the word "coasts" appears to denote territories rather than strips of sea-board. A striking illustration of this wider use of the word in connection with the very area now in dispute is afforded by the speech of Lord North in the Debate on the Quebec Bill, 1774, in which he observes: "There are added, undoubtedly, to it" (i.e., to the Province of Quebec) "two countries which were not in the original limits of Canada as settled in the Proclamation of 1763; one, the Labrador coast," etc. A similar description of the coast of Labrador as "that country" by the Commissioners for the Office of Lord High Admiral in 1765 is noticed in paragraph 34 of the Newfoundland Case; and it is desired to draw attention here to paragraphs 34 and 35 of that Case in support of the contention of the Government of Newfoundland that "coast" in the context, in which it appears in this dispute, is used as denoting more than a mere strip of littoral.

15. For the reasons set out in the preceding paragraph Newfoundland submits that the word "coast" does not necessarily mean or designate the same thing as "sea-shore" or "sea-coast" and that its meaning must be ascertained from the connection in which it is used and that in the present instance though it indicates territory bordering on the sea it connotes much more than a mere narrow strip. It is unnecessary to repeat here the arguments already adduced in the Newfoundland Case to show that the width of territory connoted by the coast of the Labrador is to be ascertained by tracing the crest of the water-shed of the waters flowing into the Atlantic Ocean.

pp. 27-29.

V. p. 2073.

16. The next proposition in paragraph 7 of the Canadian Case, is, that "coast" is not used for the banks of, e.g., rivers or lakes. The Government of Newfoundland suggests that for the present purpose no better parallel could be sought than the precisely similar question which arose in the Alaska Boundary Dispute and was determined in the manner set out in the Newfoundland Case. Even if it were admitted that to speak of the "coast" of a lake or river would be to make use of an unusual expression (though Ash's Dictionary, London, 1775 and 1795, would allow its use for "the bank of any large river or water") the coast-line for boundary purposes would still have to be ascertained, as the decision referred to shows, by following the actual sinuosities of bays, inlets and creeks.

I. pp. 149, follg.

17. The next proposition in paragraph 7 of the Canadian Case to be considered is that the term "coast" has invariably been used in the Courts of England, Canada and the U.S.A. as equivalent to "sea-shore" and "sea-coast" and as meaning "the edge or margin of the land next to the sea, the shore." It has never been any part of the Newfoundland Case that "coast" could not be used as equivalent to "sea-shore," or "sea-coast." But "coast," as has been pointed out above, is capable of different meanings in different contexts. It is necessary to distinguish between the use of the term to denote a line without width from which a measurement has to be made and to denote area of territory including some depth into the interior. It is beyond dispute that it is used in the latter sense in the Statutes, Orders-in-Council, and Proclamations relevant in this Reference inasmuch as Canada admits that some depth of interior country is under the jurisdiction of Newfoundland. But in the authorities referred to in paragraph 7 of the Canadian Case it is used in the former sense, that is to say, without any question arising of depth into the interior; and it is accordingly submitted that the authorities mentioned do not assist in determining the question at issue as to the width of the land under the jurisdiction of Newfoundland. In so far as the Authorities are cited to show the line from which the measurement inland should be made, Newfoundland contends that the meaning of the expression "coast" is determined by the particular context in which this word is found in each case, and further that The King v. Forty Nine Casks of Brandy (3 Hagg Adm. 257) supports Newfoundland's claim to measure her territory on the Labrador peninsula from the head of the tide in rivers and streams, while Hamilton v. Meniffee (11 Texas Reports 718) shows that the sinuosities of bays must be followed. In The Queen, v. Cox (1859 i P.E. I. Rep. 170) a distinction is drawn between

"sea-shore" and "coast" and the latter term is said to apply to the land fronting on the open sea or inlets off the sea or bays though never to that fronting on rivers. It is therefore an authority for tracing the line from which measurement inland is to be along the margin of the Hamilton Inlet.

18. It is argued in paragraph 16 of the Canadian Case that Newfoundland has never been equipped nor has she attempted or pretended to extend her Government to the extensive inland territory of the Peninsula. Until recent years, when the possibilities of the timber and water power available in the interior have begun to attract business enterprise (which the Newfoundland Government has always been ready to encourage) there has been nothing to induce Newfoundland to develop the inland territory which has been but little inhabited save by the Indians, and was long regarded as wholly unsuitable for any settlement. In the same way Quebec has, no doubt for similar reasons, done little to develop the hinterland of that part of the coast of Labrador within her jurisdiction East of the River Saguenay. It was these reasons and not any misapprehension as to the extent of the coast under its Government which have prevented Newfoundland from an earlier development of the interior of the area in dispute. It would be strange if Newfoundland had comprehended the extent of territory under her control as falling within so much narrower limits than those assigned to it by general reputation and belief prevailing at all material times as illustrated by the maps in the Newfoundland Atlas. It is suggested that the documents referred on paragraph 17 of the Canadian Case as showing the contemporaneous interpretation of the legislation in question do not show any disposition on the part of the legislator to limit the area of Newfoundland's dependency. In any event, unlike the Maps, these documents are not concerned with the extent of the territory given to Newfoundland so much as with the policy which was to direct the method of administration and the forms of Government.

Cf. supra pp. 20-25.

19. Paragraph 18 of the Canadian Case is concerned to show that the coast-line, from which the area of Newfoundland jurisdiction inland must be measured, is to be drawn, so far as the Hamilton Inlet is concerned, between Ticolorak and Turner Headlands. If this were the correct view, a very considerable depth of interior territory must be conceded in any event to Newfoundland, for Hamilton Inlet as far as North West River has been consistently treated as falling within the jurisdiction of Newfoundland. But the Colony of Newfoundland submits that Hamilton Inlet or Grosswater or Esquimaux Bay (as those descriptions imply) has always been and is to be regarded as a bay indenting the coast. It is admittedly tidal as far as its western extremity, Goose Bay, into which the Hamilton River flows. It is at the western end of Goose Bay that the coast line should be drawn. When general reputation and usage (as illustrated by nomenclature, and the evidence of the maps) is supported by the fact of the rise and fall of the tide in showing that the Hamilton Inlet is to be regarded for boundary purposes as a "bay," these criteria ought to be preferred to meticulous evidence as to the salinity of the water, the fauna, and the flora, the unsuitability of the Inlet for cod-fishing, and of indications which might suggest to some modern expert the features of a tidal river.

V. p. 2319.

It is significant that A. P. Low, a distinguished Canadian Geological Surveyor, in his Report in 1895, speaks of the Atlantic Coast as being deeply cut by many long narrow bays, or fiords, so that the coastline exceeds many times the direct line from Belle Isle to Cape Chidley. "Hamilton Inlet," he says, "is the largest and longest of these inlets, extending inland over 150 miles from its mouth. Among others, Sandwich, Kaipokok, Saglek, and Nachvak bays are from 30 to 50 miles deep." The Newfoundland Government submits that this earlier view, expressed by so competent an authority without any knowledge of its effect on the issues in this Reference, is entitled to very great weight in favour of the contention that the whole of the inlet is part of the coast-line, and against inferences sought to be drawn from the elaborate calculations included in the Canadian documents in the Joint Appendix.

20. Newfoundland further submits that the results of the various surveys, tests and investigations set forth in the reports mentioned in paragraph 18 of the Canadian Case do not in any event justify the conclusion sought to be drawn therefrom, namely that the coast-line crosses the "river" below a line connecting Lester and Double Mer Points. So far as hydrographic conditions assist, not only is the whole of Lake Melville tidal, but inasmuch as it is permanently accessible to the largest vessels with motive power without the assistance of tugs it satisfies another practical test as to what is, in the ordinary acceptation of the term, an inlet of the sea. The materials collected in regard to fauna and flora are quite inconclusive: a comparison with the Baltic shows that if cod do not penetrate into Hamilton Inlet, they are not deterred by the decreased salinity of the water. In any event no investigation of the fauna West of the Narrows seems to have been made and accordingly there is no sufficient evidence that marine fishes do not penetrate beyond the Narrows.

21. From a geographical point of view there is a considerable degree of similarity between the Labrador Peninsula and Scandinavia where a watershed boundary has been for the most part adopted. The Labrador Peninsula comprises two main sections, a Western section consisting of a Plateau with a comparatively gentle undulating surface sloping down to Hudson Bay and Ungava Bay; and an eastern belt, sometimes called the "coastal region," facing the Atlantic, high and mountainous, and deeply indented by many arms of the sea. The inlets in the coastal region are true fiords; their arrangement is essentially different from that of tidal valleys. The Hamilton Inlet is the largest of these fiords: its entrance is not a "ria," but a "fiard." Lake Melville is an essential part of the inlet: as a deep basin filled with sea-water below a thin layer of fresh water, it is an arm of the sea.

22. Newfoundland accordingly submits that there is nothing in paragraph 18 of the Canadian Case to justify any departure in the case of the Hamilton Inlet from the principle, applicable

case of other inlets or arms of the sea, of tracing the coast-line along the margin of the inlet, including Grossewater Bay or Lake Melville as far as the western extremity of Goose Bay. As to the depth of Newfoundland's jurisdiction inland, the Canadian case suggests a boundary arbitrarily fixed at 1 mile in depth. Newfoundland contends that no precedent can be found for any such line, which is open to grave objection from the point of view of practical convenience and expediency and that the Canadian Case discloses no reason for preferring such a boundary to the boundary which law, reason and nature recommend, namely, the height of land.

23. Canada suggests that the commencement of the boundary line should be at the eastern headland of the bay or harbour of Blanc Sablon. Newfoundland contends that the line should commence at Lazy Point on the West of the bay or harbour of Blanc Sablon and that Woody Island should be included within the jurisdiction of Newfoundland.

COUNTER-CASE

DOMINION OF CANADA.

I. ante p. 1.

1. In pursuance of the agreement between the governments of Canada and Newfoundland, the Dominion of Canada delivers the following counter-case, accompanied by certain additional documents.

THE COLONY'S CONTENTION.

I. ante p.
2.

2. The Colony of Newfoundland in its Case submits that the correct answer to the question referred to the Judicial Committee for decision is "that the boundary should be a line drawn due north from Ance Sablon as far as the 52nd degree of north latitude and should be traced from thence northwards to Cape Chidley along the crest of the watershed of the rivers flowing into the Atlantic Ocean."

The Colony adds that this line or boundary is shown coloured blue on a map marked "A," which is produced with the Case, and stated to form part of it.

Reading the description of the line claimed as explained by that shown on the map, the Colony's contention appears to be that the southern boundary of the territory claimed by the Colony is the 52nd parallel of north latitude, from the point where a line drawn due north from the bay or harbour of Ance Sablon (Blanc Sablon), on the strait of Belleisle, meets that parallel to a point between the 65th and 66th meridians of west longitude, and that from this last-mentioned point to Cape Chidley the western and north-western boundary of the territory so claimed follows the crest of the watershed of the rivers flowing into the Atlantic ocean.

3. The line so shown, coloured blue on the map, embraces an area of approximately 111,300 square miles—in other words, territory greater in extent by some 22,300 square miles than the whole of England, Wales and Scotland combined (88,745 sq. m.) and almost three times as large as the island of Newfoundland itself (40,200 sq. m.). The distance in a straight line from the Atlantic seashore of this vast region to the watershed at its farthest point, is approximately 490 miles. Embraced within this territory is one of the most important river systems of the Peninsula, namely, that of the great Hamilton River which has a length, from the point of its discharge into the Hamilton Inlet to its most distant source (Lake Ashuanipi), of about 680 miles, being thus three times the length of the River Thames (228 m.) and nearly half as long again as the River Seine (482 m.). Its drainage-basin comprises a wide area of country extending from the head of the Hamilton Inlet westward to longitude 68° or nearly half way across the Peninsula. Such is the extent of the territory now claimed by the Colony of Newfoundland as subject to its jurisdiction and control under its title to exercise care and inspection over a fishing "coast."

4. The claim so made is, in par. 2 of the Case, alleged to be justified by the three classes of evidence particularly specified therein, but the Colony's final submission, in par. 39 of the Case, that the boundary north of the 52nd parallel of north latitude should be defined as "the line of the crest of the watershed, which is the height of land," is made to rest upon six reasons therein enumerated. This submission and the reasons so enumerated related only to the "watershed" portion of the boundary line claimed by the Colony. The Colony's contention in regard to the definition of the 52nd parallel of north latitude, as part of the boundary line claimed by it, is apparently founded upon the allegations set forth in par. 20 of the Case (p. 18, lines 25-38), but no enumerations of reasons is made in support of this contention. It will be convenient, accordingly, for the purpose of making such observations in reply to the Colony's Case as seem to be desirable, to deal separately with the two distinct portions of the boundary line claimed by the Colony, viz. (I) the "watershed" line, and (II) the line of the 52nd parallel of north latitude.

PRELIMINARY OBSERVATIONS ON THE COLONY'S CONTENTION.

5. In view of the grounds on which the Colony, in its Case, seeks to justify its contention, it appears to Canada to be desirable, at the outset, to call attention to the question actually at issue, to its true scope and nature, and the nature of the evidence that is relevant and admissible for its determination. The explicit terms of the stated question referred by the Order of His Majesty in Council, dated 24 th July, 1925, to the Judicial Committee of His Privy Council, for decision, leave no room for discussion as to the issue that question presents; that issue is solely the question, what is the boundary between Canada and Newfoundland in the Labrador peninsula, under the Statutes, Orders-in-Council and Proclamations?—i.e. the boundary established by those legislative enactments, and no other. The terms of those enactments make the determination of that issue depend entirely upon the meaning of the word "coast" as used in them. Read with the context and the evidence indicated or afforded by

it, the word presents, as Canada has submitted, no ambiguity. The facts invoked by the Colony, if proved, would throw no light upon the intention of the legislator as expressed in the words used by him. For these reasons, evidence of such facts is, it is respectfully submitted, inadmissible. That evidence, moreover, even if admissible, does not, it is submitted, in any material respect, affect the soundness of Canada's contention as set forth in her Case.

The Colony, in its Case, seems to lose sight of the settled rules governing construction, and seeks to introduce a controlling principle, which the tribunal is asked to give effect to, not, in Canada's submission, by putting on the language employed any construction of which it is shown to be capable, but rather by disregarding such language altogether.

The purpose of the present Counter-Case is to show the unsoundness of the Colony's main contention and the ineffectiveness of the evidence by which it is sought to be supported.

I. — THE "WATERSHED" LINE.

6. The principal contention of the Colony is, as above stated, that the boundary, north of the 52nd parallel of north latitude, should be located and defined as the line of the crest of the watershed of the rivers that fall into the Atlantic ocean—in effect, that that height-of-land line constitutes the western and northwestern boundary of the portion of "coast" subject to its authority. Which in particular of the three classes of evidence enumerated in the second paragraph of the Colony's Case are considered to justify this contention does not very clearly appear. On the other hand, the six reasons which close the Case are all of them invoked as supporting it. It is proposed, accordingly, to examine briefly those six reasons.

REASON 1: Because the expression "coast" at all times material for the purposes of the present enquiry was understood to include and connote the whole area between the sea and the height-of land.

p. 111

7. The affirmation contained in this "Reason," whereby a meaning different from the ordinary meaning of the word "coast" is sought to be attached to that word as used in the Statutes, Orders-in-Council and Proclamations, Canada submits is unsupported by any evidence to be found in the Colony's Case or in any of the documents produced with or referred to by it. It is to be noted that what the legislator understood, what he meant by the word "coast," when he used it in the enactments on which Newfoundland's rights rest, is alone material. The terms of the "Reason" suggest that there is more than one time material for the purposes of the present enquiry. And yet the basis of the Colony's claim, as set forth in the body of its Case, makes the year 1763—as Canada contends it is—the only time material to be considered for the purpose of identifying the extent of the territory now subject to the Colony's authority. The territory which the Colony now claims as subject to its jurisdiction, is claimed, on its own allegations, by virtue of the alleged effect of the Royal Proclamation of the 7th October, 1763 (Nfld. Case, p. 10, lines 21-27; p. 8, lines 1-2). The subsequent pertinent Statutes, Orders-in-Council and Proclamations are referred to in the Colony's Case, but it is not alleged that any of them had effect to increase the area of the "coast" referred to in the said Royal Proclamation, although it is conceded that the British North America (Seignorial Rights) Act, 1825, did have effect to reduce that area. The Commission of the 25th April, 1763, to Captain Thomas Graves, and not the Royal Proclamation as alleged by the Colony, is, however, "the source of Newfoundland's original jurisdiction on the Labrador" (Nfld. Case, par. 35 (b) p. 30, lines 12-13). The Proclamation, as Canada has pointed out in its case, was declaratory only of the effect of what the Crown had already done by the issue of the Commission to Captain Thomas Graves. The true position is, that these two instruments, the Commission to Graves and the Royal Proclamation, are to be read together as correlative documents and as explanatory of each other, and, so read, govern the definition of the area of "coast" that is to-day subject to the Colony's authority, subject to the deduction of the portion of the length of that "coast" which. was detached from the Government of Newfoundland and re-annexed to the Government of Lower Canada by the Act of 1825 cited above. Whatever meaning the expression "coast" of Labrador had in those instruments, that meaning, Canada submits, has persisted down to the present time and is still its meaning. None of the later Statutes, Orders-in-Council or Proclamations either defines the area over which the Governor or the Government of Newfoundland was intended to exercise jurisdiction otherwise than by the word "coast" or gives any meaning to that expression different from that which it had in the instruments of 1763—to which, indeed, they refer. That meaning—the meaning which the word naturally bears in those instruments with reference to the context, the declared object, and all the surrounding facts—has, it is submitted, been correctly stated in Canada's Case.

8. The Colony, on the other hand, seeks to attribute to the word "coast" as so used, a meaning that is inconsistent not only with the proper construction of that term, but likewise with the provisions of the Royal Proclamation which reserved "under the immediate sovereignty, protection and dominion" of the King, for the use of the Indians, "all the lands and territories not included within the limits of our said three new governments or within the limits of the territories granted to the Hudson's Bay Company." If the contention of the Colony with respect to the interpretation of the word "Coast" were right, then it would follow that the only land reserved for the Indians was the land coloured yellow on the map appended to the Case of the Colony, and that the Labrador Indians, although subjects and wards of the King, living under His protection within the areas coloured green and pink on that map, were deliberately excluded from the benefit and assurance of that reservation. This interpretation, repugnant in itself to the then established policy of His Majesty in regard to securing to the Indian tribes living under His protection the quiet possession of their hunting lands and to the obvious spirit of the Royal Proclamation, is moreover, at variance with the plain intent and meaning of that instrument. Canada submits that the whole of the lands of the Labrador peninsula, not comprised within the limits of the Hudson's Bay Company's territory or within those established for the province of Quebec, was, by the terms of the Royal Proclamation, reserved and set apart, under His Majesty's immediate protection, for the use of the Indian tribes of that Peninsula for their hunting grounds, subject only to the carrying on upon the seacoast under the supervision of the Governor of Newfoundland of "the open and free fishery" declared by the Proclamation to have been extended to that coast. All the surrounding facts shows this to have been the true intent and effect of that instrument, and contemporaneous interpretation, if material, confirms that conclusion. Under and by virtue of the subsequent Statutes, Orders-in-Council and Proclamations, the entirety of the lands so reserved for the use of the Labrador Indians was incorporated in the territories which to-day form the Dominion of Canada and is subject as such (save only as regards the narrow margin of land on the seacoast over which the rights of the Government of Newfoundland extend) to the exclusive governmental and legislative authority of the Dominion of Canada and of the Province of Quebec in which it lies.

REASON 2: Because the evidence adduced in respect of the crucial years 1854 to 1880 (from the proceedings of the Select Committee of the House of Commons of Great Britain inquiring into the affairs of the Hudson's Bay Company, from the maps issued by the Canadian Government and others, and from the correspondence between the Canadian Government and the British Embassy at Washington) is inconsistent with any other conclusion.

9. The evidence invoked by this "Reason" is assumed to be that which is set out in paragraph 36 of the Colony's Case. It belongs entirely to the category of evidence of reputation, which, of course, is merely traditional hearsay. Evidence of this description, when admitted at all, is admitted only on the ground of the assumed absence of better evidence and, as it were, from necessity; in its very nature, it is intrinsically weak. In the present case, the enactments which govern the definition of the Colony's rights within the Labrador peninsula and all the circumstances which led to and surrounded them being fully known, evidence of reputation is irrelevant and ought to be rejected. Subject to that, Canada submits that the evidence cited affords no substantial ground on which the "Reason" stated above can rest.

10. First, the designation of the years 1854 to 1880 as crucial years, is, Canada submits, unjustified. The instruments which define the only rights ever conferred upon the Government of Newfoundland were issued in 1763. The Colony, in its Case, in effect admits, as already noted, that none of the subsequent acts added anything to the extent of "coast" over which such rights were created by the instruments of 1763. Neither in the years 1854 to 1880, nor at any time, was any extension given to the territory described in the instruments as 1763. Such modification as resulted in 1855 from the recognition of the principles of responsible government as applicable in Newfoundland effected no change of the extent of territory subject to the authority of that Government. Nor does anything appear in any evidence that has been adduced supporting the affirmation of the Colony's Case, that these years—1854 to 1880—are "of peculiar importance because in them the question of the interior boundaries of the Pensinsula, first assumed practical importance." The history of Newfoundland's administration on the coast within those years negatives the idea that it attached any importance to the coast, its administration, or its boundaries.

11. Secondly, with regard to the evidence invoked by this "Reason," it consists, for the most part, of opinions or impressions expressed by some individuals or represented by certain mapmakers respecting territorial divisions or the location of boundaries in the Labrador peninsula, and it is alleged that these opinions or impressions show that it was generally believed and understood that the boundaries in the Labrador peninsula were determined on a "watershed" or a "height-of-land" basis. That evidence, the Colony finally contends, is strongly confirmed by (1) certain maps compiled by employees of the Canadian Government, and (2) by certain correspondence in 1874 between the Canadian Government and the British Embassy at Washington, in which confirmation was given to an opinion which Lord Dufferin, then Governor General of Canada, had verbally expressed in conversation with the British Ambassador, with regard to the question whether Labrador formed part of Canada.

The opinions or impressions formed by some individuals respecting the location of boundaries in the Labrador peninsula, particularly when it does not appear that any of these persons had given any special consideration to the subject or was qualified to do so, can have no sort of bearing upon the determination of the present issue, even if they were not countervailed, as they undoubtedly are, by other opinions of greater authority, and altogether overborne by evidence of a higher nature.

So far as the Canadian maps or correspondence referred to indicate any view different from that set forth by Canada in its Case, it is shown by evidence contained in the joint appendix that such view was the result of an error subsequently recognised and corrected.

II. pp. 339-361.

Furthermore, with regard to the alleged official maps of the Canadian Government and the correspondence of 1874, Canada submits that no action of the Government of Newfoundland or of Canada, and no admission on the part of either or both could effect any extension of the territory described in the instruments of 1763—still less any action or admission of any Governor, executive authority or officer or employee of either of the said countries. No action or admission affecting the territory of either the Dominion or of the Colony would be the action or admission of such Dominion or Colony unless taken or made by their respective legislatures, and even if taken or made by these bodies, could effect no change of territorial jurisdiction. Such a change could be made by imperial legislation and Imperial legislation alone.

ante p. 36. REASON 3: Because under the law of nations at the times material to be considered for the purposes of the present inquiry, the occupation of a "coast" conferred a right to the hinterland as far as the height of land.

ante p. 33. 12. The argument which this "Reason" is apparently intended to invoke is set in par. 38 of the Colony's Case. In this paragraph, the Colony contends that, apart from all other considerations, the line of the crest of the watershed is "the only boundary in the interior for which any principle of reason or law can fairly be advanced," asserting that at the material dates international law had settled the point that the occupation of a "coast" would have conferred upon the occupying State a right to the hinterland as far as the height of land, and that, "by parity of reasoning," the grant of a "coast" would, in the absence of indication to the contrary, confer jurisdiction over an area similarly limited.

13. To this "Reason,"—the Colony's main contention—two answers, which it is submitted are conclusive, may be made: In the first place, the "Law of Nations" has absolutely no application to the questions that arise herein. The Law of Nations governs exclusively the relations of different States and is applicable only to the determination of questions arising between such States. Here no such question arises. The right of sovereignty over the whole of the area to which the present controversy relates was in 1763, has been at all times since, and is indisputably vested in the Crown of Great Britain. The Court is called upon to decide simply the effect of the acts done by the sovereign authority of one and the same State having for their purpose the fixing of the instrumentality through which the government of a particular part of that one and the same State should be carried on.

In the second place, even were the matter one to be governed or affected by the "Law of Nations," Canada submits that there never was, and does not now exist, any recognized rule of international law to the effect stated in this "Reason." The cases in which the so-called rule has been invoked (beginning with the Louisiana boundary controversy, 1805, where it was propounded for the first time) are nothing more than instances where one or more states as parties to a dispute put forward—because it served or appeared to serve their interests—a theory having some resemblance to what is now contended to have been a rule of law. This theory, however, never received any such recognition as to make it a part of the "Law of Nations." The decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the Ontario-Manitoba Boundary Case, 1884 (to which case the Colony refers) and the dicta of their Lordships abundantly support this conclusion. The "watershed" theory was advanced in that case; all the authorities now put forward by the Colony as supporting it were cited in the course of the argument; but their Lordships expressed themselves in no unmistakable terms as being clearly of the opinion that this theory had received no such recognition as would entitle it to be cited, much less countenanced, as an accepted principle of the law of nations. Moreover, the theory, even as a theory, had never been dreamed of when the coast of Labrador was put under the care and inspection of the Governor of Newfoundland. It was a much more modern invention.

The years 1854 to 1880, having been described in the last preceding "Reason" as "the crucial years," it is, perhaps, to be assumed that the Colony's claim is that it was during these years the occupation of a "coast" produced the alleged effect. Canada does not hesitate to deny that in those or any other years the occupation of a "coast" produced the alleged effect. Canada does not hesitate to deny that in those or any others years the alleged rule formed part of the Law of Nations, but, in any event, it certainly cannot have governed acts and instruments executed and given full effect to something like one hundred years prior to the period mentioned, and at a time when it is not even pretended to have been known of either as a rule or even as a theory.

14. It may, furthermore, be noted that the alleged "Law of Nations" has to do with the effect of occupation of a coast as conferring a right to the hinterland of such coast. Here there is no question of acquisition by occupation. Settlements on the coast were, indeed, rigidly excluded under the Instruments of 1763, and the regulations which were made for its government. Such rights as Newfoundland has she holds under the legislative action of His Majesty and the Parliament of Great Britain, and not by virtue of any occupation on her part. And finally, the rule that is invoked as forming part of the "Law of Nations" is not even stated to be that a coast in itself

Martijn,

includes the hinterland. On the contrary, the rule as stated implies that a coast and a hinterland are—as, of course, they are—two perfectly distinct things, the occupation of one whereof gives a claim to the other. It is not even suggested that there was a "Law of Nations" to the effect that when one said "coast," he meant hinterland, and it cannot be said too often, the entire question before this Court is: What did His Majesty mean when he spoke of the coast of Labrador in the Commission of Captain Graves and the Proclamation of 1763?

15. Finally, the Colony's contention "that the crest of the watershed would be a natural limit to impose in a grant 'to the end that the open and free fishery . . . might be extended to and carried on upon the coast of Labrador and the adjacent islands,' since it would be contemplated that the fishing to be encouraged would be for cod on the seashore, but also for salmon along the rivers as far as the fishermen cared to go," disregards all the conditions and limitations imposed by the policy of Great Britain as regards the fishery at Newfoundland and on the Labrador coast. The evidence in the case puts it beyond dispute that "the open and free fishery of our subjects" referred to in the Royal Proclamation of the 7th October, 1763, was the deep-sea fishery for cod, with the appurtenant right to take bait, then carried on upon the seacoasts of Newfoundland under the special title and regulations established or rather confirmed by the Imperial Act 10-11 Wm. III., c. 25; that the policy underlying all the measures relating to this fishery was to establish a nursery for seamen to man the Royal Navy; that, in pursuance of this policy, the object aimed at was the encouragement of a transitory fishery to be carried on by Englishmen whose homes were in England where they would be available to the Navy; and that, under the regulations established for that coast, the salmon fishing was no more than a premium offered to attract fishermen from England to the prosecution of the paramount object—the deep-sea fishery for cod. It was thus an object of attention only in so far as it was or could be carried on within the same area as the cod fishery, i.e., on the sea-coast. The "coast," under these circumstances, was a mere appendage of the sea, and its depth inland would naturally be limited to what was required to accommodate those who carried on the deep-sea fishery under the several laws and regulations governing this fishery.

REASON 4: Because Newfoundland, and Newfoundland alone, between 1763 and 1880, effectively controlled and occupied the area from the coastline back to the height of land.

16. This "Reason" raises an issue of fact in regard to the extent of territory effectively controlled and occupied by the

Colony of Newfoundland between the years mentioned. That this occupation covered the area from the coastline back to the height of land, Canada submits is unsupported by any evidence that has been or could be adduced. The great bulk of the acts of occupation claimed to have been performed, are, from Canada's point of view, quite innocuous, inasmuch as they were so performed within the strip of seacoast over which Canada does not dispute the Colony's authority. The acts of administration claimed to have been performed beyond these limits are, on the Colony's own showing, so few, so trifling, and so widely scattered in time as to offer no support whatever to the affirmation contained in this "Reason;" and were, moreover, if done at all, done without right, and constituted a mere usurpation of authority and trespass upon the territorial jurisdiction of Canada, which cannot be invoked as evidencing any right. Canada, on the other hand, establishes by documents produced in support of her Case and of this present Counter-Case, that she alone has had any effective occupation and has exercised any effective powers of administration and authority within the disputed territory. Moreover, as already pointed out, there is here no question of acquisition by occupation. Newfoundland's rights, whatever their extent, rest exclusively on the titles which conferred them.

VI. pp. 2655-3118.

VII. pp. 3119-3725.

I. pp. 221-224.

VIII.

REASON 5: Because the maps between 1763 and 1880 show that according to the general belief and reputation prevailing at all material times, the jurisdiction of the Government of Newfoundland extended as far inland as the height of land.

ante p. 36.

17. In support of this "Reason" the Colony has reproduced in the Atlas accompanying its Case a series of forty-six maps, or portion of maps of the Labrador peninsula, or parts thereof, dating from 1656 to 1912. A number of these maps purport to show geographical conditions called by the Colony "traditional boundaries" existing in the Peninsula of Labrador, or parts of that Peninsula, prior to the Commission and Proclamation of 1763, which so-called "traditional boundaries," it is claimed, are reproduced in subsequent maps. It may be said at once that, whatever divisions may have been made by map-makers or believed by them to have existed or may have actually existed prior to His Majesty having in 1763 by the Commission to Graves and the Royal Proclamation of that year dealt with the coast of Labrador as including and embracing the entire coast of the Atlantic and of the Gulf from Hudson's Straits, to the River St. John, and with Labrador as embracing the entire territory whereof that was the coast, that action on His part obliterated any such divisions.

It matters not at all what internal divisions of the Peninsula may have existed or been believed to have existed prior to this action on His part. Furthermore, nothing shown on these maps indicates any division between interior territory and coast of Labrador, and that is the only boundary line in question in this case. Whatever weight may attach to maps generally as evidence of reputation where such maps are contemporaneous, and in agreement in what they purport to show, and where reputation is a material factor, it is submitted that nothing appears upon those produced by the Colony bearing upon, or which can or should affect the interpretation of the word "coast," as used by His Majesty in the

p. 121

Commission and Proclamation of 1763. These maps, it is further submitted, entirely fail to support the contention set forth in this "Reason, namely, that the maps between 1763 and 1880 show that according to the general belief and reputation prevailing at all material times, the jurisdiction of the Government of Newfoundland extended as far inland as the height of land." The maps in question neither shown or purport to show anything tending to establish any such belief or reputation existing at any time in regard to the extent of the jurisdiction of the Government of Newfoundland.

REASON 6: Because no other precise interior boundary has ever been suggested for which definite reasons can be advanced.

18. Canada submits that definite reasons have been advanced in the Dominion's Case and in this Counter-case in support of the boundary suggested by Canada, and that this is the only boundary not merely suggested by, but consistent with, any construction of which the Statutes, Orders-in-Council and Proclamations can be shown to be capable.

II. THE LINE OF THE 52ND PARALLEL OF NORTH LATITUDE.

ante p. 36.

19. The claim to this line as the Southern boundary appears to rest entirely upon the effect attached by the Colony of Newfoundland to the British North America (Seignorial Rights) Acts 1825. Canada has already, in its Case (p. 81, para. 30) explained what that legislation was intended to effect, and did, in reality, effect, viz.: the transference from the jurisdiction of Newfoundland to that of Lower Canada of the length of the coast of the Gulf of St. Lawrence extending from "Ance Sablon, inclusive" to the River St. John. By that explanation Canada stands. Canada submits that the Act cited dealt in no way with the question of the inland depth of the coast. Whatever was the depth of the coast prior to that Act continued to be the depth of that coast after it. All that the Act determined was that the "coast," whatever its then existing depth, should in the length above mentioned be annexed to the Province of Lower Canada.

20. The submissions of the second paragraph of the Colony's Case, and what is said and adduced in support of them in the paragraphs which constitute the body of that Case, do not seem to Canada to call for detailed answer or discussion at this stage. Most of the matter contained in these paragraphs is irrelevant. The settlements made are, moreover, in many instances inaccurate and the inferences drawn from them and from the documents produced in support of them unjustified.

These matters may, however, in Canada's judgment, be more clearly and satisfactorily dealt with in the argument at the hearing. It is not the purpose of the present document to discuss them in detail.

With this Counter-Case are produced such documents as furnish evidence rebutting the Colony's statements and inferences above referred to, and explanatory of anything to be found in the evidence of the Colony which may seem to lend support to those statements and inferences.

CONCLUSION.

Upon the whole, Canada respectfully contends that nothing in the case of the Colony has weakened in any respect the case which Canada has put forward, and submits that the question referred should be answered in accordance with the suggestion of Canada's Case.

TERMS OF REFERENCE TO JUDICIAL COMMITTEE.

No. 1.

MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE GOVERNMENTS OF CANADA AND NEWFOUNDLAND, DATED 11th NOVEMBER, 1920, AS AMENDED BY AN AGREEMENT DATED 20th NOVEMBER, 1922.*

(NOTE.—Clauses A, B, C, D and E were substituted by the second agreement for Clauses 1 and 2 of the first agreement.)

IN THE MATTER OF
the boundary between the Dominion of Canada and the Colony of Newfoundland in the Labrador Peninsula:

The government of the Dominion of Canada and the government of; Colony of Newfoundland having mutually agreed to submit for reference

* The second agreement was signed on behalf of the government of Canada by the Hon. Sir Lomer Gouin, Attorney-General of Canada, and on behalf of the government of Newfoundland by the Hon. W. R. Warren, Attorney-by His Majesty to the Judicial Committee of His Majesty's Privy Council for their decision, the following question, viz.:

"What is the location and definition of the boundary as between Canada and Newfoundland in the Labrador Peninsula under the statutes, orders-in-council and proclamations?"

it is hereby agreed by and on behalf of the respective governments aforesaid that, subject to the approval of the Judicial Committee and to such variations and additions as may be agreed upon, the procedure on such submission shall be as follows—

(A). Each government shall within a fixed time, to be mutually agreed upon, deliver to the other and to the solicitors of the other in London a printed case setting forth its contention upon the question agreed to be submitted, accompanied by a printed list describing, with particulars sufficient for their identification, the documents or other evidence upon which it relies.

(B). As soon as the cases with accompanying lists have been exchanged in accordance with the preceding paragraph, a joint appendix consisting of all the documents or other evidence so listed on both sides shall forthwith be compiled and printed under the joint direction of the two governments and at their joint expense, to be shared in such reasonable proportions as shall be equitable or as may be agreed, subject always to Clause 8 of the said agreement of the eleventh of November, one thousand nine hundred and twenty, and there shall be printed at the top of each such document or piece of evidence a letter, mark or statement to identify it as a Canada exhibit or as a Newfoundland exhibit, as the case may be, and the documents shall so far as convenient be arranged in groups according to the subject matter and shall be printed as nearly as may be in their chronological order; and, as soon as possible after the printing of the joint appendix, each Government shall cause to be added to its printed case such marginal printed references by page and line of the joint appendix to the documents or other evidence mentioned in its said list as it may consider necessary or convenient for the consideration of the case, and shall deliver to the other or to the solicitors of the other in London and cause to be lodged at the Privy Council Office copies of its printed case so marginally noted as aforesaid.

(C). Each government shall be at the liberty to deliver to the other and to the solicitors of the other in London within a time to be mutually agreed upon a printed counter-case accompanied by a printed list describing, with particulars sufficient for their identification, the documents or other evidence upon which it relies.

(D). Another joint appendix, the second, including all the documents or other evidence described in the lists delivered with the counter-cases shall then be compiled and printed in the manner and subject to the stipulations hereinbefore provided or contained with respect to the principal joint appendix, and in like manner and subject to the like requirements, the counter cases shall then be side noted, exchanged and lodged.

(E). The documents and other evidence printed in the joint appendices shall be submitted to the Judicial Committee quantum valeat and subject to the reservation by each government of all objections to their admissibility, if any, which either of the governments may be advised to urge.

(3). The two Governments shall thereupon petition His Majesty the King to refer the question so put in issue to the Judicial Committee for hearing and determination.

(4). Upon reference of the matter by His Majesty to the Judicial Committee, either of the two governments shall be at liberty to apply, on notice to the other, to the Judicial Committee to have the case set down for hearing.

(5). The procedure to be followed at the hearing shall be left to the decision of the Judicial Committee who may, if they deem it necessary or desirable, direct evidence to be taken on commission.

(6). Either party shall be entitled to give notice in writing to the other party to produce for the inspection of the agent of the party giving such notice the original of any document in the possession or control of such other party, and relating to the question agreed to be submitted, and the party to whom such notice shall have been given shall produce such original document accordingly at a convenient time and place to be agreed upon.

I have the honour to forward herewith a copy of an approved Minute of the Privy Council, submitting a communication from the Lieutenant Governor of Quebec, in which attention is called to the issue, by the Government of Newfoundland, of a license to cut timber on lands lying along the Hamilton River, indicated on a tracing attached to the Minute, which are claimed to be within the jurisdiction of the Province of Quebec.

You will observe that my Ministers request that the matter may be represented to the Newfoundland Government with a view to obtaining a cancellation of the license as involving an encroachment upon the territory of Quebec.

EXTRACT FROM A REPORT OF A COMMITTEE OF THE HONOURABLE THE PRIVY COUNCIL,

[10 March,

APPROVED BY HIS EXCELLENCY ON THE 10TH MARCH, 1903.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a despatch, dated 18th. December, 1902, from the Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Quebec, submitting a Report by the Minister of Lands, Mines and Fisheries of the Province of Quebec setting out that the Government of the Colony of Newfoundland has issued certain licenses to cut timber to The Grand River Pulp and Lumber Co., Limited, upon both sides of the Hamilton River, and asking that the necessary steps be taken to prevent any encroachment by the Government of Newfoundland upon the territory of the Province of Quebec.

The Minister of Justice, to whom the said despatch was referred, reports that an examination of the Statute shows that by an Act passed in the year 1774 (14 Geo. III, Chap. 83, Sec. 1) the whole of Labrador including the present Newfoundland Labrador was restored to the then Province of Quebec. By the Act of 1809 (49 Geo. III, Chap. 27, Sec. 14) the coast of Labrador from the River St. John to Hudson's Straits, with the Island of Anticosti and all other smaller islands annexed to the Government of Newfoundland by the proclamation of the 7th. October, 1763, except the Islands of Magdalen, were separated from Lower Canada and were re-annexed to Newfoundland. By the Act of 1825, (6 Geo. IV, Chap. 59, Sec. 9) so much of the coast of Labrador as lies westward of a line drawn due north and south from the bay or harbour of Anse Sablon inclusive as far as the 52 degree of north latitude, with the Island of Anticosti and all other islands adjacent to such part as last aforesaid of the coast of Labrador, was re-annexed to the Province of Lower Canada. It is thus evident that even on an interpretation of the legislation most favourable to the Colony of Newfoundland nothing can be included within the Newfoundland Labrador but coast and islands; and, he, the Minister, is of opinion that "Coast" cannot be possibly so interpreted as to include the territory through which the Hamilton River flows, hundreds of miles from the ocean.

The Committee, concurring in the said Report, advise that the Governor General be moved to forward a copy of this Minute to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the

issued by the Government of Newfoundland.

All which is respectfully submitted for approval.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk to the Privy Council.

The undersigned Minister of Lands, Mines and Fisheries of the Province Quebec, has the honor to represent :—

An article published in the "Canada Lumberman" of the 26th November last, having acquainted the Department with the fact that some lumbering operations were contemplated by a certain Company called:—"The Grand River Pulp and Lumber Co." on the territory South of River Hamilton now belonging to the Province of Quebec, in virtue of the Act 61 Vict. C.3. Canada, my Department wrote on the 6th December instant to the President of said Company to have some information about that affair.

To our enquiry we received a letter dated the 9th inst. from M. Alfred Dickie, president of the said Company, copy of said letter is attached to this Memo. in which he states that he, in fact, has obtained from the Government of Newfoundland a license for fifty years, to cut timber on 297 square miles both on North and South sides of the Hamilton River about half each—The Government of New-Foundland claiming to have jurisdiction all North of the 52nd parallel of latitude east of the 64th degree of longitude.

The territory for which such timber license was issued by the Government of New-Foundland, is approximately indicated in green on the enclosed map of the Province of Quebec.

The undersigned submits the whole for the serious consideration of the Government of the Dominion of Canada and asks that the necessary steps be taken to prevent any encroachment by the government of New-Foundland on the territory of the Province of Quebec.

DEAR SIR :—

Your favour of the 6th inst. just to hand, and we are surprised to learn, that the Province of Quebec claims all the land South of the Hamilton River.

The Grand River Pulp and Lumber Co. Ltd., is incorporated under and by the laws of the Legislature of Newfoundland, and we hold fifty year leases, from that Government for 297 square miles of Timber areas both on the North and South sides of the Hamilton River—about half each.

The extent of the jurisdiction of said Gov't, having been defined in 1876 by letters patent.

We are, therefore, not stealing anything, and we would ask you to take up the subject, directly with the Newfoundland Gov't., if their acts have, in any way encroached upon the rights of the Province of Quebec.

Yours faithfully,
The Grand River Pulp and Lumber Co. Ltd.

President.

[NEWFOUNDLAND.]

[17 July,

July 17th, 1903.

The Committee of Council had under consideration despatch No. 24 of date of the 8th April, received from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies and the accompanying copy of a despatch from the Governor General of Canada on the subject of the issue by the Govt. of this Colony of a license to cut timber on lands now for the first time claimed to be within the jurisdiction of the Province of Quebec. The Committee are unable to admit the claim set up by the Canadian Government, and deny that there has been any encroachment by this Government upon the territory of the Province of Quebec.

By the Royal Proclamation of 1763 the River St. John was made the Eastern limit of the Province of Quebec on the North shore of the St. Lawrence and all the rest of that shore and of the Atlantic Coast of Labrador to Hudson's Straits with Anticosti and the other islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, were annexed to Newfoundland.

Eleven years later (1774) the Labrador, the North shore of the River and Gulf of St. Lawrence, and the islands in the Gulf were all transferred to Quebec by the Quebec Act. They remained part of Quebec until 1791 and part of Lower Canada until 1809 in which year the Imperial Parliament passed an Act (49 George III, Cap. 27) which re-annexed to Newfoundland all that had been added to it by the Proclamation of 1763 with the exception of the Madalaine Islands. In the year 1825 the Imperial Parliament passed an Act (6 Geo. IV. Cap. 89) which restored to Lower Canada part of what, had been taken from it in 1809 namely so much of the coast of Labrador as "lies to the Westward of a line to be drawn due north and south from the Bay or Harbour of Ance Sablon, inclusive, as far as the fifty-second degree of North Latitude with the Island of Anticosti and all other Islands adjacent to such part as last aforesaid of the coast of Labrador."

It is clear from the foregoing that it was a portion of the coast of Labrador that was transferred to Canada and only that portion as "lies to the Westward of a line to be drawn due North and South from the Bay or Harbour of Ance Sablon, inclusive, as far as the Fifty-second degree of North Latitude."

This left the whole peninsula of the Labrador under the jurisdiction of the Government of this Colony. The license to referred to in the report of the Committee of the Honourable the Privy Council of Canada now under consideration is many miles to the Eastward of line which was laid down by the Imperial Statute above quoted as the boundary line between the Province of Quebec and the Newfoundland Labrador.

On the 31st July 1880 an Imperial Order in Council was passed in the following terms, namely:—"From and after the First day of September 1880 all British territories and provinces in North America not already included within the Dominion of Canada and all Islands adjacent to any of such territories or possessions, shall, with the exception of Newfoundland and its dependencies, become, and be annexed to, and form part of, the said Dominion of Canada and become and be subject to the Laws for the time being in force in the said Dominion, in so far as such laws may be applicable thereto."

l'honneur de faire rapport :—

Que le Gouvernement de Terre-Neuve dispute au
Gouvernement de la Puissance du Canada et à celui de la Province de Québec un certain territoire sur la rivière

Que cette question a déjà, été référée aux autorités fédérales de la part du Gouvernement de cette Province leur demandant de prendre l'action nécessaire pour faire reconnaître par le Gouvernement de Terre-Neuve les droits de propriété du Gouvernement de la Province de Québec sur la partie du territoire en dispute, qui se trouve située au sud et sur les bords soumettre la question à la décision des tribunaux;

Pour nous conformer à cette suggestion du Secrétaire d'Etat pour les colonies, l'Honorable Procureur général de gouvernement de cette Province devrait prier le gouvernement du Canada de se mettre en communication avec le gouvernement de Terre-Neuve, afin que ces deux gouvernements s'entendent pour soumettre ce différend au comité judiciaire du Conseil Privé, tel que prévu par le Statut impérial 3-4 Guillaume IV, chap. 41 Sec. 4 vide Privy Council Practice, Safford & Wheeler, 1901 page 766;

Le soussigné a l'honneur de recommander que le présent rapport soit transmis par la voie ordinaire aux autorités fédérales, pour y faire ce que suggéré, ou adopter toute autre action jugée nécessaire dans le but de faire régler cette difficulté.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a communication dated 29th February, 1904, from the Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Quebec, respecting the differences between the Government of the Colony of Newfoundland on the one hand, and the Governments of Canada and of the Province of Quebec, on the other, regarding the boundary between the Newfoundland Labrador and the Dominion of Canada.

The Minister of Justice, to whom said matter was referred, submits that a Minute of Council dated 10th March 1903 was forwarded to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, with a view to the cancellation of certain timber licenses granted by the Government of Newfoundland within Canadian territory.

The Minister further submits that on the 21st August 1903, the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies transmitted a despatch from the Government of Newfoundland refusing to admit the claim of the Canadian Government and denying that the territory belonged to Canada.

In his despatch the Secretary of State for the Colonies suggested that if the Government of Canada were not satisfied with the reply of the Newfoundland Government they would doubtless take the necessary steps to obtain a legal decision in the matter.

The Minister further states that the Government of the Province of Quebec now requests that the question of the position of the boundary between the Newfoundland Labrador and the Dominion of Canada may be submitted for a hearing by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council

P.C. 1694 M.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a Despatch dated 2nd October 1907, from the Governor of Newfoundland setting forth that by a Despatch dated 20th May, 1904, the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies informed his predecessor that His Majesty's Government and the Government of the Dominion of Canada were agreed as to the desirability of submitting to the Imperial Privy Council for decision, the question of the Labrador Boundary between Canada and Newfoundland and stating that His Ministers concurred with that proposal and will be prepared to submit their case forthwith.

The Minister of Justice to whom the said Despatch was referred recommends that a Despatch be sent to the Governor of Newfoundland accepting the decision of the Government of Newfoundland to submit to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council for consideration, the question of the Labrador Boundary between Canada and Newfoundland and requesting that the Government of Newfoundland will place their Attorney General, or such other person as they may think fit to designate, in communication with the Minister of Justice, for the Dominion of Canada, with a view to arranging the proper legal procedure to be followed for the purpose of bringing the question before the Imperial Privy Council for decision.

The Minister further recommends that a copy of such Despatch be sent to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies for his information and that a copy be also sent to the Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Quebec for the information of his Ministers.

The Committee advise that His Excellency be moved to forward a copy hereof to the Governor of Newfoundland and to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and that a copy be also sent to the Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Quebec.

Department of the Interior.
Ottawa, October 10th 1902.

Sir,

I am directed to inform you in reply to your letter of the 4th instant that your letter of the 24th July last, in which you stated that Mr. d'Aigneaux wished to open a store for traffic at the Western End of Lake Melville, somewhere between the Hamilton and North West Rivers, and asked to be informed if Lake Melville was in Canadian territory, and where the boundary line between Newfoundland and Canada runs, was referred to the Deputy Minister of Justice. He has advised this department that under the Imperial Act of 1825, (6 Geo. IV. Cap. 59, s. 9) so much of the coast of Labrador as lies westward of a line to be drawn due north and south from the bay or harbour of Anse Sablon inclusive as far as the 52nd degree of North Latitude with the land of Anticosti, etc., was re-annexed to Canada, and he considers there was given back to Canada all the Labrador coast except the strip of coast from Sandwich Bay to Anse Sablon. He also thinks that the term "coast" does not include the whole of an inlet like Hamilton Inlet which extends under that name and as Lake Melville and Goose Bay, for 150 miles from the sea. It is therefore his opinion that if goods are landed within the territory belonging to Newfoundland they are entitled to be carried to their destination within Canadian Territory without the payment of Newfoundland duties.

I am to express regret for the delay which has taken place in giving you the above information. Your letter has been referred to the Surveyor General and if he or the Geographer of the Department can furnish a map such as is asked for in your letter of the 24th of July last it will be sent to you free of cost.

DEAR SIR:—

Your favor of the 6th inst. just to hand, and we are surprised to learn, that the Province of Quebec claims all the land South of the Hamilton River.

The Grand River Pulp and Lumber Co. Ltd., is incorporated under and by the laws of the Legislature of Newfoundland, and we hold fifty year leases, from that Government for 297 square miles of Timber areas both on the North and South sides of the Hamilton River—about half each.

In Labrador, the Newfoundland Govt. claims all North of the 62nd parallel of latitude that is East of the 64th degree of longitude.

The extent of the jurisdiction of said Gov't. having been defined in 1876 by letters patent.

We are, therefore, not stealing anything, and we would ask you to take up the subject, directly with the Newfoundland Gov't., if their acts have, in any way encroached upon the rights of the Province of Quebec.

Yours faithfully,
The Grand River Pulp and Lumber Co. Ltd.
(Signed) "ALFRED DICKIE,"
President.

2. I was at Northwest River about the time the Quebec Government claimed the timber areas there. The Canadian steamer Montcalm came there one summer with a party of surveyors, etc., who stayed all the next winter and marked all the logs they found with the letters "P. ROYAL PROCLAMATION OF 7th OCTOBER, 1763.

BY THE KING.

[7th October,
1763.]

GEORGE R.

Whereas we have taken into our Royal consideration the extensive and valuable acquisition in America secured to our Crown by the late definitive treaty of peace concluded at Paris the tenth day of Febuary last; and being desirous that all our loving subjects, as well as our kingdom as of our colonies in America, may avail themselves with all convenient speed of the great benefits and advantages which must accrue therefrom to their commere, manufactures, and navigation; we have thought fit, with the advice of our Privy Council, to issue this our Royal Proclamation, hereby to publish and declare to all our loving subjects, that we have, with the advice of our said Privy Council, granted our letters patent under our Great Seal of Great Britain, to erect within the countries and islands ceded and confirmed to us by the said treaty, four distinct and seperate governments, styled and called by the names of QUEBEC, EAST FLORIDA, WEST FLORIDA, and GREDADA, and limited and bounded as follows, viz.:

Iqaluit, NU

Firstly.—The Government of QUEBEC, bounded on the Labrador Coast by the River St. John, and from thence by a line drawn from the head of that river, though the lake St. John, to the south end of the Lake Nipissim; from whence the said line, crossing the River St. Lawrence, and the Lake Champlain in forty-five degrees of north latitude, passes along the high lands which divide the rivers that empty themselves into the said River St. Lawrence, from those which fall into the sea; and also along the north coast of the Baye des Chaleurs, and the coast of the Gulph of St. Lawrence by the west end of the Island of Anticosti, terminates at the aforesaid River St. John.

Secondly.—The Government of EAST FLORIDA, bounded to the westward by the Gulph of Mexico and the Apalachicola River; to the northward, by a line drawn from the part of the said river where the Chatahouchee and Flint Rivers meet, to the source of the St. Mary's River, and by the course of the said river to the Atlantic Ocean; and to the eastward and southward by the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulph of Florida, including all islands within six leagues of the sea coast.

Thirdly.—The Government of WEST FLORIDA, bounded to the southward by the Gulph of Mexico, including all islands within six leagues of the of the coast from the River Apalachicola to Lake Pontchartrain; to the westward, by the said lake, the Lake Maurepas, and the River Mississippi; to the northward, by a line drawn due east from that part of the River Mississippi which lies in thirty-one degrees north latitude, to the River Apalachicola, or Chatahouchee; and to the eastward by the said river.

Fourthly.—The Government of GRENADA, comprehending the island of that name, together with the Grenadines, and the islands of Dominico St. Vincent and Tobago.

And to the end that the open and free fishery of our subjects may be extended to and carried on upon the coast of Labrador, and the adjacent islands, we have thought fit, with the advice of our said Privy Council, to put all that coast, from the River St. John's to Hudson's Streights, together with the islands of Anticosti and the Madelaine, and all other smaller islands lying upon the said coast, under the care and inspection of our Governor of Newfoundland.

We have also, with the advice of our Privy Council, thought fit to annex the islands of St. John's and Cape Breton, or Isle Royale, with the lesser islands adjacent thereto, to our Government of Nova Scotia.

We have also, with the advice of our Privy Council aforesaid, annexed to our Province of GEORGIA, all the lands lying between the rivers Alatomaha and St. Mary's.

And whereas it will greatly contribute to the speedy settling our said New Governments, that our loving subjects should be informed of our paternal care for the security of the liberties and properties of those who are and shall become, inhabitants thereof; we have thought fit to publish and declare, by this our Proclamation, that we have in the letters patent under our Great Seal of Great Britain, by which the said Governments are constituted, given express power and direction to our governors of our said colonies respectively, that so soon as the state and circumstances of the said colonies will admit thereof, they shall, with the advice and consent of the members of our Council summon and call general assemblies within the said governments respectively, in such manner and form as is used and directed in those colonies and provinces in America, which are under our immediate government; and we have also given power to the said governors, with the consent of our said councils and the representatives of the people so to be summoned as aforesaid, to make, constitute, and ordain laws, statutes, and ordinances for the public peace, welfare, and good government of our said colonies, and of the people and inhabitants thereof, as near as may be, agreeable to the laws of England, and under such regulations and restrictions as are used in other colonies, and in the meantime, and until such assemblies can be called as aforesaid, all persons inhabiting in or resorting to our said colonies may confide in our Royal protection for the enjoyment of the benefit of the laws of our realm of England: for which purpose we have given power under our great seal to the governors of our said colonies respectively, courts of judicature and public justice within our said colonies for the hearing and determining all causes as well criminal as civil according to law and equity, and, as near as may be, agreeable to the laws of England, with liberty to all persons who may think themselves aggrieved by the sentences of such courts in all civil cases to appeal under the usual limitations and restrictions to us in our Privy Council.

We have also thought fit, with the advice to our Privy Council as aforesaid, to give unto the governors and councils of our said three new colonies upon the continent full power and authority to settle and agree with the inhabitants of our said new colonies, or with any other persons who shall resort thereto, for such lands, tenements and hereditaments as are now or hereafter shall be in our power to dispose of, and them to grant to any such person or persons, upon such terms and under such moderate quit rents, services, and acknowledgments as have been appointed and settled in other colonies, and under such other conditions as shall appear to us to be necessary and expedient for the advantage of the grantees and the improvement and settlement of our said colonies.

And whereas we are desirous upon all occasions to testify our Royal sense and approbation of the conduct and bravery of the officers and soldiers of our armies, and to reward the same. We do hereby command and empower our governors of our said three new colonies, and all other our governors of our several Provinces on the continent of North America, to grant without fee or reward to such reduced officers as have served in North America during the late war, and to such private soldiers as have been or shall be disbanded in America and are actually residing there, and shall personally apply for the same, the following quantities of land, subject at the expiration of ten years to the same quit rents as other lands are subject to in the Province within which they are granted, as also subject to the same conditions of cultivation and improvement, viz.:—

- To every person having the rank of a field officer 5,000 acres.
- To every captain 3,000 acres.
- To every subaltern or staff officer 2,000 acres.
- To every non-commissioned officer 200 acres.
- To every private man 50 acres.

We do likewise authorize and require the Governors and Commanders-in-Chief of all our said Colonies upon the Continent of North America, to grant the like quantities of land and upon the same conditions to such reduced officers of our navy of like rank as served on board our ships of war in North America, at the times of the reduction of Louisburg and Quebec in the late war, and who shall personally apply to our respective Governors for such grants.

And whereas it is just and reasonable, and essential to our interest and the security of our colonies, that the several nations or tribes of Indians with whom we are connected, and who live under our protection, should not be molested or disturbed in the possession of such parts of our dominions and territories as, not having been ceded to or purchased by us, are reserved to them, or any of them, as their hunting-grounds; we do therefore, with the advice of our Privy Council, declare it to be our Royal will and pleasure that no Governor or Commander-in-Chief in any of our colonies of QUEBEC, EAST FLORIDA, or WEST FLORIDA, do presume upon any pretense whatever to grant warrants of survey, or pass any patents for lands beyond the bounds of their respective governments as described in their commissions: as also that no Governor or Commander-in-Chief in any of our other colonies or plantations in America do presume for the present, and until our further pleasure be known, to grant warrants of survey, or pass patents for any lands beyond the heads or sources of any of the rivers which fall into the Atlantic Ocean from the west and northwest, or upon any lands whatever which, not having been ceded to or purchased by us, as aforesaid, are reserved to the said Indians or any of them.

And we do further declare it to be our Royal will and pleasure, for the present as aforesaid, to reserve under our sovereignty, protection, and dominion, for the use of the said Indians, all the land and territories not included within the limits of our said three new governments, or within the land and territories lying to the westward of the sources of the rivers which fall into the sea from the west and northwest as aforesaid; and we do hereby strictly forbid, on pain and our displeasure, all our taking possession of any of the lands above reserved, without our especial leave and licence for that purpose first obtained.

And we do further strictly enjoin and require all persons whatsoever, who have either willfully or inadvertently seated themselves upon any lands within the countries above described, or upon any other lands which, not having been ceded to or purchased by us, are still reserved to the said Indians as aforesaid, forthwith to remove themselves from such settlements.

And whereas great frauds and abuses have been committed in the purchasing lands of the Indians, to the great prejudice of our interests and to the great dissatisfaction of the said Indians; in order, therefore, to prevent such irregularities for the future, and to the end that the Indians may be convinced of our justice and determined resolution to remove all reasonable cause of discontent, we do, with the advice of our Privy Council, strictly

enjoin and require that no private person do presume to make any purchase from the said Indians of any lands reserved to the said Indians within those parts of our colonies where we have thought proper to allow settlement; but that, if at any time any of the said Indians should be inclined to dispose of the said lands, the same shall be purchased only for us, in our name, at some public meeting or assembly of the said Indians, to be held for that purpose by the Governor or Commander-in-Chief of our colony respectively, within which they shall lie: and, in case they shall be within the limits of any proprietary Government they shall be purchased only for the use and in the name of such proprietaries conformable to such directions and instructions as we or they shall think proper to give for that purpose: and we do, by the advice of our Privy Council, declare and enjoin that the trade of the said Indians shall be free and open to all our subjects whatever, provided that every person who may incline to trade with the said Indians, do take out a licence for carrying on such trade, from the Governor or Commander-in-Chief of any of our colonies respectively, where such person shall reside, and also give security by our commissaries to be appointed for this purpose to direct and appoint for the benefit of the said trade; and we do hereby authorize, enjoin and require the Governors and Commanders-in-Chief of all our colonies respectively, as well those under our immediate government as those under the government and direction of proprietaries, to grant such licenses without fee or reward, taking especial care to insert therein a condition that such licence shall be void, and the security forfeited, in case the person to whom the same is granted shall refuse or neglect to observe such regulations as we shall think proper to prescribe, as aforesaid.

And we do further expressly enjoin and require all officers whatever, as well military as those employed in the management and direction of Indian affairs within the territories reserved as aforesaid for the use of the said Indians, to seize and apprehend all persons whatever who, standing charged with treason, misprisions of treason, murders, or other felonies or misdemeanors, shall fly from justice and take refuge in the said territory, and the sent them under a proper guard to the colony where the crime was committed, of which they stand accused, in order to take their trial for the same.

Given at our Court, at St. James's, the seventy day of October, one thousand seven hundred and sixty-three, in the third year of our Reign.

For holding Pleas.

X. And be it further enacted, That an Act passed in the Thirty-third Year of His present Majesty's Reign, intituled, An Act for establishing Courts of Judicature in the Island of Newfoundland, and the Islands adjacent, which has by several subsequent Acts been continued to the Twenty-fifth Day of March One thousand eight hundred and nine, shall be and continue in Force until the opening of the Supreme Court instituted by virtue of this Act, and no longer; and every Suit or Complaint which shall at that Time be depending in the said Court of Civil Jurisdiction shall and may be proceeded upon in the said Supreme Court, in the same Manner as any Suit or Complaint originally commenced in the said Supreme Court.

Chief Justice to settle Forms of Process, and

XII. Provided also, and be it further enacted, That it shall be lawful for the Court of Session in a summary Way to hear and determine all Suits for the Payment of Debts not exceeding Forty Shillings, and not contracted more than One Year before the Commencement of such Suits respectively; and it shall be lawful for the Court of Session, or such Two Justices respectively, to award Costs therein; and such Determination and Award shall be final, and shall be carried into Execution by Attachment and Sale of the Goods and Effects of the Party against whom the Determination was made.

[31 May, 1811.]

An Act for taking away the public Use of Certain Ships Rooms in the Town of Saint John, in the Island of Newfoundland; and for Instituting Surrogate Courts on the Coast of Labrador, and in certain Islands adjacent thereto (31 May, 1811).

Whereas certain Spaces of Ground in the Town of Saint John's in the Island of Newfoundland, called Ships Rooms, are liable, according to the ancient Custom there used, and conformably with the Provisions of an Act passed in the Tenth and eleventh Years of his Majesty King William the Third, intituled, An Act to encourage the Trade to Newfoundland, to be claimed by the Masters of fishing ships for the Use of their Ships and Boats during the current fishing Season, which said Spaces of Ground have not of late been employed for the Purpose of the Fishery: and whereas it would be more beneficial to the general Interests of the Trade and Fishery, if the said Spaces of Ground were wholly exempted from such Claim, and were let out for building Dwelling Houses and Store Houses, and for other Uses necessary to the Trade and Fishery: And whereas it has been proved, upon the Survey of Persons resident in the Town of St. John's, and well skilled in the Affairs of the Fishery, that there is Land at the Western Extremity of the Harbour better suited for drying, curing, and husbanding of Fish than any of the Ships Rooms above mentioned; be it therefore enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the Authority of the same, That, from and after the passing of this Act, the followed Ships Rooms, situated in the Town of Saint John's, that is to say, the Ships Rooms No. I Rotten Row, or Pye Corner Ships Room No. II; Dorkus's Ships Room, No. II; Lady's Ships Room, No. II; Gallows-Hill Ships Room, No. III; Burstheart-Hill Ships Room, No. III; Churchill Ships Room, No. IV; Hudson's Ships Room, No. V; Admiral's Ships Room, No. VI; as the same are laid down, distinguished and named in a Plan of the Town and Harbour of Saint John's in Newfoundland, dated October One thousand eight hundred and four, and deposited in the Government House there, shall no longer be deemed and taken to be Ships Rooms and occupied during the Fishing Season as such, but it shall be lawful for the same to be granted, let, and possessed as private Property, in like Manner as any other Portions of Land in Newfoundland may be; any Thing in the said Act or the said ancient Custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

"II. And whereas it is expedient to provide for the better Administration of Justice in such Parts of the Coast of Labrador from the River St. John to Hudson's Streights, and in the Island of Anticosti, and in all other smaller Islands as are re-annexed to the Government of Newfoundland by an Act passed in the Forty-ninth Year of His Majesty's Reign, intituled, An Act for establishing Courts of Judicature in the Island of Newfoundland and the islands adjacent; and for re-annexing part of the Coast of Labrador and the Islands lying on the said Coast to the Government of Newfoundland"; Be it therefore further enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for the Governor of Newfoundland from Time to Time to institute Surrogate Courts in the said Parts and Places, with Power and Authority to proceed in and to hear and determine Civil Suits arising within the said Ports and Places, and all other Suits and Complaints, in like manner as Surrogate Courts instituted by virtue of the said Act in the Island of Newfoundland

An Act to provide for the Extinction of Feudal and Seigniorial Rights and Burthens on Lands held à Titre de Fief and à Titre de Cens, in the Province of Lower Canada; and for the gradual Conversion of those Tenures into the Tenure of Free and Common Soccage; and for other Purposes relating to the said Province.

Persons holding fiefs or seigniories in Lower Canada, in which lands have been granted à titre de fief, &c. may, on application to his Majesty, and on surrender of the lands not so granted, obtain a commutation and release of the feudal burthens due to his Majesty in respect of such fief or seigniory;

WHEREAS in and by an Act passed in the third year of his Majesty's reign, intituled "An Act to regulate the trade of the provinces of Lower and Upper Canada, and for other purposes relating to the said provinces," certain provisions were made for a charge of the tenure of lands held in fief and seigniority, and also for the change of the tenure of lands held at cens et rentes, in the censive of his Majesty, in the provinces of Lower and Upper Canada: And whereas the said provisions, in so far as they relate to the change of tenure of lands in fief and seigniority, cannot, in the said province of Lower Canada, recieve execution where such lands or part thereof have, under grants of the seigniors, become the property of persons who hold the same à titre de fief, in arriere fief, or à titre de cens; and further provision in this behalf is necessary: Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and authority of the same, that whenever any person or persons, holding of his Majesty as proprietor or proprietors any fief or siegniory in the said province of Lower Canada, and having legally the power of alienating the same, in which fief or seigniority lands have been granted and are held à titre de fief, in arriere fief, or à titre de cens, shall by petition to the King, through the governor, lieutenant governor, or person administering the governor of the said province, apply for a communication of and release from the droit de quint, the droit de relief, or other feudal burthens due to his Majesty on such fief or seigniority, and shall surrender into the hands of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, all such parts and parcels of such fief or seigniority as shall remain and be in his possession ungranted, and shall not be held as aforesaid à titre de fief, in arriere fief, or à titre de cens, it shall and may be lawful for his Majesty, or for such governor, lieutenant governor, or person administering the government as afroresaid, in pursuance of his Majesty's instructions transmitted through one of his principal secretaries of state, by and with the advice of the executive council of the said province, to commute the droit de quint, the

and the surrendered lands may be regranted to the proprietor in free and common soccage.

Persons holding lands in fief, and obtaining a commutation as aforesaid, shall be bound, if required, to grant the like commutation to those holding lands under them à titre de fief, &c.;

droit de relief, and all other feudal rights and burthens due to his Majesty upon or in respect of such fief or seigniority, for such sum of money or consideration, and upon such terms and conditions, as to his Majesty, or to such governor, lieutenant governor, or person administering the government as aforesaid, in pursuance of such instructions, and by and with such advice as aforesaid, shall appear meet and expedient; and thereupon to release the person or persons so applying, his, her, and their heirs and assigns, and all and every the lands comprized in such fief or seigniority, from the said droit de quint, droit de relief, and all other feudal burthens due or to grow due thereupon to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, of whatsoever nature or kind, for ever; and to cause a fresh grant to be made to the person or persons so applying, of all such parts and parcels of such fief or seigniority as shall as aforesaid remain and be in his, her, or their possession ungranted, and which shall not be held à titre de fief, in arriere fief as aforesaid, or à titre de cens, to be thenceforward holden in free and common soccage, in like manner as lands are now holden in free and common soccage in that part of Great Britain called England, without its being necessary for the validity of such grant that any allotment or appropriation of lands for the support and maintenance of a protestant clergy should be therein made; any law or statute to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

II. VIII. And whereas doubts have arisen whether lands granted in the said province of Lower Canada by his Majesty, or by any of his royal predecessors, to be holden in free and common soccage, shall be held by the owners thereof, or will subsequently pass to other persons, according to the rules of descent and alienation in force in England, or according to such rules as were established by the ancient laws of the said province for the descent and alienation of land situate therein: Be it therefore declared and enacted, that all lands within the said province of Lower Canada, which have heretofore been granted by his Majesty, or by any of his royal predecessors, to any person or persons, their heirs and assigns, to be holden in free and common soccage, or which shall or may hereafter be so granted by his Majesty, his heirs and successors, to any person or persons, their heirs and assigns, to be holden in free and common soccage, may and shall be by such grantees, their heirs and assigns, held, granted, bargained, sold, aliened, conveyed and disposed of, and may and shall pass by descent, in such manner and form, and upon and under such rules and restrictions, as are by the law of England established and in force: in reference to the grant, bargain, sale, alienation, conveyance, disposal, descent of lands holden by the like tenure therein situate, or to the dower or other rights of married women in such lands, and not otherwise, any law, custom, or usage to the contrary in anywise notwithstanding: Provided nevertheless, that nothing herein contained shall extend to prevent his Majesty, with the advice and consent of the legislative council and assembly of the province of Lower Canada, from making and enacting any such laws or statutes as may be necessary for the better adapting the before-mentioned rules of the law of England, or any of them, to the local circumstances and condition of the said province of Lower Canada, and the inhabitants thereof.

IX. And whereas under and by virtue of a certain Act passed in the forty-ninth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Third, intituled "An Act for establishing courts of judicature in the island of Newfoundland, and in the islands adjacent; and for re-annexing part of Labrador, and the islands lying on the said coast, to the government of Newfoundland"; and of the Act* passed in the fifth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled "An Act for the better administration of justice in Newfoundland, and for other purposes," the coast of Labrador, from the river Saint John to Hudson's Streights, and the island of Anticosti, and all the islands adjacent to the said coast, except the islands of Madelaine, are annexed to and form parts of the said coast of Labrador should be re-annexed to and form part of the province of Lower Canada: Be it therefore enacted, that so much of the said coast as lies to the westward of a line to be drawn due north and south from the bay or harbour of Ance Sablon, inclusive, as far as the fifty-second degree north latitude, with the island of Anticosti, and all other islands adjacent such part as last aforesaid of the coast of Labrador, shall be and the same are hereby re-annexed to and made a part of the said province of Lower Canada, and shall henceforward be subject to the laws of the said province, and to none other; and so much of the said recited Acts passed in the forty-ninth year of the reign of His late Majesty King George the Third, and in the fifth year of the reign of His present Majesty, as relates to such part of the Coast of Labrador as last aforesaid, and the said Island of Anticosti, and ther adjacent islands, shall be and the same is hereby repealed.

Court of escheats may be constituted in the said province to try forfeitures of uncultivated lands liable to escheat to the Crown.

X. And whereas it is necessary to enable his Majesty more easily to resume from time to time such uncultivated lands within the said province, holden in free and common soccage, as now are or hereafter may be liable to escheat and become forfeited to his Majesty, by reason of the non-performance of the conditions of settlement and cultivation or other conditions mentioned and contained in the letters patent or grants thereof heretofore made, or which shall hereafter be made by his Majesty, either in virtue of this Act or otherwise: Be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the governor, lieutenant governor, or person administering the government of the said province, with the advice of the executive council thereof, to constitute and appoint, by a commission under the great seal of the said province, one or more person or persons to be a commissioner or commissioners of escheats and forfeitures of land within the said province; which said commissioner and commissioners is and are hereby authorized and empowered, from time to time, on information being made and filed before him or them by the attorney general or solicitor general of the said province, or other person appointed for that purpose on behalf of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, concerning the performance or non-performance of the conditions of any grants or letters patent by which any such land as aforesaid shall at any time have been held, to inquire, on the part and behalf of his Majesty, by the oaths of twelve good and lawful men, to be duly summoned for that purpose by the sheriff, upon a precept to be issued and directed to him from the office they shall from time to time take by virtue of this Act, under his or their seals, and the seals of those by whose oaths he or they shall have taken the same, into the office of the secretary of the province, within thirty days after the taking thereof, and also within the same time return a transcript thereof, and of the whole proceedings relating to the same, into the supreme court of original jurisdiction holding civil pleas in the district in which the lands and premises comprised in the information shall be situate; and thereupon such lands and premises as are thereby found to be forfeited to his Majesty for nonperformance of any of the conditions on which the same shall have been granted shall be and they are hereby declared to be re-vested in his Majesty, his heirs and successors, any former grant or letters patent thereof notwithstanding: Provided always, that no new grant of such lands shall be made for the space of one year from the date of such inquisition, except to the person or persons holding or claiming the same under the former letters patent thereof, or by a lawful title derived under the same.

from the publishing of such notice; and such notice, being so published, and proof thereof made to the satisfaction of the said commissioner or commissioners, shall be instead of all other notice, process, writ, summons, or other proceeding whatever, for the notification and appearance of the person or persons interested in such lands, and shall conclude all such persons for ever; provided, that it shall be lawful for all persons interested in or entitled to such lands as are comprised in any office or inquisition so made and returned as aforesaid to traverse the same in the court into which it shall have been returned, within three calendar months from the date thereof; and the notice herein-before required, and the inquisition so to be taken in pursuance thereof, shall be deemed sufficient and conclusive notice to the traverser, and all others concerned in such traverse; and such court shall thereupon hear, try, and determine the said traverse, as nearly as circumstances will admit, according to the rules, course, and practice of the law of England in the like cases, and the judgment of the said court thereon shall be final.

XII. the Third, have been appropriated within the said province of Lower Canada for the maintenance of a protestant clergy: And whereas divers parts of the lands so appropriated as aforesaid for the support of a protestant clergy are from time to time required as the site of public buildings and other works carried on at the public expense within the said province: And whereas divers parts of such appropriated lands as aforesaid, which have not been brought into cultivation by or for the benefit of the protestant clergy within the said province, are sometimes required to enable his Majesty to complete the settlement of other waste lands in the immediate vicinity thereof; but by reason of the said land being so appropriated as aforesaid, it is impossible, except by the consent of Parliament, to quiet the possession of such persons so claiming the same by such titles as aforesaid, or to obtain a surrender and conveyance, or to effect an exchange, of such parts thereof as may be so required as aforesaid for the public service, or for the completion of any such settlements as aforesaid: Be it therefore enacted, that whenever and so often as it shall appear to the governor, lieutenant governor, or other person administering the government of the said province that the surrender and cession of any part of the lands so appropriated as aforesaid for the benefit of a protestant clergy in the said province is necessary for quieting the titles of any of his Majesty's subjects to lands held or claimed by them by occupancy, lawful prescription, transfer, or by doubtful titles as aforesaid, or is necessary; or would be convenient for the carrying on of any public buildings or works, or for the more effectual settlement of any district or tract of land within the said province, or otherwise for his Majesty's service, or for the benefit of the said province, or of his Majesty's subjects therein resident, then, and in any or either of the cases aforesaid, it shall and may be lawful for the bishop of Quebec for the time being, on behalf of the said protestant clergy, in compliance with any requisition in writing to him for that purpose made by such governor, lieutenant governor, or other person administering the government of the said province, and he is hereby required, by a deed under his hand and seal, duly attested by two or more credible witnesses, to surrender, yield up, and convey to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, the lands comprized and described in any such requisition as aforesaid, in exchange for other lands situate in the said province of equal extent and value, to be by his Majesty appropriated and set apart for the support and maintenance of protestant clergy therein; and which deed, so executed by the said bishop of Quebec for the time being, shall be valid and effectual in law, to vest in his Majesty, his heirs and successors, all the lands therein included and comprized; and such lands shall and may, by his Majesty, his heirs and successors, be re-granted and re-conveyed to any other person or persons, for quieting their possession and titles, or otherwise, as may from time to time be expedient or necessary, without any further appropriation of land being thereupon made for the benefit of a protestant clergy.

SCHEDULES.

SCHEDULE (A).

ADDRESS to HER MAJESTY the QUEEN from the Senate and House of Commons of the Dominion of Canada.

To the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Senate and Commons of the Dominion of Canada in Parliament assembled, humbly approach your Majesty for the purpose of representing: —

That it would promote the prosperity of the Canadian people, and conduce to the advantage of the whole Empire, if the Dominion of Canada constituted under the provisions of the "British North America Act, 1867," were extended westward to the shores of the Pacific Ocean.

That the colonization of the fertile lands of the Saskatchewan, the Assiniboine, and the Red River districts; the development of the mineral wealth which abounds in the region of the North-west; and the extension of commercial intercourse through the British possessions in America from the Atlantic to the Pacific, are alike dependent on the establishment of a stable government for the maintenance of law and order in the North-Western Territories.

That the welfare of a sparse and widely scattered population of British subjects of European origin, already inhabiting these remote and unorganized territories, would be materially enhanced by the formation therein of political institutions bearing analogy, as far as circumstances will admit, to those which exist in the several Provinces of this Dominion.

That the 146th section of the "British North American Act, 1867," provides for the admission of Rupert's Land and the North-western Territory, or either of them, into union with Canada, upon the terms and conditions to be expressed in addresses from the Houses of Parliament of this Dominion to your Majesty, and which shall be approved of by your Majesty in Council.

That we do therefore most humbly pray that your Majesty will be graciously pleased, by and with the advice of your Most Honorable Privy Council, to unite Rupert's Land and the North-western Territory with this Dominion, and to grant to the Parliament of Canada authority to legislate for their future welfare and good Government; and we most humbly beg to express to your Majesty that we are willing to assume the duties and obligations of government and legislation as regards these territories.

That in the event of your Majesty's Government agreeing to transfer to Canada the jurisdiction and control over the said region, the Government and Parliament of Canada will be ready to provide that the legal rights of any corporation, company or individual within the same shall be respected, and placed under the protection of Courts of competent jurisdiction.

And furthermore that, upon the transference of the territories in question to the Canadian Government, the claims of the Indian tribes to compensation for lands required for purposes of settlement will be considered and settled in conformity with the equitable principles which have uniformly governed the British Crown in its dealings with the aborigines.

All which we humbly pray your Majesty to take into your Majesty's Most gracious and favorable consideration.

The Senate, Tuesday, December 17th, 1867.

House of Commons, Monday, December 16th, 1867.

And whereas by "The British North America Act, 1867," it is (amongst other things) enacted that it shall be lawful for Her present Majesty Queen Victoria, by and with the advice and consent of Her Majesty's most Honorable Privy Council, on address from the Houses of Parliament of Canada, to admit Rupert's Land and the North Western Territory or either of them into the Union of the Dominion of Canada on such terms and conditions as are in the Address expressed, and Her Majesty thinks fit to approve, subject to the provisions of the said Act. And whereas, by the "Rupert's Land Act, 1868," it is enacted (amongst other things) that for the purposes of that Act the term "Rupert's Land" shall include the whole of the lands and territories held or claimed to be held by the said Governor and Company, and that it shall be competent for the said Governor and Company to surrender to Her Majesty, and for Her Majesty, by any instrument under Her Sign Manual and Signet to accept a surrender of all or any of the lands, territories, rights, privileges, liberties, franchises, powers and authorities whatsoever, granted or purported to be granted by the said Letters Patent to the said Governor and Company within Rupert's Land, upon such terms and conditions as shall be agreed upon by and between Her Majesty and the said Governor and Company; provided, however, that such surrender shall not be accepted by Her Majesty until the terms and conditions upon which Rupert's Land shall be admitted into the said Dominion of Canada shall have been approved of by Her Majesty, and embodied in an Address to Her Majesty from the Houses of Parliament of Canada, in pursuance of the 146th Section of "The British North America Act, 1867," and that upon the acceptance by Her Majesty of such surrender, all rights of Government and proprietary rights, and all other privileges, liberties, franchises, powers and authorities whatsoever, granted or purported to be granted by the said Letters Patent to the said Governor and

nothing in the said Act contained shall prevent the said Governor and Company from continuing to carry on in Rupert's Land or elsewhere trade and commerce. And whereas Her said Majesty Queen Victoria and the said Governor and Company have agreed to terms and conditions upon which the said Governor and Company shall surrender to Her said Majesty, pursuant to the provisions in that behalf in the "Rupert's Land Act, 1868," contained, all the rights of Government and other rights, privileges, liberties, franchises, powers and authorities, and all the lands and territories (except and subject as in the said terms and conditions expressed or mentioned) granted or purported to be granted by the said Letters Patent, and also all similar rights which have been exercised or assumed by the said Governor and Company in any parts of British North America not forming part of Rupert's Land, or of Canada, or of British Columbia, in order and to the intent that, after such surrender has been effected and accepted under the provisions of the last-mentioned Act, the said Rupert's Land may be admitted into the Union of the Dominion of Canada, pursuant to the hereinbefore mentioned Acts or one of them. And whereas the said terms and conditions on which it has been agreed that the said surrender is to be made by the said Governor and Company (who are in the following articles designated as the Company) to Her said Majesty are as follows (that is to say): —

1. The Canadian Government shall pay to the Company the sum of 300,000*l.* sterling when Rupert's Land is transferred to the Dominion of Canada.

2. The Company to retain all the posts or stations now actually possessed and occupied by them or their officers or agents whether in Rupert's Land or any other part of British North America, and may within twelve months after the acceptance of the said surrender select a block of land adjoining each of their posts or stations, within any part of British North America, not comprised in Canada and British Columbia in conformity, except as regards the Red River Territory, with a list made out by the Company and communicated to the Canadian Ministers, being the list in the annexed schedule. The actual survey is to be proceeded with, with all convenient speed.

3. The size of each block is not to exceed in the Red River Territory the amount to be agreed upon between the Company and the Governor of Canada in Council.

4. So far as the configuration of the country admits, the blocks shall front the river or road by which means of access are provided, and shall be approximately in the shape of parallelograms, and of which the frontage shall not be more than half the depth.

5. The Company may, at any time within fifty years after such acceptance of the said surrender, claim in any township or district within the fertile belt in which land is set out for settlements, grants of land not exceeding one-twentieth part of the land so set out; the blocks so granted to be determined by lot, and the Company to pay a ratable share of the survey expenses, not exceeding 8 cents Canadian an acre. The Company may defer the exercise of their right of claiming their proportion of each township or district for not more than ten years after it is set out, but their claim must be limited to any allotment from the lands remaining unsold at the time they declare their intention to make it.

6. For the purpose of the last article the fertile belt is to be bounded as follows:—On the south by the United States' boundary; on the west by the Rocky Mountains; on the north by the Northern Branch of the Saskatchewan River; on the east by Lake Winnipeg, the Lake of the Woods and the waters connecting them.

7. If any township shall be formed abutting on the north bank of the branch of the Saskatchewan River, the Company may take their one-twentieth of any such township, which, for the purpose of this article, shall not extend more than five miles inland from the river, giving to the Canadian Dominion an equal quantity of the portion of land coming to them of townships established on the southern bank of the said river.

8. In laying out any public roads, canals or other public works, through any block of land reserved to the Company, the Canadian Government may take without compensation such land as is necessary for the purpose, not exceeding one-twenty-fifth of the total acreage of the block; but if the Canadian Government require any land which is actually under cultivation, which has been built upon, or which is necessary for giving the Company's servants access to any river or lake, or as a frontage to any river or lake, the said Government shall pay to the Company the fair value of the same, and shall make compensation for any injury done to the Company or their servants.

9. It is understood that the whole of the land to be appropriated within the meaning of the last preceding clause, shall be appropriated for public purposes.

10. All titles to land up to the eighth day of March, one thousand eighth hundred and sixty-nine, conferred by the Company, are to be confirmed.

11. The Company is to be at liberty to carry on its trade without hindrance in its corporate capacity; and no exceptional tax is to be placed on the Company's land, trade or servants, nor any import duty on goods introduced by the said Company previously to such acceptance of the said surrender.

12. Canada is to take over the materials of the electric telegraph at cost price; such price including transport, but not including interest for money, and subject to a deduction for ascertained deterioration.

13. The Company's claim to land under an agreement of Messrs. Vankoughnet and Hopkins is to be withdrawn.

14. Any claims of Indians to compensation for lands required for purposes of settlement shall be disposed of by the Canadian Government in communication with the Imperial Government; and the Company shall be relieved of all responsibility in respect of them.

And whereas the surrender hereinafter contained is intended to be made in pursuance of the agreement, and upon the terms and conditions hereinbefore stated.

Now know ye, and these presents witness, that, in pursuance of the powers and provisions of the "Rupert's Land Act, 1868," and on the terms and conditions aforesaid, and also on condition of this surrender being accepted pursuant to the provisions of that Act, the said Governor and Company do hereby surrender to the Queen's Most Gracious Majesty, all the rights of Government, and other rights, privileges, liberties, franchises, powers and authorities, granted or purported to be granted to the said Governor and Company by the said recited Letters Patent of His late Majesty King Charles the Second; and also all similar rights which may have been exercised or assumed by the said Governor and Company in any parts of British North America, not forming part of Rupert's Land or of Canada, or of British Columbia, and all the lands and territories within Rupert's Land (except and subject as in the said terms and conditions mentioned) granted or purported to be granted to the said Governor and Company by the said Letters Patent. In witness whereof, the Governor and Company of Adventurers of England trading into Hudson's Bay, have hereunto caused their Common Seal to be affixed, the nineteenth day of November, One thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine.

"XIII. And whereas in several Acts, passed in the eleventh and twelfth Years of William the Third, the eight of George the First, and second and twelfth of George the Second, Provision has been made to prevent Seamen and Mariners in the Merchant Service being wilfully left beyond Sea, and to secure and provide for their Return home to such Part of his Majesty's Dominions whereto they belong: And whereas, for want of such Provisions being extended to Seamen and Fishermen going out as Passengers to Newfoundland, and hired and employed in the Fisheries carried on there, great Numbers of them remain in that Country at the End of every Fishing

XIV. And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That no Hirer or Employer of any such Seaman or Fisherman shall pay or advance, or cause to be paid or advanced, to such Seaman or Fisherman, in Money, Liquor, and Goods, or either of them, during the Time he shall be in his Service, more than one Half of the Wages which shall at any Time be due to him; but such Hirer or Employer shall, and is hereby required and directed, immediately at or upon the Expiration of every such Man's covenanted Time of Service, to pay either in Money, or in good Bills of Exchange, payable either in Great Britain or Ireland, or in the Country to which such Seaman or Fisherman belongs, the full Balance of his Wages, except the money herein before directed to be retained for his Passage home; and it shall not be lawful for any such Hirer or Employer to turn away or discharge any such Seaman or Fisherman, except for wilful Neglect of Duty, or other sufficient Cause, before the Expiration of his covenanted Time of Service; and in case the Hirer or Employer of any such Seaman or Fisherman shall refuse or neglect to comply with any of the Terms herein before mentioned, or shall otherwise offend against this Act, every such Person so offending shall forfeit and pay, for every such Offence, besides the Balance that shall be due to such

XVI. And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That all the Fish and Oil which shall be taken and made by the Person or Persons who shall hire or employ such Seaman or Fisherman, shall be subject and liable, in the first place, to the Payment of the Wages of every such Seaman or Fisherman.

XVII. And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That in case any such Seaman or Fisherman shall at any Time wilfully absent himself from his Duty or Employ, without the Leave and Consent of his Hirer or Employer, or shall wilfully neglect or refuse to work according to the true Intent and Meaning of such Contract or Agreement, he shall, for every Day he shall so absent himself, or neglect or refuse to work as aforesaid, forfeit two Days Pay to such Hirer or Employer; and if any such Seaman or Fisherman shall wilfully absent himself from his said Duty or Employ for the Space of five Days, without such Leave as aforesaid, he shall be deemed a Deserter, and shall forfeit to such Hirer or Employer all such Wages as shall at the Time of such Desertion be due to him (except so much as is herein before directed to be reserved and retained for the Purpose of paying his Passage home); and it shall and may be lawful to and for the Governor of Newfoundland, or his Surrogates, or the Commissary of the Vice Admiralty Court for the Time being, or for any Justice of the Peace in Newfoundland, to issue his or their Warrant or Warrants to apprehend every such Deserter, and on the Oath of one or more credible Witness or Witnesses to commit him to Prison, there to remain until the next Court of Session which shall be holden in pursuance of the Commission of the said Governor for the Time being; and, if found guilty of the said Offence at such Session, it shall and may be lawful to and for the said Court of Session to order such Deserter to be publicly whipped as a Vagrant, and afterwards to be put on Board a Passage Ship, in order to his being conveyed back to the Country whereto he belongs.

Seaman or Fisherman, against this Act, shall and may be inquired into, heard, and determined, and the Penalties and Forfeitures thereby incurred shall and may be recovered in the Court of Session herein before mentioned, or in the Court of Vice Admiralty having Jurisdiction in the said Island of Newfoundland.

"XIX. And whereas by an Act of Parliament, passed in the sixth Year of the Reign of her late Majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An Act for the Encouragement of the Trade to America, it is, amongst other Things, enacted, That no Mariner or other Person who shall serve on Board, or be retained to serve on Board, any Privateer, or Trading Ship or Vessel, that shall be employed in any Part of America, nor any Mariner or other Person being on Shore in any Part thereof, shall be liable to be impressed or taken away by any Officer or Officers of or belonging to any of her Majesty's Ships of War, empowered by the Lord High Admiral, or any other Person whatsoever, unless such Mariner shall have before deserted from such Ship of War: And whereas the said Privilege or Exemption so given by the said Act to Mariners serving on Board Ships or Vessels employed in any of the Seas or Ports of the Continent of America, or residing on Shore there, is prejudicial to the Fisheries carried on by his Majesty's Subjects of Great Britain and

"XX. And whereas the immoderate Use of Rum and other Spirits, imported into Newfoundland from his Majesty's Colonies and Plantations in America, has been found to be highly detrimental to the Fisheries carried on there, and it is therefore proper to endeavour to diminish the Consumption thereof;" be it enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of January, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six, there shall be paid in to his Majesty, his Heirs and Successors, for every Gallon of Rum, or other Spirits, which shall be brought or imported into the Island of Newfoundland from any British Colony or Plantation on the Continent of America, the Sum of one Shilling Sterling Money of Great Britain; and the same shall be collected, recovered and paid, to the Amount of the Value of; which such nominal Sum bears in Great Britain, and may be received and taken

"XXI. And whereas the Bounties given by an Act of Parliament, made in the eleventh Year of the Reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An Act for the better Support and Establishment of the Greenland and Whale Fisheries, have been found of great Advantage to the Navigation, Trade, and Manufactures of this Kingdom; and it is just and expedient that the like Bounties which are granted by that Act to Ships fitted out from Great Britain, or any of his Majesty's Dominions in America, for those fisheries, should in like Manner be granted to Ships fitted out for that Purpose from

"XII. And whereas it is essential to the Naval Strength of Great Britain, that the Desertion of Seamen and Fishermen employed in the Fishery of Newfoundland, and the Parts adjacent, should be prevented: And whereas, by reason of their superior Skill as Seamen and Fishermen, and as Artificers of the Implements and Utensils necessary to the carrying on of such Fisheries, they are, by great Temptations, exposed to be seduced into the Service and Employ of the Subjects of foreign States: And whereas the Regulations and Provisions made in and by an Act, passed in the fifteenth Year of his present Majesty's Reign, herein before mentioned, are not sufficient to prevent the Desertion of such Seamen and Fishermen to the Service of the Subjects of foreign States;" be it therefore enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That if any Seaman or Fisherman, hired or employed in the carrying on of the said Fishery, shall desert from the said Island of Newfoundland, or from the said Fishery, with Intent to enter into the Service of any foreign State, or of any of the Subjects of any foreign State, or shall have in any wise agreed to absent himself, or

and to forfeit Treble

XV. And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That if any Person or Persons, residing or carrying on Fishery in the said Island of Newfoundland, shall there sell, barter, or exchange, or cause to be sold, bartered, or exchanged, or shall endeavour to sell, barter, or exchange, or shall be aiding or assisting in selling, bartering, or exchanging, or causing to be sold, bartered, or exchanged, any such Ship, Vessel, Boat, or any Tackle, Apparel, or Furniture, used, or which may be used, for the Purpose of navigating any Ship, Vessel, or Boat; or any Scans, Nets, or other Implements or Utensils, used, or which may be used, in catching or curing Fish; or any Kind of Bait whatsoever, used, or which may be used, in catching Fish; or any Fish, Oil, Blubber, Seal Skins, Fuel, Wood, or Timber, to any Person or Persons, being the Subjects of any foreign State, it shall and may be lawful to and for the Governor of Newfoundland, or his Surrogates, or for any Justice of the Peace in Newfoundland, to issue his or their Warrant or Warrants to apprehend every such Offender, and, on the Oath of one or more credible Witness or Witnesses, to commit him to Prison, there to remain until the next Court of Session which shall be holden in pursuance of the Commission of the said Governor for the Time being; and all and every such Person or Person, if found guilty of the said Offence at such Session, shall forfeit and pay Treble Articles the Value of the Articles so sold, or caused to be sold, or attempted to be sold, as

"XVI. And whereas it is highly injurious to the Trade and Manufactures of his Majesty's Dominions in Europe, that Persons residing or carrying on Fishery in the Island of Newfoundland, or Parts adjacent, or on the Banks of the said Island of Newfoundland, should be supplied with any Goods or Commodities whatsoever by the Subjects of any foreign State;" be it therefore enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That no Person or Persons, residing or carrying on Fishery in the Island of Newfoundland, or Parts adjacent, or on the Banks of the said Island of Newfoundland, shall there purchase, or take in Exchange, or by way of Barter, or cause to be purchased or taken in Exchange, or by way of Barter, or be aiding or assisting in the purchasing, bartering for, or taking in Exchange, any Goods or Commodities whatsoever, from any Person or Persons being a Subject or Subjects of any foreign State; and that every Person or Persons residing or carrying on Fishery in the said Island of Newfoundland, or Parts

XVIII. And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That the Sum for which the said Governor shall agree with the Master, or other Person having or taking the Charge or Command of any Ship or Vessel, for the Passage of any Person or Persons from the said Island, to the Place or Places to which he or they belonged, shall in no Case exceed the Sum of forty Shillings for each Person, and shall be paid to the Master of such Ship or Vessel out of the Monies which shall arise from Forfeitures incurred for any Offence committed against this Act, or the Acts herein before recited, upon such Master producing to the, said Court of Session, a Certificate, under the Hand and Seal of such Governor of the Numbers and Names of the Persons respectively taken on board by his Direction, and of the Times they were taken on board respectively, and the several Sums agreed to be paid as of aforesaid; which Sums the Court of Session are hereby required to cause to be paid to such Master, if sufficient Funds for that Purpose shall remain in the Hands of the said Court.

The definitive Treaty of Peace and Friendship between his Britannick Majesty, the Most Christian King, and the King of Spain. Concluded at Paris the 10th day of February, 1763. To which the King of Portugal acceded on the same day. (Printed from the Copy.)

II. The treaties of Westphalia of 1648; those of Madrid between the Crowns of Great Britain and Spain of 1667, and 1670; the treaties of peace of Nimeguen of 1678, and 1679; of Ryswick of 1697; those of peace and of commerce of Utrecht of 1713; that of Baden of 1714; the treaty of the triple alliance of the Hague of 1717; that of the quadruple alliance of London of 1718; the treaty of peace of Vienna of 1738; the definitive treaty of Aix la Chapelle of 1748; and that of Madrid, between the Crowns of Great Britain and Spain of 1750: as well as the treaties between the Crowns of Spain and Portugal of the 13th of February, 1668; of the 6th of February, 1715; and of the 12th of February, 1761; and that of the 11th of April, 1713, between France and Portugal with the guaranties of Great Britain, serve as a basis and foundation to the peace, and to the present treaty: and for this purpose they are all renewed and confirmed in the best form, as well as all the treaties in general, which subsisted between the high contracting parties before the war, as if they were inserted here word for word, so that they are to be exactly observed, for the future, in their whole tenor, and religiously executed on all sides, in all their points, which, shall not be derogated from by the present treaty, notwithstanding all that may have been stipulated to the contrary by any of the high contracting parties: and all the said parties declare, that they will not suffer any privilege, favour, or indulgence to subsist, contrary to the treaties above confirmed, except what shall have been agreed and stipulated by the present treaty.

IV. His Most Christian Majesty renounces all pretensions which he has heretofore formed or might have formed to Nova Scotia or Acadia in all its parts, and guaranties the whole of it, and with all its dependencies, to the King of Great Britain: Moreover, his Most Christian Majesty cedes and guaranties to his said Britannick Majesty, in full right, Canada, with all its dependencies, as well as the island of Cape Breton, and all the other islands and coasts in the gulph and river of St. Lawrence, and in general, every thing that depends on the said countries, lands, islands, and coasts, with the sovereignty, property, possession, and all rights acquired by treaty, or otherwise, which the Most Christian King and the Crown of France have had till now over the said countries, lands, islands, places, coasts, and their inhabitants, so that the Most Christian King cedes and makes over the whole to the said King, and to the Crown of Great Britain, and that in the most ample manner and form, without restriction, and without any liberty to depart from the said cession and guaranty under any pretence, or to disturb Great Britain in the possessions above mentioned. His Britannick Majesty, on his side, agrees to grant the liberty of the Catholick religion to the inhabitants of Canada: he will, in consequence, give the most precise and most effectual orders, that his new Roman Catholic subjects may profess the worship of their religion according to the rites of the Roman church, as far as the laws of Great Britain permit. His Britannick Majesty farther agrees, that the French inhabitants, or others who had been subjects of the Most Christian King in Canada, may retire with all safety and freedom wherever they shall think proper, and may sell their estates, provided it be to the subjects of his Britannick Majesty, and bring away their effects as well as their persons, without being restrained in their emigration, under any pretence, whatsoever, except that of debts or of criminal prosecutions: The term limited for this emigration shall be fixed to the space of eighteen months, to be computed from the day of the exchange of the ratification of the present treaty.

V. The subjects of France shall have the liberty of fishing and drying on a part of the coasts of the island of Newfoundland, and such as it is specified in the XIIIth article of the treaty of Utrecht; which article is renewed and confirmed by the present treaty, (except what relates to the island of Cape Breton, as well as to the other islands and coasts in the mouth and in the gulph of St. Lawrence:) And his Britannick Majesty consents to leave to the subjects of the Most Christian King the liberty of fishing in the gulph of St. Lawrence, on condition that the subjects of France do not exercise the said fishery but at the distance of three leagues from all the coasts belonging to Great Britain, as well those on the continent as those of the islands situated in the said gulph of St. Lawrence. And as to what relates to the fishery on the coasts of the island of Cape Breton, out of the said gulph, the subjects of the Most Christian King shall not be permitted to exercise the said fishery but at the distance of fifteen leagues from the coasts of Cape Breton; and the fishery on the coasts of Nova Scotia or Acadia, and every where else out of the said gulph, shall remain on the foot of former treaties.

VI. The King of Great Britain cedes the islands of St. Pierre and Macquelon, in full right, to his Most Christian Majesty, to serve as a shelter to the French fishermen; and his said Most Christian Majesty engages not to fortify the said islands; to erect no buildings upon them but merely for the conveniency of the fishery; and to keep upon them a guard of fifty men only for the police.

p. 336

VII. In order to re-establish peace on solid and durable foundations, and to remove for every all subject of dispute with regard to the limits of the British and French territories on the continent of America; it is agreed, that, for the future, the confines between the dominions of his Britannick Majesty and those of his Most Christian Majesty, in that part of the world, shall be fixed irrevocably by a line drawn along the middle of the River Mississippi, from its source to the river Iberville, and from thence, by a line drawn along the middle of this river, and the lakes Maurepas and Pontchartrain to the sea; and for this purpose, the Most Christian King cedes in full right, and guaranties to his Britannick Majesty the river and port of the Mobile, and every thing which he possesses, or ought to possess, on the left side of the river Mississippi, except the town of New Orleans and the island in which it is situated, which shall remain to France, provided that the navigation of the river Mississippi shall be equally free, as well to the subjects of Great Britain as to those of France, in its whole breadth the said island of New Orleans and the right bank of that river, as well as the passage both in and out of its mouth: It is farther stipulated, that the vessels belonging to the subjects of either nation shall not be stopped, visited, or subjected to the payment of any duty whatsoever. The stipulations inserted in the IVth article, in favour of the inhabitants of Canada shall also take place with regard to the inhabitants of the countries ceded by this article.

VIII. And for this purpose the term of eighteen months is granted to the subjects of His Britannic Majesty as from the day of the exchange of ratifications of the present Treaty. But as the liberty granted to the subjects of His Britannic Majesty to convey their persons and their effects on vessels of their nation may be subject to abuses unless the percaution were taken of preventing them, it has been expressly agreed between His Britannic Majesty and His Most Christian Majesty, that the number of English vessels which shall have liberty to go to the said Islands and places restored to France shall be limited, as well as the number of tons of each, that they will go in ballast, will depart within a fixed time and will make but one voyage; all the effects belonging to the English must be shipped at the same time. It has furthermore been agreed that His Most Christian Majesty will cause the necessary passports to be given for the said vessels; that for greater safety he will be at liberty to place two French agents or guards on each of the said vessels which shall be inspected in the moorings and ports of the said islands and places restored to France; and that the goods which may be found thereon will be confiscated.

XX. In consequence of the restitution stipulated in the preceding article, his Catholick Majesty cedes and guaranties, in full right, to his Britannick Majesty, Florida, with Fort St. Augustin, and the Bay of Pensacola, as well as all that Spain possesses on the continent of North America, to the East or to the South East of the river Mississippi. And in general, every thing that depends on the said countries and lands, with the sovereignty, property, possession, and all rights, acquired by treaties or otherwise, which the Catholick King and the Crown of Spain have had till now over the said countries, lands, places, and their inhabitants; so that the Catholick King cedes and makes over the whole to the said King and to the Crown of Great Britain, and that in the most ample manner and form. His Britannick Majesty agrees, on his side, to grant to the inhabitants of the countries above ceded, the liberty of the Catholick orders that his new Roman Catholic subjects may profess the worship of their religion according to the rites of the Romish church, as far as the laws of Great Britain permit. His Britannick Majesty farther agrees, that the Spanish inhabitants, or others who had been subjects of the Catholick King in the said countries, may retire, with all safety and freedom, wherever they think proper; and may sell their estates, provided it be to his Britannick Majesty's subjects, and bring away their effects, as well as their persons, without being restrained in their emigration, under any pretence whatsoever, except that of debts, or of criminal prosecutions: the term limited for this emigration being fixed to the space of eighteen months, to be computed from the day of the exchange of the ratifications of the present treaty. It is moreover stipulated, that his Catholick Majesty shall have power to cause all the effects that may belong to him, to be brought away, whether it be artillery or other things.

Governor General the Right Hon. Lord Stanley of Preston, G.C.B., &c., &c.

MY LORD,—I have the honour to transmit to your lordship herewith a copy of a despatch from the governor of Newfoundland respecting the uncertainty of the boundary between Canada and the territory belonging to Newfoundland on the Labrador coast.

This boundary was fixed by the imperial act 6, Geo. 4, cap. 59, sec. 9, but the boundary inland from the coast line is not clearly defined.

This would appear to be a question which might very properly be discussed between the governments of the Dominion and Newfoundland when the delegates from the latter colony visit Canada in connection with the question of union. I have written to the governor of Newfoundland in this sense, and I request that you will communicate this proposal to your ministers.

The Right Hon. Lord Knutsford, Colonial Office, London.

MY LORD,—I have the honour to forward a letter from Mr. Justice Pinsent on the subject of the boundary between this colony and the dominion of Canada. The matter does not appear to be of pressing importance, but having regard to the population now settled along that coast, it might be well that the extent of jurisdiction should be more clearly defined.

I have, &c.,

SIR,—I have the honour to bring under your excellency's notice a matter of no little importance touching the territorial limits of Labrador as a dependency of this colony.

Some years ago I submitted the point to Governor Sir John Glover, but either his illness or his removal about that time prevented his giving it much consideration.

The matter is one not without importance in its general bearing upon the rights of government, but it comes to be of practical and essential significance when questions of either civil or criminal jurisdiction arise, and they may at any time arise, particularly on the northern circuit of the supreme court where I so frequently preside.

The case in which the difficulty first became prominent was upon the trial in St. John's of an Eskimo Indian for the murder of his wife on the coast of Labrador.

The question of the jurisdiction of the supreme court was then raised on behalf of the accused, and not without much force, but the locality of the offence was so very near the coast that the court overruled the objection.

The extent of the jurisdiction of the government of Newfoundland in Labrador is thus defined by letters patent of the 28th March, 1876:—

"All the coast of Labrador, from the entrance of the Hudson's straits (cape Chidley) to a line to be drawn due north and south from Anse Sablon, on the said coast, to the 52nd degree of north latitude, and all the islands adjacent to that part of the said coast of Labrador."

For the purpose of illustrating the matter clearly, I enclose portion of a map of the dominion of Canada, published by Canadian official authority, in which all that part of the peninsula of Labrador coloured white is, as it were, allowed to belong to this government, but if that area is compared with the description taken from the royal letters patents constituting the office of governor and commander-in-chief of the island of Newfoundland and its dependencies, it will be seen that the Labrador represents a vast deal more than would be ordinarily intended by the term "coast," and, moreover, extends inland and west of the line drawn due north and south from Anse Sablon eight to nine degrees.

This Canadian topography is, I think, quite correct so far as the limits of the Dominion territory are concerned, and the remainder of the coast of Labrador would thus quite naturally belong to this government, but they are not so described and defined in the letters patent or commission of the governor of this colony, and indeed the description falls very short of covering the whole ground, and when questions of jurisdiction arise the court has to determine in every case whether the particular locality is upon the coast of Labrador or not.

The fact is, there are some settlements of importance far inland, e.g., notably in Hamilton inlet, over 150 miles from the sea coast.

The geographical reasons for the division given in the Canadian map are clear enough, as the north-western portion of Labrador, or that which drains into Hudson's bay and Hudson's straits, now forms the north-east territory of the dominion of Canada, and the southern portion, draining into the gulf of St. Lawrence, is incorporated with the province of Quebec.

At the same time the Canadian authorities are not certain or precise as to their boundary lines, and they are marked, as your excellency will perceive, "supposed boundary," and possibly the course of the North-West river, so far as it runs from the 52nd parallel, would, regarded naturally, be the more consistent and definite dividing line.

The publication by Canadian official authority of the map in question or some such other may be useful as a definition of the rights of the dominion of Canada, but it would not have the effect of conveying to Newfoundland British territory not included in its own, and which might, from not being by imperial authority embraced in either, be a sort of "no man's land," over which neither of the colonies could exercise government nor their courts jurisdiction.

I have therefore to submit to your excellency and to her majesty's government the desirability of so defining the territorial boundaries of that part of Labrador intended to be attached to Newfoundland as a dependency of its government, that no doubt may be left as to the jurisdiction of its courts and the authority of its officers.

I have, etc.,

ROBERT J. PINSENT.

SIR T. O'BRIEN TO LORD KNUTSFORD.

Government House,
St. John's, Nfld., 27th February, 1889.

MY LORD,—I have the honour to forward herewith copy of a letter from Mr. Justice Pinsent, relative to the boundaries of this colony and of Canada in Labrador. The frontier laid down by the Dominion government, which line is quite acceptable to Newfoundland, does not correspond, as your lordship will observe, with that laid down in my instructions, thus leaving a large tract between the two lines which is under no one; hence a question of jurisdiction might at any moment arise, which might lead to a mis-carriage of justice or other complications.

Under these circumstances, I would suggest that the instructions to the governor of this colony be so modified as to make the boundaries conterminous with those of the Canadian dominion.

SIR,—Referring to my conversation with your excellency touching the Labrador boundary line, when you informed me flat no change had been made in the commission or royal instructions, I have the honour again to suggest the desirability of a more definite description of that boundary.

The reasons are fully set out in my letter of May last to Governor Blake.

I would only add that no question or dispute arises in this matter between the dominion of Canada and Newfoundland.

The former has defined its line in official maps, and with that there is no fault to be found on the part of Newfoundland. The difficulty lies in the imperfect and insufficient description of that part of Labrador annexed to this colony, causing an apparent hiatus between Newfoundland Labrador and Canadian Labrador.

There appears to be no necessity for anything more than a definition by the imperial government of the jurisdiction of Newfoundland, made so as to include the territory not claimed by the Dominion and corresponding with the limits described in the Canadian maps.

MEMORANDUM BY SIR J. A. MACDONALD,

[10 May,
1889.]re DESPATCH 9TH APRIL, 1889, RECOMMENDING REFERENCE THEREOF TO THE MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR.

Privy Council, Canada, 10th May, 1889.

The undersigned, to whom was referred the despatch from the secretary of state for the colonies on the subject of the boundary between Canada and Newfoundland, begs leave to report:

That, as stated in the said despatch, the boundaries of the two colonies on the Labrador coast are defined by the imperial act, 6 George IV, cap. 59, section 9. By that clause it is provided as follows:—

"That so much of the said coast as lies to the westward of a line to be drawn due north and south from the bay or harbour of Anse Sablon, inclusive, so far as the fifty-second degree of north latitude with the island of Anticosti, and all other islands adjacent to such part as last aforesaid of the coast of Labrador, shall be and the same are hereby re-annexed to and made a part of the said province of Lower Canada, and shall henceforward be subject to the laws of the said province, and to none other."

If any maps have been issued in Canada showing other boundaries than these they are inaccurate. The undersigned therefore recommends that this despatch be referred to the minister of the interior, with instructions to make full enquiries as to the issue of the said maps and to report as to the best means of correcting any such errors.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN A. MACDONALD.

MEMORANDUM—J. JOHNSTON TO A. M. BURGESS.[10 June, 1889.]

Secretary's Branch, Ottawa, 10th June, 1889.

Dear Mr. Burgess,—With reference to the memorandum of Sir John Macdonald hereunder (10th May, 1889) and the despatch of the secretary of state for the colonies (9th April, 1889), I find the jurisdiction of Newfoundland in Labrador more fully defined in the "Imperial Letters Patent" (28th March, 1876) making permanent provision for the office of governor of Newfoundland and its dependencies, than it is in sec. 9 of chapter 59 of the Act 6, George IV, 1825, which bears more particularly on the eastern boundary of Lower Canada.

In these "Letter Patent" the boundary is described as follows:

"All the coast of Labrador from the entrance of Hudson's strait to a line to be drawn due north and south from Anse Sablon on the said coast to the 52nd degree of north latitude, and all the islands adjacent to that part of the said coast of Labrador."

It will be observed that Newfoundland's jurisdiction is clearly enough defined as being on the coast between Anse Sablon bay (in the straits of Belle isle) and the entrance to Hudson's strait; but no description whatever is given of the boundary on the mainland, except between Anse Sablon and the 52nd parallel of latitude.

On the sketch map which I have prepared to accompany this memorandum, taken from the maps of British North America, by Arrowsmith, of London, and W. & A. K. Johnston, of Edinburgh, it will be seen that the custom has been to mark the boundary of Labrador, southerly, from cape Chudleigh (at the ocean entrance to Hudson's strait, along the height of land) to the undefined northern boundary of Lower Canada (now Quebec), thence easterly and south along the said northern boundary of Lower Canada to Anse Sablon. It does not appear that this line was intended by the geographers to represent the boundary of the territory in Labrador, under the jurisdiction of Newfoundland, but most probably the dividing line between Labrador and what was supposed to be Hudson's Bay Company's territory. The name "Labrador" or "Peninsula of Labrador," in its full geographical application, has been generally understood to cover the whole region between the Atlantic ocean and the east coast of Hudson's bay, as

On the maps of the Dominion, published from time to time by this department, the same system of drawing the Labrador line has been followed as on the British maps, but we have invariably taken the precaution to show it in a dotted line, with the words supposed or undefined applied to it.

It does not appear that it was contemplated by the imperial government that the colony of Newfoundland should possess any such large extent of territory on the mainland as is represented by the yellow tint on sketch map (herewith), the Labrador of modern maps. My impression is, that nothing more was intended than a comparatively narrow strip along the coast (coloured pink), which would include the fishing stations, missions, Hudson's Bay Company's posts, etc., and such a strip, probably, is all that is included in imperial instructions to the governor of Newfoundland, as indicated in his despatch to the colonial secretary, 27th February, 1889. He writes: "The frontier laid down by the Dominion government * * * does not correspond * * * with that laid down in my instructions, thus leaving a large tract between the two lines which is under no one."

The so-called neutral tract referred to here, I have no doubt, is that coloured yellow on the sketch map, and which is, beyond question, a part of the "territorial transfer" made to Canada by the imperial government in 1880.

Mr. Justice Pinsent, in his letter to the governor of Newfoundland of the 15th February, 1889, says: "The former (Canada) has defined its line in official maps. * * * The difficulty lies in the imperfect and insufficient description of that part of Labrador annexed to this colony."

It is hardly necessary to remark that Canada has not defined any line between the two colonies, either on official maps or otherwise, and, so far as I am aware, the question is now placed before the Dominion government by the colonial secretary for the first time.

At present the best maps of the interior of Labrador (as might be expected) are very inaccurate and misleading in their character, being largely made up from the crude sketches of Hudson's Bay Company's officers, supplemented by Indian reports. A map is now, however, being prepared in this department, under my own supervision, which will be ready for the printer in a few weeks, and which will contain the latest and most reliable information in relation to the geography of the Labrador region.

Respectfully submitted,

J. JOHNSTON, Geographer.

CERTIFIED COPY OF A REPORT[27 Nov., 1889.]

OF A COMMITTEE OF THE HONOURABLE THE PRIVY COUNCIL, APPROVED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL ON THE 27TH NOVEMBER, 1889.

The committee of the privy council have had under consideration a despatch, dated 9th April, 1889, from the right honourable the secretary of state for the colonies, transmitting a copy of a communication from the governor of Newfoundland in regard to the boundary line between that colony and Canada.

The right honourable the prime minister, to whom the despatch was referred, recommended that the despatch should be referred to the minister of the interior, with instructions to make full enquiries into the matter.

The committee have had their attention called by a subsequent despatch, dated 15th August, 1889, to the question of the rectification of the boundaries of Canada and Newfoundland on the Labrador coast.

The sub-committee, to whom the question was referred, submit a memorandum made by the geographer of the department of the interior, Mr. John Johnston, which lucidly and comprehensively states the position of affairs in regard to the boundary between the dominion of Canada and the dependencies of the colony of Newfoundland in Labrador.

The sub-committee state that it will be observed from Mr. Johnston's memorandum that the line referred to by Mr. Justice Pinsent, in his letter to the governor of Newfoundland of the 15th February last, was never intended to show the boundary of that portion of Labrador within the jurisdiction of the colony of Newfoundland, but merely to indicate in a general way what was presumed to be the boundary of the whole territory known as Labrador. The limits of the jurisdiction of Newfoundland on the Labrador coast are clearly defined by the imperial act 6, Geo. IV, cap. 59, section 9, and the imperial letters patent of the 28th March, 1876, making permanent provision for the office of governor of Newfoundland and its dependencies.

The sub-committee are of opinion that it is not likely any complication will arise as between Canada and Newfoundland which would render necessary the delimitation of this boundary by actual survey, but upon this question they suggest that it might be well to obtain the views of the government of Newfoundland and any suggestions which that government may have to make in that relation.

The committee concur in the foregoing report, and they recommend that your excellency be moved to forward a copy hereof to the right honourable the secretary of state for the colonies.

All which is respectfully submitted for your excellency's approval.

Lord Stanley of Preston.

MY LORD,—With reference to your excellency's despatch of the 16th. of December, I have the honour to transmit to you, for communication to your excellency's government, copies of a correspondence between this department and Mr. R. J. Pinsent, assistant justice, Newfoundland, respecting the boundaries between Canada and Newfoundland on the Labrador coast.

On this question, I need hardly state that her majesty's government will be ready to give effect to any arrangement to which the two governments can mutually agree.

SIR,—With reference to the question of the adjustment of the boundaries between Canada and Newfoundland, on the Labrador coast, a matter to which you have called the attention of the governor of Newfoundland on more than one occasion, and to which you alluded in a recent interview with the secretary of state, I am directed by Lord Knutsford to transmit to you for any observations which you may wish to offer thereupon, a copy of a despatch from the governor general of Canada with its enclosures on the subject.

I am also to enclose for your perusal an order in council dated the 31st July, 1880, annexing to the dominion of Canada all British territories and possessions in North America not already included in the Dominion, with the exception of the colony of Newfoundland and its dependencies.

SIR,—I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 9th inst., with the enclosures.

I would take leave to observe upon them that it appears to me the point of difficulty remains untouched or rather unremoved by the report of the committee of the privy council of Canada and of the geographer of the department of the interior.

This, I submit, is made manifest by the fact that the delineation of the western boundary line of the strip of coast coloured pink on the map of Labrador is the merely fanciful suggestion of the geographer and finds no sanction from authority.

It appears to me that the presumptions are all in favour of the entire yellow as well as pink part being the dependency of Newfoundland, and for the following reasons: the name Labrador covered, as is admitted, in its full geographical application, the whole region between the Atlantic ocean and the east coast of Hudson bay.

In 1763 so much of that territory as extends from the river St. John to Hudson strait was attached to Newfoundland.

In 1774 this was transferred to Quebec. In 1809 it was re-annexed to Newfoundland, under chapter 27, George III.

The act of Geo. 4, cap. 59, sec. 9 again made a change and reduced the extent of Labrador territory held by Newfoundland, giving to Quebec so much of it as "lies westward of a line to be drawn due north and south from the harbour. of Anse Sablon so far as the 52nd degree of north latitude."

It seems to me at this point to be clear that Quebec acquired by virtue of the statute only that part of Labrador which lies west of the point drawn from Anse Sablon to the 52nd parallel, which would be:—

(1) Either so much of the territory as lies south of a line drawn from that point to the river St. John or (2) so much, looking at certain historical and geographical facts, as lies south of the watershed marked on the map as the northern boundary of the province of Quebec.

Probably as a matter of legal construction of the language employed, the first of these positions would be favoured.

The effect of this is that Newfoundland is left by statute that which was not by the subsequent enactment taken away and given to Quebec, viz.: from that point on the river St. John where it meets the Quebec boundary north to Hudson strait.

If this last were intended to be a straight line it would be sufficiently definite, but would have the effect of leaving out an angular piece of the yellow tract from the jurisdiction of Newfoundland.

If the watershed on this boundary be again adopted it would correspond with that given in the sketch map as that generally recognised.

It would be a matter of little consequence which of these plans was adopted, that of parallels and straight line or of boundaries regulated by the watershed. The latter is that which, if not "officially defined by Canada," has been always accepted by it and represented in its maps by a dotted line marked "supposed boundary line."

It appears to be unquestionable that the statutory rights of Newfoundland are to be found in one or other of these positions, and the principal doubt or difficulty existing in the case has arisen from the terms of the commission and instructions to the governor of Newfoundland, which taken literally provide for a line that, drawn from Hudson strait to the 52nd parallel, would pass partly through the ocean, but which, if read to intend the line of coast, still leaves the question to the exercise of ingenuity similar to that expended by the geographer of the Dominion upon the "sketch map."

In my correspondence with the governors of Newfoundland I have pointed out the difficulties which are interposed in the exercise of the jurisdiction of the supreme court of the colony and the administration of justice generally, and I would in conclusion most respectfully suggest that these maybe overcome by a change of instructions, based, if necessary, upon a determination of the judicial committee of the privy council or of the law authorities of the crown upon the only point which seems to be left for determination, viz., whether the principle of straight lines or of watershed is in the interior to regulate the boundaries between the Labrador of Canada and that of Newfoundland.

I have, etc.,

ROBERT J. PINSENT.

P.S.—If the colonial office could conveniently furnish me with copies of the enclosures and sketch map now returned I should be glad to have them.

SIR,—I am directed by Lord Knutsford to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 11th inst., respecting the boundary between Canada and Newfoundland, on the Labrador coast.

Lord Knutsford desires me to observe that the effect of the acts 14 Geo. 3, cap. 83, and 43 Geo. 3, cap. 138, “was to give Canadian courts jurisdiction over the whole of the dominions of the crown in North America not forming part of any of the provinces.”

The act of 1809 only re-annexed to Newfoundland part of the coast of Labrador and the subsequent acts and instruments all speak of the coast only as belonging to Newfoundland.

What may be the exact extent inland of the coast appertaining to Newfoundland, may be a question, but the most liberal interpretation of the term “coast” could hardly in Lord Knutsford's opinion include all the part coloured yellow in Mr. Johnston's sketch. No adjustment of the boundary could well be made without the concurrence of the governments of Canada and Newfoundland, but if these two governments were to agree on a line to divide their respective jurisdictions, her majesty's government would be prepared to take any steps necessary to give effect to their decisions.

I am desired to enclose copies of the enclosures to my letter of the 9th inst., which you wish to retain, together with a copy of the sketch map which accompanied the governor general's despatch, no. 259, of the 16th ult.

Sir R. G. W. HERBERT, K.C.B.

SIR,—As I have been verbally informed at the colonial office that it would be satisfactory if (for the further exposition of the question before the despatches are forwarded to the governor general of Canada and the governor of Newfoundland) I would make any comment in writing which may occur to me as important, upon your letter of the 24th of January—

I now have the honour to again address you on the subject.

I would submit in the first place that while it is perfectly true that the effect of the acts 14 Geo. 3, cap. 83, and 43 Geo. 3, cap. 138, was to give Canadian courts jurisdiction over the whole of the dominions of the crown in North America not forming part of any of the other provinces, the question: What part of the territory of Labrador belonged to Newfoundland?—still remains.

The Act of 1809 annexed to Newfoundland all that part of Labrador which had been transferred from it to Quebec in 1774.

This was that which had by the royal proclamation of 1763 been vested in Newfoundland, viz.: "all the coast of Labrador from river St. John to Hudson's strait."

Now, it appears to me that the expression "all the coast," taken with the context and in view of the corresponding facts, is to be interpreted in a broader sense than its ordinary acceptance.

To restrict its sense in the manner suggested in the Canadian report would be to find that a large tract of British territory was omitted from the delimitations of all the provinces. The presumption, I think, should be the other way. Moreover, such a construction would leave the coastal jurisdiction utterly indefinite, whereas if the language is susceptible of a construction which would prevent this it ought to be given to it.

I respectfully submit, that "all the coast" in this instance means the territory of Labrador included within a western boundary extending from river St. John to Hudson's straits, and represented by a straight line drawn from one point to the other or preferably by the irregular line which formed the eastern boundary of the Hudson's bay (now Canadian) territory, and that when the last transfer to Quebec took place and the Newfoundland boundary

was made to commence at Anse Sablon, all that Quebec did not acquire remained to Newfoundland.

The Dominion report (in suggesting without apparent sanction of any kind the narrow strip indicated in pink) remarks that amongst other points this includes the "Hudson's Bay Company's posts;" but this is not so, for there is by way of example a post over 100 miles up Hamilton inlet, the ships bound to which pay duty to the Newfoundland government.

Again the language of the report "that (tract) coloured yellow on the sketch map and which is beyond question a part of the territorial transfer made to Canada by the imperial government in 1880" etc., is inaccurate.

The imperial transfer does not touch the question of the boundary of the possessions transferred and specially excepts "the colony of Newfoundland and its dependencies" leaving the rights of the Newfoundland government exactly where they were before.

Whatever the legal construction of all these parliamentary and executive acts may be, I am satisfied that there need be no serious difficulty in arriving by agreement with Canada at a delimitation of the now uncertain territory, for except to settle the question of jurisdiction I apprehend that territorially the matter is of little importance in regard to the barren tract colored yellow on the map, but to prevent any after question of jurisdiction upon the construction of the old statutes being raised in legal tribunals it would be most desirable that after an arrangement is made a short imperial statute should be passed to confirm it.

I have, etc.,

ROBERT J. PINSENT.

MY LORD,—I have the honour to inform your excellency that, in consequence of the representations of the judges of the supreme court of this colony as to the limits of their jurisdiction in the Labrador territory, I referred the matter to the right hon. the secretary of state for the colonies, with a request that the boundary between Canada and Newfoundland in that locality might be definitely decided upon.

He at the same time forwards to me a copy of your despatch, no. 259 of the 16th December, 1889, in which reference is made to a certain sketch map prepared for the purpose of an illustration of his arguments by Mr. Johnston, geographer.

DEAR MR. BURGESS,—I send you the only copy I have in my possession of the small map that was on the Labrador file, and I would like to have it returned to me when you are through with it.

(1) As you will no doubt recollect the strip of pink colour in parallelism with the Coast, was not intended by us for a proposed or suggested Boundary, but merely to convey an idea of the extent of Territory placed under the jurisdiction of Newfoundland by the Imperial Government, according to the Acts and the Governor's Commissions.

(2) It was a misconception marking the triangular Territory in Yellow Colour as a "part of the Imperial Transfer in 1880," as in point of fact, it was a part of the old Province of Quebec (See my Memo. to you on the Northern Boundary of Quebec dated 24th July/95), and it is very strange that this was not noticed by some of the officials in the Justice Department at the time.

Yours respectfully,

(Sgd.) J. JOHNSTON.

P.S.—I also send you herewith copy of our map of Labrador published in July, 1890. It may be of use to you.

DISCUSSION OF THE LABRADOR BOUNDARY QUESTION

IN COUNCIL, ON THE 9TH DECEMBER, 1892.

The Committee of the Privy Council, on the recommendation of Sir John Thompson, K.C.M.G., submit the accompanying copy of the proceedings of the Conference recently held at Halifax between delegates from the Governments of Canada and Newfoundland, for Your Excellency's information.

(Signed) JOHN J. MCGEE,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

To His Excellency the Governor General in Council:

Pursuant to arrangement, delegates representing the Governments of Canada and Newfoundland respectively, met in the Legislative Council Chamber at Halifax on the 9th November, 1892, at 11 o'clock.

There were present, the Honourable Mackenzie Bowell, Honourable J. A. Chapleau and Honourable Sir John Thompson, K.C.M.G., representing the Government of Canada, and the Honourable Sir William Whiteway, K.C.M.G., Honourable A. W. Harvey and Honourable Robert Bond, representing the Government of Newfoundland.

The delegates thereupon filed their credentials (see

The Conference was organized by the selection of Sir William Whiteway as chairman, and Mr. Douglas Stewart, of the Department of Justice, Ottawa, as secretary.

It was agreed that the following subjects should be considered by the Conference: —

(2). The Bait Question.

(3). The imposition of a tariff on Newfoundland fish by the Canadian Government, and the tariff of Newfoundland on Canadian products.

Labrador.

(5). The status of Newfoundland fishermen on the coast of Canadian Labrador, and the status of Canadian fishermen on the coast of Newfoundland.

(6). The fees collected from United States vessels under the modus vivendi, for licences in 1888, and succeeding years.

It was understood that the conclusions which might be arrived at by the Conference should be ad referendum to the respective Governments.

It was agreed that the sessions of the Conference should begin at 10 o'clock a.m. and 3 o'clock p.m. each day until the Conference should conclude.

The question of the Labrador boundary was first considered.

Mr. Bowell explained that the present grievance was one more particularly relating to Customs exactions than one in connection with location of the boundary. While Minister of Customs his attention had been called to the report of Lieut. Gordon, R.N., in which it was stated that traders who supplied the coast of Labrador, and who usually made Rigoulette their first port of call, were required by the Newfoundland Customs officials to make entry there, and pay duty on the full cargo, although a portion of the cargo was intended for consumption on Canadian territory. This system was said to apply more particularly to supplies for the Labrador coast in the vicinity of Ungava Bay.

Sir William Whiteway said that it seemed to him that the Newfoundland Customs officials would only exact duty upon such goods as might be reported for entry at the port in Newfoundland territory to which they might be consigned — that this was more of a matter between the traders or importers and the Customs officials, than one for the consideration of the respective Governments. He pointed out that the Canadian Government had full power to exact Customs duties on all goods entering their territory at Ungava Bay or elsewhere, even though they had previously paid duty at Rigoulette, and that the Customs officer at Rigoulette had no instructions to exact duties on goods other than those entered for consumption in Newfoundland territory.

Mr. Harvey stated that he had never heard of the grievance before, and that he was quite sure that the Customs officer on the coast of Labrador had no authority to act in the manner which had been alleged.

p. 364

Mr. Bond repudiated any desire on the part of the Newfoundland Government to permit such a practice.

Mr. Bowell replied that while it was satisfactory to learn that no instructions had been given by the Newfoundland Government to its officers to collect Customs duties upon goods, the ultimate destiny of which was for consumption in Canada, it was important to know whether such duties had been collected and passed to the credit of the Newfoundland revenue. It would be seen by reference to the reports of Lieut. Gordon, of 1884 and 1886, that this had been done, whether through error on the part of Newfoundland Customs officials or not, was not known. In confirmation of what he had said he might mention the fact that Mr. Parmalee, Commissioner of Customs of Canada, had, during the past summer, visited some of the Hudson Bay posts, on the shores of James' Bay, and had, on inquiry, learned from Hudson's Bay offices, that duties had been paid by the company to Newfoundland officers upon goods destined to that portion of the Dominion on the shores of Ungava Bay, from which place they were distributed for trading purposes in the interior of that portion of Canada. If this were the case, and there did not seem to be any doubt of it, the practice should not be continued, whatever might be done in relation to such moneys as had been so collected in the past. He was scarcely prepared to accept the proposition laid down by Sir William Whiteway, that this was more of a matter between the "traders or importers and the Customs officials than for the consideration of the respective Governments." If duties had been improperly collected by Customs officials of either Government, upon goods which were for consumption in the territory of another country, it was clearly a question of consideration for those Governments interested, and not for the trader or official. Such powers could never be recognized as existing in an officer of any Government.

Mr. Chapleau added that the Hudson's Bay officers had informed Mr. Parmalee that the Newfoundland Customs officers had collected duties at Rigoulette upon goods which were known to be for consumption in Canadian territory in the neighbourhood of Ungava Bay.

The question was allowed to stand over, pending further information as to the actual practice in the past, at the Newfoundland ports referred to, and the value and quantity of goods which were so entered, if any, destined for consumption in Canada, it being agreed by the delegates from both countries, that if irregularities of the character under discussion had occurred, it was a matter of administration solely, and would be so disposed of.

With reference to the boundary question, Sir William Whiteway said that the delimitation was marked on a map which had been published, he understood, by authority of the Canadian Government, and was now in the Colonial Secretary's office in St. John's, and which was quite acceptable to him as showing the true boundary.

Mr. Harvey stated that he had never doubted but that the delimitation, as shown on the map referred to, was final.

p. 365

Labrador
Boundary.

Sir John Thompson explained that the map was merely a possible boundary suggested by the geographer of the department of the Interior at Ottawa. That the Government of Canada had understood that the question of boundary was yet undecided.

The question of the boundary in Labrador was further discussed for some time, and an examination was made of three different maps, in which different boundaries are shown, none of which Sir William Whiteway said was the map referred to by him.

Halifax, 11th Nov., 1892.

Conference resumed 10.30 o'clock:

* * * *

With reference to the Labrador boundary, Mr. Bowell started that, since the question had been last discussed, he had received a telegram from the Privy Council Office of Ottawa, stating that, although it had been recommended to Council that the map asked for by the Government of Newfoundland should be transmitted, the recommendation had not been approved, inasmuch as it was considered that the map was imperfect, and that its formal transmission might therefore be misleading.

Mr. Harvey expressed the opinion that the map referred to was a very satisfactory one, except that he should insist that Melville Bay should be under the exclusive Customs control of Newfoundland.

Mr. Chapleau pointed out that the delimitation, as shown on the map referred to, gave a considerable portion of the coast of Melville Bay to Canada, and that the control of the coast would naturally involve the control of the waters adjacent thereto.

Proposal "B."

Proposal "C."

Mr. Bowell called attention to the fact that, although the Hudson Bay post at North-west river might by this delimitation be located in the territory of Newfoundland, yet it was probable that a large portion of the goods landed there would be intended for consumption on the Canadian side of the border.

Sir John Thompson suggested that the Newfoundland Government should appoint a geographer to act jointly with the geographer of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa in tracing up all available data, and to report the results of their examination to their respective Governments.

Sir John Thompson's suggestion was agreed to.

Halifax, 14th November, 1892.

Conference resumed at 3 o'clock:

Sir William Whiteway on behalf of the Newfoundland delegates handed in counter proposal "B" (see Appendix 6).

Mr. Bowell on behalf of the Canadian delegates handed in counter proposal "C" (see Appendix 7).

* * * *

In case this meets with the approval of the Canadian delegates, the reports to the respective Governments should embrace an agreement for the delimitation of Labrador boundary . . .

The Canadian representatives acquiesce in the proposal to make representations to Her Majesty's Government with reference to a Consulate at St. Pierre, and to delimit the Labrador boundary, whenever the Newfoundland Government is prepared to do so—an examination of the question being in the meantime made by geographical experts.

July 7th (Friday). —The Indians started to-day in the old whale boat for the Nascopie River, to bring down their deer meat. Spence preparing for his departure (July 8th) for Kennimish. I have decided on sending Gaghon with him, and Henry Hay and John Pierre to Kennimoe and not Ticguacmagan as I intended at first as the latter would most likely have a crowd of Indians about him and besides there is a probability of their not being able to set the nets for some time, owing to the strength of the current, and the company's men may be employed in cutting logs for the buildings that are to be erected next spring.

July 10th (Monday). —Set the net this morning. Got 6 salmon this afternoon.

July 13th (Thursday). —Got 5 salmon this afternoon.

July 18th (Tuesday). —Got 24 salmon to-day.

July 19th (Wednesday). —Went to Kennimish after dinner. They are not doing as well as I had expected, not even as many as at N.W. River. Kennimish and Kenimo have got about the same quantity, viz.: 3/4 Puncheon. Got 5 salmon to-day.

July 21st (Friday). —We are getting anxious about the Inlanders not making their appearance; those who are acquainted with the river say that some accident must have happened to keep them so long.

July 24th (Monday). —As the Inlanders have not made their appearance we have decided on sending up a canoe to see what has happened to detain them. The Indians are all about to commence building canoes so that none of them will go. As a last resource therefore I intend taking Henry them up, replacing them at the fishing post, by John Baptiste, Tiswisco and Johnny. I went over to Kennimish and Kennimo in the whale boat to-day and returned at 8:30 p.m. with John Pierre and Hay. Spence has got about 9 tierces of salmon and the other place ditto.

July 26th (Wednesday). —Henry Hay and J. Pierre about to start for the Grand River, but just as they were ready some Indians who came over the Portage informed us that the Nascopies were coming. They hove in sight about noon and arrived at the post at 1 p.m.

Aug. 1st (Tuesday). —The Volant started (sailed) at 11 a.m.

Aug. 3rd (Thursday). —The non arrival of Mr. Smith or any other gentleman to take charge of the District cause us to fear some accident had happened to the vessel. May 14th (Tuesday). —I sent the Indian boys over to Kennimish to-day for Baikie and Hope. We cannot get on without them here, after the gardens are finished there is a great deal of work to do about the boat and the post in general that it is impossible to let the men remain at Kennimish and have the work done at the place as well.

July 17th (Wednesday). — About 6 p.m. we were surprised by the arrival of the Sea Boat, with the Indian lads who were sent up last week to Gull Island with supplies for Winnowkupau. It appears that they have had a quarrel with Mistanapish, who had charge of the trip, and have consequently abandoned the trip altogether and returned from the first portage. Joseph Peter Mistapwau Mochagani and Mistuanapish have gone on to Sandy Banks with the Inland boat taking the flour on to there and leaving the Pork at the Rapid.

two boys out of twelve Fort Nascopie voyageurs, all the rest had gone off, as well as some of the Winnowkupa.

The Labrador arrived at Rigolet on the 11th, and ones. left on the 24th for Northern posts, and Mingan and the Ocean Nymph left on the 1st for Montreal.

Sept. 25th (Saturday). — About 10 a.m. Chas. Flowers and crew arrived from below and are bound for Kinomish. The planters are getting quite mad for getting up here. The Blakes are gone to Goose Bay — right before A. Messine who is a cripple and is unable to compete with them, so I am to send Taquapimagon and son to trap around the Blakes, which if not annoy, but will injure them a little.

Oct. 24th (Sunday). — We left St. John's Island at 12:30 last night with a fair wind and got here (N.W.R.) at 9 a.m. Found all right at the post and Jaquapemagon and family all at the post. About noon Jacko and family arrived from Kinnimish. p. 379 so he had to land all his Indians at Gull Island, where he is now. All his Indians left him after giving their supplies and are to come in at that place. They came back at 11 p.m. bringing a packet of letters all addressed to the crew of the "Labrador," and none for this place. I received a note from Capt. July 13th (Friday). — By the "Water Lily" presently in the employ of Messrs. Stebb and Son, I received the "Proclamation" by the Newfoundland Governor, wherein fishing of any kind is forbidden in the Rivers, streams, Lakes and water course. Early this morning I sent Peter John off to inform McLean and Louis, who are both fishing for the Company, about the reform the fishing laws had undergone. McLean came, however, over himself. I had thus verbally an opportunity of impressing on him the necessity of keeping the new law, and also to see that all in his Neighbourhood did the same. He said he was rather sorry as he had a net which, although not in the river, was close to it — but he would carry out the law as far as he was concerned and inform Louis in detail about what had taken place. We had a discourse about fishing for almost an hour. The Proclamation was sent me though Mr. Michaud who gave the Commander of the "H.M. Flamingo" my address thus — John Olsen, North West River — without H. B. Co. Besides the step I took in regards to the Co.'s fishermen across at Kennimish and Kennimoo I went round to the Indians, some of whom had a few old nets from us to catch a little fish for their food, and made them acquainted with the new regulations, and further made them understand the great risk they made if they disregarded the laws of the Country. They all seemed impressed with what I said and some of them those who had nets from the Co. removed their nets at once and re-set them on the other side of the point out of the River's course altogether.

July 15th (Sunday). — Late last night I discovered some nets in the water this side of the point; accordingly early this morning I went down to the tents to see who the offenders were, but as they were in bed I did not see them. On my return to the house an Indian, Papineo had a net set not far from our house. I called him directly up and asked him if he was ignorant of the danger he places himself in by thus breaking the laws. He said that Joe Groves, Mr. Stabb's agent here, had told him yesterday that the law did not forbid the Indians to set nets to catch fish or food. I expressed my wonder at this, and said I could not understand his motive thus in persuading people to do what is radically wrong. Papineo however said he would take up his net tomorrow.

Aug. 29th (Wednesday). — Confound this new fishing law, which prevents us from setting even a trunt net in the river. I have a good mind to break it and blame the inner man, who is calling out Fish! Fish! without getting satisfied.

AFFIDAVIT OF W. E. SWAFFIELD.[16 Feb, 1926.]In the Privy Council.IN THE MATTER of the BOUNDARY betweenthe DOMINION of CANADA and the
COLONY of NEWFOUNDLAND in the
LABRADOR PENINSULA.

I, WILLIAM ERNST SWAFFIELD, of 56 McGill Street, Montreal Canada, Manger of the Hudson's Bay Company's Fur Warehouse at Montreal, make Oath and say as follows: —

1. I was for 29 years in the service of Hudson's Bay Company on Labrador. I went to Davis Inlet in 1891 as Post Manager. After 9 years there I went to Cartwright for 5 years in the same capacity. I then went to Rigolet for 7 years and to Cartwright again for 8. During those last 10 years of my service on Labrador I was District Manager of the Labrador District consisting of 4 posts, viz: — Cartwright, North West River, Davis Inlet and Rigolet.

2. As District Manager I visited North West River once a year for inspection. I recall that C.S. Porter & Company of New York established a fur trading post at Cartwright in 1916 at North West River in 1917, and at Rigolet in 1919, and that the Revillon Company established a post at North West River over 20 years ago, which they still maintain.

3. I always paid duties to the Newfoundland Government for each of the Hudson's Bay Company's posts in my District and so to the best of my knowledge, information and belief, did my predecessor. I base this belief on my recollection of the Companies' books and the fact that when I took over there was no suggestion that the duties had not been or ought not to be paid. The annual payment for the District ranged between $2000 and $5000.

4. About 1911 a census was taken for the Newfoundland Government and a little later I took a rough census of the two Bays, Sandwich and Eskimo, for the Canadian Government. To the best of my recollection there were about 350 people in Sandwich Bay and about 700 in Eskimo Bay

p. 385

(Hamilton Inlet), this 700 being about equally divided between North West River and Rigolet Sections.

5. I used to send stores to Mud Lake, a sub-post of North West River, about eighteen miles further up the Bay situate at the entrance of Grand River. Mud Lake is about the end of Salt Water. When the tides come up it "backs up" the River there in its flow outward.

6. The Indians used regularly to come to Davis Inlet from the interior. Sometimes considerable numbers of them amounting to not less than about 100 came from Ungava Bay and I often did $5000 of trade with them in one session.

7. Indians used also to come out to North West River every Summer and Winter. In the Summer they would camp there for weeks, make their canoes, dress their deer skins, and do other work and in the Winter they would come out to trade. We opened accounts for many of them and made them advances every Fall against their Winter's catch of fur and the number of them coming out is increasing in recent years.

Our Company has recently bought the Revillon Company post at North West River and that Company has withdrawn from Labrador altogether.

8. During all the time I was on [sic] Labrador the Newfoundland Government always prohibited the cutting of timber within a three mile limit from the sea and forbade the Summer fishermen, the permanent settlers, the Eskimos or the Indians to trap for fur out of season.

9. The permanent residents who numbered on the average some 3000 always subsisted on furring in the Winter. Men, women, and children took part in it, and their hunting took many of them as far as the height of land.

10. At North West River the tide in the Fall of the year is brackish and the water too salt to be drinkable.

11. My Company was frequently called upon to relieve distress and when this happened used to recover the money from the Newfoundland Government. Such relief was given not only to the white settlers but also to the Eskimos when required.

12. The whole of the Hamilton Inlet as far as Goose Bay is navigable by steamers. The Newfoundland Government's mail steamers regularly go to North West River.

REPRESENTATION OF THE LORDS OF TRADE

UPON THE ALTERATION AND ADDITIONS EXPEDIENT TO BE MADE IN THE INSTRUCTIONS TO THE GOVERNOR OF NEWFOUNDLAND IN

Copy.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.—
May it please your Majesty.

In Obedience to your Majesty Commands signified to Us by the Earl of Egremont, one of your Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, in his Lordship's Letter of the 8th Instant, We have taken into Our Consideration "the Copies of the 5th & 6th Articles of the Definitive Treaty, relating to the Fishery at Newfoundland, & elsewhere in those Parts, and to the Cession of the Islands of S^t. Peter & Miquelon; as also an Extract of the 24th Article of the said Treaty, fixing a Time for the Cession of those Islands, and directing Us to lay before your Majesty such Alterations & Additions, as shall appear to Us expedient to be made, to the Instructions given to the Governors of Newfoundland, in order to conform them to the abovementioned Stipulations of the Definitive Treaty" after considering the Subject with that Attention & Exactness which the Nature & Importance of it so highly deserve, We humbly beg Leave to submit Our Opinion to your Majesty both with respect to the Plan of the Instructions, as they are now annually given to the Governor of Newfoundland and to such Additional Ones as may be thought requisite, from the Provisions, & Acquisitions of the Definitive Treaty.

The Instructions hitherto given to the Governor of Newfoundland have been principally formed upon the Provision of the Statute of the 10th & 11th of William the Third, for regulating this Fishery and the Method prescribed to the Governor, of annually enquiring into, and reporting the State of the Fishery, is so very regular and practicable, that it rather wants to be enforced than changed, and if it be true, as it certainly is, that the Representations of the State of the Fishery have hitherto been imperfect, that Deficiency has arisen more from Circumstances in the Execution of the Plan, than any Defect in the Plan itself.

With respect to the Necessity of any additional Instructions upon which We are directed to give Our Opinion, We beg leave humbly to represent to your Majesty, that Your Subjects employed in the Fishery at Newfoundland, having of late engaged more extensively in the Fishery on the North eastern Part of Newfoundland, upon which Coast the French have also a Right, by the Treaty of Utrecht, to catch and dry Fish during the Season, under certain Restrictions; The great and extensive Whale Fishery in the Streights of Belleisle, with the other Branches of the Salmon & Seal Fishery, attending the Coast from the Mouth of those Streights to the River St. Lawrence, and the Fishery of the River St. Lawrence itself, of Gaspee, of Cançeaux, the Madelain Islands, St. Johns & Cape Breton being now annexed to His Majesty's Dominions by the Definitive Treaty; The general Fishery of Newfoundland, and the Gulf and the Coasts with it is become a Matter of infinite Extent, and of the utmost Importance; at the same time, that the preventing the French from partaking of the Benefit of these Fisheries (they being permitted to come within three Leagues of the Coasts & Islands within the Gulph,) seems to us to make some Additional Measure and Additional Instructions in the Execution of the Definitive Treaty, referred to us, absolutely necessary for the securing the exclusive Possession of these valuable Fisheries to Your Majesty's Subjects.

As to the Concurrent Fishing on the N^o East Coast of Newfoundland, in case any of your Majestys Subjects should engage in it, much will depend upon the Temper, Judgement & Discretion of the Officer of the Navy, who shall be appointed to superintend that Fishery, and who certainly should be instructed to adhere to the due Sense & Execution of the 13th Article of the Treaty of Utrecht with Justice to the Subjects of both Crowns. Upon the Coast of Labrador, it will be impossible to prevent the French continuing to have the full Benefit of their former Commerce with the Indians of that Coast, unless some British Settlement should be made there, or sufficient Cruizers stationed with Instructions to the Commanders to seize all french Ships coming within a certain Distance of that Coast.

The same Observation is equally applicable to all the Coast from the Streights of Belleisle to the River St. Lawrence, from thence along the whole Coast of Canada and Acadia, and the Fisheries annexed to these Coasts which lye within the Gulph, the exclusive Possession of all which Fisheries, in our Judgement depends upon the Efficacy of whatever Plan shall be now followed, and the additional Instructions which shall be now given by the proper Boards to the proper Officer in the Execution of this great and essential Measure.

The Situation of the Islands of St. Peter & Miquelon, so convenient for carrying on an illicit Trade with North America, calls for particular Caution, and it were earnestly to be wished that the Communication between these Islands & Newfoundland could be prevented, from which the Inhabitants of St. Peter will otherwise receive the double Advantage of getting easily & cheaply the Materials for building their Boats, and of circulating french produce & Manufactures amongst the British Fishermen.

These Points naturally arising out of the Words of the Reference made to us by Your Majesty's Secretary of State, We have presumed to submit to Your Majesty's Consideration without in any Degree taking upon Ourselves actually to prepare any Plan for the Accomplishment of Measures, the grounds of which are so very imperfectly before Us, which, if ever They should take place, must be determined with an Attention to other Measures, and made a Part of one general Plan; The framing which will depend so much upon the united Labor and Experience of different Departments of Government; and the Execution of which will at last depend upon Orders to be issued from other Offices and to Officers not Subject to our Controul.

In Obedience to Your Majesty's Commands signified to us by the Earl of Egremont, one of Your Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, in his Letter dated the 24th instant, We have prepared, and humbly beg leave to lay before Your Majesty, a Draught of Instructions for Thomas Graves Esquire, whom Your Majesty has been pleased to appoint Governor and Commander in Chief in and over the Island of Newfoundland and all the Coast of Labradore, from the Entrance of Hudson's Streights to the River S^t Johns, which discharges itself into the Sea nearly opposite the West end of the Island of Anticosti, including that Island, with any other small Islands on the said Coast of Labradore, and also the Islands of Madelaines in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence.

Instructions to Our Trusty & Well-beloved Thomas Graves Esquire Our Governor and Commander in Chief in and over Our Island of Newfoundland in America, and all the Coast of Labradore from the Entrance of Hudson's Streights to the River S^t Johns, which discharges itself into the Sea nearly opposite the West end of the Island of Anticosti, including that Island with any other small Islands on the said Coast of Labradore, and also the Islands of Madelaines in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, as also of all Our Forts and Garrisons erected and established, or that shall be erected and established in Our said Islands, or on the Coast of Labradore within the Limits aforesaid. Given at Our Court at S^t James the day of 1763, and in the third year of Our Reign.

With these Our Instructions you will receive Our Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, constituting you Our Governor and Commander in Chief in and over Our Island of Newfoundland in America, and all the Coast of Labradore from the Entrance of Hudson's Streights to the River S^t John, which discharges itself into the Sea nearly opposite the West end of the Island Anticosti, including that Island, with any other small Islands on the said Coast of Labradore, and also the Islands of Madelaines in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, as also of all our Forts and Garrisons erected and established, or that shall be erected and established in Our said Islands, or on the Coast of Labradore within the Limits aforesaid, with Directions to obey such Orders and Instructions as shall from time to time be given you under Our Signet and Sign Manual, or by Our Order in Our Privy Council.

First. You are therefore to fit yourself with all convenient speed, and to repair to your said Command, and, being arrived, you are to take upon

p. 392

you the Execution of the place & Trust We have reposed in you, and, as soon as conveniently may be, to assemble the principal Inhabitants in the Island of Newfoundland, and in such other places as you shall judge proper or necessary within your said Government, and with all due Solemnity to cause Our said Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, constituteing you Our Governor & Commander in Chief as aforesaid, to be read and published at such meetings.

2. Whereas by the Treaty with France made at Utrecht in 1713, it is stipulated, "That the Island called Newfoundland, with the adjacent Islands, shall from that time forward, belong of Right wholly to Britain, and that it shall not be lawful for the Subjects of France to fortify any place in the Islands of Newfoundland, or to erect any Buildings there, besides Stages made of Boards and Huts necessary & usual for drying of Fish, or to resort to the said Island beyond the time necessary for Fishing and drying of Fish; but that it shall be allowed to the Subjects of France to catch Fish and to dry them on Land, in that part only, and in no other besides that of the said Island of Newfoundland, which stretches from the place called Cape Bonavista to the Northern point of the said Island, and from thence, running down by the Western side, reaches as far as the place called Point Riche," which Stipulations have been renewed and confirmed by the 5th Article of the definitive Treaty lately concluded at Paris, It is therefore Our express Will and Pleasure, that in all things which regard the said Fishery from Bonavista to Point Riche, you do conform yourself, with great care and attention, and with Justice to the Subjects of both Crowns, to the Stipulations contain'd in the said Articles, Copies of which are hereunto annexed.

3. And whereas by the said 5th Article of the Treaty lately concluded at Paris, We have consented to leave to the Subjects of the most Christian King the Liberty of fishing in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, on Condition that the Subjects of France do not exercise the said Fishery but at the distance of three Leagues from all the Coasts belonging to Great Britain, as well those of the continent as those of the Islands, situated in the said Gulph S^t Lawrence, You are hereby required to carry the Stipulations of the said Clause into full execution, within the Limits of your Government.

4. You are to use your best Endeavours to prevent any Aliens or Strangers whatever from fishing or drying Fish on any of the Coasts, or in any of the Harbours of the Islands and Territories under your Government, unless in the Exceptions made by the 13th Article of the Treaty of Utrect, and the 5th

Article of the late definitive Treaty, confined to the Subjects of France permitted to fish within the District and Limits mark'd out by those Treaties, and under the several Restrictions specified in the Articles themselves.

5. And whereas by the 6th Article of the said Treaty lately concluded at Paris, a Copy of which Article is hereunto annexed, the Islands of

S^t Peter and Miquelon are ceded to France, "to serve as a shelter to the French Fishermen, His most Christian Majesty engaging not to fortify the said Islands, to erect no Buildings upon them but merely for the Convenience of the Fishery, and to keep upon them a Guard of fifty Men only, for the Police" you are therefore from time to time to enquire and report to Us, by Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, whether the Stipulations contained in the said Article are duly observed; And you are to use your best Endeavours to prevent any Commerce between Our Subjects under your Government and the said Islands, by means whereof the Inhabitants of those Islands may have the double Advantage of getting easily and cheaply the materials for building Vessels, & erecting Houses & Works necessary for the Fishery, and of circulating French Produce & Manufactures amongst the British Fishermen.

6. And whereas by the 24th Article of the said definitive Treaty, lately concluded at Paris, an Extract of which is hereunto annexed, it is stipulated, "that France shall enter into possession of the said Islands of S^t Peter and Miquelon, at the end of three months after the Exchange of the Ratifications of the said Treaty," you are therefore to conform yourself to the said Stipulation, and to give all possible Aid and Assistance to Our Subjects, who may now be resident on the said Islands, in the removal of their Persons and Effects.

7. It is Our further Will and Pleasure that you do, from time to time, as the nature of the Service will allow, visit all the Coasts and Harbours of the said Islands and Territories under your Government, in order to inspect and examine the State and Condition of the Fisheries, which are or may be carried on upon the said Coasts and Islands; You shall also use your best Endeavours to procure accurate draughts or Maps of the several Harbours, Bays and Coasts of Newfoundland, and the other Islands and territories under your Government, and you are more particularly to direct the Officer of any Vessel under your Command, which lyes between Hudson's Streights and the Streights of Bellisle, to search and explore the great Inlet commonly known by the name Davis's Inlet, in order to discover, whether the same has or has not any passage to Hudson's Bay, or any other inclosed sea.

8. You are also to enquire and report to Us, by Our Commissioners for Trade & Plantations, whether any or what further Establishment may be necessary to be made, or Forts erected in any part of Newfoundland, or the other Islands or Territories under your Government, either for the Protection of the Fishery, the Security of the Country, or the establishing and carrying on a Commerce with the Indians residing in or resorting to the said Islands, or inhabiting the Coast of Labradore.

9. You are not to permit the Subjects of any foreign Prince or State whatever to carry on any commerce with the said Indians, and to use your best endeavours to conciliate their Affections, and to induce them to trade with Our Subjects, reporting to Us, by Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, the best Account you can obtain of the Number of the said Indians, the places they frequent, the Nature and extent of the Commerce that is or may be carried on with them, and how the same may, in your Opinion, be further extended and improved.

10. And whereas We have been informed that a very considerable and advantageous Whale and Sea Cow fishery may be carried on in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence and upon the Labradore Coast, it is therefore Our Will and Pleasure, that you do give all possible encouragement to such Fishery, and report to Us, by our Commissioners for Trade & Plantations, your opinion in what way, and by what means, so valuable a Branch of Commerce may be extended and improved.

11. You are also to make a very particular enquiry into, and report to Us as aforesaid, the actual State and nature of the Fisheries carried on by the Subjects of France in every distinct Branch thereof, as well that which is carried on for Morue Verte upon the Banks without the Gulph S^t Lawrence, as the dry Fishery carried on at Miquelon and S^t Peter's upon the Coast of Newfoundland, from Bonavista to Point Riche, or in other parts of the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, and you are to be as particular as may be in Your Accounts of the Number and Nature of the Ships and Boats employed in those different Fisheries, the Number of Men, the Quantity of Fish caught, cured and carried to Market, and, in general, of every other Circumstance that may furnish a precise State of this Branch of the Commerce of France.

12. You shall strictly enjoin all Our Officers and Soldiers and other persons whatsoever, belonging to the present and future Garrisons in Newfoundland, and the other Islands and Territories under your Governm^t not to engage in the Fishery there, no interrupt the Fishermen in the curing of their Fish, nor to take up for themselves any Beaches, Stages or Cookrooms upon any pretence whatsoever, upon pain of Our highest Displeasure.

13. And you are particularly to suppress the engrossing of Commodities, as tending to the prejudice of the Fishery and the Persons employed therein.

14. And shall transmit unto Us, and to Our Commissioners for Trade & Plantations, in order to be laid before Us, an Account of the Arms, Ammunitions and Stores that have been sent from Our Office of Ordnance here, to Our Forts and Garrisons in Newfoundland, and likewise an Account of the State of Our said Forts, how the said Stores have been employed, and whether any of them, and how many of them have been sold, spent, lost, decay'd or disposed of, and to whom and to what uses, together with an Inventory of all such Arms, Ammunition & Stores as are remaining in Our Magazines there, as also a Duplicate thereof to Our Master General or principal Officers of Our Ordnance, which Accounts are to express the particulars of Ordnance, carriages, Ball Powder & all other sorts of Arms

& Ammunition in Our publick Stores at your Arrival, and so yearly of what shall be sent thither, specifying the time of the Disposal and the Occasion thereof.

15. Whereas by the Act for the Encouragement of Trade, pass'd in the fifteenth year of King Cha^s the second, no Commodities of the Growth, Production or Manufacture of Europe, except Salt for the Fishery of New England and Newfoundland, Wines of the Growth of the Madeiras or Western Islands or Azores, Servants, Horses and all Sorts of Victuals of the Growth and Production of Ireland, shall be imported into any of Our Colonies or Plantations, but what shall be bonâ fide and without Fraud, laden and shipped in Great Britain and in ships duly qualified; And whereas Complaint has been made of Masters of Ships and others carrying on a Clandestine Trade amongst the fishing Ships from Great Britain with others from Our Colonies & Plantations in America, contrary to the intent & meaning of the said Act, you shall use your utmost endeavour for the due Observation of the said Act.

16. You are to permit a free Exercise of Religion to all Persons, except Papists, so they be contented with a quiet and peaceable Enjoyment of the same, not giving Offence or Scandal to the Government.

17. It is Our Will and Pleasure that you do cause the Laws made against Blasphemy, Prophaneness, Adultery, Fornication, Poligamy, Incest, Prophanation of the Lord's day, swearing and Drunkenness to be vigourously executed, and that you take due care for the Punishment of the aforementioned Vices, by presentment upon Oath to be made to the Justices of the Peace in their Sessions, by their Constables, or other inferior Officers of the several Harbours, at the proper times of the year to be appointed for that purpose; And, for the further Discouragement of Vice and Encouragement of Virtue and good Living, you are not to admit any Person to act as a Justice of the Peace, whose ill Fame or Conversation may occasion Scandal; and especially you shall take Care that the Lord's day be devoutly and duly observed, that the Book of Common Prayer, as by Law established in this Kingdom, be ready each Sunday and Holiday, and the blessed Sacrament administered according to the Rites of the Church of England, in all such Chappels or publick places of worship as are already or may be settled there.

18. And if any orthodox Minister there shall appear to give Scandal, either by his Doctrine or manners, or shall preach or administer the holy Sacrament in any Orthodox Church or Chappel, without being in due Orders, you shall give Account thereof to the Lord Bishop of London.

19. And you are to take especial Care, that a Table of Marriages, established by the Canons of the Church of England, be hung up in every orthodox Church or Chappel and duly observed.

20. If anything shall happen which may be of advantage or Security to Our said Islands and Territories under your Government, which is not herein, or by Our Commission provided for, you are hereby allowed to take order for the present herein, giving to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations speedy notice thereof, in order to be laid before Us, that so you may receive Our Ratification, if We shall approve of the same; Provided always that you do not, by Colour of any Power or Authority hereby given you, allow or encourage anything to be done contrary to the true intent and meaning of an Act of Parliament passed in the 10th & 11th years of the Reign of King William the third, entituled an Act to encourage the Trade to Newfoundland, nor contrary to any of the Laws or Statutes of this Our Realm.

21. And you are upon all Occasions to send unto Our Commiss^{rs} for Trade & Plantations only, a particular Account of all your Proceedings, and of the Condition of the Affairs of the Islands and Territories under your Government, and the Trade and Fishery thereof, and of the Banks, Seas and Parts adjacent, in order to be laid before Us. Provided nevertheless that, when any Occurrences shall happen within your Government, of such a nature and Importance as may require Our more immediate Direction by one of Our principal Secretaries of State, you shall in all such Cases transmit to Our Secretary of State only, an Account of all such Occurrences and of your Proceedings relative to such Orders.

22. Whereas by the said Act to encourage the Trade to Newfoundland, many things are enacted for the due & orderly carrying on of the said Trade, which are necessary for your Observation in inspecting the same, during your stay in those parts, you are therefore, in order to the better regulating your Conduct in that Service, to carry with you a Copy of the said Act, for your own use and Government.

23. You are likewise carefully and diligently to enquire and observe, whether the several Rules and Orders contained in the said Act for the more advantageous management of the Fishery, be duly observed by all those concerned therein, viz^t.

24. You are to see that due care be taken by the Admirals in their respective Harbours, and by the Masters of the fishing Ships using that Trade, that no sort of Ballast, nor press Stones, or anything else hurtfull, to or annoying any of the Harbours there, be thrown out of any Ship or otherwise, to the prejudice of any of the said Harbours, and likewise to make the following Enquiries.

25. Whether any Person, at his departure out of the said Country, or at any other time, do destroy, deface or do any detriment to the Stages, Cookrooms, Flakes, &c., or to the materials thereunto belonging, which had been possessed by himself or others, and whether they repair the defects, that may be in their Stages or other Conveniences, by Timber fetched out of the Woods, and not by committing any manner of Spoil or Waste upon the Stages already built.

26. Whether the Admirals, Vice Admirals or Rear Admirals of the Harbours and the Commanders of the other fishing Ships in each Harbour, do observe the Rules prescribed by the said Act against engrossing more Beach and Flakes than each of them have necessary use for, also against possessing several places at once, to the hindrance and prejudice of others, and relating to the Election of such places as any of them, whose right it is, shall choose to abide in; and, in case of any difference, whether the Admirals in their several Harbours do proportion the place to the Ships, according to the number of Boats which each of the said Ships do keep?

27. Whether these Inhabitants or others, who since the year 1685, had engrossed several Stages, Cookrooms, Beaches and other places, which, before that time, belonged to the fishing Ships, to the prejudice of such fishing Ships are arrive there in the fishing season, have, according to the direction of the aforesaid Act, relinquished & left the same for the publick use of the fishing Ships arriving there?

28. Whether the Inhabitants have possessed or do possess themselves of any such Stages, Cookrooms &c., or of any Trainfats or other Conveniences, which have belonged to any fishing Ships at any time since the year 1685, before the yearly arrival of the fishing Ships, and until all such Ships are provided with Stages, Cookrooms, &c., according to the said Act?

29. Whether the By-boat keepers pretend to or meddle with any House, Stage, Cookroom, Trainfat, or other Conveniency, that did belong to the fishing Ships since the year 1685, or that has been cut out or made by Ships after the 25 of March 1700?

30. Whether the By-boat keepers and the Masters of fishing Ships do carry over with them such numbers of fresh Men, in proportion to their respective Companies of Seamen, as the Act directs? Whether they are furnish'd with Certificates of their having made Oath before their Sailing from this Kingdom, that they do carry with them such a Number of Green Men? to whom they do produce such Certificates? and do the Admirals or the Customs House Officers keep any Account or make any return thereof?

31. Whether the Inhabitants do also employ such numbers of fresh or green Men as the said Act directs, and whether the Admirals take care that they punctually comply therewith.

32. Whether any Persons do presume to expunge, cut out, deface or alter the Mark of any Boats or Trainfats of other persons and convert them to their own use, or remove the same from the places where they were left by the Owners, contrary to the Directions of the said Act?

p. 398

the same for any use whatsoever, excepting only for necessary Fewel, for building and repairing Houses, Ships, Boats, Trainfats, Stages, Cookrooms and other Conveniences for the Fishery?

34. Whether the Rules ordained by this Act for preventing any Annoyance or Hindrance in the Hauling of Sains in the customary baiting places, and against the stealing of Baits and Nets, be duly observed?

35. Whether the Admirals are careful, in order to preserve the peace and good Government, both in their respective Harbours, and on shore, to see that the Rules and Orders contained in the aforesaid Act be duly put in Execution? and whether each of the said Admiral do keep Journals and exact Accounts of the number of all Ships, Boats, Stages & Trainfats, and of all the Seamen and Inhabitants employed in their respective Harbours, that the same may be delivered, at their Return to Great Britain, as the Act directs?

36. And whereas it has been represented to Us, that the By-boatkeepers and Master of fishing Ships do not carry over with them, and that the Inhabitants do not employ such a number of fresh or green men as the aforesaid Act of encourage the Trade to Newfoundland directs, and that the Admirals in the respective Harbours do not take care to enforce a due Compliance therewith, or to preserve Peace and good Government in their respective Harbours or on shore, and that they do not keep any Journals of the Number of Ships employed in the several Harbours, concerning themselves only with their own Fishery, and whereas such Omission and Neglect tend greatly to the prejudice of Our Service, and to defeat the good Intentions of this Provision of the said Act, which is calculated for increasing the number of Seamen for the Service of Our Navy, and the promoting the Trade & Navigation of this Kingdom, it is therefore Our Will and Pleasure, and you are hereby directed and required to use your utmost endeavour to enforce a due and exact Compliance with the said Act for encouraging the Trade to Newfoundland, and that you do in these and all other particulars recommend to the Admirals in the respective Harbours to keep regular Accounts, & do all such others things as the Acts directs, upon pain of Our highest Displeasure.

37. You are also to enquire whether, upon any Differences that do arise in any of the Harbours touching any of the aforesaid Matters, the Admirals of those respective Harbours do determine the same according as the said Act directs, and, in case any persons think themselves agrieved by the Sentences of the Admirals, whether those Persons appeal unto you or unto the Commanders of Our Ships of War, for a final Determination, and both Parties submit accordingly thereunto?

38. Whether the Lord's day be strictly and duly observed, and whether the Inhabitants, who keep any sort of publick houses for entertainment, do forbear on that day to utter or sell any sort of strong Liquor or Tobacco, as by the said Act is directed?

Great Britain or Ireland, do resort to Newfoundland or to the Islands adjacent thereto, and take Bait, or use any sort of Trade or fishing whatsoever in those parts?

40. And as you are to transmit your Answers to the foregoing Enquiries, which are founded upon the foresaid Act of 10 & 11th of King William the third, so you are likewise to take an exact Account of the Number of the British fishing Ships and sack Ships, and Ships and Vessels from America, that arrive this year in the Islands and Territories under your Government.

The Burthen of the said Ships and the number of their men.

The number of the Passengers transported by the fishing Ships.

The Value of Seal Oil and of Furs taken by the Inhabitants last Winter.

The number of Stages and Trainfats belonging to the Fishery.

The total quantity of Fish carried to foreign Markets.

The prices the said Fish and Oil are sold at, both in Barter for Goods, and for good Bills payable here.

The number of publick & private Houses.

The number of Inhabitantsts, and how many have been born or have died there, since the departure of the last year's Convoy.

Which you are to send by the first conveyance that offers, according to the usual form hereunto annexed.

Moreover you are particularly to inform yourself,

41. In what manner the Inhabitants are subsisted, what Land is there improved? Whether the Country produces such Provisions as they want, and whether they have any number of Cows, Sheep and Swine, or whether they receive any Provisions from Our Plantations in America, of what sorts or kind, and the quantities thereof?

42. Whether the said Inhabitants are wholly supplied with Sail Cloth, Nets and Tackle for their Fishery, and with Woolen, Linen, Leather and other Manufactures for their use and wear from this Kingdom, or whether they are furnished with any of the aforesaid necessaries from the plantations or from any foreign Country whatsoever?

43. What wages do the said Inhabitants allow to their Servants and in what manner do they pay them?

44. How much does the Charge of fitting out and maintaining one of their fishing Boats for the whole Season, amount to?

45. Whether the Inhabitants have any other Employment in the fishing Season for their Servants than taking and curing of Fish? whether they are diligent therein? how many men they allow to each of their fishing Boats? whether they can afford their Fish as cheap as the fishing Ships and the By-boats, or what difference is made between the price of the one & the other?

46. In what manner they employ themselves and their Servants after the fishing Season is over and during the Winter? whether they are industrious in providing and making necessaries for the next fishing Season? or, on the contrary, whether they mispend a great part of their time in Debaucheries & Excesses?

47. Whether any Trade is carried on for Beaver and other Furs by the Inhabitants, or by any other who remain in the Country? what quantity they have taken this last winter, and whether they have any Traffick with the Indians?

48. Whether the Houses, Buildings and Inclosures of the Inhabitants are at such distance from the water side as not to hinder or obstruct the Fishermen in making their Flakes, or in drying and curing their Fish?

49. Whether the Inhabitants claim a right to all such Stages, Cookrooms, Flakes &c. as they have made or built in their fishing places, which have not been possessed by the fishing Ships since the year 1685, tho' they make no use of them?

50. Whether such fishing places and conveniences are free for the publick use of the fishing Ships arriving there, and nothing insisted on, or demanded by the said Inhabitants for their use and Hire?

51. How many Flakes are allowed to each fishing Boat, & of what length? whether they are extended in length, according to the ancient Custom, from the shore up into the Land? or whether any of the Inhabitants or Fishermen extend their Flakes along the shore, or possess a larger Front to the water side, according to the number of Boats, than was formerly allowed?

52. Whether it was ever ascertained or determined in the several, or in any of the Harbours in Newfoundland, what fishing places did belong to the fishing Ships before the year 1685; and whether any Account is kept of those fishing places, which they have been in possession of since that year, in order to prevent such disputes as must otherwise very frequently happen between the Masters of the said Ships & the Inhabitants?

53. Whether the fishing Ships that proceed directly from this Kingdom to Newfoundland are victualled here, and provided with all other necessaries of British produce and Manufacture for the whole Voyage? or whether the Masters or Freighters do not furnish themselves with Provisions, that are brought from the Plantations or other parts to Newfoundland?

54. Whether any British Ship arriving at St John's, or in any other

Harbour in Newfoundland from Portugal or other foreign parts, before any Ship that was cleared form this Kingdom, has been at any time permitted to be Admiral of the Harbour? or whether, according to the Custom of Newfoundland, such Ships only as are cleared from Great Britain, have a right to be Admirals?

55. Whether the Admirals, or any other Ships who arrive early at S^t John's or in the other Harbours, do put their Passengers, or any of them, into possession of the most convenient, or of any other fishing places, stages &c^a upon pretence they are Freighters of their Ships, before the Arrival of the other fishing Ships, or before they are all provided?

56. Whether any of the By-boat keepers, who remain in the Country during the Winter, and that are not Inhabitants, do retain to their own use, or for the use of themselves and their Partners, who are expected by the fishing Ships, the fishing places, Stages, Beaches, Flakes, &c^a which they possessed the preceding year? or whether they take Possession of any others that may be more convenient for them in the ensuing fishing season, before the arrival of the fishing Ships, or before the said Ships are well supplied?

57. Whether any of the fishing Ships pursue or follow the old laudable Custom of allowing their Ships Companies Shares of what they make in the Voyage, instead of Wages, and, in such case, how much doth the Charge of fitting out and maintaining a Ship of one hundred Tons with fifty Men and ten Boats amount to for the whole voyage?

58. Whether any Commodities of the Growth, Production or Manufacture of Europe, that are not bonâ fide & without Fraud laden and ship'd in this Kingdom, be imported and brought into Newfoundland, all such Commodities being prohibited by the 15th Car. 2^d, Chap 7th except Salt for the fishery, Wine of the Growth of and from the Madeiras and the Azores or Western Islands, and Victuals &c., from Ireland?

59. How these Commodities are disposed of, whether only to the Fishery, viz^t to the Seamen and Inhabitants? or whether any Trade be driven by selling those Goods to the Ships belonging to New England and other Plantations, in order to supply the said Plantations with such Commodities as they ought to have directly from Great Britain, and not otherwise?

60. What quantities of Rum and other Plantation Goods are brought to Newfoundland? more especially of those enumerated in former Acts of Parliam^t? Whether any of these enumerated Commodities are sold to the Ships bound to Portugal and other foreign parts, so as to make an indirect Trade to those Countries in Goods which ought not to be carried thither before they have been first landed in Great Britain?

61. In what manner is the Trade between Newfoundland and any other or Our American Colonies carried on? What Quantities of Rum, Melasses[sic],

p. 402

Wine, Sugar, Tobacco, Flour and other Provisions have been imported this year? to whom and at what prices are the said goods sold? are they paid for in Fish or in Bills? If in Fish, is it disposed of again, or loaded in the Sack Ships for Europe? and what Value is it computed, that the goods sold may annually amount to?

62. How many Taverns or publick Houses for Entertainment may there be kept in Newfoundland, or, at least, in the Harbour of St. John's? are they kept only by the Inhabitants or by the By-boat keepers, and the people of New England also? do they trust the Fishermen upon their own Credit, or do the Master of the Ships and of the By-boats permit them to trust their Crews, and deduct the same out of their respective Wages, Hire or Shares, in order to satisfy the said Tavern-keepers? are not the poor Seamen hereby tempted to spend the greatest part, or the full Amount of their wages, and frequently run so far in debt, that they are forced to remain as Servants to the Inhabitants, and at last constrained to betake themselves to New England?

63. Whether the Inhabitants do not usually trust their own Servants with Rum and other Stores to a greater Value than their Wages amount to? and whether they are not generally paid in the manner as in the foregoing Article?

64. How much do the By-boatmen and the Inhabitants allow to the Masters of the fishing Ships for the Passage of their Servants, both out and home? in what manner do the said Inhabitants pay the Masters of the fishing Ships for the same, and for the several necessaries they supply them with? and whether a considerable part of these Debts is not secured by suffering their Seamen to run in debt to the Inhabitants?

65. Whether this method of trusting Fishermen is not the occasion of many Thefts & Disorders? are they not by their Debaucheries often withdrawn from and rendred[sic] unfit for their Labour, to the great Discouragement and Obstruction of the Fishery?

66. Whether the Masters of the fishing Ships and By-boats do not connive at or encourage their Men to remain in the Land, that they may save the Charge of carrying them home? What number of Men do stay behind yearly, and particularly last year? what number of Irish Catholicks is there in all the Towns in Newfoundland, and what proportion do they bear to the Protestants?

67. Whether the American traders do still continue to entice and carry thither numbers of Handicraft men, Seamen and Fishermen, and whether any of the Inhabitants do favor or assist them therein?

68. And whereas this practise must be prevented, if possible, you are to require all the Masters of the American Ships and Vessels, before their departure from Newfoundland, to enter into Obligation not to carry away any of the Seamen &c, and all possible care must be taken to have those Obligations so witnessed, that, in case it be thought proper to put them in execution, they may not be invalidated for want of Evidence. And you are likewise to be as strict as is practicable to oblige all such American Ships as may be in Newfoundland to sail from thence at the same time you shall leave the Land, and to get all the proof that can be had of the Breach of any Obligations, enter'd into as aforesaid, and to transmit an Account thereof to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations.

69. And whereas Complaints have formerly been made that, by reason of the ill curing of the Fish in Newfoundland, the Consumption thereof has been considerably lessen'd; and that the Trade would be lost if effectual care was not taken to reform the same.

You are therefore to command the Admirals of the Harbours strictly to enjoin the Masters of the fishing Ships, the By-boat keepers & Inhabitants to take the greatest care in curing their Fish with good Salt and with a sufficient quantity, and in preparing, husbanding & ordering the same; that the credit thereof may be again recovered; and that it may be well received and esteemed in several places to which it is carried for Sale.

And as the said Admirals are obliged to have a watchful Eye upon such as are negligent herein, so they are to return to you the Names of those, who will not comply with this Admonition.

And further you are upon this occasion very particularly to enquire into their manner and method of taking and curing their Fish; What quantity of Salt they allow for the curing every hundred Quintals? whether they are guilty of any Abuse in the ordering thereof? whether the Fish taken at a distance from the Land by their small Vessels, is not prejudiced before it is brought on shore? whether the Inhabitants, the fishing Ships, or the By-boat keepers are most to be blamed? and, in short, from whence these Complaints did arise, and what methods are to be taken to prevent or rectify whatsoever is amiss?

70. And whereas there is a Salmon Fishery erected in Freshwater Bay, Ragget Harbour, Gander Bay and Dog-Creek, between Cape Bona Vista and Cape John in Newfoundland, and a second, which is since erected by other Persons at Grand Salmonier, Little Salmonier &c^a in the same Island, which may prove of Advantage to Great Britain, it will be necessary that you give all due Encouragement and protection to those undertakings, whereof you will inform yourself, & transmit the fullest Account you can get of the same to Our Commissioners for Trade & Plantations.

71. And whereas Our late Royal Grandfather did, by His Letters Patent under the Great Seal of Great Britain bearing date at Westminster the 31st day of May in the second year of his Reign, constitute and appoint Henry Osborne Esq^r to be Governor & Commander in Chief in and over the said island of Newfoundland, with power to constitute and appoint Justices of the Peace, with other necessary Officers and Ministers, for the better Administration of Justice, and keeping the Peace and Quiet of the said

Island, which powers have been continued to all the subsequent Governors there, and are contained in our Commission to you; You are, upon your Arrival in the Island, to make Enquiry what Effect that Commission has had; what Justices of the Peace are now in actual Commission, and do execute the same in the respective Towns in Newfdland, particularly at Placentia; how and in what manner such Justices of the Peace behave in the execution of that Power; Whether the Inhabitants & Planters have duly submitted thereto; and what (if any) Obstructions have been given to the Execution of that Authority; and to return your Observations thereupon, with what you think may be further done for keeping the Peace & Quiet of the said Island, & of the Inhabitants residing therein, to Our Commiss^{rs} for Trade & Plantations.

72. And whereas Complaints have been made to Us that, notwithstanding all the precautions taken by Our said Governors for preserving the Peace in Newfoundland, Disputes have arisen between the fishing Admirals and Our Justices of the Peace in the said Island, and that some of Our said Justices had been guilty of great Irregularities, to the Oppression of Our good Subjects; Now you are, upon your arrival at Newfoundland, to enquire into the truth of all such Complaints, and to supersede such Justices of the Peace as shall appear to you to have acted unwarrantably in the execution of their Office. And you are strictly to prohibit those, who are or shall be appointed Justices, from interfering in any degree with the fishing Admirals, appointed Justices, from interfering in any degree with the fishing Admirals, in such matters relating to the Fishery as are reserved for their Jurisdiction by the aforesaid Act for encouraging the Trade to Newfoundland; taking care at the same time, that the said fishing Admirals do their duty also, according to the intention of the said Act. You are to be very particular in your Observations upon these Subjects, which you are to return to Our Commissioners for Trade & Plantations, in order to be laid before Us.

73. Whereas Complaint has been heretofore made, that the Sack Ships, always jealous of each other, and contriving who shall carry their Fish first to Market, frequently ship it before it is cured, whereby it suffers in the passage, and brings the Fishery into discredit in foreign Markets, you shall make particular enquiry into this Complaint, and suggest to Us the best means that occur to you, for preventing the said Evil for the future.

74. Whereas in the Answers returned to the like Queries by some former Commodores, some of the Columns in the Scheme of the Fishery have been returned blank, in case you find it necessary to do so likewise, you are then to mention in such Column, whether the Numbers, Prices and Quantities belonging thereto are included in any other Column, and in which Column they are so included, or whether there was no fishing this year in those Harbours, or that there was fishing, but that you had not obtained any Account thereof. And, if there be any Fishing in any other River or Harbour in Newfoundland, or the other Islands and Coasts under your Government, not in this Scheme mentioned, you are to add a Column or Columns for the same, and insert therein the best Account you can get, with your Remarks on such as you think imperfect or doubtful in any of the particulars.

75. And whereas the Answers to the several Heads of Enquiry contained in the Instructions to former Governors of Newfoundland, and the Returns made of the Trade and Fishery thereof, according to the usual form hereunto annexed, have frequently been very defective and inaccurate, you are hereby strictly commanded to be very exact in your Enquiry and Examination into every particular to which these Our Instructions have reference; to endeavour to collect the Material, from which your Answers are to be formed, from the best Authorities; and to enjoin the Admirals or other proper Officers, in those Harbours, to which your personal Inspection make to you, that those Returns be properly attested and signed by them, and that the number of Ships, their Tonnage, their number of Men, the Places from whence they come, and the Quantity of Fish taken, cured and carried to Market by each ship, be particularly expressed. And you are likewise to transmit to Our Commissioners for Trade & Plantations, in order to be laid before Us, all such other Information, with respect to the Fishery, as may enable Us to judge of the true and precise State of it in every particular, and of what may be further necessary for extending and improving so valuable a Branch of the Commerce of these Kingdoms.

76. Whereas We have thought fit by Our Commission to you, to give & grant unto you full Power & Authority to constitute and appoint Judges, and, in cases requisite; Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer for the Hearing and determining of all Criminal Causes, Treason excepted, Justices of the Peace, and other Officers and Ministers for the Administration of Justice, with Power also to pardon Offenders, and to remit all Offences, Fines & Forfeitures, willful Murther only excepted, in which case you have likewise power, on extraordinary Occasions, to grant Reprieves; it is Our express Will and Pleasure that you do not appoint any such Commissioners of Oyer & Terminer to meet or hold Assizes more than once a year, and that only during the time you or the Governor for the time being shall be resident there, and that you do not suffer any of the Officers of Our Ships of War or of any of the trading Ships of Our Subjects, which shall happen to be there, to be deprived of Life or Limb by any Sentence of such Court, but in such case you shall relieve the Criminal until Our Pleasure be known therein. And you shall take especial Care, that all Persons guilty of Treason be sent over to this Kingdom with Witnesses and sufficient proof of the Crime along with them. And it is also Our express Will and Pleasure, that you do, with your Answer to the foregoing Enquiries, return also a full Account of what you shall have done in pursuance of this Power of appointing Judges; what Proceedings have been had before the said Judges, what Obstructions or difficulties you or they have met with (if any) in putting the said Powers in Execution; and which way you conceive We may contribute to render it more usefull and beneficial to all Our Subjects, residing in or resorting to the Islands & Territories under your Government.

ADMIRALTY INSTRUCTIONS TO CAPTAIN THOMAS
GRAVES

NEWFOUNDLAND STATION.

ADM. SEC. OUT LETTERS. VOL. 90, pp. 174-184.

By &c^a.

Whereas we have appointed His Majesty's Ship Antelope under your Command together with the Ships and Sloop named in the Margin for Convoy and Protection of the fishing Ships bound this Year to and from Newfoundland, You will receive herewith for your Information Copies of the Instructions We have give to the Commanders of the Pearl, Tweed, Terpsichore, Lark, and Tamer Sloop for proceeding immediately to different parts of that Island as mentioned against their Names, and for following your Orders upon your Arrival there; And We having also directed the Commander of the Spy Command, and to cause the best dispatch to be used in getting the Antelope, and the said Sloop, ready for Service, agreeable to the directions We have already given; And then you are to put to Sea with them, taking particular care to do so without a moments [sic] loss of time, and proceed down the Channel, calling off the several Ports named in the Margin for any Ships or Vessels that may be ready to accompany you, without staying for others that may not be so, And then you are without loss of Time to go on to Newfoundland, and having seen the Trade as near the Land as you shall think proper for their Security you are to proceed with the Antelope and Spy Sloop in such manner as you shall judge best for the Service in the Execution of these Instructions.

And Whereas you have received His Majesty's Commission appointing you Governor and Commander in Chief in and over the Island of Newfoundland, the Coast of Labrador and the Entrance of Hudson's Streights to the River S^t Johns, the Island of Anticosti, Madelaine &c^a: and of all the Forts and Garrisons erected, or that shall be erected in the said Islands or on the said Coast: And also his Majesty's Instructions for your Government therein; You are to take particular care to act in all respects conformable to what is required by the said Commission and Instructions, and any other Instructions that you may receive from His Majesty relating to the aforesaid Island of Newfoundland, taking care to prevent all illegal Trade, during your continuing on that Coast, and also to secure the Fishery and Island from Piratical Ships or Vessels, and if any such there shall be, you are to use your utmost care to take or destroy them wherever you can meet with them.

You are agreeable to an Act of Parliament of the 10th & 11th Years of King William the Third, entituled an Act to encourage the Trade to Newfoundland (which you will receive herewith) to be aiding and Assisting to the Admirals, Vice Admirals and Rear Admirals, of the respective Ports & Harbours of Newfoundland, from time as need shall require, in preserving the Peace and good Government among the Seamen and Fishermen, and in apprehending Offenders.

You are to be careful that there be not taken into the Ships under your Command to be transported to Newfoundland, any Seamen or others than such as do belong to them, and as you are not to lend any of the Ship's Companys to any of the Fishing Ships, so neither are you to suffer to be taken on board them, any sort of Fish either by way of Merchandize, Freight or otherwise, excepting what shall be necessary for the Use and Spending of the Ships Companys.

And Whereas the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations have represented to us, that it is very prejudicial to this Kingdom, that the fishing Ships do not bring home from Newfoundland the Complement of men they carry out, many of them being enticed away to New England and others left in the Country; for which reason they have desired We should give you directions to signify to the Masters of all British Ships at Newfoundland, that they take care to bring home the Number of Men they carry out (except in case of Death) for that otherwise they will be prosecuted at their return; you are to let the Masters know the same accordingly, and to use your best endeavours to oblige them thereto, as far as in you lies.

And Whereas no Foreign Ships or Vessels whatever, except as in hereinafter-mentioned, have any right to Fish at or about Newfoundland, and the Commanders of the Ships of War bound as Convoy thither have at all times past been directed, not to allow of their fishing in those Parts; It is therefore His Majesty's Pleasure that you take especial care to prevent the same, and that his Orders given herein be strictly complied with, and if you shall meet with any Foreign Ships fishing at or about Newfoundland, you are to oblige them to desist and depart from off the Coast, excepting Ships &

p. 408

Vessels belonging to the Subjects of His Most Christian majesty, fishing agreeably to the 13th Article of the Treaty of Peace concluded with France at Utrecht in the year 1713, and to the 4th 5th and 6th Articles of the Treaty of Peace concluded at Paris the 10th day of February, 1763, Copies of which you will receive herewith.

And Whereas, by the said Articles of the Treaty of Paris, it is stipulated that the Province of Canada with all it's [sic] Dependencies, as well as the Island of Cape Breton, and all the other Islands & Coasts in the Gulph and River of Saint Lawrence, and all that depends upon them, shall belong to the Crown of Great Britain, but that the Subjects of France shall have the liberty of catching and drying their Fish upon a part of the Coast of Newfoundland only, to wit from Cape Bonavist[sic] to the Northward and as far as Point Riche, but not to remain there beyond the time necessary for that purpose, agreeable to the said 13th Article of the Treaty of Utrecht, by which the property of the whole Island of Newfoundland is ceded to Great Britain; And His Majesty has by the said fifth Article of the Treaty of Paris consented to leave to the Subjects of the Most Christian King, the liberty of fishing in the Gulph of Saint Lawrence, upon condition that they do not exercise the said Fishery, but at the distance of three Leagues from all the Coasts belonging to Great Britain, as well those of the Continent as those of the Islands situated in the Gulph of Saint Lawrence, and as to the Fishery out of the said Gulph, it is thereby stipulated that the Subjects of the Most Christian King shall not be permitted to exercize the said Fishery but at the distance of Fifteen Leagues from the Coasts of Nova Scotia or Acadia, and everywhere else out of the said Gulph, shall remain upon the footing of the former Treaties; you are therefore to use your utmost care, diligence and Attention, that the several Stipulations hereinbefore-mentioned be duly & strictly performed, according to the Tenor and Intention

And you are to exert your best endeavours to encourage and support the Whale Fishery, in the Straits of Belleisle and more particularly the Fishery in York Harbour and on the other parts of the Coasts of Labrador and to hinder any Trade and Intercourse being carried on by any Persons whatever other than the Subjects of Great Britain, with the Inhabitants of that Country, which of right belongs solely to His Majesty; And you are likewise to protect the Salmon and Seal fishery along the Coasts, and likewise the Fisheries carried on by His Majesty's Subjects in the Gulph of Saint Lawrence, near the Islands of Madelaine &c^a: and to settle and guard the Fishery not only at Placentia and Saint Johns, but as far to the Northward upon the Coasts of Newfoundland, and upon those of the Continent of Labrador, as His Majesty's Subjects shall be employed in catching and drying Fish, taking care to prevent the Subjects of France from giving them any disturbance by Acts of Violence, or Injustice, or by any evasion contrary to the Spirit and Intention of the said Treaties; And also to prevent the French from catching or drying their Fish, except within the distances and and[sic] in the manner beforementioned.

p. 409

You are at the same time to be careful that the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty be permitted quietly and peaceably to enjoy the privilege of fishing in the Gulph of Saint Lawrence with the distance hereinbefore-mentioned, and of catching and drying fish on that part of the Coast of Newfoundland allowed by the Treaty of Utrecht and confirmed by the Articles of the Treaty of Paris beforementioned, but not to remain there beyond the time necessary for this purpose; And you are to use your best endeavours to prevent His Majesty's Subjects from giving them any Disturbance by Acts of Violence, or Injustice, or by any evasion contrary to the Spirit and Intention of the said Treaties.

And in order that this Service may be more effectually performed, We have directed the Commanders of the Four Ships and Sloops named in the margin at the beginning of these Instructions to proceed upon the Stations thereinmentioned; and have ordered such of them whose Stations will allow of it, carefully to visit the several Harbours, Coasts, and Fishing Grounds, as well those upon the Coasts of Newfoundland, as those upon the Coasts of Labrador, and to the Northward, with directions to them to prevent the French from drying their Fish or settling thereon, otherwise than as is hereinbeforementioned between Cape Bonavista, and Point Riche, or to fish nearer than the distances allowed by the beforementioned Treaties: and at the same time We have ordered them to make Charts of all the said Coasts, with Drafts of the Harbours, noting the Depths of Water, Conveniences for fishing and whatever Observations may occur worthy of our knowledge, which are to be transmitted by them to you, that they may be laid before us; all of which you are to take care they punctually comply with, unless from unforeseen Events, you shall find it absolutely necessary for the King's Service to employ them in any other manner, which you are at liberty to do, but will be responsible to us for your Conduct therein; And We expect that each of them should give us as exact and satisfactory information upon the several heads hereinbeforementioned as they can possibly procure, for which purpose notwithstanding the Stations allotted to them, you are at liberty to employ any of them, as far as it is consistent with the protection of the fishery, in such manner and on such part of the Coasts beforementioned as will best enable them to comply with Our Instructions on this Subject; and you are yourself, if practicable, to visit your duty will admit of in the Course of the Seasons, that you may compare the Reports made to you with your own Observations,

p. 410

And Whereas by the Twenty fourth Article of the said Treaty of Paris (Copy of which you will also receive herewith) possession of the Island of Saint Peters and Miquelon is to be given up to France at the end of three Months after the exchange of the Ratifications of the said Treaty you are therefore to Assist as far as shall be necessary, in delivering up the same, and bringing His Majesty's Subjects and their effects, if there are any in those Islands, to Newfoundland, and in case any endeavours shall be used to carry on an Illicit Trade from the said Islands of St Peters & Miquilon[sic], with the Island of Newfoundland, or with any other part of His Majesty's Dominions in North America, you are to be particularly attentive to the same, and prevent (if possible) all communication whatever between the said Islands of Saint Peters and Miquelon, and any part of His Majesty's Dominions in North America.

When the early Trade shall be ready about the latter end of August, you are to order One of the Frigates to take them under Convoy, and proceed off Cape Finisterre, where he is to leave those bound to the Ports of the North Coast of Spain, and proceed off the Coasts of Portugal with the rest, calling at Lisbon for any Trade that may be ready in Ten days, beyond which time, She is upon no Account to tarry there, and is then to proceed to Sea with such as may be ready and accompany them to the Downes and remain there for farther Orders.

Whenever the Service will admit of it, you are to dispatch the Terpsichore to the Mediterranean, to follow the Orders of the Commanding Officer of His Majesty's Ships there; and to send home the other Frigates and Sloops, ordering their Commanders to proceed to Spithead, and to take with them any Trade ready, and desirous to accompany them.

By the end of October you are to take under your Convoy the Fishing Ships which may then be bound to Portugal and Spain, and seeing them off their respective Ports as far to the Southward as Cadiz, You are at liberty to tarry there ten days (but on no Account to exceed that time) and then put to Sea with any Trade that may be there, for which you are not to tarry at farthest above Eight days, and then make the best of your way with any Trade ready to proceed with you to the Downes where you are to remain for farther Order.

Additional Instructions to Hugh Palliser Esq^r Our Governor and Commander in Chief in and over Our Island of Newfoundland and the Territories and Islands dependent thereon in America.

1st. Whereas by the 2^d Article of Our Instructions to Thomas Graves Esq^r, late Governor of Newfoundland given at Our Court at St James's the [left blank] day of [left blank] 1763, in the third Year of Our Reign, it was directed, that in all things regarding the Fishery, which the Subjects of France were, by the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713 and that of Paris in 1763, allowed to carry on upon those parts of the Coast of Newfoundland, which stretch from the Place called Bonavista to the Northern Point of the said Island, and from thence running down by the Western side reach as far as the place called point Riche he should conform himself with great care and attention, and with Justice to the Subjects of both Crowns as well to the Stipulations contained in the said Treaties as to the Provisions contained in the Statute of 10. 11. W. C. 25, in order therefore for the better explanation of Our Royal Intentions therein, and to manifest Our firm Resolution to preserve the said Treaties inviolable, to secure to the Subjects of France the full possession and enjoyment of the Fishery thereby stipulated to be allowed to them within the Limits aforesaid and to Our Subjects their respective Rights and Privileges and to prevent any disputes which may arise between Our Subjects and the Subjects of France carrying on the Fishery within the said Limits, It is Our Express Will and Pleasure, and We do hereby strictly require and enjoin that you do immediately, upon your arrival within your said Government give the most full and positive Orders and Injunctions to all Officers under your Command, and in a particular manner to the Admirals in the several Harbours, that they do not in their several Stations, and as far as depends upon each respectively, permit or allow, that any Obstructions or Interruption be upon any pretence given to the Subjects of

allowed them by the stipulations of the said Treaties in common with Our Subjects, and that they do give them all reasonable Countenance and protection therein.

2^d. And whereas it is of great importance to the Interest, Peace and tranquility as well of Our Crown as of that of France, that the said Treaties should be faithfully executed according to the true intent and meaning thereof all disputes between the Subjects of both Nations and the Fishery within the Limits aforesaid amicably carried on between the two Nations according to Treaties We do therefore particularly command and require that the Admirals of the several Harbours upon the Coast, whereon the subjects of France are by the said Treaties allowed to catch Fish, to dry them on Land, and to erect stages made of Boards, and Huts necessary for that purpose, do take the most exact and particular Care, that the said Subjects of France be permitted and allowed, in common with Our Subjects, to chuse[sic] their place or places of Abode there during the Fishing season (which shall be understood to expire on the 30th of September) according as they shall respectively arrive in the said Harbours, and to occupy such a space of Beach as shall be proportioned to the Number of Boats they employ agreeably in these respects to the Treaty's of Utrecht and Paris, and the established practice in Consequence thereof, and in Case any dispute or difference shall arise between Our Subjects and the Subjects of France, touching these matters, We do expressly Will and ordain that the said Admirals shall in the decision of such dispute proceed with the strictest Justice and impartiality, taking care upon all occasions of such dispute, that the subject matter in question and all proceedings and judgements thereon be taken in writing and transmitted by such Admirals duly authenticated to you or the Commander in Chief for the time being, in order that the Judgement or Decree of such Admirals may be confirmed or annulled by You or the said Commander in Chief, as the Justice of the Case shall allow, and in either Case you or the said Commander in Chief shall certify Your or his decision to such Admiral, to the end that the same be duly executed.

3^d. It is nevertheless Our Express Will and Pleasure, that the said Admirals in the respective Harbours shall not upon any pretence whatever, presume to interfere or interpose their Authority in any Disputes or difference which may arise between one Subject of France and another concerning their Fishery.

4th. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that the said Subjects of France carrying their Fishery within the Limits aforesaid according to the said Treaties, shall not in any wise or upon any pretence whatsoever be molested or disturbed in their Persons, properties or Effects.

5. And whereas it hath been represented unto Us, that several Boats belonging to the Subjects of France, and which on their departing from the Coast last year, were left in the several Harbours on that part of the Coast whereon the said Subjects of France were permitting to fish, were burnt and destroyed by the Commanders of some of Our Ships Stationed upon the said Coast; and it appearing to Us, that such a proceeding is inconsistent with that Harmony and good understanding which we wish to see preserved between the two Nations, it is therefore Our express Will and Pleasure, and you are hereby strictly enjoined and required to forbid all such Practices and Proceedings for the future.

6. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that the Rules, Regulations and Orders contained in the foregoing Instructions, be made public as soon as possible after Your Arrival in Your Government, and be fixed up in some conspicuous and well frequented place in every Harbour within the Limits aforesaid, to the end that not only Our Subjects but also those of the Crown of France may be fully informed of Our Royal Intentions and directions herein.

And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that you do by every opportunity that shall Offer, or as soon as possible after your Return to their Kingdom transmit to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, in Order to be laid before Us An Account of all your Proceedings and of all such Orders judgements and decrees as you shall have made in pursuance of these Our Instructions.

NEWFOUNDLAND, THE COAST OF LABRADOR, ETC.

Instructions to Our Trusty and wellbeloved Hugh Palliser Esq^r Our Governor and Commander in Chief in and over Our Island of Newfoundland in America, and all the Coast of Labrador from the Entrance of Hudson's Streights to the River S^t Lawrence, as also of all Our Forts and Garrisons erected and established, or that shall be erected and established in Our Said Islands or on the Coast of Labrador within the Limits aforesaid. Given at Our Court at S^t James's the day of 1764, and in the fourth Year of our Reign.

With these Our Instructions you will receive Our Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, Constituting You Our Governor & Commander in Chief in and Over Our Island of Newfoundland in America, and all the Coast of Labrador from the Entrance of Hudson's Streights to the River of S^t John's, which discharges itself into the Sea nearly opposite the West end of the Island of Anticosti, including that Island, with any other small Islands on the said Coast of Labrador, and also the Islands of Mandelaine in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, as also of all Our Forts and Garrisons erected and established, or that shall be erected and established in Our said Islands, or on the Coast of Labrador within the Limits aforesaid, with directions to obey such Orders and Instructions as shall from time to time be given You under Our Signet and Sign Manual or by Our Order in Our Privy Council.

First, you are therefore to fit yourself with all convenient speed and to repair to Your said Command; and being arrived you are to take upon you the Execution of the place and Trust We have reposed in you; and, as soon as conveniently may be, to assemble the principal Inhabitants in the Island of Newfoundland, and in such other places as you shall judge proper or necessary within your said Government, and with all due Soleminity to cause Our said commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, constituting you Our Governor and Commander in Chief, as aforesaid, to be read and published at such meetings.

2. Whereas by the second Article of Our Instructions to Thomas Graves Esq^r, late Governor of Newfoundland, given at Our Court at S^t James's the day of 1763 in the third year of Our Reign, it was directed, that in all things regarding the Fishery which the Subjects of France were, by the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713, and that of Paris in 1763, allowed to carry on upon those parts of the Coast of Newfoundland, which stretch from the place called Bonavista to the Northern point of the said Island, and from thence running down by the Western side reach as far as the place called point Riche, he should confirm himself with great care and attention, and with Justice to the Subjects of both Crowns as well to the Stipulations contained in the said Treaties, as to the provisions contained in the Statute of 10 & 11 W. C. 25; in Order therefore for the better explanation of Our Royal Intentions therein, and to manifest Our firm Resolution to preserve the said Treaties inviolable, to secure to the Subjects of France the full possession and enjoyment of the Fishery thereby stipulated to be allowed to them within the limits aforesaid, and to Our Own Subjects their respective Rights and Privileges, and to prevent any disputes, which may arise between Our Subjects and the Subjects of France carrying on the Fishery within the said limits; It is Our express will and Pleasure, and We do hereby strictly require and enjoin, that You do, immediately upon your arrival within your said Government, give the most full and positive Orders and Injunctions to all Officers under your Command, and in a particular manner to the Admirals in the several Harbours, that they do not, in the several Stations, and as far as depends upon each respectively, permit or allow, that any obstructions or Interruption be upon any pretence given to the Subjects of France in the enjoyment of that Fishery, which is allowed them by the Stipulations of the said Treaties in Common with Our Subjects, and that they do give them all reasonable Countenance and protection therein.

3. And whereas it is of great importance to the Interest, Peace & Tranquility as well of Our Crown as that of France, that the said Treaties should be faithfully executed according to the true intent and meaning thereof, all disputes between the Subjects of both Nations avoided; and the Fishery within the limits aforesaid amicably carried on between the two Nations according to Treaties; We do therefore particularly command and require, that the Admirals of the several Harbours upon the Coast, whereon the Subjects of France are by the said Treaties allow'd to catch Fish, to dry them on Land, and to erect Stages made of Boards and Huts necessary for that purpose, do take the most exact and particular Care, that the said Subjects of France* [be permitted and allowed in common with Our Subjects to chuse[sic] their place or places of abode there during the Fishery Season, which shall be understood to expire on the 30th of September according as they shall respectively arrive in the said Harbours, and to occupy such a space of Beach as shall be proportioned to the Number of Boats they employ, agreeably in these respects to the Treaties of Utrecht and Paris, and the established practice in consequence thereof.] And in case any dispute or difference shall arise between Our Subjects and the Subjects of France touching these matters. We do expressly Will and Ordain, that the said Admirals shall, in the decision of such dispute, proceed with the Strictest Justice and impartiality, taking care upon all occasion of such dispute that the Subject matter in question and all proceedings and Judgements thereon, be taken down in Writing, and transmitted by such Admirals, duly Authenticated, to you or the Commander in Chief for the time being, in Order that the Judgement or Decree of such Admirals may be confirmed or annulled by you or the said Commander in Chief, as the Justice of the Case shall require, and the Law shall allow; and in either Case you or the said Commander in Chief shall certify Your or his decision to such Admiral; to the end that the same may be duly executed.

4. It is nevertheless Our Express Will and Pleasure, that the said Admirals in the respective Harbours shall now, upon any pretence whatsoever, presume to interfere or interpose their Authority in any disputes or difference, which may arise between one Subject of France and another concerning their Fishery.

5. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that the said Subjects of France, carrying on their Fishery within the Limits aforesaid, according to the said Treaties, shall not in any wise upon any pretence whatsoever be molested or disturbed in their persons, properties, or Effects.

6. And Whereas it hath been represented unto Us, that several Boats, belonging to the Subjects of France; and which on their departing from the Coast last Year, were left in the several Harbours, on that part of the Coast whereon the said Subjects of France were permitted to Fish, were burnt and destroyed by the Commanders of some of Our Ships stationed upon the said Coast, and it appearing to Us, that such proceeding is inconsistent with that harmony and good understanding which We wish to see preserved between the two Nations, it is therefore Our Express Will and Pleasure, and you are hereby strictly enjoined and required to forbid all such practices and proceedings for the future.

7. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that the Rules, Regulations and Orders, contained in the foregoing

Instructions, be made publick, as soon as possible after Your arrival in Your Government, and be fixed up in some conspicuous and Well frequented place in every Harbour within the Limits aforesaid, to the end that not only Our Subjects, but also those of the Crown of France may be fully informed of Our Royal Intention and directions herein.

8. And it is our further Will & Pleasure that you do by every opportunity that shall offer, or as soon as possible after your return to this Kingdom transmit to our Commission for Trade and Plantations in order to be laid before US, an account of all your proceedings and of all such orders judgements and decrees as you shall have made in pursuance of these Our Instructions.

9. And whereas by the said 5th Article of the Treaty lately concluded at Paris, We have consented to leave to the Subjects of the Most Christian King the Liberty of Fishing in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence on Condition that the Subjects of France do not exercise the said Fishery but at the distance of three leagues from all the Coasts belonging to Great Britain, as well as those of the Continent as those of the Islands situated in the said Gulph of S^t Lawrence, you are hereby required to carry the stipulations of the said clauses into full Execution, within the Limits of your Government.

10. You are to use your best endeavours to prevent any Aliens or Strangers whatever from fishing or drying fish on any of the Coasts or in any of the Harbours of the Islands and Territories under your Government unless in the Exceptions made by the 13th Article of the Treaty of Utrecht and the 5th Article of the late definitive Treaty confined to the Subjects of France permitted to fish within the Distinct and Limits marked out by those Treaties and under the several Restrictions specified in the Articles themselves.

11. And Whereas by the 6th Article of the said Treaty lately concluded at Paris a copy of which Article is hereunto annexed, the Islands of S^t Peter and Miquelon are ceded to France to serve as a shelter to the French Fishermen, His Most Christian Majesty engaging not to fortify the said Islands, to erect no Buildings upon them but merely for the convenience of the Fishery, and to keep upon them a Guard of fifty men only for the Police. You are therefor from time to time to enquire and report to US, by our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations whether the Stipulations contained in the said Article are duly observed, And you are to use your best endeavours in prevent any commerce between Our Subjects under your Government and the said Islands, by means whereof the Inhabitants of the materials for building vessels and erecting Houses and Works necessary for the Fishery, and of circulating French produce & manufactures amongst the British Fishermen.

12. It is Our further Will and Pleasure, that You do from time to time as the nature of the Service will allow, visit all the Coasts and Harbours of the said Islands and Territories under Your Government, in order to inspect and examine and State and Condition of the Fisheries which are or may be carried on upon the said Coasts and Islands. You shall also use Your best endeavours to procure accurate Draughts or Maps of the several Harbours, Bays and Coasts of Newfoundland, and the other Islands and Territories under Your Government, and you are more particularly to direct the Officer of any Vessel under Your Command, which may be appointed to visit that part of the Coast of Labrador which lyes between Hudson's Streights and the Streights of Bellisle, to search and explore the great Inlet, commonly known by the name of Davis's Inlet, in order to discover, whether the same has or has not any passage to Hudson's Bay or any other inclosed Sea.

13. You are also to enquire and report to Us, by Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, whether any or what further Establishment may be necessary to be made, or Forts erected in any part of Newfoundland, or other Islands or Territories under Your Government, either for the protection of the Fishery, the Security of the Country, or the establishing and Carrying on a Commerce with the Indians residing in or resorting to the said Islands or inhabiting the Coast of Labrador.

14. You are not to permit the Subjects of any foreign Prince or State whatsoever to carry on any Commerce with the said Indians, and to use your best endeavours to conciliate their Affections, and to induce them to Trade with Our Subjects, reporting to Us, by Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, the best Account you can Obtain of the Number of the said Indians, the places they frequent, the nature and extent of the Commerce that is or may be carried on with them, and how the same may, in Your Opinion, be further extended and improved.

15. And Whereas we have been informed, that very Considerable and advantageous Whale and Sea Cow Fishery may be carried on in the Gulph of St. Lawrence, and upon the Labrador Coast; It is therefore Our Will and Pleasure, that You do give all possible encouragement to such fishery, and report to Us, by Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, Your Opinion in what way and by what means, so valuable a Branch of Commerce may be extended and improved.

16. You are also to make a very particular enquiry into, and report to Us, as aforesaid, the actual State and Nature of the Fisheries carried on by the Subjects of France in every distinct Branch thereof, as well that which is carried on for Morue Verte upon the Banks without the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, as the dry Fishery carried on at Miquelon and S^t Peters' upon the Coast of Newfoundland from Bonavista to Point Riche, or in other parts of the Gulph of S^t Lawrence; and you are to be as particular as may be in your accounts of the Number and Nature of the Ships and Boats employed in those different Fisheries; the number of Men; the Quantity of Fish caught, cured, and carried to Market; and in general of every other Commerce of France.

17. You shall strictly enjoin all Our Officers, and Soldiers, and other persons whatsoever belonging to the present and future Garrisons in Newfoundland, and the other Islands and Territories under your Government, not to engage in the Fishery there, nor interrupt the Fishermen in the curing of their Fish, nor to take up for themselves any Beaches, Stages, or Cookrooms upon any pretence whatsoever, upon pain of Our highest Displeasure.

18. And you are particularly to suppress the engrossing of Commodities, as tending to the prejudice of the Fishery, and the persons employed therein.

19. You shall transmit unto Us, and to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations in order to be laid before Us, an Account of the Arms, Ammunition, and Stores, that have been sent from Our Office of Ordnance here to Our Forts and Garrisons in Newfoundland; and likewise an Account of the State of Our said Forts; how the said Stores have been employed; and whether any of them, and how many of them, have been sold, spent, lost, decayed, or disposed of; and to whom, and to what uses; together with an Inventory of all such Arms, Ammunition, and Stores, as are remaining in Our Magazines there; as also a Duplicate thereof to Our Master General or principal Officers of Our Ordnance; which accounts are to express the particulars of Ordnance, Carriages, Ball, Powder, and all other sorts of Arms and Ammunition in Our publick Stores at your Arrival, and so yearly of what shall be sent thither, specifying the time of the disposal, and the occasion thereof.

20. Whereas by the Act for the encouragement of Trade passed in the fifteenth year of the Reign of King Charles the Second, no Commodities of the Growth, production, or Manufacture of Europe, except salt for the Fishery of New England and Newfoundland, Wines of the growth of the Madeiras, of the Growth and Production of Ireland, shall be imported into any of Our Colonies or Plantations, but what shall be bonâ fide and without Fraud laden and shipped in Great Britain, and in Ships duly qualified; And whereas Complaint has been made of Masters of Ships and others carrying on a clandestine Trade amongst the Fishing-Ships from Great Britain, with others from Our Colonies and Plantations in America, contrary to the intent and meaning of the said Act, you shall use your utmost endeavour for the due observation of the said Act.

21. You are to permit a free exercise of Religion to all persons, except Papists, so they be contented with a quiet and Peaceable Enjoyment of the same, not giving Offence or Scandal to the Government.

22. It is Our Will and Pleasure, that you do cause the Laws made against Blasphemy, Profaneness, Adultery, Fornication, Polygamy, Incest, Profanation of the Lord's Day, Swearing, and Drunkenness, to be vigorously executed, and that you take due care for the punishment of the aforementioned Vices by presentment upon Oath to be made to the Justices of the Peace in their Sessions, by their Constables, or other inferior Officers, at the several Harbours at the proper times of the Year to be appointed for that purpose;

p. 424

And for the further Discouragement of Vice and Encouragement of Virtue, and good living, you are not to Admit any Person to Act as a Justice of the Peace, whose Ill Fame or Conversation may occasion Scandal; and especially You shall take care, that the Lords Day be devoutly and duly observed; that the Books of Common Prayer, as by law established in this Kingdom, be read each Sunday and Holiday; and the Blessed Sacrament Administered according to the Rites of the Church of England in all such Chapels or publick places of Worship, as are already, or may be settled there.

23. And if any Orthodox Minster there shall appear to give Scandal either by his Doctrine, or Manners, or shall Preach, or Administer the Holy Sacrament in any Orthodox Church or Chapel with being in due Orders, you shall give an Account thereof to the Lord Bishop of London.

24. And you are to take especial care, that a Table of Marriages, established by the Canons of the Church of England, be hung up in every Orthodox Church or Chappel, and duly observed.

25. If any thing shall happen, which may be of Advantage or Security to Our said Islands under Your Government, which is not herein, or by Our Commission provided for, you are hereby allowed to take order for the present herein, giving to Us, by one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, speedy notice thereof, that so you may receive Our Ratification, if We shall approve of the same; provided always, that you do not, by colour of any power or authority hereby given you, allow or encourage any thing to be done contrary to the true intent and meaning of an Act of Parliament passed in the Tenth and Eleventh Years of the Reign of King William the Third, intituled, "An Act to encourage to trade to Newfoundland," nor contrary to any of the Laws or Statutes of this Our Realm.

26. And you are, upon all Occasions, to send unto Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations only, a particular Account of all your proceedings, and of the Condition of the Affairs of the Islands under your Government, and the Trade and Fishery thereof, and of the Banks, Seas, and parts adjacent.

27. Whereas by the said Act to encourage trade to Newfoundland, many things are enacted, for the due and orderly carrying on of the said Trade, which are necessary for your observation in inspecting the same during Your Stay in those parts; You are therefore, in order to the better regulating your conduct in that Service, to carry with you a copy of the said Act for your own Use and Government.

28. You are likewise carefully and diligently to enquire and observe, whether the several Rules and Orders, contained in the said Act for the more advantageous management of the Fishery, be duly observed by all those concerned, therein Viz^t

Trade, that no sort of Ballast, nor press Stones, or anything else hurtful to, or annoying any of the Harbours there, be thrown out of any Ship, or otherwise, to the prejudice of any of the said Harbours, and likewise to make the following enquiries.

30. Whether any person, at his departure out of the said Country, or at any other time, do destroy, deface, or do any detriment to the Stages, Cookrooms, Flakes &c^a or to the materials thereunto belonging, which had been possessed by himself or others; and whether the repair the defects, that may be in their Stages, or other Conveniencys by Timber fetched out of the Woods, and not by committing any manner or spoil, or waste upon the Stages already built.

31. Whether the Admirals, Vice Admirals, or Rear Admirals or the Harbours, and the Commanders of the other fishing Ships in each Harbour, Beach and Flakes, then each of them have necessary use for; or against possessing several Places at once, to the hindrance and prejudice of others; and relating to the Election of such Places, as any of them, whose Right it is shall choose to abide in. And in case of any difference, whether the Admirals in their several Harbours do proportion the Place to the Ships, according to the number of Boats, which each of the said Ships do keep.

32. Whether those Inhabitants, or others, who since the year 1685 had engrossed several Stages, Cookrooms, Beaches, and other Places, which before that time belonged to the fishing-ships, to the prejudice of such fishing-Ships, as arrive there in the fishing season, have, according to the direction of the aforesaid Act, relinquished & left the same for the publick Use of the fishing-Ships arriving there.

33. Whether the Inhabitants have possessed, or do possess themselves of any such Stages, Cookrooms &c., or of any

Trainfats, or other Conveniencies, which have belonged to any fishing-Ships at any time since the year 1685, before the yearly Arrival of the fishing Ships, and until all such Ships are provided with Stages, Cookrooms, &c. according to the said Act.

34. Whether the Bye-Boatkeepers pretend to, or meddle with any House, Stage, Cookroom, Trainfat, or other Conveniency that did belong to the fishing-Ships since the year 1685, or that has been cut out, or made by Ships after the 25th of March 1700.

35. Whether the Bye-Boatkeepers, and the Masters of fishing-Ships do carry over with them such Numbers of Fresh men, in proportion to their respective Companies of Seamen, as the Act directs; Whether they are furnished with Certificates of their having made Oath before their sailing from this Kingdom, that they do carry with them such a Number of green-Men; to whom they do produce such Certificates; and do the Admirals, or the Custom-House Officers keep any Account, or make any Return thereof?

36. Whether the Inhabitants do also employ such Numbers of fresh or green Men, as the said Act directs; and whether the Admirals take care, that they punctually comply therewith.

37. Whether any persons do presume to expunge, cut out, deface, or alter the Mark of any Boats or Trainfats of other persons; and do convert them to their own use, or remove the same from the places, where they were left by the Owners, contrary to the directions of the said Act.

38. Whether any person whatsoever rind any of the trees, set fire to any of the Woods, or do, or cause to be done any detriment or destruction to the same for any use whatsoever, excepting only for necessary Fuel, for building and repairing Houses, Ships, Boats, Train fats, Stages, Cookrooms, and other conveniences for the Fishery.

39. Whether the Rules, ordained by this Act, for preventing any Annoyance or hindrance in the hailing of Sayns in the customary baiting Places, and against the Stealing of Baits and Nets to be duly observed.

40. Whether the Admirals are careful, in order to preserve the Peace and good Government both in their respective Harbours, and on Shore, to see, that the Rules and Orders contained in the aforesaid Act be duly put in Execution, and whether each of the said Admirals do keep Journals, and exact accounts of the number of all Ships, Boats, Stages, and Trainfats, and of all the Seamen and Inhabitants employed in their respective Harbours, that the same may be delivered at their return to Great Britain as the Act directs.

41. And Whereas it has been represented to Us, that the Bye-Boat-keepers and Masters of fishing Boats do not carry over with them, and that the Inhabitants do not employ such a number of fresh or green Men, as the aforesaid Act to encourage the Trade to Newfoundland directs; and that the Admirals in the respective Harbours do not take Care to enforce a due compliance therewith, or to preserve Peace and good Government in their respective Harbours or on Shore; and that they do not keep any Journals of the number of Ships employed in the several Harbours, concerning themselves only with their own Fishery; And whereas such Omissions and Neglect tend greatly to the prejudice of Our Service, and to defeat the good Intentions of this Provision of the said Act, which is calculated for increasing the number of Seamen for the Service of Our Navy, and the promoting the Trade & Navigation of this Kingdom; It is therefore Our Will and Pleasure, and you are a due and exact compliance with the said Act for encouraging the Trade to Newfoundland; And that you do in these and all other particulars recommend to the Admirals in the respective Harbours, to keep regular Accounts, and do all such other things, as the Act directs, upon pain of Our highest displeasure.

Admirals of those respective Harbours do determine the same, according as the said Act directs; And in case any Persons think themselves aggrieved by the Sentences of the said Admirals, whether those Persons do appeal unto You, or unto the Commanders of Our Ships of War for a final determination, and both Parties submit accordingly thereunto.

43. Whether the Lord's day be strictly and duely observed; and whether the Inhabitants who keep any sort of Public Houses for entertainment do forbear on that day to utter or sell any sort of strong Liquor, or Tobacco, as by the said Act is directed?

44. Whether any Aliens or Strangers, not residing in the Kingdom of Great Britain, or Ireland, do resort to Newfoundland, or to the Islands adjacent thereto, and take Bait, or use any sort of Trade, or fishing whatsoever in those Parts.

45. And as you are to transmit your Answers to the foregoing Enquiries, which are founded upon the aforesaid Act of the tenth and eleventh years of the reign of King William the third; so you are likewise to take an exact account of the number of the British fishing-Ships, and Sack Ships, and Ships and Vessels from America, that arrive this year in the Islands under your Government;

The Burthen of the said Ships; and the number of their men; —The number of the Passengers transported by the fishing-Ships.

The number of Boats employed by the British fishing Ships, by the Ships from America, By the Bye Boatkeepers, and by the Inhabitants.

The number of the Bye Boatkeepers, and their Servants.

The quantity of Fish and Train-Oil made by the British fishing Ships, by the Ships from America, by the Boatkeepers, and by the Inhabitants.

The value of Seal Oil, and of Ferts taken by the Inhabitants last Winter.

The Number of Stages and Train-Fats belonging to the Fishery.

The total quantity of Fish carried to foreign Markets.

The prices the said Fish and Oil are sold at, both in barter for Goods, and for good Bills payable here.

The number of public and private Houses.

The number of Inhabitants, and how many have been born, or have died there, since the departure of the last year's Convoy.

Which you are to send by the first conveyance that offers, according to the usual Form hereunto annexed.

Moreover you are particularly to inform yourself.

46. In what manner the Inhabitants are subsisted; what Land is there improved? Whether the Country produces such Provisions, as they want; and whether they have any number of Cows, Sheep, and Swine; or whether they receive any Provisions from Our Plantations in America; of what Sorts, or kind, and the Quantities thereof?

47. Whether the said Inhabitants are wholly supplied with Sail Cloth, Nets, & Tackle, for their Fishery, and with Woollen, Linen, Leather, & other Manufactures, for their use and wear, from this Kingdom; or whether they are furnished with any of the aforesaid necessaries from the Plantations, or from any foreign Country whatsoever?

48. What Wages do the said Inhabitants allow to their Servants; and in what manner do they pay them?

49. How much does the Charge of fitting out and maintaining one of their Fishing-boats for the whole Season amount to?

50. Whether the Inhabitants have any other Employment in the Fishing-Season for their Servants than taking and curing of Fish? whether they are diligent therein? how many Men they allow to each of their Fishing Boats? whether they can afford their Fish as cheap as the Fishing Ships, and the Bye-Boats, or what difference is made between the price of the one and the other?

51. In what manner they employ themselves and their Servants after the Fishing-Season is over & during the Winter? whether they are industrious in providing and making necessaries for the next Fishing Season? or, on the contrary, whether they mispend a great part of their Time in Debaucheries and Excesses.

52. Whether any Trade is carried on for Beaver and other Furs by the Inhabitants, or by any others who remain in the country? what Quantity they have taken this last Winter, and whether they have any Traffick with the Indians?

53. Whether the Houses, Buildings and inclosures of the Inhabitants are at such distance from the Waterside, as not to hinder or obstruct the Fishermen in making their Flakes, or in drying and curing their Fish?

54. Whether the Inhabitants claim a right to all such Stages, Cookrooms, Flakes &c^a as they have made or built in their fishing-Places, which have not been possessed by the Fishing Ships since the Year 1685, tho' they make no use of them?

55. Whether such Fishing Places and Conveniences are free for the Public Use of the Fishing Ships arriving there, and nothing insisted on, or demanded by the said Inhabitants for their use and hire?

56. How many Flakes are allowed to each Fishing-Boat, and of what length? whether they are extended in length according to the ancient Custom from the Shore up into the Land? or whether any of the Inhabitants or Fishermen extend their Flakes along the Shore, or possess a larger Front to the Waterside, according to the number of their Boats, than was formerly allowed.

57. Whether it was every ascertained or determined in the several, or in any of the Harbours in Newfoundland, what Fishing Places did belong to the Fishing Ships before the year 1685? And whether any Account is kept of those Fishing Places, which they have been in possession of since that year, in order to prevent such disputes, as must otherwise very frequently happen between the Masters of the Ships and the Inhabitants.

58. Whether the Fishing Ships, that proceed directly from this Kingdom to Newfoundland, are victualled here, and provided with all other necessaries of British Produce and Manufacture for the whole Voyage? or whether the Masters or Freighters do not furnish themselves with Provisions, that are brought from the Plantations, or other Parts to Newfoundland?

59. Whether any British Ships arriving at S^t Johns, or in any other Harbours in Newfoundland from Portugal, or other foreign Parts, before any Ship, that was cleared from this Kingdom, has been at any time permitted to be Admiral of the Harbour? or whether according to the Custom of Newfoundland, such Ships only as are cleared from Great Britain have a Right to be Admirals?

60. Whether the Admirals, or any other Ships, who arrive yearly at S^t John's, or in the other Harbours, do put their Passengers, or any of them into possession of the most convenient, or of any other Fishing Places, Stages, &c^a upon pretence they are Freighters of their Ships, before the Arrival of the other Fishing Ships, or before they are all provided?

61. Whether any of the Bye Boatkeepers, who remain in the Country during the Winter, and that are not Inhabitants, do retain to their own use, or for the use of themselves & their Partners, who are expected by the Fishing-Ships, the Fishing Places, Stages, Beaches, Flakes &c^a which they possessed the preceding year? or whether they take possession of any others, that may be more convenient for them in the ensuing Fishing Season, before the arrival of the Fishing Ships, or before the said Ships are well supplied?

62. Whether any of the Fishing Ships pursue or follow the old laudable Custom of allowing their Ship's Companies Shares of what they make in the Voyage, instead of Wages; and, in such Case, how much doth the Charge of fitting out and maintaining a Ship of one hundred Tons with fifty Men, and ten Boats, amount to for the whole Voyage?

63. Whether any Commodities of the Growth, Production or Manufacture of Europe, that are not bonâ fide and without Fraud laden and shipt in this Kingdom, be imported and brought into Newfoundland, all such Commodities being prohibited by the 15th Car: 2^d Chap. 7th, except Salt for the Fishery, Wine of the Growth of, and from the Medeiras, and the Azores, or Western Islands, and Victuals &c^a from Ireland?

64. How these Commodities are disposed of, whether only to the Fishery, viz^t to the Seamen and Inhabitants? or whether any Trade be driven by selling those Goods to the Ships belonging to New England, and other Plantations, in order to supply the said Plantations with such Commodities, as they ought to have directly from Great Britain, and not otherwise?

65. What Quantities of Rum and other Plantation-Goods are brought to Newfoundland? more especially of those enumerated in former Acts of Parliament? Whether any of the enumerated Commodities are sold to the Ships bound to Portugal, and other foreign parts, so as to make an indirect Trade to those Countries in Goods, which ought not to be carried thither, before they had been first landed in Great Britain?

66. In what manner is the Trade between Newfoundland and any other of our American Colonies carried on? what quantities of Rum, Melasses, Wine, Sugar, Tobacco, Flour and other Provisions have been imported this year? To whom, and at what prices are the said Goods sold? Are they paid for in Fish, or in Bills? If in Fish, is it disposed of again, or loaded in the Sack Ships for Europe? and what value is it computed, that the Goods sold may annually amount to?

67. How many Taverns, or Public Houses for entertainment may there be kept in Newfoundland, or at least in the Harbour of St John? are they kept only by the Inhabitants, or by the Bye-Boatkeepers, and the People of New England also? do they trust the Fishermen upon their own Credit; or do the Masters of the Ships, and of the Bye-Boats permit them to trust their Crews, and deduct the same out of their respective Wages, Hire, or Shares, in order to satisfy the said Tavern-keepers? are not the poor Seamen hereby tempted to spend the greatest part, or the full amount of their Wages, and frequently run so far in debt, that they are forced to remain, as Servants to the Inhabitants, and at last constrained to betake themselves to New England?

68. Whether the Inhabitants do not usually trust their own Servants with Rum and other Stores, to a greater Value than their Wages amount to? and whether they are not generally paid in the manner, as in the foregoing Article?

69. How much do the Bye-Boatmen and the Inhabitants allow to the Masters of the Fishing Ships for the passage of their Servants; both out and home? In what manner do the said Inhabitants pay the Masters of the Fishing-Ships for the same, and for the several necessaries they supply them with; and whether a considerable part of these Debts is not secured by suffering their Seamen to run in Debt to the Inhabitants?

70. Whether this method of trusting the Fishermen is not the occasion of many Thefts and Disorders? are they not by their Debaucheries often withdrawn from, and rendered unfit for their Labour, to the Great discouragement & obstruction of the Fishery?

71. Whether the Masters of the Fishing Ships & Bye Boats do not connive at, or encourage their men to remain in the Land, that they might save the Charge of carrying them home? What number of men do stay behind yearly, and particularly last year? What number of Irish Catholicks is there in all the Towns in Newfoundland; and what proportion do they bear to the Protestants?

72. Whether the American Traders do still continue to entice and carry thither numbers of Handycraft Men, Seamen, and Fishermen? and whether any of the Inhabitants so favour, or assist them therein?

73. And whereas this practice must be prevented, if possible, you are to require all the Masters of the American Ships and Vessels, before their departure from Newfoundland, to enter into Obligations not to carry any of the Seamen &c^a, and all possible care must be taken to have those Obligations so witnessed, that, in case it be thought proper to put them in execution, they may not be invalidated for want of Evidence. And you are likewise to be as strict, as is practicable, to oblige all such American Ships, as may be in Newfoundland, to sail from thence at the same time you shall leave the Land, and to get all the proof, that can be had, of the breach of any Obligations, entered into, as aforesaid, and to transmit an account thereof to Our Commission for Trade and Plantations.

74. And whereas Complaints have formerly been made, that, by reason of the ill curing of the Fish in Newfoundland, the consumption thereof has been considerably lessened; and that the Trade would be lost, if effectual Care was not taken to reform the same; You are therefore to command the Admirals of the Harbours strictly to enjoin the Masters of the Fishing Ships, the Bye-Boatkeepers, and Inhabitants, to take the greatest Care in curing their Fish with good Salt, and with a sufficient Quantity; and in preparing, husbanding, & ordering the same, that the Credit thereof may be again recovered, and that it may be well received and esteemed in the several Places, to which it is carried for Sale.

And as the said Admirals are obliged to have a watchful Eye upon such, as are negligent herein, so they are to return to you the names of those, who will not comply with this Admonition.

And further you are upon this occasion very particularly to enquire into their manner and method of taking and curing their Fish. What quantity of Salt they allow for the curing every hundred Quintals? Whether they are quality of any abuse in the ordering thereof; Whether the Fish taken at a distance from the Land by their small vessels, is not prejudiced before it is brought on Shore? Whether the Inhabitants, the Fishing-Ships, or the Bye-Boatkeepers are most to be blamed? And in short from whence these Complaints did arise, and what methods are to be taken to prevent or rectify whatsoever is amiss?

p. 432

Vista and Cape John in Newfoundland, and a second, which is since erected by other persons at Grand Salmonier, Little Salmonier, &c^a in the same Island, which may prove of advantage to Great Britain; It will be necessary, that you give all due Encouragement and protection to those undertakings, whereof you will inform yourself, and transmit the fullest Account you can get of the same to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations.

76. And Whereas Our late Royal Grandfather did, by His Letters Patent under the Great Seal of Great Britain, bearing the date at Westminster the 31st day of May in the second year of His Reign, constitute and appoint Henry Osborne Esquire to be Governor and Commander in Chief in, and over the said Island of Newfoundland, with power to constitute and appoint Justices of the Peace, with other necessary Officers and Ministers for the better administration of Justice, and keeping the Peace and Quiet of the said island; which Powers have been continued to all the subsequent Governors there, and are continued in Our Commission to you: you are, upon your Arrival in the Island, to make enquiry, what Effect that Commission has had; What Justices of the Peace are now in actual Commission, and do execute the same in the respective Towns in Newfoundland, particularly at Placentia; how, and in what manner such Justices of the Peace behave in the execution of that Power; Whether the Inhabitants and Planters have duly submitted thereto: and what, if any, obstructions have been given to the execution of that Authority: And to return your observations thereupon, with what you think may be further done for keeping the Peace and Quiet of the said Island, and of the Inhabitants residing therein, to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations.

77. And whereas Complaints have been made to Us, that notwithstanding all the precautions taken by Our said Governor for preserving the Peace in Newfoundland, disputes have arisen between the fishing Admirals and Our Justices of the Peace in the said Island; and that some of Our said Justices had been guilty of great Irregularities, to the Oppression of Our good Subjects: now you are, upon your arrival at Newfoundland, to inquire into the Truth of all such Complaints, and to supersede such Justices of the Peace, as shall appear to you to have acted unwarrantably in the execution of their Office. And you strictly to prohibit those, who are, or shall be appointed Justices, from interfering in any degree with the fishing Admirals, in such matters relating to the Fishery, as are reserved for their Jurisdiction, by the aforesaid Act for "encouraging the Trade to Newfoundland"; taking care at the same time; that the said fishing-Admirals do their duty also, according to the intention of the said Act. You are to be very particular in your Observations upon these Subjects, which you are to return to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations in order to be laid before Us.

78. Whereas Complaint has been heretofore made, that the Sack-Ships, always jealous of each other, and contriving, who shall carry their Fish first to Market, frequently ship it, before it is cured, whereby it suffers in the passage, and brings the Fishery into discredit in foreign Markets; you shall make particular enquiry into this Complaint, and suggest to Us the best means, that occur to you, for preventing the said Evil for the future.

79. Whereas in the Answers returned to the like Queries by some former Commodores, some of the Columns in the Scheme of the Fishery have been returned Blank; In case you find it necessary to do so likewise, you are then to mention in such Column, whether the Numbers, Prices, and Quantities belonging thereto, are included in any other Column; and in which Column they are so included or whether there was no fishing this year in those Harbours; or that there was fishing, but that you had not obtained any account thereof: And if there be any fishing in any other River or Harbour in Newfoundland or the other Islands & Coasts under your Government not in the Scheme mentioned, you are to add a Column or Columns for the Same, and insert therein the best account you can get with your remarks on such, as you think imperfect or doubtful in any of the particulars.

80. And Whereas the Answers to the several Heads of enquiry contained in the Instructions to former Governors of Newfoundland, and the Returns made of the Trade and Fishery thereof, according to the usual form hereunto annexed; have frequently been very defective and inaccurate; you are hereby strictly commanded to be very exact in your Enquiry and Examination into every particular, to which these Our Instructions have reference; to endeavour to collect the Materials, from which your Answers are to be formed, from the best Authorities, and to enjoin the Admirals or other proper Officers in those Harbours, to which your personal Inspecting cannot extend, to be as accurate as may be in the Returns, which they shall make to you, that those Returns be properly attested and signed by them; and that the number of Ships, be particularly expressed. And you are likewise to transmit to Us, by by[sic] one of Our principal Secretaries of State all such other Information, with respect to the Fishery, as may enable Us to judge of the true and precise State of it in every particular, and of what may be further necessary for extending and improving so valuable a Branch of the Commerce of these Kingdoms.

81. Whereas We have thought fit, by Our Commission to you, to give and grant unto you full Power & Authority to constitute and appoint Judges, and, in cases requisite, Commissioners of Oyer & Terminer, for the hearing & determining of all Criminal Causes; Treason excepted, Justices of the Peace, and other Officers and Ministers for the Administration of Justice, with Power also to pardon Offenders, and to remit all Offences, Fines, & Forfeitures, wilful Murther only excepted, in which Case you have likewise Power, on extraordinary Occassions, to grant Reprieves; It is Our express Will and Pleasure, that you do not appoint any such Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer to meet or hold Assizes more than once a year, and that only during the time you, or the Governor for the time being shall be resident there; And that you do not suffer any of the Officers of Our Ships of War, or of any of the trading Ships of Our Subjects, which shall happen to be there, to be deprived of Life or Limb by any Sentence of such Court; but in such Case, you shall reprieve the Criminal, until Our Pleasure be known therein. And you shall take especial Care, that all Persons guilty of Treason be sent over to this Kingdom, with Witnesses, and sufficient Proof of the Crime, along with them, And it is also Our express Will and Pleasure, that you do, with your Answer to the foregoing Enquiries, return also a full Account of what you shall have done in pursuance of this Power of appointing Judges; what Proceedings have been had before the said Judges; what Obstructions or Difficulties you or they have met with (if any) in putting the said Power in execution; and which way you conceive We may contribute to render it more useful and beneficial to all Our Subjects residing in, or resorting to the Islands under your Government.

Commee Rep^t upon the
Instructions for Hugh Palliser Esq^r Govern^r

ON DRAFT OF INSTRUCTIONS FOR HUGH PALLISER THE GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF IN AND OVER THE ISLAND OF NEWFOUNDLAND AND THE COAST OF LABRADOR, ETC.

[Extracted from Privy Council Minutes of 25th April, 1764.]

P.C. 2. Vol. 110, pp. 413-414.

Your Majesty having been pleased by your Order in Council of the 11th of this instant to refer unto this Committee a Report from the Lords Commissioners for Trade & Plantations together with a Draught of Instructions prepared by them for Hugh Palliser Esq^r whom your Majesty has been pleased to Appoint Governor and Commander in Chief in and over your Majesty's Island of Newfoundland and the Territories dependant thereon in America The Lords of the Committee in Obedience to your Majesty's said Order of Reference, this Day took the same into their Consideration, and do find that in the said Draught the said Lords Commissioners have made no Alterations from the Instructions given by your Majesty to Thomas Graves Esq^r the late Governor of the said Island, except in the following respects (Viz^t)

That they have omitted the Second Article, and in the room of it have inserted Articles 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. which respect the Regulations your Majesty has been pleased to approve in Order to be Incorporated into this Draught for securing to the Subjects of his most Christian Majesty that Fishery on the Coast of Newfoundland, to which they are entitled by the Stipulations of the late Definitive Treaty of Peace in Common with your Majesty's Subjects within the Limits therein described; And that they have likewise Omitted the Sixth Article requiring the Governor to Assist your Majesty's Subjects in the removal of their Persons and Effects, the Object of which Article no longer exists.

The Lords of the Committee upon mature Consideration of the said Alterations and Additions, are of Opinion, that the same are not only proper but necessary to be made in the said Draught of the Instructions, except only such part of the third Article as directs that the Fishing Season shall be understood

p. 436

Opinion ought not to be understood to expire on any limited Day, but to continue so long as the Subjects of France shall be Actually employed in Fishing and drying Fish; Their Lordships have therefore thought proper to alter that part of the said Article by leaving out some Words and inserting others which will make the same run as follows (Viz^t) "To chuse their Stations there during the Fishing Season according as they shall respectively Arrive in the said Harbours, and to occupy such a space of Beach as shall be proportioned to their number of Boats so long as the said Subjects of France shall be Actually employed in Fishing and Drying of Fish agreeably[sic] in these respects to the Treaties of Utrecht and Paris and the established Practice in consequence thereof."

With this Additional alteration the Lords of the Committee do agree humbly to lay the said Draught of Instructions before your Majesty as proper for your Royal Approbation.

NEWFOUNDLAND, THE COAST OF LABRADOR, ETC. DATED 6 MAY 1765.

C.O. 324. Vol 9, p. 44.

Additional Instruction to Our Trusty and well beloved Hugh Palliser Esq^r Our Governor and Commander in Chief in and over Our Island of Newfoundland, and of the Territories dependent thereupon in America. Given at Our Court at St James's the tenth day of May 1765 and in the fifth Year of Our Reign.

Whereas it hath been represented unto Us, that several of Our Subjects, Inhabitants of, or resorting to Our said Island of Newfoundland under Your Government, have, upon various unwarrantable pretences, possessed themselves of, and do claim as their private property large Tracts of Land commodious for the Fishery, lying within the several Harbours and Rivers upon the Coast of Newfoundland, and the Islands adjacent thereto between Bonavista and Point Riche, to the great prejudice and discouragement of the Ship Fishery, not Only of Our Subjects in general, but also of the Subjects of the Crown of France, allowed by Treaty a concurrent Fishery within the Limits aforesaid; In order therefore to put a stop for the future to such irregular practices and unwarrantable Claims, to prevent all vexatious and expensive Litigations amongst Our Subjects, and to avoid Disputes between them and the Subjects of France, It is Our express Will and Pleasure, that You do not upon any pretence whatsoever allow any exclusive possession to be taken, as private Property, of any Lands, Rivers, or Islands in the northern parts of Newfoundland between Bonavista and point Riche; taking especial Care, that such Ships, as shall resort to that part of Our said Island for carrying on the Fishery, do chuse their Stations as they respectively arrive, and do take up and Occupy, subject to Your Control, such Space only of Beach as shall be proportioned to the Number of their Boats, conformable to what hath been prescribed by an Act passed in the 10th and 11th Years of King William the third, in respect to those parts of the Coast which were in possession of Our Royal Predecessor at the Time that Act was passed.

1765.]No. 100.*ADMIRALTY INSTRUCTIONS TO ADMIRAL HUGH PALLISER.14TH MAY, 1765.

COLONIAL OFFICE RECORDS, 194/27, p. 32.

WHEREAS We have thought fit that His M's Ships & Vessels named in the inclosed List shall be employed this year under your Command for the Protection of the Fisheries at & about Newfoundland and of the Fishing Ships and Vessels belonging to His Maj^{ty}'s Subjects in their Voyage to and from that Island,

And whereas you have been already directed to take all command and have received from Us copies of the Instructions which We have given to the Commanders of the Pearl, Lark & Zephir for proceeding to different Parts of the said Island and cruising on the Stations against their Names expressed, as also a Copy of those which we have given to the Captain of the Niger for proceeding to such Station as you should appoint to the end that you might give them such further Instructions for their Proceedings as you should find necessary; And whereas we have Ordered the Commanders of Aquilon at Sheerness and Spy at Plymouth to put themselves under your Command, you are hereby required and directed to take them under your Command also, and put to Sea the first opportunity of Wind and Weather with the Guernsey and such of the Ships and Vessels abovementioned as are fitt for the Sea and are not already sailed leaving Orders for the others to follow you and Calling in your way down Channel off the Ports named in the Margin for any Fishing Ships or Vessels bound to Newfoundland which may be ready and willing to accompany you. You are to make the best of your way to that Island and having seen the said Fishing Ships & Vessels as near to the Coast as may be necessary for their Security you are to proceed with the Ship you Command and such of the others as have not had particular Stations assigned them by us in such manner as you shall judge best for carrying into Execution the following Instructions, viz.

Pool.
Topsham.
Dartmouth.
Plymouth.

And whereas you have received His Maj^{ty}'s Commission appointing you Governor & Commander in Chief in and over the Island of Newfoundland, the Coast of Labrador, from the Entrance of Hudson's Streights to the River S^t John's, the Islands of Anticosti, Madelaine &c.^a and of all the Forts & Garrisons erected, or that shall be erected in the said Islands, or on the said Coast, and also His Majesty's Instructions for your Government therein; you are to take particular Care to act in all respects conformable to what is required by the said Commission & Instructions, and any other Instructions that you may receive from His Majesty relating to the aforesaid Island of Newfoundland or any other Parts within the limits of your Command, taking Care to prevent all illegal Trade, during your Continuance on that Station, and also to secure and protect the Fisheries and Coasts, from Piratical Ships or Vessels, which you are to use your utmost Endeavours to take or destroy . . .

p. 439

You are agreeable to an Act of Parliament of the 10th & 11th years of King William the third Entituled an Act to encourage the Trade to Newfoundland (which you will receive herewith) to be aiding & assisting to the Admirals, Vice Admirals, and Rear Admirals of the respective Ports & harbours of Newfoundland, from time to time as need shall require, in preserving the Peace & good Government among the Seamen & Fishermen, and in apprehending offenders.

You are to be Careful that there be not taken into the Ships under your Command, to be transported to Newfoundland, any Seamen or others, than such as do belong to them; and as you are not to send any of the Ships Companies to any of the Fishing Ships, so neither are you to suffer to be taken on board them, any sort of Fish, either by way of Merchandize, Freight or otherwise; excepting what shall be necessary for the use and spending of the Ships Companies.

And whereas the Lords Commissioners for Trade & Plantations have represented to us, that it is very prejudicial to this Kingdom that the Fishing Ships do not bring home from Newfoundland the Complement of Men they carry out, many of them being enticed away to New England, and others left in the Country; for which reason they have desired we would give you Directions to signify to the Masters of all British Ships at Newfoundland that they take Care to bring home the Number of Men they carry out (except in Case of Death) for that otherwise they will be prosecuted at their return; You are to let the Masters know the same accordingly, and to use Your best Endeavours to oblige them thereto, as far as in You lies.

And whereas no Foreign Ships or Vessels whatever (except as in herein aftermentioned) have any right to fish at or about Newfoundland, and the Commanders of the Ships or War bound as Convoy thither, have at all Times past been directed not to allow of their fishing in those Parts; It is therefore His Majesty's Pleasure that You take especial Care to prevent the same, and that, His Orders given herein be strictly complied with; And if You shall meet with any Foreign Ships fishing at or about Newfoundland, You are to oblige them to desist & depart from off the Coast, excepting Ships & Vessels belonging to the subjects of His Most Christian Majesty, fishing agreably to to[sic] the 13th Article of the Treaty of Peace concluded with France at Utrecht in the Year 1713, and to the 4th 5th & 6th Articles of the Treaty of Peace concluded at Paris the 10th day of Febry. 1763, Copies of which you will receive herewith.

And whereas by the said Articles of the Treaty of Paris, it is stipulated that the Province of Canada with all it's Dependencies, as well as the Island of Cape Breton, and all the other Islands and Coasts in the Gulph and River of S^t Lawrence, and all that depends upon them, shall belong to the Crown of Great Britain; but that the Subjects of France shall have the Liberty of catching & drying their fish upon a Part of the Coast of Newfoundland only, to wit, from Cape Bonavista to the northward, and as far as Point Riche, but not to remain there beyond the Time necessary for that Purpose, agreable to the said 13th Article of the Treaty of Utrecht, by which the Property of the whole Island of Newfoundland is ceded to Great Britain; and His Majesty has, by the said 5th Article of the Treaty of Paris consented to leave to the Subjects of the Most C. King the Liberty of fishing in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, and as to the Fishery out of the said Gulph it is hereby stipulated that the Subjects of the Most C. King shall not be permitted to exercise the said Fishery but at the Distance of Fifteen Leagues from the Coasts of the Island of Cape Breton; and that the Fishery upon the Coasts of Nova Scotia or Acadia, and every where else out of the said Gulph, shall remain upon the Footing of the former Treaties; You are therefore to use Your utmost Care, diligence, and Attention that the several Stipulations hereinbefore mentioned & referred to be duly & strictly performed according to the Tenor & Intention thereof, as far as they shall come within the Limits of Your command.

And you are to exert Your best Endeavors to encourage & support the Whale Fishery in the Straits of Belle Isle, and more particularly the Fishery in York Harbour, and on the other Parts of the Coast of Labrador, and to hinder any Trade and Intercourse being carried on by any Persons whatever, other than the Subjects of Great Britain, with the Inhabitants of that Country, which of Right belongs solely to His Majesty; and you are likewise to protect the Salmon & Seal Fishery along the Coast and likewise the Fisheries carried out by His Majesty's Subjects in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, near the Islands of Madelaine &c.^a and to settle & guard the Fishery not only at Placentia & S^t John's, but as far to the Continent of Labrador, as your Command extends, taking care to prevent the Subjects of France from giving them any Disturbance by Acts of Violence or Injustice, or by any Evasion, contrary to the Spirit and Intention of the said Treaties and the Provisions contained in the Statute of 10th & 11th of William 3^d Chap. 25th and also to prevent the French from catching or drying their Fish, except within the Limits & Distances, & in the manner beforementioned.

You are at the same Time to be careful, that the subjects of His Most C. Majesty may not be interrupted in their Fishery as stipulated by, or to be exercised pursuant to the Treaties of Utrecht and Paris beforementioned, or in the drying their Fish upon the Coast of Newfoundland according to the said Treaties; and You are to use Your best Endeavors to prevent His Majesty's subjects from giving them any Disturbance in their said Fishery, or in drying their Fish, as aforesaid, by any Acts of Violence or Injustice, or by any Evasion contrary to the Spirit & Intention of the said Treaties.

And Whereas great Complaints have been made by the Court of France, that several Acts of Violence were committed, in the year 1763, on the French Fishermen at Newfoundland, by the Commanders of His Majesty's Ships stationed on that Coast, in burning their Boats, & driving them off the Coast before the Season of Fishing and drying of Fish was expired, whereby the Fishery of the Subjects of France with those of Great Britain was greatly interrupted; And Whereas it is the firm Intention of the King to maintain, with the utmost Justice, Probity, and good Faith, as well the Subjects of France as those of His own Dominions in the Enjoyment of that Fishery which is allowed them, in common with His Majesty's own Subjects, upon the Coast of Newfoundland, between Cape Bonavista and Point Riche, & elsewhere, within the Distances prescribed by the Treaties of Utrecht, and Paris beforementioned; You are hereby positively, enjoined, in Pursuance of His Majesty's express Commands signified to us for that Purpose, to abstain, and to use Your utmost Endeavors to prevent the Commanders of His Majesty's Ships, or any other of His Majesty's Subjects, from giving any Interruption to the Subjects of France, in carrying on that Fishery, which they are allowed by Treaties to enjoy, in common with the King's Subjects, within the Limits therein described as aforesaid, either by burning their Boats, or by any violent or unfair Proceedings; And You are to take Care that the French be suffered to remain on the said Coast so long

And in order that this Service may be more effectually performed, We have ordered the Commanders of the Ships & Sloop named in the margin carefully to visit the several Harbours, Coasts, and Fishing Grounds, as well those upon the Coasts of Newfoundland, as those upon the Coasts of Labrador,

p. 442

& to the Northward, with Directions to them to prevent the French from drying their Fish, or continuing thereon, otherwise than is herein before-mentioned, between Cape Bonavista & Point Riche, or to fish nearer than the Distances allowed by the before-mentioned Treaties; and at the same Time We have ordered them to make Charts of all the said Coasts, with Drafts of the Harbors, noting the Depths of Water, Conveniences for Fishing, and whatever Observations may occur worthy of our Knowledge, which are to be transmitted by them to You, that they may be laid before Us: all of which You are to take Care they punctually comply with, unless, from unforeseen Events, You shall find it absolutely necessary for the King's Service to employ them in any other manner, which You are at Liberty to do, but will be responsible to Us for your Conduct therein: And we expect, that each of them should give Us as exact & Satisfactory Information upon the several Heads herein before-mentioned, as they can possibly procure; for which Purpose, notwithstanding the Stations allotted to them, You are at Liberty to employ any of them, as far as is consistent with the Protection of the Fishery, in such Manner, & on such Part of the Coasts before-mentioned, as will best enable them to comply with our Instructions on this Subject; And You are yourself if practicable, to visit such of the said Coasts as your necessary Attention to the other Branches of your Duty will admit of, in the Course of the Season, that You may compare the Reports made to You with your own Observations.

And Whereas, pursuant to the 24th Article of the said Treaty of Paris, Possession of the Islands of S^t Peter & Miquelon has been given to France; and from their Vicinity to the Island of Newfoundland, and other Parts of His Majesty's Dominions in North America, an illicit Trade may be attempted to be carried on between the British, Indian, or any other Inhabitants of His Majesty's Dominions, and the Subjects of France, residing in the said Islands of S^t Peter & Miquelon, or employed in the Fishery, by virtue of the said Treaties, or between His Majesty's said Subjects, and other Subjects of France, or of other Powers trading or pretending to trade, to or with the said Islands of S^t Peter & Miquelon; In case any Endeavours shall be used to carry on such illicit Trade as aforesaid, You are to be particularly attentive to the same, & prevent (if possible) all Communication whatever between the said Islands of S^t Pere & Miquelon, and any Part of His Majesty's Dominions in North America, contrary to the plain and direct Meaning of this Instruction.

When the early Trade shall be ready, about the later End of August, You are to order one of the Frigates to take them under Convoy, and proceed off Cape Finisterre, where he is to leave those bound to the Ports of the North Coast of Spain, & proceed off the Coast of Portugal with the rest, calling at Lisbon for any Trade that may be ready in ten Days, beyond which Time she is on no account to tarry there, but is then to proceed to Sea with such Trade as may be ready, & accompany them to the Nore, where she is to remain for farther Order.

And when the Service will admitt, You are to send Home the other Ships and Vessels, viz: Two of the former & the Spy Sloop to Plymouth, and the rest to Spithead, directing their Commanders to take under their Convoy any homeward bound Trade that may be ready & willing to accompany them, & to see them in Safety as far as their Way lies together.

14.

By the End of October, You are to take under your Convoy the Fishing Ships which may be then bound to Portugal & Spain, and seeing them off their respective Ports, as far to the Southward as Cadiz, You are at Liberty to tarry there Ten Days; (but on no account to exceed that Time) at the Expiration whereof, You are to put to Sea with such homeward bound Trade as may be ready and willing to accompany You, and to call at Lisbon for such Trade as may be ready to said with You from thence homeward in Eight Days, at farthest, after your arrival there; and taking them also under your Protection, see the whole in Safely to Spithead, where You are to remain till farther Orders, sending Us an Account of your Arrival & Proceedings. But in Case You shall find it necessary or more eligible to send a Frigat to perform this Service, You are at Liberty to do so, and in that Case to proceed in the Ship you command directly to Spithead, with any Trade homeward bound from Newfoundland that may be ready & desirous of accompanying You. Given under our Hands the 14th of May 1765.

C. O. 195, vol. 10.

Instructions to Our Trusty and Welbeloved John Byron Esquire Our Governor and Commander in Chief in and over Our Island of Newfoundland in America and all the Coast of Labrador from the entrance of Hudson's Streights to the River St. John's, which discharges itself into the Sea, nearly opposite to the West End of the Island of Anticosti, including that Island, and any other small Islands on the said Coast of Labrador, and also the Islands of Madelaine in the Gulph of St. Lawrence, as also of all Our Forts and Garrisons erected and established, or that shall be erected and established in our said Islands or on the Coast of Labrador, within the Limits aforesaid; Given at Our Court at St. James's the 10th Day of May and in the Ninth Year of Our Reign.

With these Our Instructions you will receive Our Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, constituting you Our Governor and Commander in Chief in and over Our Island of Newfoundland in America, and all the Coast of Labrador, from the entrance of Hudson's Streights to the River St. John's which discharges itself into the sea nearly opposite the West End of the Island of Anticosti including that Island, with any other small Islands on the Coast of Labrador, and also the Islands of Madelaine, in the Gulph of St. Lawrence, as also of all Our Forts and Garrisons erected and established, or that shall be erected and established in our said Islands, or on the Coast of Labrador, within the Limits aforesaid, with Directions to obey such Orders and Instructions as shall from Time to Time be given You under Our Signet and Sign Manual, or by Our Order in Our Privy Council.

Plymouth.

Whereas we have thought fit to appoint you to be Commander in Chief of the Squadron of His Majesty's Ships and Vessels intended to be employed in protecting the Fisheries of His Majesty's Subjects at and about the Island of Newfoundland the Islands of Anticosti and Magdalen and upon the Coast of Labrador from the River St John to the Entrance of Hudson's Straits and have already directed you to take the said Squadron under your command You are hereby required and directed to repair on board the Antelope, one of the Ships of the said Squadron now at Spithead and proceed in her, without loss of time to Newfoundland; taking with you such other Ships and Vessels of the said Squadron as may be ready for the Sea, and leaving orders for the rest to follow you as soon as they are so.

You are to call off the several Ports named in the Margin, in your way down Channel, for any Fishing Ships or Vessels bound to Newfoundland which may be ready and whose Masters may be willing to accompany you, and, having seen them as near to the Coast as may be necessary for their Security—You are to proceed in such manner as you shall judge best for carrying into Execution the following Instructions.

Whereas you have received His Majesty's Commission appointing you Governor and Commander in Chief in and over the Island of Newfoundland, the Coast of Labrador from the Entrance of Hudsons Straits to the River St John, the Islands of Anticosti Magdalen &c^a and of all the Forts and Garrisons erected or that shall be erected in the said Islands or on the said Coast, and also His Majesty's Instructions for your Government therein You are to take particular care to act in all respects conformable to what is required by the said Commission and Instructions and any other Instructions you may receive from His Majesty relating to the aforesaid Island of Newfoundland or any other parts within the limits of your Command: taking care to prevent all illegal Trade during your continuance on that Station, and also to secure and protect the Fisheries and Coasts from Piratical Ships or Vessels, which you are to use your utmost endeavours to take or destroy.

You are, agreeable to an Act of Parliament of the 10th and 11th years of King William the 3^d, entitled "an Act to encourage the Trade to Newfoundland" (which you will receive herewith) to be aiding and assisting to the Admirals, Vice Admirals and Rear Admirals of the respective Ports and Harbours of Newfoundland, from time to time as need shall require, in preserving the peace and good Government among the Seamen and Fishermen, and in apprehending Offenders.

You are to be careful that there be not taken into the Ships under your command to be transported to Newfoundland, any Seamen or others than such as do belong to them, And, as you are not to lend any of the Ships Companies to any of the fishing ships, so neither are you to suffer to be taken on board them any sort of Fish either by way of Merchandize, Freight or otherwise excepting what shall be necessary for the use and spending of the Ship's Companies.—

4.

And whereas the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations have represented to us that it is very prejudicial to this Kingdom that the Fishing Ships do not bring home from Newfoundland the Complement of Men they carry out, many of them being enticed away to New-England and others left in the Country; for which reason they have desired we would give you directions to signify to the Masters of all British Ships at Newfoundland that they take care to bring home the number of Men they carry out (except in case of Death), for that otherwise they will be prosecuted at their return you are to let the Masters know the same accordingly, and to use your best endeavours to oblige them thereto, as far as in you lies.

And whereas no foreign Ships or Vessels whatever (except as is herein after excepted) have any right to fish at or about Newfoundland and the Commanders of the Ships of War bound as Convoy thither have, at all times past, been directed not to allow of their fishing in those parts; it is therefore His Majesty's pleasure that you take especial care to prevent the same and that his orders given herein be strictly complied with; And, if you shall meet with any Foreign Ships fishing at or about Newfoundland, you are to oblige them to desist and depart from off the Coast, excepting Ships and Vessels belonging to the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty, fishing agreeably to the 13th Article of the Treaty of Peace concluded with France at Utrecht in the Year 1713 and to the 4th, 5th, and 6th Articles of the Treaty of Peace concluded at Paris the 10th day of February 1763; Copies of which you will receive herewith.

And whereas, by the said Articles of the Treaty of Paris, it is stipulated that the Province of Canada, with all its dependencies as well as the Island of Cape-Breton, and all the other Islands and Coasts in the Gulph and River of S^t Lawrence, and all that depends upon them shall belong to the Crown of Great Britain; but that the Subjects of France shall have the Liberty of catching and drying their Fish upon a part of the Coast of Newfoundland only, to wit, from Cape Bonavista to the Northward and as far as Point Riche but not to remain there beyond the time necessary for that purpose, agreeable to the said 13th Article of the Treaty of Utrecht by which the property of the whole Island of Newfoundland is ceded to Great Britain; and His Majesty has, by the said 5th Article of the Treaty of Paris, consented to leave to the Subjects of the Most Christian King, the Liberty of fishing in the Gulph-of S^t Lawrence, upon condition that they do not exercise the said Fishery but at the distance of Three Leagues from all the Coasts belonging to Great Britain, as well those of the Continent as those of the Islands situated in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, and, as to the Fishery out of the said Gulph, it is thereby stipulated, that the Subjects of the most Christian King shall not be permitted to exercise the said Fishery but at the distance of fifteen Leagues from the Coasts of the Island of Cape Breton; and that the fishery upon the Coasts of Nova Scotia or Arcadia and every where else out of the said Gulph, shall remain upon the footing of the former Treaties, You are therefore to use your utmost Care, diligence and attention, that the several Stipulations herein beforementioned and referred to, be duly and strictly performed, according to the Tenor and Intention thereof, as far as they shall come within the limits of your Command.

You are to exert your best endeavours to encourage and support the Whale Fishery in the Straits of Belle Isle, and more particularly the Fishery in York Harbour and on the other parts of the Coast of Labrador, and to hinder any Trade or Intercourse being carried on by any Persons whatsoever, other than the Subjects of Great Britain, with the Inhabitants of that Country, which of right belongs solely to His Majesty; and you are likewise to protect the Salmon and Seal Fishery along the Coasts, and likewise the Fisheries carried on by His Majesty's Subjects in the Gulph of St Lawrence near the Islands of Madelaine &c^a; and to settle and guard the Fishery, not only at Placentia and St Johns, but as far to the Northward, upon the Coasts of Newfoundland and upon those of the Continent of Labrador as your Command extends; taking care to prevent the Subjects of France from giving them any disturbance by Acts of Violence or Injustice, or by any Evasion, contrary to the Spirit and Intention of the said Treaties and the provisions contained in the Statute of 10th & 11th of William 3^d Chap. 25th, and also to prevent the French from catching or drying Fish, except within the Limits and distances and in the manner beforementioned—

You are, at the same time, to be careful that the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty may not be interrupted in their Fishery, as stipulated by, or to be exercised pursuant to the Treaties of Utrecht and Paris beforementioned, or in the drying their Fish upon the Coast of Newfoundland according to the said Treaties; and you are to use your best endeavours to prevent His Majesty's Subjects from giving them any disturbance in their said Fishery or in drying their Fish as aforesaid, by any Acts of Violence or Injustice or by any Evasion contrary to the Spirit and Intention of the said Treaties; and,

Whereas great Complaints were made by the Court of France that several Acts of Violence were committed in the Year 1763 on the French Fishermen at Newfoundland by the Commanders of His Majesty's Ship's stationed on that Coast, in burning their Boats and driving them off the Coast before the Season for fishing and drying their Fish was expired, whereby the Fishery of the Subjects of France with those of Great Britain was greatly interrupted; And whereas it is the firm Intention of the King to maintain, with the utmost Justice, Probity and good Faith, as well the Subjects of France as those of his own Dominions, in the enjoyment of that Fishery which is allowed them in common with His Majesty's own Subjects upon the Coast of Newfoundland between Cape Bonavista and Point Riche, & elsewhere within the Distances prescribed by the Treaties of Utrecht and Paris beforementioned You are hereby positively enjoined, in pursuance of His Majesty's express Commands signified to us for that purpose, to abstain, and to use your utmost endeavours to prevent the Commanders of His Majesty's Ships or any other of His Majesty's Subjects, from giving any Interruption to the Subjects of France in carrying on that Fishery which they are allowed by Treaties to enjoy in common with the King's Subjects within the limits therein described as aforesaid; either by burning their Boats or by any violent or unfair proceedings; And you are to take care that the French be suffered to remain on the said Coast so long as they shall be actually engaged in the employment of fishing or drying their fish. But,

The French having, in the Year 1765 claimed a Right of fishing on the Coasts of the Island of Belle Isle, at the Entrance of the Straits of that name, between the North part of Newfoundland and the Coast of Labrador on the Ground of it's being an appendage to the former, Commodore Palliser was directed the succeeding year to examine whether that Island was situated nearest to the Coast of Labrador or to that of Newfoundland, to determine which it belonged to, and to permit or restrain the French fishing on the Coast of that Island accordingly; and M^r Palliser having, in consequence thereof, reported to us by his Letter of the 25th of August 1766, that he had forbid them resorting to that Island it lying indisputably nearest to Labrador We signify the same for your Information and Guidance, in case the French should attempt to fish on the Coasts of the said Island of Belle Isle in the approaching Season.

And whereas, pursuant to the 24th Article of the said Treaty of Paris, Possession of the Islands of St Peter and Miquelon has been given to France, and, from their Vicinity to the Island of Newfoundland and other Parts of His Majesty's Dominions in North America an illicit Trade may be attempted to be carried on between the British, Indian, or any other Inhabitants of His Majesty's Dominions, and the Subjects of France residing in the said Islands of St Peter and Miquelon, or employed in the Fishery by virtue of the said Treaties, or between His Majesty's said Subjects and other Subjects of France, or of other powers trading or pretending to trade to, or with the said Islands of St Peter and Miquelon. In case any endeavours shall be used to carry on such illicit Trade as aforesaid, You are to be particularly attentive to the same, and prevent, if possible, all Communication whatever between the said Islands of St Peter and Miquelon and any part of His Majesty's Dominions in North America, contrary to the plain and direct meaning of this Instruction. But,

12.

The French having, in the Year 1766 claimed a Right of fishing on the abovementioned Islands of S^t Peter and Miquelon the Duke of Richmond, one of His Majesty's then principal Secretaries of State signified to us, that, thô we cannot admit that by the Treaties subsisting, the French have any right to the said Claim of fishing between those Islands and the Coast of Newfoundland and therefore that no such Concession ought to be made to them, Yet, as Commodore Palliser had reported that he had not found it immediately necessary to His Majesty's Service to interrupt the French Boats fishing on the Coasts of those Islands. It was His Majesty's pleasure that we should instruct him to hold the same Conduct 'til further Orders, or 'til the behaviour of the French, by an abuse of that Liberty should make it necessary for him to alter it, You are also to hold the like Conduct in this respect until further Order, or 'til the Behaviour of the French, by an Abuse of the said Liberty shall make it necessary for you to alter it.

And, in order that these Services may be more effectually performed, you are to assign to the several Ships and Vessels under your Command such Stations on the Coasts of Newfoundland and Labrador, including the Islands of Magdalen and Anticosti in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, as shall be most proper, giving to their respective Commanders full and clear Instructions on the several points herein beforementioned conformable to the foregoing Articles of these our Instructions to yourself, and directing them also very carefully to visit the several Coasts, Harbours & Fishing Grounds within the limits of their respective Stations and to make Charts of such parts of the Coasts and Draughts of such of the Harbours, as have not already been surveyed, noting the Depths of Water, Conveniency for fishing, and whatever Observations occur worthy our knowledge which are to be transmitted to you to be laid before us; And you are yourself, if practicable to visit such parts of the said Coasts &c^a as your necessary Attention to the other Branches of your Duty will admit of, in the Course of the Season, that you may compare the Reports made to you, with your own Observations, before you transmit them to us.

When the Early Trade shall be ready about the latter End of August, you are to order one of the Frigates to take them under Convoy and proceed off Cape Finisterre where she is to leave those bound to the Ports on the North Coast of Spain, and proceed off the Coast of Portugal with the rest, calling at Lisbon for any Trade that may be ready in Ten Days; beyond which time she is on no Account to tarry there but is then to proceed to England with such Trade as may be ready and accompany them to Spithead, where she is to remain for farther Order.

And, when the Service will admit, you are to send home the other Ships and Vessels Viz^t One Ship and one Sloop to Plymouth and the remainder to Portsmouth, directing their Commanders to take under their Convoy any homeward bound trade that may be ready and willing to accompany them, and to see them in safety as far as their way lies together.

By the End of October you are to take under your Convoy any Fishing Ships which may then be bound to Portugal & Spain and seeing them off their respective Ports as far to the Southward as Cadiz, you are at Liberty to tarry there Three Weeks -(but on no Account to exceed that time); At the expiration whereof you are to put to Sea with such homeward bound

p. 464

Trade as may be ready and willing to accompany you, and to call at Lisbon for such Trade as may be ready to sail with you from thence homeward in eight days at farthest after your arrival there, and, taking them also under your protection see the whole in safety to Spithead, where you are to remain 'til further Orders, sending us an Account of your arrival and proceedings. But, in case you shall find it necessary or more eligible, to send a Frigate to perform this Service, you are at Liberty to do so; and, in that case, to proceed in the Ship you command directly to Spithead, with any Trade homeward bound from Newfoundland that may be ready and desirous of accompanying you.

In case you shall, at any time, find that a greater number of Ships and Vessels than those which may be under your command shall be necessary to enable you to execute the Service on which you are employed, you are to apply to Commodore Hood, or the Commander in Chief for the time being of His Majesty's Ships and Vessels employed and to be employed in the River S^t Lawrence and along the Coasts of Nova Scotia the Islands of St John and Cape Breton and thence to Cape Florida and the Bahama Islands for such Reinforcements as you shall stand in need of, who has our Orders to supply you therewith.

For the better maintaining a proper Government and strict discipline in the Squadron under your Command; We do hereby authorize and empower you to call and assemble Courts Martial in foreign parts as often as you shall see occasion; And whereas Commanders in chief of Squadrons of His Majesty's Ships in Foreign parts have sometimes neglected to hold Courts Martial for enquiring into the Occasion of the Loss of His Majesty's Ships when such Misfortunes have happened whereby the Crown has been put to an unnecessary Expence and the Officers and Companies been put to great inconveniences by being kept out of their Wages; You are, in case, of such Accident, to cause a Court Martial to be assembled as soon afterwards as possible to try the Officers and Company for the same and to transmit to our Secretary the proceeding and judgment thereupon, by the first conveyance.

In case of the death of any Officer of the Ships or Vessels under your command or the dismissal of them by a Court Martial you are hereby empowered to appoint such other persons, as, by the quality of their employment, ought to succeed therein particularly observing to appoint Commanders to be Captains of Post Ships in preference to Lieutenants; And you are to take Notice that we will not confirm any Officers appointed to Vacancies arising in any other manner. In Case of Suspension you are only to give orders to proper persons to act, until such suspension shall be removed, or we shall think fit to give directions therein; And you are constantly to transmit to us, by the first opportunity after appointing any Officer as aforesaid, an Account thereof, with your reasons for appointing him.

You are to send, by all opportunities to our Secretary for our Information an Account of your proceedings relative to the Service, and such Intelligence as you may have collected proper for our knowledge; And you are, moreover upon your return to England, to transmit to our Secretary, to be laid before us, a Journal of your proceedings with the Squadron under your Command or any part thereof, and of the Services upon which you may send any of the Ships or Vessels, with your reasons for the same, and to note therein all such particulars and remarkable Occurrences as may be proper for our information. INSTRUCTIONS PASSED UNDER THE ROYAL SIGN
MANUAL AND SIGNET FOR MOLYNEUX SHULDHAM,AS GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF IN AND OVER THE ISLAND OF NEWFOUNDLAND, THE COAST OF LABRADOR, ETC. DATED 18

C.O. 195, Vol. 10.

Instructions to Our Trusty and Wellbeloved Molineux Shuldham Esquire, Our Governor and Commander in Chief in, and over Our Island of Newfoundland, in America, and all the Coast of Labrador, from the entrance of, Hudson's Streights to the River Saint John's, which discharges itself into the Sea, nearly opposite the West End of the Island of Anticosti, including that Island, with any other small Islands on the said Coast of Labrador, and also the Islands of Madelaine in the Gulph of Saint Lawrence, as also of all our Forts and Garrisons erected and established, or that shall be erected and established in Our said Islands, or on the Coast of Labrador, within the Limits aforesaid; Given at Our Court at Saint James's the day of and in the Year of Our Reign.

First, With these Our Instructions you will receive Our Commission, under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, constituting you Our Governor and Commander in Chief in, and over our Island of Newfoundland in America, and all the Coast of Labrador, from the entrance of Hudson's Streights to the River Saint John's, which discharges itself into the Sea, nearly opposite the West end of the Island of Anticosti, including that Island, with any other small Islands, on the said Coast of Labrador, and also the Islands of Madelaine in the Gulph of Saint Lawrence, as also of all Our Forts and Garrisons erected and established, or that shall be erected and established in Our said Islands, or on the Coast of Labrador, within the Limits aforesaid, with directions to obey such Orders and Instructions as shall from time to time be given you under Our Signet and Sign Manual, or by Our Order in Our Privy Council; You are therefore to fit yourself with all convenient speed, and to repair to your said command, and being arrived, you are to take upon you the execution of the place and trust We have reposed in you, and as soon as conveniently may be, to assemble the principal Inhabitants in the Island of Newfoundland, and in such other places as you shall judge proper or necessary, within your said Government, and with all due solemnity, to cause Our said Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, constituting you Our Governor and Commander in Chief as aforesaid, to be read and published at such meetings.

2. Whereas by Our former Instructions to our Governors of Newfoundland, We have thought fit to direct, that in all things regarding the Fishery, which the Subjects of France were by the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713, and that of Paris in 1763, allowed to carry on in those parts of the Coast of Newfoundland, which stretch from the place called Bonavista, to the northern point of the said island, and from thence, running down by the western side, reach as far as the place called Point Riche, they should conform themselves with great care and attention and with justice to the subjects of both Crowns, as well to the stipulations contained in the said Treaties, as to the provisions contained in the Statute of the tenth and eleventh of William the Third C. 25, in order therefore for the better explanation of Our Royal Intentions therein, and to manifest Our firm Resolution to preserve the said Treaties inviolable, to secure to the Subjects of France the full possession and enjoyment of the Fishery, thereby stipulated to be allowed to them within the Limits aforesaid, and to Our own Subjects their respective Rights and Privileges, and to prevent any disputes which may arise between Our Subjects and the Subjects of France carrying on the Fishery within the said Limits, It is Our express Will and Pleasure, and We do hereby strictly require and enjoin, that you do immediately, upon your arrival within your said Government, give the most full and positive Orders and Injunctions to all Officers under your command, and in a particular manner to the Admirals in the several Harbours, that they do not in their several Stations, and as far as depends upon each respectively, permit or allow, that any Obstructions or Interruptions be, upon any pretence, given to the Subjects of France in the enjoyment of that Fishery which is allowed them by the stipulations of the said Treaties in common with Our Subjects, and that they do give them all reasonable countenance and protection therein.

3. And whereas it is of great importance to the interest peace and tranquility as well of our Crown as that of France, that the said Treaties should be faithfully executed according to the true intent and meaning thereof, all disputes between the subjects of both nations avoided, and the Fishery within the limits aforesaid, amicably carried on between the two nations according to Treaties, We do therefore particularly command and require that the Admirals of the several Harbours upon the Coast whereon the Subjects of France are by the said Treaties allowed to catch Fish, to dry them on land and to erect Stages made of Boards and Huts necessary for that purpose, to take the most exact and particular care that the said Subjects of France be permitted and allowed in common with Our Subjects to chuse their Stations, accordingly, as they shall respectively arrive in the said Harbours, and to occupy such a space of Beach as shall be proportioned to their number of Boats, so long as the said Subjects of France shall be actually employed in fishing and drying Fish, agreeably, in these respects, to the Treaties of Utrecht and Paris, and the established, practice in consequence thereof ; And in case any dispute or difference shall arise between Our Subjects and the Subjects of France touching these matters, We do expressly Will and Ordain, that the said Admirals shall, in the decision of such dispute, proceed with the strictest Justice and Impartiality, taking care upon all occasions of such dispute, that the subject matter in question, and all proceedings and judgements thereon, be taken down in writing, and transmitted, by such Admirals, duly authenticated, to you or the Commander in Chief for the time being, in order that the Judgement or Decree, of such Admirals, may be confirmed or annulled by you or the said Commander in Chief, as the Justice of the case shall require, and the Law shall allow, and in either case you or the said Commander in Chief shall certify your or his decision to such Admiral, to the end that the same may be duly executed.

4. It is nevertheless our Express Will and Pleasure, that the said Admirals in the respective Harbours shall not, upon any pretence whatever, presume to interfere or interpose their authority in any disputes or difference which may arise between one Subject of France and another concerning their Fishery.

5. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that the said Subjects of France, carrying on their Fishery within the Limits aforesaid according to the said Treaties, shall not in any wise or upon any pretence whatsoever be molested or disturbed in their Persons, Properties or Effects.

6. And whereas it hath been represented unto Us, that several Boats belonging to the Subjects of France and which, on their departing from the Coast have been left in the several Harbours, on that part of the Coast whereon the said Subjects of France were permitted to fish, have been at different times burnt and destroyed by the Commanders of some of Our Ships stationed upon the said Coast; And it appearing to Us, that such proceeding is inconsistent with that harmony and good understanding which We wish to see preserved between the two Nations, It is therefore Our express Will and Pleasure, and you are hereby strictly enjoined and required to forbid all such practices and proceedings for the future.

7. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that the Rules, Regulations and Orders contained in the foregoing Instructions, be made public as soon as possible after your arrival in your Government, and be fixed up in some conspicuous and well frequented place in every harbour within the limits aforesaid to the end that not only Our subjects but also those of the Crown of France may be fully informed of Our Royal Intention and Directions herein.

8. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure that you do by every opportunity that shall offer, or as soon as possible after your return to this Kingdom, transmit to Us by one of Our principal Secretaries of State, an account of all your proceedings and of all such Orders, Judgements and Decrees as you shall have made in pursuance of these Our Instructions.

AS GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF IN AND OVER THE ISLAND OF

C.O. 5, VOL. 206, No 5.

Instructions to Our Trusty and Wellbeloved Robert Duff Esquire, Rear Admiral of the Blue, our Governor and Commander in Chief in, and over Our Island of Newfoundland in America, and of the Islands of Madelaine in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence; as also of all our Forts and Garrisons erected, and established, or that shall be erected, and established in Our said Islands of Newfoundland and Madelaine. Given at Our Court at S^t James's the twenty first day of April 1775, in the Fifteenth Year of Our Reign.

First, With these Our Instructions you will receive Our Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, constituting you Our Governor and Commander in Chief in, and over Our Island of Newfoundland in America, and of the Islands of Madelaine in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, as also of all Our Forts and Garrisons erected, and established, or that shall be erected and established in Our said Islands, with Directions to obey such Orders and Instructions, as shall from time to time be given You under Our Signet and Sign Manual, or by Our Order in Our Privy Council, You are therefore to fit your self with all convenient Speed, and to repair to your said Command; and being arrived, you are to take upon you the execution of the place and Trust We have reposed in you, and, as soon as conveniently maybe, to assemble the principal Inhabitants in the Island of Newfoundland, and in such other places, as you shall judge proper or necessary within your said Government, and, with all due Solemnity, to cause Our said Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, constituting you Our Governor and Commander in Chief, as aforesaid, to be read and published at such meetings.

2. Whereas by Our former Instructions to Our Governors of Newfoundland, We have thought fit to direct, that in all things regarding the Fishery, which the subjects of France were by the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713, and that of Paris in 1763, allowed to carry on upon those parts of the Coast of Newfoundland, which stretch from the place, called Bonavista, to the Northern point of the said Island, and from thence running down by the Western side, reach as far as the place, called Point Riche, they should conform themselves with great care and attention, and with Justice to the Subjects of both Crowns, as well to the Stipulations contained in the said Treaties, as to the Provisions contained in the Statute of 10th and 11th of William 3^d C. 25; In order therefore for the better explanation of Our Royal Intentions therein, and to manifest Our firm Resolution to preserve the said Treaties inviolable; to secure to the Subjects of France the full possession and enjoyment of the Fishery thereby stipulated to be allowed to them within the limits aforesaid; and to Our Own Subjects their respective Rights and Privileges, and to prevent any disputes, which may arise between between[sic] Our Subjects, and the Subjects of France carrying on the Fishery within the said limits, It is Our express Will and Pleasure, and We do hereby strictly require and enjoin, that you do immediately, upon your arrival within your said Government, give the most full and positive Orders and Injunctions to all Officers under your Command, and in a particular manner to the Admirals in the several Harbours, that they do not in their several Stations, and as far as depends upon each respectively, permit or allow, that any Obstructions or Interruptions be upon any pretence given to the Subjects of France in the enjoyment of that Fishery, which is allowed them by the Stipulations of the said Treaties in common with Our Subjects; and that they do give them all reasonable countenance and protection therein.

3. And whereas it is of great importance to the Interest, Peace, and Tranquillity as well of Our Crown, as that of France, that the said Treaties should be faithfully executed according to the true intent and meaning thereof; all disputes between the Subjects of both nations avoided; and the Fishery within the limits aforesaid amicably carried on between the two Nations according to Treaties; We do therefore particularly command and require, that the Admirals of the several Harbours upon the Coast, whereon the Subjects of France are by the said Treaties allowed to catch Fish, to dry them on Land; and to erect Stages made of Boards and Huts necessary for that purpose, to take the most exact and particular care, that the said subjects of France be permitted and allowed, in common with Our Subjects, to chuse their Stations there during the Fishing Season, according as they shall respectively arrive in the said Harbours, and to occupy such a space of Beach, as shall be proportioned to their Number of Boats, so long as the said Subjects of France shall be actually employed in fishing and drying Fish, agreeably in these respects to the Treaties of Utrecht, and Paris, and the established practice in consequence thereof; and in case any dispute or difference shall arise between Our Subjects and the Subjects of France, touching these matters, We do expressly Will and Ordain, that the said Admirals shall, in the decision of such dispute, proceed with the strictest Justice and impartiality, taking care upon all occasions of such dispute, that the Subject-matter in question, and all proceedings and judgments thereon, be taken down in writing, and transmitted by such Admirals, duly authenticated, to you or the Commander in Chief for the time being; in order that the Judgment or Decree of such Admirals may be confirmed or annulled by you, or the said Commander in Chief, as the Justice of the case shall require, and the Law shall allow; and, in either case, you or the said Commander in Chief shall certify your or his decision to such Admiral, to the end that the same may be duly executed.

4. It is nevertheless Our express Will and Pleasure, that the said Admirals in the respective Harbours shall not, upon any pretence whatever, presume to interfere or interpose their Authority in any disputes or difference, which may arise between one Subject of France and another concerning their Fishery.

5. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that the said Subjects of France, carrying on their Fishery within the Limits aforesaid according to the said Treaties, shall not in any wise or upon any pretence whatsoever be molested or disturbed in their Persons, Properties, or Effects.

6. And whereas it hath been represented unto Us, that several Boats belonging to the Subjects of France, and which, on their departing from the Coast, have been left in the several Harbours on that part of the Coast, whereon the said Subjects of France were permitted to Fish, have been at different times burnt and destroyed by the Commanders of some of Our Ships stationed upon the said Coast; and it appearing to Us, that such proceeding is inconsistent with that Harmony and good understanding, which We wish to see preserved between the two Nations; it is therefore Our express Will and Pleasure, and you are hereby strictly enjoined and required to forbid all such practices and proceedings for the future.

7. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that the Rules, Regulations and Orders, contained in the foregoing Instructions, be made publick, as soon as possible after your Arrival in your Government, and be fixed up in some conspicuous and well-frequented place in every Harbour within the Limits aforesaid, to the end that not only Our Subjects, but also those of the Crown of France, may be fully informed of Our Royal Intention and directions herein.

8. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that you do by every opportunity, that shall offer, or as soon as possible after your return to this Kingdom, transmit to Us, by one of Our principal Secretaries of State, an account of all your proceedings, and of all such orders, judgments, and decrees, as you shall have made in pursuance of these Our Instructions.

9. And whereas by the said Fifth Article of the Treaty concluded at Paris, We have consented to leave to the Subjects of the most Christian King the Liberty of Fishing in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, on condition that the Subjects of France do not exercise the said Fishery, but at the distance of three Leagues from all the Coasts belonging to Great Britain, as well those of the Continent, as those of the Islands situated in the said Gulph of S^t Lawrence, you are hereby required to carry the Stipulations of the said Clauses into full Execution within the Limits of your Government.

10. You are to use your best endeavours to prevent any Aliens or Strangers whatever from fishing, or drying Fish on any of the Coasts, or in any of the Harbours of the Islands under your Government, unless in the Exceptions made by the Thirteenth Article of the Treaty of Utrecht, and the Fifth Article of the late definitive Treaty, confined to the Subjects of France, permitted to Fish within the District and Limits marked out by those Treaties, and under the several Restrictions specified in the Articles themselves; and whereas it hath been represented unto Us, that foreigners are sharers in the Fishery and Commerce of Our said Island, by being part-Owners of Ships employed therein under English. names, by means whereof the said Ships are supplied from foreign Countries with all kinds of materials, as well for the use of the Fishery, as for the use of the said Vessels; It is therefore Our Will and Pleasure, that you do make the most diligent enquiry into the nature and extent of such illicit practice, and unwarrantable combination, and report to Us by one of Our principal Secretaries of State, the result of your enquiry, in order to such further directions, as We may think fit to give thereupon; And in the meantime you are to use your best endeavours to put a Stop to such unlawful proceedings, and to take the most effectual measures for the discovery and prevention of all illicit and contraband Trade of every kind.

11. And whereas, by the Sixth Article of the said Treaty concluded at Paris, a copy of which Article is hereunto annexed, the Islands of S^t Peter and Miquelon are ceded to France, to serve as a shelter to the French Fishermen, His most Christian Majesty engaging not to fortify the said Islands; to erect no buildings upon them, but merely for the convenience of the Fishery; and to keep upon them a Guard of fifty Men only for the Police; you are therefore from time to time to enquire, and report to Us, by one of Our principal Secretaries of State, whether the Stipulations contained in the said Article be duly observed; And you are to use your best endeavours to prevent any Commerce between Our Subjects under your Government, and the said Islands, by means whereof the Inhabitants of those Islands may have the double advantage of getting easily and cheaply the materials for building Vessels, and erecting Houses and Works necessary for the Fishery and of circulating French Produce and Manufactures amongst the British Fishermen.

12. It is Our further Will and Pleasure, that you do from time to time, as the nature of the Service will allow, visit all the Coasts and Harbours of the said Islands under your Government, in order to inspect and examine the State and Condition of the Fisheries, which are, or may be carried on upon the said Coasts and Islands; you shall also use your best endeavours to procure accurate Draughts or Maps of the several Harbours, Bays, and Coasts of Newfoundland, and the other Islands under your Government; and you are more particularly to direct the Officer of any Vessel under your command, which may be appointed to visit that part of the Coast of Labrador, which lies between Hudson's Streights, and the Streights of Bellisle, to search and explore the great Inlet, commonly known by the name of Davis's Inlet, in order to discover, whether the same has, or has not any passage to Hudson's Bay, or any other inclosed Sea.

13. You are also to enquire and report to Us, by one of Our principal Secretaries of State, whether any, or what further Establishment may be necessary to be made, or Forts erected in any part of Newfoundland, or the other Islands under your Government, either for the protection of the Fishery, the Security of the Country, or the establishing and carrying on a Commerce with the Indians residing in or resorting to the said Islands.

14. You are not to permit the Subjects of any Foreign Prince or State whatever to carry on any Commerce with the said Indians; and to use your best endeavours to conciliate their Affections, and to induce them to Trade with Our Subjects, reporting to Us, by one of Our principal Secretaries of State, the best account you can obtain of the number of the said Indians; the places they frequent; the nature and extent of the Commerce, that is, or may be carried on with them; and how the same may, in your opinion, be further extended and improved.

15. And whereas we have been informed, that a very considerable and advantageous Whale and Sea Cow Fishery may be carried on in the Gulph of St Lawrence, and upon the Labrador Coast; It is therefore Our Will and Pleasure, that you do give all possible encouragement to such Fishery, and report to Us, by one of Our principal Secretaries of State, your opinion, in what way, and by what means so valuable a Branch of Commerce may be extended and improved.

16. You are also to make a very particular enquiry into, and report to Us, as aforesaid, the actual State and Nature of the Fisheries carried on by the Subjects of France in every distinct Branch thereof, as well that which is carried on for Morne Verte upon the Banks without the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, as the dry Fishery carried on at Miquleon and S^t Peters' upon the Coast of Newfoundland from Bonavista to Point Riche, or in other parts of the Gulph of S^t Lawrence; and you are to be as particular as may be in your accounts of the Number and Nature of the Ships and Boats employed in those different Fisheries; the number of Men; the Quantity of Fish caught, cured, and carried to Market; and in general of every other Circumstance, that may furnish a precise State of this Branch of the Commerce of France.

17. You shall strictly enjoin all Our Officers, and Soldiers, and other persons whatsoever belonging to the present and future Garrisons in Newfoundland, and the other Islands and Territories under Your Government, not to engage in the Fishery there, nor interrupt the Fishermen in the curing of their Fish, nor to take up for themselves any Beaches, Stages, or Cookrooms upon any pretence whatsoever upon pain of Our highest Displeasure.

18. And you are particularly to suppress the engrossing of Commodities, as tending to the prejudice of the Fishery, and the persons employed therein.

19. Whereas it hath been represented unto Us, that several of Our Subjects, Inhabitants of, or resorting to Our said Island of Newfoundland under Your Government, have, upon various unwarrantable pretences, possessed themselves of, and do claim, as their private property, large Tracts of Land commodious for the Fishery lying within the several Harbours, and Rivers upon the Coast of Newfoundland, and the Islands adjacent thereto between Bonavista and Point Riche, to the great prejudice and discouragement of the Ship-Fishery, not only of Our Subjects in general, but also of the Subjects of the Crown of France, allowed by Treaty a concurrent Fishery within the Limits aforesaid; in order therefore to put a Stop for the future to such irregular practices, and unwarrantable Claims; to prevent all vexations and expensive Litigations amongst Our Subjects; and to avoid Disputes between them and the Subjects of France; It is Our express Will and Pleasure, that you do not, upon any pretence whatsoever, allow any exclusive possession to be taken, as private property, of any Lands, Rivers, or Islands in the Northern parts of Newfoundland between Bonavista and Point Riche; taking especial care, that such Ships, as shall resort to that part of Our said Island for carrying on the Fishery, do chuse their Stations, as they respectively arrive; and do take up and occupy, subject to your control, such space only of Beach, as shall be proportioned to the Number of their Boats, conformable to what has been prescribed by an Act passed in the Tenth and Eleventh Years of King William the third in respect to those parts of the. Coast, which were in possession of Our Royal predecessor, at the time that Act was passed.

20. You shall transmit unto Us, by One of Our principal Secretaries of State, an Account of the Arms, Ammunition, and Stores, that have been sent from Our Office of Ordnance here to Our Forts and Garrisons in Newfoundland; and likewise an Account of the State of Our said Forts; how the said Stores have been employed; and whether any of them, and how many of them, have been sold, spent, lost, decayed, or disposed of; and to whom, and to what uses; together with an Inventory of all such Arms, Ammunition, and Stores, as are remaining in Our Magazines there; as also a Duplicate thereof to Our Master General or principal Officers of Our Ordnance; which accounts are to express the particulars of Ordnance, Carriages, Ball, Powder, and all. other sorts of Arms and Ammunition in Our publick Stores at your Arrival; and so yearly of what shall be sent thither, specifying the time of the disposal, and the occasion thereof.

21. Whereas by the .Act for the encouragement of Trade passed in the fifteenth year of the Reign of King Charles the Second, no Commodities of the Growth, production, or Manufacture of Europe, except salt for the Fishery, of New England and Newfoundland, Wines of the growth of the Madeiras, or Western Islands, or Azores, Servants, Horses, and all sorts of Victuals of the Growth and Production of Ireland, shall be imported into any of Our Colonies or Plantations, but what shall be bonâ fide and without Fraud laden and Shipped in Great Britain, and in Ships duly qualified;

p. 484

And whereas Complaint has been made of Masters of Ships and others carrying on a clandestine Trade amongst the Fishing-Ships from Great Britain, with others from Our Colonies and Plantations in, America, contrary to the intent and meaning of the said Act, you shall use your utmost endeavour for the due observation of the said Act.

22. You are to permit a free exercise of Religion to all persons, except Papists, so they be contented with a quiet and Peaceable Enjoyment of the same, not giving Offence or Scandal to the Government.

23. It is Our Will and Pleasure, that you do cause the Laws made against Blasphemy, Profaneness, Adultery, Fornication, Polygamy, Incest, Profanation of the Lord's Day, Swearing, and Drunkenness, to be vigorously executed, and that you take due care for the punishment of the aforementioned Vices by presentment upon Oath to be made to the Justices of the Peace in their Sessions by their Constables, or other inferior Officers, at the several Harbours at the proper times of the Year to be appointed for that purpose; And for the further Discouragement of Vice, and Encouragement of Virtue, and good living, you are not to Admit any Person to Act as a Justice of the Peace, whose III Fame or Conversation may occasion Scandal; and especially You shall take care, that the Lord's Day be devoutly and duly observed; that the Book of Common Prayer, as by Law established in this Kingdom, be read each Sunday and Holiday; and the Blessed Sacrament Administered according to the Rites of the Church of England in all such Chapels or publick places of Worship, as are already, or may be settled there.

24. And if any Orthodox Minister there shall appear to give Scandal either by his Doctrine, or Manners, or shall Preach, or Administer the Holy Sacrament in any Orthodox Church or Chapel without being in due Orders, you shall give Account thereof to the Lord Bishop of London.

25. And you are to take especial care, that a Table of Marriages, established by the Canons of the Church of England, be hung up in every Orthodox Church or Chapel, and duly observed.

26. If any thing shall happen, which may be of Advantage or Security to Our said Islands under Your Government, which is not herein, or by Our Commission provided for, you are hereby allowed to take order for the present herein, giving to Us, by one of Our principal Secretaries of State, speedy notice thereof, that so you may receive Our Ratification, if We shall approve of the same ; provided always, that you do not, by colour of any power or authority hereby given you, allow or encourage any thing to be done contrary to the true intent and meaning of an Act of Parliament passed in the Tenth and Eleventh Years of the Reign of King William the Third, intituled, "An Act to encourage the Trade to Newfoundland," nor contrary to any of the Laws or Statutes of this Our Realm.

27. And you are, upon all Occasions, to send unto Us, by one of Our principal Secretaries of State, a particular Account of all your proceedings, and of the Condition of the Affairs of the Islands under your Government, and the Trade and Fishery thereof, and of the Banks, Seas, and parts adjacent.

28. Whereas by the said Act to encourage the Trade to Newfoundland, many things are enacted, for the due and orderly carrying on of the said Trade, which are necessary for your observation in inspecting the same during Your Stay in those parts; You are therefore, in order to the better regulating your conduct in that Service, to carry with you a copy of the said Act for your own use and Government.

29. You are likewise carefully and diligently to enquire and observe, whether the several Rules and Orders, contained in the said Act for the more advantageous management of the Fishery, be duly observed by all those concerned therein; Viz^t

30. You are to see, that due care be taken by the Admirals in their respective Harbours, and by the Masters of the Fishing Ships using that Trade, that no sort of Ballast, nor press Stones, or anything else hurtful to, or annoying any of the Harbours there, be thrown out of any Ship, or otherwise, to the prejudice of any of the said Harbours, and likewise to make the following enquiries.

31. Whether any person, at his departure out of the said Country, or at any other time, do destroy, deface, or do any detriment to the Stages, Cookrooms, Flakes, &c^a or to the materials thereunto belonging, which had been possessed by himself or others ; and whether they repair the defects, that may be in their Stages, or other Conveniences by Timber fetched out of the Woods, and not by committing any manner of spoil, or waste upon the Stages already built.

32. Whether the Admirals, Vice Admirals, or Rear Admirals of the Harbours, and the Commanders of the other fishing Ships in each Harbour, do observe the Rules prescribed by the said Act against engrossing more Beach and Flakes, than each of them have necessary use for; also against Possessing several Places at once, to the hindrance and prejudice of others; and relating to the Election of such Places, as any of them, whose Right it is shall choose to abide in. And in case of any difference, whether the Admirals in their several Harbours do proportion the Place to the Ships, according to the number of Boats, which each of the said Ships do keep.

33. Whether these Inhabitants, or others, who since the year 1685 had engrossed several Stages, Cookrooms, Beaches, and other Places, which before that time belonged to the fishing-Ships, to the prejudice of such fishing-Ships, as arrive their in the fishing season, have, according to the direction of the aforesaid Act, relinquished and left the same for the publick Use of the fishing-Ships arriving there.

34. Whether the Inhabitants have possessed, or do possess themselves of any such Stages, Cookrooms, &c., or of any Trainfats, or other Conveniences, which have belonged to any fishing-Ships at any time since the year 1685, before the yearly Arrival of the fishing Ships, and until all such Ships are provided with Stages, Cookrooms, &c. according to the said Act.

35. Whether the Bye-Boatkeepers pretend to, or meddle with any House, Stage, Cookroom, Trainfat, or other Conveniency that did belong to the fishing-Ships since the year 1685, or that has been cut out, or made by Ships after the 25th of March 1700.

36. Whether the Bye-Boatkeepers, and the Masters of fishing-Ships do carry over with them such Numbers of Fresh men, in proportion to their respective Companies of Seamen, as the Act directs; Whether they are furnished with Certificates of their having made Oath before their sailing from this Kingdom, that they do carry with them such a Number of green-Men; to whom they do produce such Certificates; and do the Admirals, or the Custom-House Officers keep any Account, or make any Return thereof?

37. Whether the Inhabitants do also employ such Numbers of fresh or green Men, as the said Act directs; and whether the Admirals take care, that they punctually comply therewith.

38. Whether any persons do presume to expunge, cut out, deface, or alter the Mark of any Boats or Trainfats of other Persons; and do convert them to their own use, or remove the same from the places, where they were left by the Owners, contrary to the directions of the said Act.

39. Whether any person whatsoever rind any of the Trees, set fire to any of the Woods, or do, or cause to be done any detriment or destruction to the same for any use whatsoever, excepting only for necessary Fuel, for building and repairing Houses, Ships, Boats, Train fats, Stages, Cookrooms, and other conveniences for the Fishery.

40. Whether the Rules, ordained by this Act, for preventing any Annoyance or hindrance in the hayling of Sayns in the customary baiting Places, and against the Stealing of Baits and Nets to be duly observed.

41. Whether the Admirals are careful, in order to preserve the Peace and good Government both in their respective Harbours, and on Shore, to see, that the Rules and Orders contained in the aforesaid Act be duly put in Execution, and whether each of the said Admirals do keep Journals, and exact accounts of the number of all Ships, Boats, Stages, and Trainfats, and of all the Seamen and Inhabitants employed in their respective Harbours, that the same may be delivered at their return to Great Britain as the Act directs.

42. And Whereas it has been represented to Us, that the Bye-Boatkeepers and Masters of fishing Boats do not carry over with them, and that the Inhabitants do not employ such a number of fresh or green Men, as the aforesaid Act to encourage the Trade to Newfoundland directs ; and that the Admirals in the respective Harbours do not take Care to enforce a due compliance therewith, or to preserve Peace and good Government in their respective Harbours, or on Shore; and that they do not keep any Journals of the number of Ships employed in the several Harbours, concerning themselves only with their own Fishery; And whereas such Omissions and Neglect tend greatly to the prejudice of Our Service, and to defeat the good Intentions of this Provision of the said Act, which is calculated for increasing the number of Seamen for the Service of Our Navy, and the promoting the Trade & Navigation of this Kingdom; It is therefore Our Will and Pleasure, and you are hereby directed and required to use your utmost Endeavour to enforce a due and exact compliance with the said Act for encouraging the Trade to Newfoundland; And that you do in these and all other particulars recommend to the Admirals in the respective Harbours to keep regular Accounts, and do all such other things, as the Act directs, upon pain of Our highest displeasure.

43. You are also to enquire, whether upon any differences, that do arise in any of the Harbours touching any of the aforesaid matters, the Admirals of those respective Harbours do determine the same, according as the said Act directs; And in case any Persons think themselves aggrieved by the Sentences of the said Admirals, whether those Persons do appeal unto You, or unto the Commanders of Our Ships of

44. Whether the Lord's day be strictly and duely observed; and whether the Inhabitants, who keep any sort of Public Houses for entertainment, do forbear on that day to utter or sell any sort of strong Liquor, or Tobacco, as by the said Act is directed?

45. Whether any Aliens or Strangers, not residing in the Kingdom of Great Britain, or Ireland, do resort to Newfoundland, or to the Islands adjacent thereto, and take Bait, or use any sort of Trade, or fishing whatsoever in those Parts?

46. And as you are to transmit your Answers to the foregoing Enquiries, which are founded upon the aforesaid Act of the tenth and eleventh years of the Reign of King William the third, so you are likewise to take an exact account of the number of the British fishing-Ships, and Sack Ships, and Ships and Vessels from America, that arrive this year in the Islands under your Government;

The Burthen of the said Ships; and the number of their Men;—The number of the Passengers transported by the fishing-Ships.

The number of Boats employed by the British fishing Ships, by the Ships from America, By the Bye Boatkeepers, and by the Inhabitants.

The number of the Bye Boatkeepers, and their Servants.

The quantity of Fish and Train-Oil made by the British fishing Slips, by the Ships from America, by the Boatkeepers, and by the Inhabitants.

The value of Seal Oil, and of Furs taken by the Inhabitants last Winter.

The number of Stages and Train-Fats belonging to the Fishery.

The total quantity of Fish carried to foreign Markets.

The prices the said Fish and Oil are sold at, both in Barter for Goods, and for good Bills payable here.

The number of Public and Private Houses.

The number of Inhabitants, and how many have been born, or have died there, since the departure of the last year's Convoy.

Which you are to send by the first conveyance that offers, according to the usual Form hereunto annexed.

Moreover you are particularly to inform yourself,

47. In what manner the Inhabitants are subsisted; what Land is there improved? Whether the Country produces such Provisions, as they want; and whether they have any number of Cows, Sheep, and Swine; or whether they receive any Provisions from Our Plantations in America; of what Sorts, or kind, and the Quantities thereof?

48. Whether the said Inhabitants are wholly supplied with Sail Cloth, Nets, and Tackle for their Fishery, and with Woollen, Linen, Leather, & other Manufactures, for their use and wear, from this Kingdom; or whether they are furnished with any of the aforesaid necessaries from the Plantations, or from any foreign Country whatsoever?

49. What Wages do the said Inhabitants allow to their Servants; and in what manner do they pay them?

50. How much does the Charge of fitting out and maintaining one of their Fishing-Boats for the whole Season amount to?

51. Whether the Inhabitants have any other Employment in the Fishing-Season for their Servants than taking and curing of Fish? whether they are diligent therein? how many Men they allow to each of their Fishing Boats? whether they can afford their Fish as cheap as the Fishing Ships, and the Bye-Boats, or what difference is made between the price of the one and the other?

52. In what manner they employ themselves and their Servants after the Fishing-Season is over, & during the Winter? whether they are industrious in providing and making necessaries for the next Fishing Season? or, on the contrary, whether they mispend a great part of their Time in Debaucheries and Excesses.

53. Whether any Trade is carried on for Beaver and other Furs by the Inhabitants, or by any others, who remain in the Country? what Quantity they have taken this last Winter; and whether they have any Traffick with the Indians? And whereas it hath been represented unto Us, that Our Subjects, residing in Our said Island, during the Winter Season, instead of cultivating such a friendly Intercourse with the Savages inhabiting that Island, as might be for their mutual Benefit and Advantage, do treat the said Savages with the greatest Inhumanity, and frequently destroy them without the least provocation or remorse; In order therefore to put a Stop to such inhuman Barbarity, and that the perpetrators of such atrocious Crimes may be brought to due punishment, It is Our Will and Pleasure, that you do, as soon as conveniently may be, after your Arrival, in those Parts, cause a Proclamation in Our Name to be published & dispersed thro' the several Settlements in Our said Island, expressing Our abhorrence of such inhuman Barbarity, strictly enjoyning and requiring all Our Subjects to live in Amity & Brotherly kindness with the native Savages of that Island, and commanding and requiring all Officers and Magistrates to use their utmost diligence to discover and apprehend all Persons, who may be guilty of murdering any of the said native Indians, in order that such Offender may be sent over to this Kingdom, to be tried for such capital Crime in the manner directed by the aforesaid Statute of the 10th and 11th years of the Reign of King William the 3^d, for encouraging the Trade to Newfoundland.

54. Whether the Houses, Buildings, and inclosures of the Inhabitants are at such distance from the Waterside, as not to hinder or obstruct the Fishermen in making their Flakes, or in drying and curing their Fish?

55. Whether the Inhabitants claim a right to all such Stages, Cookrooms, Flakes &c^a as they have made or built in their fishing-Places, which have not been possessed by the Fishing Ships since the year 1685, tho' they make no use of them?

56. Whether such Fishing Places and Conveniences are free for the Public Use of the Fishing Ships arriving there, and nothing insisted on, or demanded by the said Inhabitants for their use and hire?

57. How many Flakes are allowed to each Fishing-Boat, and of what length? whether they are extended in length according to the ancient Custom from the Shore up into the Land? or whether any of the Inhabitants or Fishermen extend their Flakes along the Shore, or possess a larger Front to the Water side, according to the number of their Boats, than was formerly allowed?

58. Whether it was ever ascertained or determined in the several, or in any of the Harbours in Newfoundland, what Fishing Places did belong to the Fishing Ships before the year 1685? And whether any Account is kept of those Fishing Places, which they have been in possession of since that year, in order to prevent such disputes, as must otherwise very frequently happen between the Masters of the said Ships and the Inhabitants?

59. Whether the Fishing Ships, that proceed directly from this Kingdom to Newfoundland, are victualled here, and provided with all other necessaries of British Produce and Manufacture for the whole Voyage? or whether the Masters or Freighters do not furnish themselves with Provisions, that are brought from the Plantations, or other Parts to Newfoundland?

60. Whether any British Ships arriving at St John's, or in any other Harbours in Newfoundland from Portugal, or other foreign Parts, before any Ship, that was cleared from this Kingdom, has been at any time permitted to be Admiral of the Harbour? or whether according to the Custom of Newfoundland, such Ships only as are cleared from Great Britain, have a Right to be Admirals?

61. Whether the Admirals, or any other Ships, who arrive yearly at St John's, or in the other Harbours, do put their Passengers, or any of them into possession of the most convenient, or of any other Fishing Places, Stages, &c^a upon pretence they are Freighters of their Ships, before the Arrival of the other Fishing Ships, or before they are all provided?

62. Whether any of the Bye Boatkeepers, who remain in the Country during the Winter, and that are not Inhabitants, do retain to their own use, or for the use of themselves and their Partners, who are expected by the Fishing-Ships, the Fishing Places, Stages, Beaches, Flakes, &c^a which they possessed the preceding year? or whether they take possession of any others, that may be more convenient for them in the ensuing Fishing Season, before the arrival of the Fishing Ships, or before the said Ships are well supplied?

63. Whether any of the Fishing Ships pursue or follow the old laudable Custom of allowing their Ship's Companies Shares of what they make in the Voyage, instead of Wages; and, in such Case, how much doth the Charge of fitting out and maintaining a Ship of one hundred Tons with fifty Men, and ten Boats, amount to for the whole Voyage?

64. Whether any Commodities of the Growth, Production, or Manufacture of Europe, that are not bona fide and without Fraud laden and shipt in this Kingdom, be imported and brought into Newfoundland, all such Commodities being prohibited by the 15th Car: 2^d Chap. 7th, except Salt for the Fishery, Wine of the growth of, and from the Madeiras, and the Azores, or Western Islands, and Victuals &c^a from Ireland?

65. How these Commodities are disposed of, whether only to the Fishery, viz^t to the Seamen and Inhabitants? or whether any Trade be driven by selling those Goods to the Ships belonging to New England, and other Plantations, in order to supply the said Plantations with such Commodities, as they ought to have directly from Great Britain, and not otherwise?

66. What quantities of Rum and other Plantation-Goods are brought to Newfoundland? more especially of those enumerated in former Acts of Parliament? Whether any of these enumerated Commodities are sold to the Ships bound to Portugal, and other foreign parts, so as to make an indirect Trade to those Countries in Goods, which ought not to be carried thither, before they have been first landed in Great Britain?

67. In what manner is the Trade between Newfoundland and any other of our American Colonies carried on? what quantities of Rum, Melasses, Wine, Sugar, Tobacco, Flour, and other Provisions have been imported this year? To whom, and at what prices are the said Goods sold? Are they paid for in Fish, or in Bills? If in Fish, is it disposed of again, or loaded in the Sack Ships for Europe? and what value is it computed, that the Goods sold may annually amount to?

68. How many Taverns or Public Houses for entertainment may there be kept in Newfoundland, or at least in the Harbour of St John? are they kept only by the Inhabitants, or by the Bye-Boatkeepers, and the People of New England also? do they trust the Fishermen upon their own Credit; or do the Masters of the Ships, and of the Bye-Boats permit them to trust their Crews, and deduct the same out of their respective Wages, Hire, or Shares, in order to satisfy the said Tavern-keepers? are not the poor Seamen hereby tempted to spend the greatest part, or the full amount of their Wages, and frequently run so far in debt, that they are forced to remain, as Servants to the Inhabitants, and at last constrained to betake themselves to New England?

69. Whether the Inhabitants do not usually trust their own Servants with Rum and other Stores, to a greater Value than their Wages amount to? and whether they are not generally paid in the manner, as in the foregoing Article?

70. How much do the Bye-Boatmen and the Inhabitants allow to the Masters of the Fishing Ships for the passage of their Servants; both out and home? In what manner do the said Inhabitants pay the Masters of the Fishing-Ships for the same, and for the several necessaries they supply them with? and whether a considerable part of these Debts is not secured by suffering their Seamen to run in Debt to the Inhabitants?

71. Whether this method of trusting the Fishermen is not the occasion of many Thefts and Disorders? are they not by their Debaucheries often withdrawn from, and rendered unfit for their Labour, to the great discouragement & obstruction of the Fishery?

72. Whether the Masters of the Fishing Ships and Bye Boats do not connive at, or encourage their men to remain in the Land, that they might save the Charge of carrying them home? What number of men do stay behind yearly and particularly last year? What number of Irish Catholicks is there in all the Towns in Newfoundland; and what proportion do they bear to the Protestants?

74. And whereas this practice must be prevented, if possible, you are to require all the Masters of the American Ships and Vessels, before their departure from Newfoundland, to enter into Obligations not to carry away any of the Seamen, &c^a, and all possible care must be taken to have those Obligations so witnessed, that, in case it be thought proper to put them in execution, they may not be invalidated for want of Evidence. And you are likewise to be as strict, as is practicable, to oblige all such American Ships, as may be in Newfoundland, to sail from thence at the same time you shall leave the Land, and to get all the proof, that can be had, of the breach of any Obligations, entered into, as aforesaid, and to transmit an account thereof to Us by one of Our principal Secretaries of State.

75. And whereas Complaints have formerly been made, that, by reason of the ill curing of the Fish in Newfoundland, the consumption thereof has been considerably lessened; and that the Trade would be lost, if effectual Care was not taken to reform the same; You are therefore to command the Admirals of the Harbours strictly to enjoin the Masters of the FishingShips, the Bye-Boatkeepers, and Inhabitants, to take the greatest Care in curing their Fish with good Salt, and with a sufficient Quantity; and in preparing, husbanding, & ordering the same; that the Credit thereof may be again recovered, and that it may be well received and esteemed in the several Places, to which it is carried for Sale.

And as the said Admirals are obliged to have a watchful Eye upon such, as are negligent herein, so they are to return to you the names of those, who will not comply with this Admonition.

And further you are upon this occasion very particularly to enquire into their manner and method of taking and curing their Fish; What quantity of Salt they allow for the curing every hundred Quintals? Whether they are guilty of any abuse in the ordering thereof? Whether the Fish taken at a distance from the Land by their small Vessels, is not prejudiced before it is brought on Shore? Whether the Inhabitants, the Fishing-Ships, or the Bye Boatkeepers are most to be blamed? And in short, from whence these Complaints did arise, and what methods are to be taken to prevent or rectify whatsoever is amiss?

76. And whereas there is a Salmon-Fishery erected in Fresh Water Bay, Ragget Harbour, Gander Bay, and Dog Creek, between Cape Bona Vista and Cape John in Newfoundland, and a second, which is since erected by other Persons at Grand Salmonier, Little Salmonier, &c^a in the same Island, which may prove of advantage to Great Britain; It will be necessary, that you give all due Encouragement and Protection to those undertakings, whereof you will inform yourself, and transmit the fullest Account you can get of the same to Us by one of Our Principal Secretaries of State.

77. And whereas Our late Royal Grandfather did, by His Letters Patent under the Great Seal of Great Britain, bearing date at Westminster

the 31st day of May in the second year of His Reign, constitute and appoint Henry Osborne Esquire to be Governor and Commander in Chief in, and over the said Island of Newfoundland, with Power to constitute and appoint Justices of the Peace, with other necessary Officers and Ministers for the better administration of Justice, and keeping the Peace and Quiet of the said island; which Powers have been continued to all the subsequent Governors there, and are continued in Our Commission to you: you are, upon your Arrival in the Island, to make enquiry, what Effect that Commission has had; What Justices of the Peace are now in actual Commission, and do execute the same in the respective Towns in Newfoundland, particularly at Placentia; how, and in what manner such Justices of the Peace behave in the execution of that Power; Whether the Inhabitants and Planters have duly submitted thereto: and what, if any, Obstructions have been given to the execution of that Authority: And to return your observations thereupon, with what you think may be further done for keeping the Peace and Quiet of the said Island, and of the Inhabitants residing therein, to Us, by one of Our principal Secretaries of State.

78. And whereas Complaints have been made to Us, that, notwithstanding all the precautions taken by Our said Governors for preserving the Peace in Newfoundland, disputes have arisen between the fishing Admirals and Our Justices of the Peace in the said Island; and that some of Our said Justices had been guilty of great Irregularities, to the Oppression of Our good Subjects; now you are, upon your Arrival at Newfoundland, to enquire into the truth of all such Complaints, and to supersede such Justices of the Peace, as shall appear to you to have acted unwarrantably in the execution of their Office. And you are strictly to prohibit those, who are, or shall be appointed Justices, from interfering in any degree with the fishing Admirals, in such matters relating to the Fishery, as are reserved for their Jurisdiction, by the aforesaid Act for "encouraging the Trade to Newfoundland"; taking care at the same time; that the said fishing-Admirals do their duty also, according to the Intention of the said Act. You are to be very particular in your Observations upon these Subjects, which you are to return to Us by one of Our principal Secretaries of State.

79. Whereas Complaint has been heretofore made, that the Sack-Ships, always jealous of each other, and contriving, who shall carry their Fish first to Market, frequently ship it, before it is cured, whereby it suffers in the passage, and brings the Fishery into discredit in foreign Markets; you shall make particular enquiry into this Complaint, and suggest to Us the best means, that occur to you, for preventing the said Evil for the future.

80. Whereas in the Answers returned to the like Queries by some former Commodores, some of the Columns in the Scheme of the Fishery have been returned Blank; In case you find it necessary to do so likewise, you are then to mention in such Column, whether the numbers, Prices, and

Quantities belonging thereto, are included in any other Column; and in which Column they are so included; or whether there was no fishing this year in those Harbours; or that there was fishing, but that you had not obtained any Account thereof: And if there be any fishing in any other River or Harbour in Newfoundland, or the other Islands and Coasts under your Government not in this Scheme mentioned, you are to add a Column or Columns for the Same, and insert therein the best Account you can get, with your remarks on such, as you think imperfect, or doubtful in any of the particulars.

81. And whereas the Answers to the several Heads of enquiry contained in the Instructions to former Governors of Newfoundland, and the Returns made of the Trade and Fishery thereof, according to the usual form hereunto annexed; have frequently been very defective and inaccurate; you are hereby strictly commanded to be very exact in your Enquiry and Examination into every particular, to which these Our Instructions have reference; to endeavour to collect the materials, from which your Answers are to be formed, from the best Authorities, and to enjoin the Admirals or other proper Officers in those Harbours, to which your personal Inspection cannot extend, to be as accurate as may be in the Returns, which they shall make to you, that those Returns be properly attested and signed by them; and that the number of Ships, their Tonnage, their number of Men, the places, from whence they come, and the quantity of Fish taken, cured, and carried to Market by each Ship, be particularly expressed, And you are likewise to transmit to Us, by one of Our principal Secretaries of State, all such other Information, with respect to the Fishery, as may enable Us to judge of the true and precise State of it in every particular, and of what may be further necessary for extending and improving so valuable a Branch of the Commerce of these Kingdoms.

82. Whereas We have thought fit, by Our Commission to you, to give and grant unto you full Power & Authority to constitute and appoint Judges, and, in Cases requisite, Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer, for the hearing & determining of all Criminal Causes; Treason excepted, Justices of the Peace, and other Officers and Ministers for the administration of Justice, with Power also to pardon Offenders, and to remit all Offences, Fines, & Forfeitures, wilful Murder only excepted, in which Case you have likewise Power, on extraordinary Occasions, to grant Reprieves; It is Our express Will and Pleasure, that you do not appoint any such Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer to meet or hold Assizes more than once a year, and that only during the time you, or the Governor for the time being shall be resident there; And that you do not suffer any of the Officers of Our Ships of War, or of any of the trading Ships of Our Subjects, which shall happen to be there, to be deprived of Life or Limb by any Sentence of such Court ; but in such Case, you shall reprove the Criminal, until Our Pleasure be known therein. And you shall take especial Care, that all Persons guilty of Treason

Whereas we have appointed you Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Ships & Vessels employ'd and to be employed at and about the Island of Newfoundland the Islands of Madelaine & Anticosti and upon the Coast of Labrador from the River S^t John to the entrance of Hudsons Straits and intend that the Ships & Vessels named in the annexed List, whose Commanders are directed to obey your Orders, shall be employed for the protection of the Fisheries carried on by His Majestys Subjects within those Limits during the ensuing Season; You are hereby required & directed to take the said Ships & Vessels under your command, and hoisting your Flag on board the Romney on her arrival at Spithead, proceed with her & such of the others as may be ready to accompany you, without loss of time, to Newfoundland, leaving Orders for the rest to follow you as soon as possible.

You are to call off the several Ports named in the Margin, in your way down Channel for any fishing Ships or Vessels bound to Newfoundland, which may be ready & whose Masters may be willing to accompany you, and having seen them as near to the Coast as may be necessary for their security You are to proceed in such manner as you shall judge best for carrying into execution the following Instructions.

Whereas, you have received His Majesty's Commission appointing you Governor & Commander in Chief in and over the Island of Newfoundland and of the Islands of Madelaine in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, and of all the Forts & Garrisons erected & established in the said Islands, And also His Majesty's Instructions for your Government therein you are to take particular care to act in all respects conformable to what is required by the said Commission & Instructions, and any other Instructions you may receive from His Majesty relating to the aforesaid Island of Newfoundland or any other Parts within the limits of your command, taking care to prevent all illegal Trade during your continuance on that Station, and also to secure & protect the Fisheries & Coasts from Piratical Ships or Vessels which you are to use your utmost endeavours to take or destroy.

You are, agreeable to an Act of Parliament of the 10th & 11th years of King William the 3^d, entitled "An Act to encourage the Trade to Newfoundland" (which you will receive herewith) to be aiding & assisting to the Admirals—Vice Admirals & Rear Admirals of the respective Ports and Harbours of Newfoundland from time to time as need shall require, in preserving the peace and good Government among the Seamen & Fishermen and in apprehending Offenders.

You are to be careful that there be not taken into the Ships under your command, to be transported to Newfoundland any Seamen, or others than such as do belong to them; And as you are not to lend any of the Ships Companies to any of the Fishing Ships so neither are you to suffer to be taken on board them any sort of Fish, either by way of Merchandize Freight, or otherwise excepting what shall be necessary for the use & spending of the Ships Companies.

And Whereas the Lords Commissioners for Trade & Plantations have represented to Us, that it is very prejudicial to this Kingdom that the Fishing Ships do not bring home from Newfoundland the Complement of Men they carry out, many of them being enticed away to New England and. others left in the Country, and, for that reason, have desired We would give you directions to signify to the Masters of all British Ships at Newfoundland that they take care to bring home the number of Men they carry out (except in case of Death) for that otherwise they will be prosecuted at their return; You are to let the Masters know the same accordingly and to use your best endeavours to oblige them thereto, as far as in you lies.

And Whereas no Foreign Ships or Vessels whatever (except as is herein after excepted) have any right to Fish at, or about Newfoundland, and the Commanders of the Ships of War bound as Convoy thither have at all times past, been directed not to allow of their Fishing in those parts, it is therefore His Majestys Pleasure, that you take especial care to prevent the same, and that his Orders given herein be strictly complied with; And if you shall meet with any Foreign Ships fishing at or about Newfoundland you are to oblige them to desist, & depart from off the Coast, excepting Ships & Vessels belonging to the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty fishing agreeably to the 13th Article of the Treaty of Peace concluded with France at Utrecht in the year 1713, and to the

And Whereas, by the said Articles of the Treaty at Paris, it is stipulated that the province of Canada with all its dependencies as well as the Island of Cape Breton & all the other Islands & Coasts in the Gulph & River S^t Lawrence and all that depends upon them shall belong to the Crown of Great Britain, but that the Subjects of France shall have the liberty of catching and drying their Fish upon a part of the Coast of Newfoundland only, to wit, from Cape Bona Vista to the Northward and as far as Pointe Riche but not to remain there beyond the time necessary for that purpose agreeable to the said 13th Article of the Treaty of Utrecht by which the property of the whole Island of Newfoundland is ceded to Great Britain, And His Majesty has by the said 5th Article of the Treaty of Paris consented to leave to the Subjects of the most Christian King the liberty of fishing in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, upon condition that they do not exercise the said Fishery but at the distance of three Leagues from all the Coasts belonging to Great Britain as well those of the Continent as those of the Islands situated in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence; and as to the Fishery out of the said Gulph, it is thereby stipulated that the Subjects of the most Christian King shall not be permitted to exercise the said Fishery, but at the distance of Fifteen leagues from the Coasts of the Island of Cape Breton; And that the Fishery upon the Coasts of Nova Scotia or Acadia, and every where else out the said Gulph, shall remain upon the footing of former Treaties; You are therefore to use your utmost care, diligence & attention, that the several stipulations herein beforementioned and referr'd to, be duly & strictly performed according to the Tenor & intention thereof, as far as they shall come within the limits of your command; And Whereas, in consequence of a dispute which had arisen concerning the Claims of the Subjects of France to have a concurrent Fishery in the Harbour of Bona Vista, the Earl of Dartmouth one of His Majestys Principal Secretaries of State did, by his Letter of the 2^d Sept^r 1772 acquaint Comm^o Shuldham that it being the opinion of all His Majestys Confidential Servants that the Subjects of France had an indisputable right to a concurrent Fishery in the Harbour of Bona Vista it was His Majestys Pleasure that he did not dispute that point, and that the Subjects of France be permitted to carry on a concurrent Fishery in that Harbour, in like manner & under the same regulations as had been established in regard to the other Ports & Harbours of Newfoundland which are situated between Cape Bona Vista & Pointe Riche; We signify the same for your information & guidance in order that you may take particular care that His Majestys pleasure in regard to the French Subjects fishing in the said Harbour, be strictly & punctually complied with.

You are to settle and guard the Fishery not only at Placentia & St Johns but as far to the Northward upon the Coasts of Newfoundland & upon those of the Continent of Labrador as your command extends; And to exert your best endeavours to encourage & support the Whale Fishery in the Straits of Belle Isle, the Cod Fishery in York Harbour and on the other parts of the Coast of the abovementioned Continent, as also the Seal, Sea Cow & Salmon Fisheries on the said Coast; And to hinder any Trade or intercourse being carried on by any Persons whatsoever other than the Subjects of Great Britain with the Inhabitants of that Country which of right belongs solely to His Majesty: And whereas the Coast of Labrador and the Islands adjacent have, by a late Act of Parliament been re-annexed to the Province of Quebec, And His Majesty hath by His Instructions to the Governor of that Province dated the 3^d of January last signified to him, that the Fisheries on the said Coast & Islands are objects of the greatest importance, not only on account of the Commodities they produce but also as Nurseries of Seamen upon whom the strength & security of His Kingdom's depend: That Justice & Clemency demand, that the real & actual property of the Canadian Subjects on that Coast (whose Claims however extend but to a small district on the greatest part of which a Cod Fishery is stated to be impracticable) should be preserved intirely[sic] and that they should not be molested or hindered in the exercise of any sedentary Fisheries they may have established there: And that on all such parts of the Coast where there are no Canadian Possessions and more especially where a valuable Cod Fishery may be carried on, it will be his Duty to make the Interest of the British Subjects going out to Fish there in Ships fitted out from Great Britain the first object of his care and as far as circumstances will admit to establish on that Coast the regulations in favor of British Fishing Ships which have been so wisely adopted by the beforementioned Act of the 10th, & 11th of K^g William the 3^d; And that he is on no account to allow any possession to be taken or sedentary Fisheries to be established on any part of the Coast that are not already private property by any Persons whatsoever except only such as shall produce Annually a Certificate of their having fitted out from some Port in Great Britain; You are therefore, in pursuance of His Majestys pleasure signified to Us by L^d Dartmouth in his Letter of the 28th of last Month, to make those Fisheries particular objects of your attention & enquiry; Affording them every reasonable & necessary protection, and transmitting to Us, in order to be communicated to his Lordship for His Majestys information, the fullest report of the State & Condition & progress thereof.

And Whereas the Society of Unitas Fratrum urged by a laudable Zeal for promoting Christianity, have already, under His Majestys protection and with his permission formed establishments in the Northern parts of the Coast of Labrador for the purposes of civilizing the Savages & converting them to the Christian Religion, in which their success has been answerable to their Zeal; And His Majesty hath signified His express Will & Pleasure to the Governor of Quebec, that he do give them every countenance & assistance in his power and not allow any Establishment to be made but with their consent, within the limits of their possessions; You are, in pursuance of His Maj^s further pleasure signified to Us as aforesaid, to give such support & protection to the establishment of the said Society as shall correspond with His Majesty's most gracious intentions to them.

You are to protect the Fisheries carried on by His Majestys Subject in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence near the Islands of Madelaine &c^a, And to take particular care of the Sea Cow Fisheries which have been, or may be established on the said Islands by His Majestys Subjects, be not disturbed by the Crews of any North American Ships or Vessels, or others destroying those Animals in the Water or by any means deterring them from the usual places of landing; And to dispose of some of the Ships or Vessels under your command in such manner as shall best serve for that purpose without prejudice to the more material Parts of the important Services committed to your care.

You are to take care to prevent the Subjects of France from giving those of His Majesty employed in carrying on the abovementioned Fisheries any disturbance by Acts of Violence or injustice or by any evasion contrary to the Spirit & intention of the said Treaties and the provisions contained in the abovementioned Statute of the 10th & 11th of William the 3^d and also to prevent the French from catching or drying Fish except within the limits & distances & in the manner beforementioned You are at the same time, to be careful that the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty may not be interrupted in their Fishery as stipulated by, or to be exercised pursuant to, the Treaties of Utrecht & Paris before mentioned, or in their drying their Fish upon the Coast of Newfoundland, or in fishing or drying their Fish in the Harbour of Bona Vista according to the said Treaties; and you are to use your best endeavours to prevent His Majestys Subjects from giving them any disturbance in their said Fishery, or in drying their Fish as aforesaid, by any Acts of Violence or Injustice or by any evasion contrary to the Spirit & intention of the said Treaties; And

Whereas great Complaints were made by the Court of France that several Acts of Violence were committed in the Year 1763 on the French Fishermen at Newfoundland by the Commanders of His Maj^{ty}s Ship stationed on that Coast in burning their Boats & driving them off the Coast before the Season for fishing and drying their Fish was expired whereby the Fishery of the Subjects of France with those of Great Britain was greatly interrupted; And Whereas it is the firm intention of the King to maintain, with the utmost justice probity & good Faith, as well the Subjects of France as those of His own Dominions, in the enjoyment of that Fishery which is allowed them in common with His Maj^{ty}s own Subjects upon the Coast of Newfoundland between Cape Bona Vista & Pointe Riche & else where within the distances prescribed by the Treaties of Utrecht & Paris beforementioned; You are hereby positively enjoined, in pursuance of His Maj^{ty}s express Commands signified to Us for that purpose, to abstain and to use your utmost endeavours to prevent the Commanders of His Majestys Ships or any other His Majestys Subjects, from giving any interruption to the Subjects of France in carrying on that Fishery which they are allowed by Treaties to enjoy, in common with the Kings Subjects within the limits therein described and also in the Harbour of Bona Vista as aforesaid either by burning their Boats or by any Violent or unfair proceedings; And for that purpose, you are to take great care that the subjects of France be not hindered from or obstructed in, resorting to any part of, those Harbours within the above limits, or in remaining on the Coasts thereof so long as they shall be actually engaged in the employment of fishing or drying their Fish, provided they be contented with such a just & moderate use of those priviledges as is warranted by the Letter & Spirit of Treaties, and that they conform to such regulations founded on the said Treaties as may preserve that fair & equitable concurrence in the fishery as is the peculiar object of them; That such Ships & Vessels of both Nations as shall resort to any parts within those limits for carrying on the Fishery, do chuse their Stations as they respectively arrive, and that they do occupy such space only of Beach as shall be proportioned to the number of their Boats; And that the Subjects of France be not included within any of those restrictions which are, in their nature peculiar to, and were originally intended for, the fishery of His Majestys Subjects only, and are founded in the abovementioned Act of the 10th & 11th of King William the 3^d which does not, in the opinion of His Majestys Law Servants extend to those parts of the Coast of Newfoundland which were not in the possession of the Crown of Great Britain at the time it was enacted, But

The French having, in the Year 1765, claimed a right of fishing on the Coasts of the Island of Belle-Isle at the entrance of the Straits of that name between the North Part of Newfoundland and the Coast of Labrador on the ground of its being an appendage to the former Comm^o Palliser was directed the succeeding Year to examine whether that Island was situated nearest to the Coast of Labrador or to the Coast of Newfoundland to determine which it belonged to, and to permit or restrain the French fishing on the Coast of that Island accordingly; And M^r Palliser having in consequence thereof reported to Us by his Letter of the 25th of August 1766, that he had forbid them resorting to that Island it lying indisputably nearest to Labrador; We signify the same for your information & guidance in case the French should attempt to Fish on the Coasts of the said Island of Belle Isle in the approaching Season.

And whereas, pursuant to the 24th Article of the said Treaty of Paris, possession of the Islands of S Peter & Miquelon has been given to France, and from their vicinity to the Island of Newfoundland & other parts of His Majestys Dominions in North America, as illicit Trade may be attempted to be carried on between the British, Indian, or any other Inhabitants of His Majestys Dominions & the Subjects of France residing in the said Islands of S^t Peter & Miquelon, or employed in the fishery by Virtue of the said Treaties or between His Majestys said Subjects & other Subjects of France or of other Powers trading or pretending to Trade to, or with, the said Islands of S^t Peter & Miquelon; In case any endeavours shall be used to carry on such illicit Trade as aforesaid, you are to be particularly attentive to the same & prevent, if possible all communication whatever between the said Islands of S^t Peter & Miquelon and any part of His Majestys Dominions in North America, contrary to the plain & direct meaning of this Instruction But,

The French having in the Year 1766 claimed a right of fishing on the Coasts of the abovementioned Islands of S^t Peter & Miquelon; the Duke of Richmond, one of His Majestys then Principal Secretaries of State signified to Us, that tho' we cannot admit, that, by the Treaties subsisting, the French have any right to the said Claim of fishing between those Islands and the Coast of Newfoundland & therefore that no such concession ought to be made to them yet, as Comm^o Palliser had reported that he had not found it immediately necessary to His Majestys Service to interrupt the French Boats fishing on the Coasts of those Islands, it was His Majestys pleasure that we should instruct him to hold the same conduct 'til further Orders or 'til the behaviour of the French, by an abuse of that liberty, should make it necessary for him to alter it; You are also to hold the like conduct in this respect until further Order or til the behaviour of the French, by an abuse of the said liberty shall make it necessary for you to alter it.

And, in order that these Services may be more effectually performed you are to assign to the several Ships & Vessels under your command such Stations on the Coast of Newfoundland & Labrador including the Islands of Madelaine & Anticosti in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence as shall be most proper; giving to their respective Commanders full & clear Instructions on the several points herein beforementioned conformable to the foregoing Articles of these our Instructions to yourself, and directing them also very carefully to visit the several Coasts Harbours & Fishing Grounds within the limits of their respective Stations, and to make Charts of such parts of the Coasts & Draughts of such of the Harbours as have not already been surveyed; noting the depths of Water, conveniency for fishing & whatever observations occur worthy

our knowledge, which are to be transmitted to you to be laid before Us; And you are yourself, if practicable, to visit such parts of the said Coasts &c^a as your necessary attention to the other branches of your Duty will admit of in the course of the Season; that you may compare the reports made to you with your own observations, before you transmit them to Us.

When the early Trade shall be ready about the latter end of August you are to order the Commander of one of the Frigates to take them under Convoy & proceed off Cape Finisterre, where he is to leave those bound to the Ports on the North Coasts of Spain, and proceed off the Coast of Portugal with the rest calling at Lisbon for any homeward bound Trade that may be ready, and after a stay there not exceeding* Ten Days at farthest, to make the best of his Way with such as may be willing to accompany him to England seeing them in safety as far as his way and theirs may lie together.

And, when the Service will admit, you are to send home the other Ships & Vessels; directing their Commanders to take under their Convoy any homeward bound Trade that may be ready & willing to accompany them, and to see them in safety as far as their way lies together; which Ships & Vessels as well as the others of your Squadron, are, on their return to England to repair to the following Ports Viz^t

Romney	Plymouth or Portsmouth
Surprize	Portsmouth
Alborough	Plymouth
Slo: Martin	Ditto
Lyon Transport	Deptford

By the end of October, you are to take under your Convoy any Fishing Ships which may be then bound to Portugal & Spain & see them off their respective Ports as far to the Southward as Cadiz; And in case you shall find at that Port any homeward bound Trade ready & willing to accompany you to England you are to take them under your care & putting to Sea with the first opportunity of Wind & Weather proceed to Lisbon where you are in like manner to take under your care such homeward bound Trade as may be there, And then after a stay not exceeding Eight Days at furthest you are to leave that Port and make the best of your way with the whole of the aforesaid Trade to England; seeing them in safety as far as your way theirs may lie together; In case however it shall be necessary or more eligible for you to send a Frigate to perform this Service you are at liberty to do so, and to proceed yourself directly in the Romney to England with such homeward Trade as may be desirous & in readiness to accompany you; repairing into Hamoze, or going on to Portsmouth as you shall find most convenient, and sending Us an Account of your arrival and proceedings.

But, in pursuance of the Kings Pleasure signified to Us by the Earl of Rochford one of His Maj^s Principal Secretaries of State in his Letter of the 30th of August 1771 (a Copy of which as well as of the 16th, Article of the Treaty of 1667 which accompanied it, you will receive herewith) You are to give the strictest Orders to the respective Captains & Commanders of the Ships & Vessels under your command who may be sent to the Coast of Spain, to take especial care to conform themselves, in going into & remaining in the Ports of that Kingdom, to the Treaties subsisting between the two Crowns; And to regulate your own proceedings accordingly in case you shall go thither yourself.

p. 504

In case you shall, at any time find that a greater number of Ships & Vessels than those which may be under your command shall be necessary to enable you to execute the Service on which you are employed, you are to apply to Vice Adm^l Graves or the Commander in Chief for the time being of His Maj^{ty}s Ships & Vessels employed & to be employed in the River S^t Lawrence and along the Coasts of Nova Scotia, the Islands of S^t John & Cape Breton, and thence to Cape Florida & the Bahama Islands for such reinforcements as you shall stand in need of, who has our Orders to supply you therewith.

For the better maintaining a proper Government & strict discipline in the Squadron under your command, We do hereby authorize & empower you to call & assemble Courts Martial in Foreign Parts as often as you shall see occasion; And Commanders Ships in Foreign Parts have sometimes neglected to hold Courts Martial for enquiring into the occasion of the loss of His Majesty's Ships when such misfortunes have happened, whereby the Crown has been put to an unnecessary expence and the Officers & Companies to great inconveniences by being kept out of their Wages, You are, in case of such an Accident, to cause a Court Martial to be assembled, as soon afterwards as possible, to try the Officers & Company for the same; and to transmit to our Secretary the proceedings & judgment thereupon by the first safe conveyance afterwards.

In case of the Death of any Officer of the Ships or Vessels under your command or the dismissal of them by a Court Martial, You are hereby empowered to appoint such other Persons as, by the quality of their Employments ought to succeed therein; particularly observing to appoint Commanders to be Captains of Post Ships in preference to Lieutenants; And you are to take notice that we will not

confirm any Officers appointed to Vacancies arising in any other manner. In case of suspension you are only to give Orders to proper Persons to act until such suspension shall be removed or we shall think fit to give directions therein; And you are constantly to transmit to Us by the first opportunity after appointing any Officer as aforesaid, an Account thereof, with your reasons for appointing him; But Whereas, notwithstanding Commanders in Chief of His Majestys Ships employed Abroad have been only empowered to fill up Vacancies occasioned by the Death of Officers or their dismissal by Courts Martial as above directed, it hath frequently happened that they have permitted Captains & Lieutenants to resign their Employments on account of ill health & have appointed Officers, by Commission to fill up the Vacancies which have arisen by such resignation & sometimes removed Officers from one Ship to another on such occasions, which has not only been attended with with[sic] disappointment* to the new made Officers as they could not be confirmed but has subjected the King's Service to inconveniences and this Office to much perplexity; You are therefore hereby required & directed to be particularly careful never to allow of any such resignation unless you shall find it absolutely necessary from a thorough conviction that the Parties applying to quit are really in such ill health as to be incapable of any longer continuing to execute properly their respective Duties; And whenever you shall give such permission to the Captain or Commander of any Ship or Vessel under your command, you are to direct the Lieutenant of such Ship or Vessel to take upon him the Command, or, in case of giving such permission to a Lieutenant, to direct a Midshipman of the Ship or Vessel to which such Lieutenant belongs to act in his room (provided such Lieutenant or Midshipman be fitly qualified to take upon them such charge) until our pleasure be known.

p. 505

You are to send, by all opportunities to our Secretary for our information an Account of your proceedings relative to the Service, and such intelligence as you may have collected proper for our knowledge; And you are moreover upon your return to England, to transmit to our Secretary to be laid before Us, a Journal of your proceedings with the Squadron under your command or any part thereof, & of the Services upon which you may send any of the Ships or Vessels with your reasons for the same; And to note therein all such particular & remarkable occurrences as may be proper for our information. And whereas no foreign Ships or Vessels whatever have any Right to Fish at or about Newfoundland, & the Commanders of the Ships of War bound as Convoy thither have at all times past been directed not to allow of their fishing in those parts, it is therefore His Majesty's Pleasure that you take especial care to prevent the same and that His Orders given herein be strictly complied with. And if you shall meet with any foreign Ships fishing at or about Newfoundland, you are to oblige them to desist & depart from off the Coast.

You are to settle and Guard the Fishery, not only at Placentia and S^t Johns, but as far to the Northward, upon the Coasts of Newfoundland & upon those of the Continent of Labradore, as your Command extends. And to exert your best endeavours to encourage & support the Whale Fishery in the Straits of Bell Isle, the Cod Fishery in York Harbour, & on the other parts of the Coast of the above mentioned Continent, as also the Seal, Sea Cow & Salmon Fisheries on the said Coast; And to hinder any Trade or intercourse being carried on by any persons whatsoever, other than the Subjects of Great Britain, with the Inhabitants of that Country, which of Right belongs Solely to

His Majesty. And whereas the Coast of Labradore & the Islands adjacent, have by a late Act of Parliament, been re-annexed to the Province of Quebec; And His Majesty hath, by His Instructions to the Governour of that Province dated the 3^d Jan^y 1775 signified to him that the Fisheries on the said Coasts & Islands are Objects of the greatest importance not only on account of the Commodities they produce, but, also as Nurseries of Seamen, upon whom the Strength of His Kingdoms depend; that Justice & Clemency demand that the real & actual property of the Canadian Subjects on that Coast (whose Claims however extend but to a small District, on the greatest part of which, a Cod Fishery is stated to be impracticable) should be preserved entirely, & that they should not be molested or hinderd in the exercise of any Sedentary Fisheries they may have established there; and that on all such parts of the Coast where there are no Canadian possessions, and more especially where a valuable Cod Fishery may be carried on it will be his Duty to make the Interest of the British Subjects going out to fish there in Ships fitted out from Great Britain, the first Object of his Care, & as far as circumstances will admit, to establish on that Coast the Regulations in favour of British Fishing Ships which have been so wisely adopted by the before mentioned Act of the 10th & 11th of King William the third ; And that he is on no account to allow any Possession to be taken, or sedentary Fisheries to be established, on any part of the Coast that are not already private property, by any Persons whatsoever except only such as shall produce Annually a Certificate of their having fitted out from some Port in Great Britain. You are therefore in pursuance of His Majesty's Pleasure signified to Us, by Lord Dartmouth in his Letter of the 28th April 1775 to make these Fisheries particular Objects of your attention & enquiry; affording them every reasonable & necessary Protection & transmitting to Us, for His Majestys Information the fullest Report of the State & Condition & progress thereof.

The Society of Unitas Fratrum, urged by a laudable zeal for promoting Christianity having already, under His Majestys Protection, & with His Permission, formed Establishments in the Northern parts of the Coast of Labradore for the purposes of Civilizing the Savages, & converting them to the Christian Religion in which their success has been answerable to their Zeal; And His Majesty having signified His express Will and Pleasure to the Governour of Quebec, that he do give them every countenance & Assistance in his power & not allow any Establishment to be made but with their Consent within the Limits of their Possessions. You are in pursuance of His Majestys further pleasure signified to Us by Lord Dartmouth in his Letter before mentioned, to give such support and Protection to the Establishment of the said Society as shall correspond with His Majestys most gracious intentions to

Besides the Superintendance & regulations of the Fisheries of the Island of Newfoundland, & the Coast of Labradore abovementioned, you are, in pursuance of His Majesty's Pleasure signified to Us by Lord George Germain one of His Principal Secretaries of State in his Letter of the 23^d of February

p. 524

1776 to afford every Protection in your power to those which are carried on in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence within the limits of your command, & also upon the Islands in that Gulf, & to keep Cruizers constantly employed on that Service, taking particular care that no Vessels belonging to any of the Associated Colonies be permitted to fish or carry on any Trade or Commerce in those Seas, & that every effort be made to take or destroy any such, as also any Piratical Armed Vessels which may be fitted out by the Rebels with a view to disturb the British Fisheries & intercept defenceless Vessels in their passage to Quebec; And you are to take particular care that the Sea Cow Fisheries, which have been or may be, established on the Islands of Madelaine &c. by His Majesty's Subjects, be not disturbed by the Crews of any Ships or Vessels whatever destroying those Animals in the Water, or by any means deterring them from the usual places of landing, disposing of some of the Ships or Vessels under your command in such manner as shall best serve for that purpose, without prejudice to the more material parts of the important Service committed to your Care.

And, in order that these Services may be more effectually performed, you are to assign to the several Ships & Vessels under your command such Stations on the Coast of Newfoundland & Labradore, including the Islands of Madelaine & Antcosti in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence as shall be most proper, giving to their respective Commanders full & clear Instructions on the several points herein before mentioned conformable to the for-going Articles of these Our Instructions to yourself. And directing them also, very carefully to visit the several Coasts, Harbours, & Fishing Grounds, within the limits of their respective Stations, and to make Charts of the parts of the Coasts, and Draughts of such of the Harbours as have not already been Surveyed, Noting the depths of Water conveniency for fishing, & whatever Observations occur worthy our knowledge; which are to be transmitted to you to be laid before Us. And you are Yourself if practicable, to visit such parts of the said Coasts &c, as your necessary attention to the brances* of your Duty will admit of* in the course of the Season, that you may compare the Reports made to you, with your own observations, before you transmit them to Us.

When the early Trade shall be ready about the latter end of August you are to appoint two Frigates, or one Frigate & a Sloop as you shall Judge most proper, to take them under Convoy, & proceed off Cape Finisterre; when the Senior Officer *Officer is to direct the other to see the Trade bound into the Bay to the Ports of their destination & afterwards repair to Spithead; the Senior Officer himself proceeding off the Coast of Portugal with the rest, calling at Lisbon for any homeward bound Trade that may be ready, & after a stay there, not exceeding Eight days at farthest, making the best of his way to Spithead with such as may be willing to accompany him.

Towards the end of October you are to appoint a proper Convoy to the, Fishing Ships which may then be bound to Portugal & Spain; instructing the Senior Officer to see them in safety off the Ports to which they are respectively destined as far to the Southward as Cadiz. And in case there are at that Port any homeward bound Trade ready & willing to accompany him You will direct him to take them under his Care, & putting to Sea with the first Opportunity of Wind & Weather proceed to Lisbon, where he is in like manner to take under his care such Trade as may be homeward bound, and after a Stay not exceeding Eight Days at most, leave that Port & make the best of his way with all the said Trade to England, seeing them in safety as far as their way & his may lie together, & repairing himself with such other Ship or Ships of your Squadron as may be with him to Spithead for further Orders.

In pursuance of the Kings pleasure signified to Us by the Earl of Rochford, late one of His Majestys principal Secretaries of State in his Letter of the 30th August 1771 (a Copy of which as well as of the 16th Article of the Treaty of 1667 which accompanied it, you will receive herewith) you are to give the Strictest Orders to the respective Captains & Commanders of the Ships & Vessels under your command, who may be sent to the Coast of Spain, to take especial care to conform themselves, in going into, & remaining in the Ports of that Kingdom to the Treaties subsisting between the two Crowns.

You are, by the end of October to quit the Coast of Newfoundland & return to Spithead with such of the Ships & Vessels of your Squadron as have not been detached with Convoys except the Armed Vessels, Schooners & Shallops which (with one of the Sloops or more if you shall judge it necessary) are to be left at Newfoundland during the Winter, at such place or places as you shall judge best, with Orders to their Commanders to get them equipt in the Spring as early as possible, & to exert their best endeavours for the protection of the Coast from any attempts of the Rebels, or others until you return, assigning them such Stations & giving them such Instructions as you shall think most likely to answer that purpose. And you are to take under your Convoy any homeward bound Trade that may be ready & willing to accompany you, & to see them in safety as far as their way & your way lies together.

DRAFT OF INSTRUCTIONS FOR JOHN CAMPBELLAS GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF IN AND OVER THE ISLAND OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

C.O. 5. VOL. 32.

At the Court at St James's the 3rd of May, 1782.

Present,

The King's most Excellent Majesty in Council.

Whereas there was this Day read at the Board, a Report from the Right Honorable the Lords of the Committee of Council for Plantation Affairs, Dated the 25th of last Month, in the words following, viz:—

"Your Majesty having been pleased to refer unto this Committee, a Representation of the Lords Commissioners for Trade and plantations, dated the 19th Instant, in the words following viz:—"

"Your Majesty having signified to us your Royal Pleasure by the Earl of Shelburne, one of your Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, that We should prepare Draughts of a Commission and Instructions to be submitted to your Majesty's approbation, for Vice Admiral John Campbell appointed by Your Majesty Governor of Newfoundland, and the Islands thereunto belonging; We beg leave humbly to represent:—"

"That having already prepared and submitted the Draught of a Commission for the said Governor in the usual form and tenour, We beg leave herewith to lay before Your Majesty, a Draught of Instructions, in which, after Consultation had with Your Majesty's present and preceeding Governor, we have judged it expedient to alter some Articles, and omit many others."

"Whilst we forbear to enter into an Enumeration of Minute Corrections, we think it necessary to observe, that we have proposed to omit the eleventh Article of the late Instructions, and in lieu thereof,"

p. 534

"to substitute the Article as it now stands, as being more comprehensive, and including a general Direction for the due Observance of the several Acts passed in the fifteenth, eighteenth and nineteenth Years of Your Majesty's Reign, and which apply to the Trade of Newfoundland."

"The seventeenth Article of the late Instructions, we have Omitted, as it contains simply a direction to the Governor to carry with him a Copy of the Act of the tenth and eleventh of King William the third, and we have inserted in lieu thereof the Article as it now stands, and which we presume will comprehend every Direction necessary to be given upon the said Act."

"We have omitted the Articles from the eighteenth to the thirty fourth, both inclusive of the former Copy, as only containing Queries arising from the said Act of the tenth and eleventh King William the third, and which, although they might have been proper to give in Instruction to the Governor of Newfoundland in 1699, when that Act was recently passed, do not now appear to us any longer necessary."

"We have altered and retrenched the thirty fifth Article, in Consequence of these Omissions; And we have left out the Articles from the Thirty Sixth to the Sixty third inclusive, as containing Queries under the like description as those already stated, and which appear to us equally superfluous, and we have in lieu thereof substituted the nineteenth and twentieth Articles as they now stand, the first for general Information, with respect to the Regulations at present observed, and the latter with respect to the Treatment of the Native Indians."

"The other Articles stand as they did before."

"And it having been represented to us, that several of Your Majesty's Subjects have settled themselves upon the Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon for the purpose of carrying on Fisheries, we have thought it necessary to insert the thirty first Instruction, in Order that they may conform themselves, as far as local Circumstances may Admit, to the several Regulations contained in these Instructions."

"The Lords of the Committee, in obedience to Your Majesty's said Order of Reference, this Day took the said Representation and Draught of General Instructions into Consideration, and concurring in opinion with the said Lords Commissioners that the Omission of the several Articles above mentioned, the alteration of others, and the insertion of the thirty first Article for the guidance of such of your Majesty's Subjects as have settled themselves upon the Islands of St Pierre and Miquelon for the purpose of carrying on Fisheries are proper and necessary. Do humbly agree to Report to Your Majesty that the said Draught of Instructions is proper for Your Majesty's Royal Approbation."

His Majesty taking the said Report into consideration, is pleased, with the Advice of His privy Council, to approve of the said Draught of Instructions, and also of the Alterations made therein, and to Order as it is hereby ordered, that the Right Honorable the Earl of Shelburne, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, do cause the said Draught of Instructions (which are hereunto annexed) to be prepared for His Majesty's Royal Signature.

2nd It is Our Will and Pleasure that you do from time to time, as the Nature of the Service will allow, visit all the Coasts and Harbours of the Islands under your Government, in order to inspect and examine the state and condition of the Fisheries, which are or may be carried on upon the said Coasts and Islands. You shall also use your best endeavours to procure accurate Draughts or Maps of the several Harbours, Bays & Coasts of Newfoundland, and the other Islands under Your Government, if the same shall not already have been obtained: And You are more particularly to direct the Officer of any Vessel under your Command which may be appointed to visit that part of the Coast of Labradore which lies between Hudsons Streights and the Streights of Belisle, to search and explore the great Inlet, commonly known by the Name of Davis's Inlet, in order to discover whether the same has or has not any Passage to Hudsons Bay or any other inclosed Sea.

3rd You are also to enquire and Report to Us, by One of Our Principal Secretaries of State, whether any or what further Establishment may be necessary to be made, or Forts erected in any Part of Newfoundland, or the other Islands under Your Government, either for the Protection of the Fishery, the Security of the Country, or the establishing and carrying on a Commerce with the Indians residing in or resorting to the said Islands.

C.O. 195. VOL. 11.

INSTRUCTIONS to Our Trusty and Welbeloved John Campbell Esqr, Our Governor and Commander in Chief, in and over Our Island of Newfoundland in America, and of the Islands of Madelaine in the Gulph of Saint Lawrence; as also of all Our Forts and Garrisons erected and established or that shall be erected and established in Our said Islands of Newfoundland and Madelaine. Given at Our Court at Saint James's the Second day of June 1786, in the Twenty Sixth Year of Our Reign.

First—With these Our Instructions you will receive Our Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, constituting you Our Governor and Commander in Chief, in and Over Our Island of Newfoundland in America, and of the Islands of Madelaine in the Gulph of Saint Lawrence, as also of all Our Forts and Garrisons erected and established in our said Islands, with directions to obey and follow such Orders and Instructions as shall front time to time be given you under Our Signet and Sign Manual, or by Our Order in Our Privy Council; You are therefore to fit yourself with all convenient speed and to repair to Your said Command, and being arrived, You are to take upon You the Execution of the Place and Trust we have reposed in You, and as soon as conveniently may be to assemble the principal Inhabitants of the Island of Newfoundland, and of any other Islands within your Government, as you shall judge necessary, and with all due Solemnity to cause Our said Commission, constituting You Our Governor and Commander in Chief as aforesaid to be read and published at such meeting.

2.—It is Our Will and Pleasure, that you do from time to time, as the nature of the Service will admit, visit all the Coasts and Harbours of the Islands under your Government, in order to inspect and examine the State and Condition of the Fisheries, which are or may be carried on upon the said Coasts and Islands; You shall also procure accurate Draughts or Maps of the several, Harbours, Bays, and Coasts of Newfoundland if the same have not already been obtained, and you are particularly to direct the Officer which may be appointed to visit that part of the Coast of Labrador which is between Hudsons Streights and the Streights of Bell'isle to search and explore the great Inlet commonly known by the name of Davis's Inlet in order to discover whether the same has or has not any Passage to Hudsons Bay, or any other inclosed Sea; and such Officer under your Command who shall visit any part of the said Coast of Labrador, or the Gulph of Saint Lawrence, where any Whale or Sea-Cow Fisheries are carried on, shall be by you directed to enquire and report particularly the State of such Fisheries, by whom the same are carried on, the Supposed produce of them, the number of Vessels employed therein, and such other particulars, as may serve to convey a clear and perfect information of such Fisheries, which Information you are to transmit to us, thro' One of Our Principal Secretaries of State, together with any other Information, which you may obtain on this Subject, and which you shall judge may tend to the extension and improvement thereof.

3.—You are to enquire and report to us, by One of Our Principal Secretaries of State, whether it may be necessary to erect any new Forts or Posts in any part of Newfoundland or the other Islands under your Government, either for the protection of the Fishery, the Security of the Government or the establishing and carrying on a Commerce with the Indians residing in, or resorting to the said Islands; And you are not to permit any Persons whatever, except Our Subjects, to carry on Commerce with the said Indians; and you are to use your best Endeavours to conciliate their Affections, and to induce them to trade with Our Subjects; and in order to prevent any improper Conduct towards the said Indians, It is Our Will and Pleasure that you do, as soon as conveniently may be after your Arrival, cause a Proclamation in Our Name to be published and dispersed through the said Islands, strictly enjoining and requiring all Our Subjects to live in Amity and Kindness with the said Indians; and commanding and requiring all Officers and Magistrates to maintain and support good Order and Behaviour towards them; and in case any Person or Persons shall murder any of the said Indians, to use their utmost Endeavours to discover and apprehend those who shall be guilty of such Murder, that they may be sent over to this Kingdom and tried for such Crime as directed by the Act of the 10th and 11th of King William the Third. It is Our further Will and Pleasure, that you do report to Us, thro' one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, the best Accounts you can obtain of the Number of the said Indians, the places they usually frequent to trade, the nature and extent of the Trade, that is, or may be carried on with them, and how the same may in your

4.—Whereas the more effectually to extend, encourage and improve the Fisheries and Commerce of Our said Islands, it is necessary to prevent any Foreigners, from being concerned therein, and especially from being part Owners of or interested in any Vessel or Vessels employed therein, You are therefore to use your utmost endeavours that no such illicit practices be carried on within your Government, and for this purpose you are to be particularly careful to enforce the several Provisions of the Acts of the 10th and 11th of William the Third, and of the 15th of Our Reign, and of an Act passed in the present Session of Parliament, intituled, "An Act to amend and render more effectual the several Laws now in force for encouraging the Fisheries carried on at Newfoundland, and parts adjacent, from Great Britain, Ireland, and the British Dominions in Europe; and for granting Bounties for a limited time, on certain Terms and Conditions," and of any other Acts of Parliament in force for encouraging the Shipping and Navigation of Great Britain: And you are not to suffer any Foreigners whatsoever to fish, or dry, or cure any Fish, on any of the Coasts, or Shores within the same, except in cases, where by any Treaty subsisting between Great Britain and any Foreign Power, the same shall be allowed and permitted to the Subjects only of such Foreign Powers.

5.—You are not to permit or allow any of Our Officers and Soldiers, or other Persons whatever belonging to the Garrisons at present existing, or which may hereafter exist within your Government to engage in the Fishery directly, or indirectly, or to interrupt the Fishermen in catching, drying, or curing their Fish, or to take up for themselves any Beaches, Stages, or Cook Rooms upon any pretence whatsoever; And if any such Officers, Soldiers, or other Persons, shall act in contradiction to this Our Instruction, you are to report the same to Us, thro' one of Our principal Secretaries of State, that he, or they may be made sensible of Our highest Displeasure.

6.—And whereas the Monopolizing and engrossing of any Provisions, Stores, and Commodities, necessary for the subsistence of the Fishermen and others employed in the Fishery, or for carrying on the same, will be highly prejudicial to the general Interest thereof, you are by every legal means in your power to prevent and suppress any attempt that may be made for that purpose.

7.—And whereas it hath been represented unto us, that divers of Our Subjects have upon various unwarrantable pretences, and under pretended Grants or permissions given by former Governors of Our Island of Newfoundland, possessed themselves of and claim as their private property large Tracts of Land and Beaches commodious for the Fishery upon the Coasts, and within the several Harbours and Rivers of the said Island and the Islands adjacent contrary to Law. In order therefore to prevent such unwarrantable practices in future; It is Our Will and Pleasure that you do not upon any pretence whatsoever allow any Person or Persons to take as private property any Land, Rivers or Islands on the Island of Newfoundland or the Coasts thereof, between Cape Saint John along the Southern Coast of the said Island to Cape Raye on the Westernmost Coast thereof, and you are to take care that the Ancient Ship Rooms and Fishery Rooms do continue under the provisions of the Act of Parliament passed in the 10th and 11th Years of the Reign of King William the Third Cap: 25 for the encouragement of new Adventurers that they may be sure of finding proper and convenient places for curing, salting, drying and Husbanding their Fish whenever they resort thither. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure that the remaining Shores of Newfoundland shall be held by such of Our Subjects resorting thither from Our Dominions in Europe who shall first arrive and take possession of the same, for the like purpose of carrying on the Fishery in proportion to the number of Ships and Boats they shall employ, and they shall continue to hold the same in like manner and for the like purpose, so long as they shall continue to carry on the Fishery there: But in case they shall neglect so to carry on the Fishery for one entire Season, such shores or parts thereof, which shall be neglected or deserted by such possessors shall be held for the like purpose, and in like manner by any of Our Subjects resorting thither from our Dominions in Europe, who shall first occupy the same for the purpose of carrying on the Fishery, and you are to put and maintain such Persons in possession thereof And you are not to allow or suffer any Buildings to be erected (except Fishing Stages, Cook Rooms, Ship Rooms and Flakes or such erections as shall be absolutely necessary for curing, salting, drying and Husbanding of Fish) within 600 Yards distance from High Water Mark, and you are not to allow any possession, as private property to be taken of, or any right of property whatever acknowledged in any Land whatever even beyond that distance. It is Our further Will and Pleasure nevertheless that all and any Buildings, Erections Wharfs, Slips or Fences already erected may remain, provided the same are not erected or built upon Ancient Ship Rooms or fishing Rooms, and provided they are not in your Judgment considered to be Nuisances and detrimental to the Interest of the Fishery in general: But in case they shall clearly appear to you to be so, You shall cause the same to be removed, giving due and reasonable notice to the parties claiming or pretending any Interest therein if upon the spot, or to the Persons in possession and Occupation thereof, and putting the said Parties or Persons to as little inconvenience as the Case will admit, if such Parties or Persons do not chose to remove the same in due time, after such Notice is given.

8.—You are upon every Occasion to inforce a due and strict Observance within your Government of the beforementioned as well as of all other Acts now in force for the encouragement and regulation of the Trade, and Fisheries of Newfoundland and for the encouragement of the Shipping and Navigation of these Kingdoms.

9.—And whereas the immoderate use of Liquors is pernicious to the Health and Morals of Our Subjects resorting to Newfoundland for the purpose of carrying on the Fishery, and that they are thereby induced to expend therein a considerable part of their Wages, You are therefore to reduce the number of Public Houses in every part of Your Government to so many only as may be absolutely necessary for the Accommodation and supply of Our said Subjects and no more: And in particular you are not to allow of more than* than Twelve such Public Houses in the Town and Harbour of Saint Johns, and you shall take due Care that every Person who shall be allowed to keep a Public House within your Government do give full and ample Security for his or her good Security, and that no Person whatever be allowed to keep such Public House who does not or shall not keep one fishing Shallop at the least and in order further to encourage the Fishery and that it may be* Interest of every Individual resorting to Our said Islands to promote the same, You are also to take care, that every Person who shall keep on his, her, or their own Account any Shop or Store for Selling or retailing any Goods or Commodities whatsoever, do keep one fishing Shallop at least.

10.—And whereas the different Species of Birds frequenting the Shore of Newfoundland and the adjacent Islands are useful not only by their being a warning in Fogs to vessels that they are near the Land but upon many Occasions for Food and Bait, and it having been represented to us that they are frequently destroyed for the purpose only of taking their Feathers; It is Our Will and Pleasure that you do take such measures as in your Opinion will effectually prevent their being so destroyed in future.

11.—It being our intention that all Persons inhabiting and frequenting Our Islands under your Government, should have full liberty of Conscience, and the free Exercise of all such Modes of Religious Worship as are not prohibited by Law, We do hereby require you to permit all Persons within Our said Islands to have such liberty and to exercise such Modes of Religious Worship as are not prohibited by Law, provided they be contented with a quiet and peaceable Enjoyment of the

to Rear Admiral Robert Duff, ante
p.484.

15.—If any circumstance shall happen which shall appear to you immediately to affect the prosperity or security of Our said Islands, which is not herein or by Our Commission provided for, You are hereby allowed to take Order for the present therein, giving to us by One of Our Principal Secretaries of State, speedy Notice thereof, that so you may receive Our Ratification, if We shall approve of the same; Provided always that you do not by Colour of any Power or Authority hereby given you, allow or encourage any thing to be done contrary to the true intent and meaning of the Act of the 10th and 11th of King William the Third, or of any the beforementioned Acts, or of any Act now in force, for the regulation of Trade, Shipping or the Fishery of Newfoundland.

16.—You are carefully and diligently to enquire and observe whether the several provisions of the said Act of the 10th and 11th of King William the Third, or of the beforementioned Acts, or of any other Act now in force, for the encouragement and more advantageous management of the Fishery, be duly observed; and whether it may be proper and necessary to make any alteration therein, or substitute other, and what Orders and Regulations in lieu thereof, and you are to inform us of such alterations by One of Our Principal Secretaries of State, that Laws, if necessary may be proposed and enacted for the purpose.

17.—You shall Yearly and every Year transmit to us, by one of Our Principal Secretaries of State an exact Account of the number of British Fishing Ships and Sack Ships, and Ships and Vessels from Our Colonies in America that Arrive in the Islands under your Government.—The Burthen of the said Ships and the number of their Men, the number of the Passengers transported by the Fishing Ships.

The number of Boats employed by the British Fishing Ships, by the Ships from Our Colonies in America, by the Bye Boat keepers and by the Inhabitants.

The number of the Bye Boat Keepers and their Servants.

The Quantity of Fish and Train Oil made by British Fishing Ships, by the Ships from our Colonies in America, by the Boat Keepers and by the Inhabitants.

The Value of Seal Oil and of Furs taken by the Inhabitants last Winter.

The Total Quantity of Fish carried to Foreign Markets.

The prices the said Fish and Oil are sold at, both in Barter for Goods and for good Bills payable here.

The number of Public and Private Houses.

The number of Inhabitants and how many have been born and died there, since the Departure of the last Years Convoy, which you are to send by the first Conveyance that offers according to the usual Form hereunto annexed.

18.—And whereas it is of great importance to the prosperity and extension of the Fishery, That the Fish caught by Our Subjects should be properly cured, and fitted for Sale at the Foreign Markets in all Seasons of the Year, You are therefore to Command the Admirals of the Harbours strictly to enjoin the Masters of the Fishing Ships, the Bye Boat Keepers and Inhabitants to take the greatest Care in Curing their Fish with good Salt and with a proper and sufficient Quantity, and in preparing, husbanding and ordering the same, that the Credit thereof may be maintained and augmented, and that it may* well received and esteemed in the several Places to which it is carried for Sale.

And as the said Admirals are obliged to have a Watchful Eye upon such as are negligent herein, so they are to return to you the Names of those who will not comply with this admonition.

And further you are upon this Occasion very particularly to enquire into their manner and method of taking and curing their Fish, what Quantity of Salt they allow for the curing of every Hundred Quintals, whether they are guilty of any abuse

in the ordering thereof, Whether the Fish taken at a distance from the Land by their small vessels is not prejudiced before it is brought on Shore; Whether the Inhabitants, the fishing Ships or the Bye Boat Keepers are most to be blamed, and what methods are to be taken to prevent or rectify whatever is amiss.

19.—And whereas the Salmon fishery carried on in several parts of Our Island of Newfoundland may prove of great advantage to Our Kingdoms, and we have reason to suppose there is at present a great Demand for Salmon properly cured in several of the Ports of Italy, You are therefore to give all due encouragement and Protection to Our Subjects concerned in the said Salmon fishery, and you are to inform yourself of the Actual state of this Fishery and how far the same may properly be extended and encouraged, And you are to report the same to us, through One of Our Principal Secretaries of State by the first Opportunity.

20.—Whereas you are by Our Commission authorized to constitute and appoint Justices of the Peace and other necessary Officers and Ministers for the better administration of Justice and maintaining Peace and good Order in Our said Island of Newfoundland, You are therefore upon your Arrival in the said Island to enquire what Justices of the Peace are now in Actual Commission and do execute the same in the respective Towns in Newfoundland particularly at Placentia and the other out Ports, how and in what manner such Justices of the Peace behave in the Execution of that Power, whether Our Subjects in that Island have duly submitted thereto, and what, if any, obstructions have been given to the execution of that Authority and to return your observations thereupon with what you think may be further done for keeping the Peace and quiet of the said Island and of the Inhabitants residing therein, to us by One of Our Principal Secretaries of State.

21.—And whereas notwithstanding all the precautions that may be taken for preserving the Peace in Newfoundland, Disputes may arise between the Fishing Admirals and Our Justices of the Peace in the said Island, and that Our said Justices of the Peace may be guilty of great Irregularities to the oppression of Our good Subjects, You are in that Case to supersede any Justice of the Peace, who shall appear to you to have acted unwarrantably in the Execution of his Office; And you are strictly to prohibit those who are or shall be appointed Justices from interfering in any degree with the Fishing Admirals in such matters relating to the Fishery as are reserved for their Jurisdiction by the Act "for encouraging the Trade to Newfoundland" taking care at the same time that the said Fishing Admirals do their Duty also, according to the intention of the said Act; And it is Our Will and Pleasure that you should be very particular in attending to this Our Instruction,

27.—And whereas by the Articles of the Treaty of Peace, concluded at Versailles on the day of* between us and His Most Christian Majesty, it was stipulated, that We should preserve in full right the Island of Newfoundland and the adjacent Islands, in the same manner as the whole was ceded to Great Britain by the 13th Article of the Treaty of Utrecht, with the exceptions of the Islands of S^t Pierre and. Miquelon, which by the* Article of the said Treaty of Versailles, We agreed to cede in full right to His Most Christian Majesty, and the right of Fishing preserved to His Most Christian Majesty by the said Treaty of Utrecht, being now allowed to Commence at Cape Saint John on the East Coast of Newfoundland, And going round by the North and down the Western Coast of the said Island of Newfoundland to be bounded by Cape Raye. It is Our Will and Pleasure, that upon every Occasion you do take particular Care that the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty have full and ample enjoyment of the Fishery within the limits and Boundaries assigned to them as aforesaid, as they have a right to enjoy the same, under the said Treaty of Utrecht; And for this purpose, you are to give the most positive Orders and Injunctions, to all Officers and others under your Command, that they do not in their several Stations, and as far as depends on each of them respectively, permit or allow that any Obstructions or Interruptions, be upon any pretence, given to the Subjects of His Most Christian

Majesty in the enjoyment of the said Fishery, as it is allowed to them by the Treaties beforementioned within the limits above described, but that they do give them all reasonable Countenance therein, you are nevertheless to take due care that no Subject of His Most Christian Majesty be permitted to reside or remain in any part whatever of the said Island of Newfoundland, after the Fishing Season is over, and during the Winter; and also that Our Subjects be not allowed to take charge of, preserve or prepare any Boat, Stage, Flake, or Erection whatever for the purpose of the Fishery, on account, or for the use of any Subject of His Most Christian Majesty for the ensuing Fishing Season.—And we do further especially direct, that you do not allow any of the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty to cut down and carry off any Wood, or Timber from Our said Island of Newfoundland, and Islands adjacent, for any purpose whatever, unless Our Will and Pleasure therein, shall in that respect be duly signified to you, allowing them however to cut any Wood necessary for the repair upon the spot of their Scaffolds, Huts, and Fishing Vessels. And if it shall happen that any of Our Subjects shall in any wise act Contrary to the true intent and meaning of the Stipulations made by the Treaty of Versailles, or the Treaty of Utrecht aforesaid, and the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty shall in that respect have just cause of Complaint, You are immediately to remove the same by granting them due redress, and exercising the Authority vested in you by Our Commission, and these Our Instructions, or by any Act of Parliament in force for that purpose, You are nevertheless to take due Care that no Subject or Officer of His Most Christian Majesty do exercise any Act of Authority upon Our Island of Newfoundland, or the adjacent Islands, or the Coasts thereof in derogation to Our Sovereignty over the same, but that in every Case of just Complaint on their parts, they do apply to you or Our Officers in Command under you for redress.

28.—And in order effectually to prevent any disputes from arising between Our Subjects and those of His Most Christian Majesty carrying on the Fisheries on the Coasts of the Island of Newfoundland; It is Our Will and Pleasure, that you do prevent as far as possible any of Our Subjects from fishing within the limits herein before described and within which the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty are now allowed to carry on the Fishery.

29.—And whereas by the Definitive Treaty of Peace between us and the United States of America concluded at Paris the 3^d of September 1783. The Provinces of New Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, Rhode Island & Providence Plantations, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia were declared by us to be free and independent States, And by the Third Article of the said Treaty "The People of the United States were allowed to continue to enjoy unmolested the right to take Fish of every kind on the grand Bank and on all the other Banks of Newfoundland, also in the Gulph of Saint Lawrence and at all other places in the Sea, where the Inhabitants of both Countries used at any time theretofore to Fish, and also that the Inhabitants of the said United States should have liberty to take Fish of every kind on such part of the Coast of Newfoundland as British Fishermen should use (but not to dry or cure the same on that Island) and also on the Coasts, Bays and Creeks of all other of Our Dominions in America, and that the American Fishermen should have Liberty to dry and cure Fish in any of the unsettled Bays, Harbours and Creeks of Nova Scotia, Magdalen Islands and Labrador, so long as the same should remain unsettled, but so soon as the same or either of them should be settled, it should be* not be lawful for the said Fishermen to dry or cure Fish at such Settlement without a previous agreement for that purpose with the Inhabitants Proprietors or Possessors of the Ground." It is Our Will and Pleasure that you do take due care that the People of the United States of America shall fully and amply enjoy every right of Fishing, drying and curing of Fish allowed them by the said Third Article of the Treaty above recited, not allowing them however to dry and cure their Fish on Our Island of Newfoundland, or in any Bay, Harbour or Creek of any other part of your Government which is settled, And you are on every occasion to exact and require a full and specific Performance of the said Treaty on their parts within the limits of your Government.

30th.—And you are upon all Occasions to send unto us by One of Our Principal Secretaries of State a particular Account of all your proceedings and of the Condition of Affairs of the Islands under your Government, and the Trade and Fishery thereof, and of the Banks, Seas, and parts adjacent.

the Island of Newfoundland and to the adjacent Islands, as the whole were assured to him by the 13th Article of the Treaty of Utrecht excepting the Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon which are ceded in full Right to His Most Christian Majesty, who, in order to prevent the Quarrels which had before arisen, has consented to renounce the right of fishing which belonged to him in virtue of the aforesaid Article of the Treaty of Utrecht from Cape Bonavista to Cape S^t John, situated on the Eastern Coast of Newfoundland in 50 Degrees N^o Latitude; And His Majesty has consented, on his part, that the Fishery assigned to the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty, beginning at the said Cape S^t John, passing to the North and descending by the Western Coast of the Island of Newfoundland, shall extend to the place called Cape Raye situated in 47 Degrees 50 Min. Latitude; And that, with regard to the Fishery in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, the French shall continue to exercise it conformably to the 5th Article of the Definitive Treaty of peace between His Majesty & the most Christian King, and the King of Spain, concluded at Paris on the 10th of Febr'y 1763; You are, therefore, to use your utmost diligence and attention that the several stipulations hereimentioned* and referred to be suitably performed as far as they shall come within the Limits of your Command, and, upon every occasion, to take particular care that the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty have full & ample enjoyment of the Fishery within the Limits and Boundaries assign'd to them as aforesaid as they have a right to enjoy the same under the said Treaty of Utrecht: And, for this purpose, you are to give the most positive Orders and Injunctions to all Officers and others under your Command, that they do not, in their several Stations and as far as depends on each of them respectively, permit or allow that any obstructions or Interruptions be, upon any pretence, given to the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty, in the Enjoyment of the said Fishery as it is allowed to them by the Treaties beforementioned within the limits above described; but that they do give them all reasonable countenance therein. You are, nevertheless, to take due care that no Subject of His Most Christian Majesty be permitted to reside or remain in any part whatever of the said Island of Newfoundland after the Fishing Season is over and during the Winter; and also that His Majesty's Subjects be not allowed to take charge of, preserve, or prepare any Boat, Stage, Flake, or Erection, whatever for the purpose of the Fishery on account, or for the use of any Subject of His Most Christian Majesty for the ensuing Fishing Season. And you are strictly charged not to allow any of the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty to cut down and carry off any Wood or Timber from the said Island of Newfoundland and the Islands adjacent for any purpose whatever, unless His Majesty's pleasure therein shall in that respect be duly signified to you; allowing them, however, to cut any Wood necessary for the repair of their Scaffolds, Huts and Fishing vessels on the spot; And, in case it shall happen that any of His Majesty's Subjects shall, in any wise, act contrary to the true Intent and meaning of the Stipulations made by the Treaty of Versailles, or the Treaty of Utrecht aforesaid; and the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty shall, in that respect, have just cause of Complaint; you are immediately to remove the same by granting them due redress, and exercising the authority vested in you by His Majesty's Commission and Instructions, or by any Act of Parliament in force for that purpose. You are, nevertheless, to take due care that no Subject or Officer of His Most Christian Majesty do exercise any Act of Authority upon the Island of Newfoundland or the adjacent Islands or the Coasts thereof, in derogation to His Majesty's Sovereignty over the same; but that, in every case of just Complaint on their parts, they do apply to you, or His Majesty's Officers in Command under you, for redress.

And in order effectually to prevent any Disputes from arising between His Majesty's Subjects and those of His Most Christian Majesty carrying on the Fisheries on the Coasts of the Island of Newfoundland; you are, in pursuance of His Majesty's pleasure, to prevent as far as possible, any of His Subjects from fishing within the limits herein before described, and within which the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty are now allowed to carry on the fishery.

And whereas, by the abovementioned Treaty of Peace between His Majesty and the United States of America, the Provinces of New Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, were declared by His Majesty to be free and independent States, and, by the Third Article of the said Treaty, "The People of the said United States were allowed to continue to enjoy unmolested the Right to take Fish of every kind on the Grand Bank, and on all the other Banks of Newfoundland; also in the Gulph of St Lawrence, and at all other places in the sea, where the Inhabitants of both Countries used at any time theretofore to fish; and also liberty to take Fish of every kind on such part of the Coast of Newfoundland as British Fishermen should use (but not to dry or cure the same on that Island) and also on the Coasts, Bays and Creeks of all other of His Majesty's Dominions in America; and the American Fishermen were to have liberty to dry and cure Fish, in any of the unsettled Bays, Harbours and Creeks of Nova Scotia, Magdalen Islands and Labrador, so long as the same should remain unsettled; but so soon as the same, or either of them, should be settled, it should not be lawful for the said Fishermen to dry or cure Fish at such Settlement without a previous Agreement for that purpose, with the Inhabitants, Proprietors, or Possessors of the Ground." You are, therefore in pursuance of His Majesty's pleasure to take due care that the People of the United States of America do fully and amply enjoy every Right of fishing, drying and curing of Fish, allowed them by the said Third Article of the Treaty above recited, not allowing them however to dry or cure their Fish on His Majesty's Island of Newfoundland, or in any Bay, Harbour or Creek of any other part within the Limits of your Government, which is settled. And you are on every occasion to exact and require a full and specific performance of the said Treaty on their parts within those Limits.

You are for the abovementioned purposes, to visit the several Bays and places in Newfoundland between Cape S^t John (passing to the North and descending by the Western Coast) and Cape Raye or cause them to be visited by any of the Ships of your Squadron, as you shall judge best; having due regard also to such part of His Majesty's Declaration and the Counter Declaration of His Most Christian Majesty subjoined to the abovement Treaty between their Majesty's which was concluded at Versailles on the 3^d September 1783, as relates to the Fishery between the Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon. And as, from the vicinity of those Islands to Newfoundland, and other parts of His Majesty's Dominions in North America, an illicit Trade may be attempted to be carried on between the British, Indian, or any other Inhabitants of His Maj^s Dominions, and the Subjects of France residing on the said Islands of St Pierre and Miquelon, or employed in the Fishery by virtue of Treaty, or between His Majesty's said Subjects and other Subjects of France; or other Powers trading, or pretending to trade to, or with the said Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon; In case any endeavours shall be used to carry on such illicit. Trade as aforesaid, you are to be particularly attentive to the same and to prevent if possible all Communication whatever between the said Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon, and Newfoundland, or any part of His Maj^s Dominions in North America contrary to the plain & strict meaning of this Instruction.

Besides the Superintendance and Regulation of the Fisheries of the Island of Newfoundland and the Coast of Labrador, you are to afford every protection in your power to those which are carried on in the Gulph of St. Laurence within the limits of your command, and also upon the Islands in that Gulph, and to take particular care that the Sea Cow Fisheries which have been or may be established on the Islands of Madelaine, &c., by His Majesty's Subjects be not disturbed by the crews of any ships or vessels whatever, destroying these animals in the water, or by any means deterring them from the usual places of landing; disposing of some of the ships or vessels under your command in such manner as shall best serve for that purpose, without prejudice to the more material parts of the important service committed to your care.

Extracted from Minutes of Privy Council of 15 May 1789.

Whereas there was this Day read at the Board a Report from the Right Honorable the Lords of the Committee of Council appointed for the Consideration of all Matters relating to Trade and Foreign Plantations, dated the 8th of this Instant. viz^t

"Your Majesty having been pleased by your Order in Council to refer unto this Committee a Letter from the Right Honourable Lord Sydney, One of Your Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State to the Lord President of the Council in the Words following, viz^t

My Lord,

The King having been pleased to appoint Mark Milbanke Esquire, Vice Admiral of the White Squadron of His Majesty's Fleet, to be Governor and Commander in Chief of the Island of Newfoundland and of the Islands of Madelaine in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence in the room of Vice Admiral Elliott, I am to desire that Your Lordship will be pleased to lay before His Majesty in Council a Draught of the Commission and Instructions proposed to be given to the Vice Admiral.

The Commission is similar to that which has been held by Vice Admiral Elliott, but some variations will be found in the Instructions, which I shall now particularly point out."

"The first has been made in consequence of a Representation of the principal Merchants and others of the Town and District of S^t Johns, of the Insufficiency of the twelve public Houses at present licensed for the accommodation of persons resorting thither and of the expediency of increasing the number. This Measure having been strongly recommended by the present Governor, an Authority is given to Vice Admiral Milbanke to grant such further Licenses as may be judged necessary, not however exceeding Twenty four in the whole, subjecting the Master or persons keeping such public Houses to the same conditions as those already licensed."

"An Addition has also been made to the 27th Article, conformably to a separate Instruction given to Governor Elliot last Year, with a view to the preventing a concurrent Fishery on that part of the Coast allotted to the French, and a variation has been made in the Scheme for the state of the Fishery, which the Governor is directed annually to transmit, the Form of which I think is better calculated for conveying the Information desired than that which has hitherto been observed by his Predecessors."

"The Directions contained in His Majesty's Order in Council of the 13th of last Month with respect to the Importation of Bread Flour and Indian Corn, the Produce of the American States into the Island of Newfoundland will be the subject of an additional Instruction, that Regulation being of a temporary nature."

"The Lords of the Committee, in obedience to Your Majesty's said Order of Reference, this Day took the said Draughts of Commission and Instructions for Mark Milbanke Esquire, together with the Letter accompanying the same into their Consideration, and being of Opinion that the said Alterations made in the Instructions are proper and necessary do agree to lay the same, together with the Draft of the said Commission, before Your Majesty for your Royal Approbation."

His Majesty taking the said Report into Consideration was pleased, with the Advice of His Privy Council to approve thereof and of the said Draught of a Commission and Instructions and of the Alterations proposed to be made in the said Draught of Instructions. And His Majesty doth hereby Order That the Right Honorable Lord Sydney, One of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, do cause a Warrant to be prepared for His Majesty's Royal Signature for passing a Commission agreeable to the said Draught (which is hereunto annexed) under the Great Seal of Great Britain. And that His Lordship do also cause the said Instructions (which are hereunto also annexed) to be prepared for His Majesty's Royal Signature.

OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

Additional Instructions to Our Trusty and Welbeloved Mark Milbanke Esq^r Governor and Commander in Chief of Our Island of Newfoundland. Given at Our Court at St James's the Seventh day of August 1790. In the Thirtieth Year of Our Reign.

Whereas by Our Letters Patent under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, bearing date, the * day of this Instant August, We have thought fit to Erect a Court of Civil Jurisdiction within Our Island of Newfoundland for hearing and determining in a Summary way, all Pleas concerning Debts, Accounts, or other Contracts, and all other Personal Pleas whatsoever, excepting such as may now be heard and determined by any Jurisdiction established in Our said Island by any Act or Acts of Parliament.

And whereas in conformity to the said Letters Patent, We have appointed Our Trusty and Welbeloved Aaron Graham Esq^r to preside in the said Court, and have directed him to proceed forthwith to Our said Island of Newfoundland. It is Our Royal Will and Pleasure that on Your arrival there, you do appoint Two fit and proper Persons under Your Hand and Seal as Assessors to Our Judge of the said Court; taking Care that in the Choice of the Persons so to be appointed they be Men of good fame; that they have no concern in the Fisheries carried on in the said Island, and that they and our said Judge appointed as aforesaid, or other Officers or Ministers belonging to, or appertaining to them, do not presume or be suffered to act in such Office or place, until he or they have taken the Oaths mentioned in the Act of Parliament entitled "An Act for the Security of His Majesty's Person and Government, and the Succession of the Crown in the Heirs of the late Princess Sophia being Protestants, and for extinguishing the hopes of tie pretended Prince of Wales and his Open and Secret Abettors" as the same is altered by an Act entitled "An Act for altering the Oath of Abjuration and the Assurance and for amending so much of an Act of the"

"Seventh Year of Her late Majesty Queen Ann entitled 'an Act for the Improvement of the Union of the Two Kingdoms'" as after the time therein limited requires the delivery of certain Lists and Copies therein mentioned to Persons indicted of High Treason or Misprision of Treason, as also made and subscribed the Declaration mentioned in an Act of Parliament made in the Twenty Fifth Year of the Reign of King Charles the Second entitled "An Act for preventing Dangers which may happen from Popish Recusants" and also taken such proper Oaths as are usually taken in this Kingdom by Persons executing such Offices and Trusts, which said Oaths and Declaration you shall administer, and give or cause the same to be administered and given to all and every Person or Persons who ought to take the same according to the Laws and Customs of this Kingdom.

It is Our further Will and Pleasure that in case there shall not already be any Building erected within Our said Island of Newfoundland proper and convenient for a Court House for the more orderly meeting of Our Judge of Our said Court of Civil Jurisdiction and his Assessors and also a convenient Prison for the safe Custody of such Persons as may be committed, under the Authority of the said Court, that you do cause a Plan of such Buildings to be forthwith prepared with an Estimate of the Expence which may be likely to be incurred in constructing the same, which Plan and Estimate you will deliver to Our Secretary of State for the Home Department to be laid before Us for Our Royal Consideration on your return from Newfoundland.

And Whereas We have thought fit, that a proper and sufficient Salary should be given to the Judge of Our said Court, to compensate his Services, and that he should be restrained from taking any Fee, or Gratuity whatsoever for any Judgment given, or business done in Our said Court under pain of losing his Employment: It is Our Will & Pleasure that you do, as far as depends upon you enforce a due Compliance with this restriction; But as no such Salaries have been fixed for the Two Assessors to be appointed by you as before mentioned, It is Our further Will and Pleasure, that you do allow for the present Season such Fees to be taken by them as You and the Judge of the said Court may deem reasonable and moderate for the Duties they may perform; and that You do upon Your return from Newfoundland at the end of the present Season, lay before Us, for Our Royal Approbation, a Table of such Moderate Fees, as may be proper to be established in future.

As in the heighth of the Fishing Season the Attendance of Persons concerned therein will be likely to be of great Inconvenience to them and to be very detrimental to their Interests. It is Our Royal Will & Pleasure that you do recommend it to the Judge to conduct the Business of the said Court during that time, in such manner as to interrupt as little as possible the carrying on of the said Fisheries: And if it should happen that the Judge should die during the Fishing Season, You are in such case to appoint a Person then resident in Our said Island to act in his Place during the remainder of such Fishing Season. And in Order to afford time to Our said Judge to finish the Business of the Court in the Interval after the heighth of the Fishing Season shall be over, You are to continue on the Coast as long as the Season will permit consistently with the Safety of the Ships and Vessels under Your Command.

ADMIRALTY INSTRUCTIONS TO REAR ADMIRAL KING

AS COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF HIS MAJESTY'S SHIPS ON THE NEWFOUNDLAND STATION.

ADM. SEC. 2. VOL. 122, p. 338.

By &c.

Instructions for Sir Rich^d King, Kn^t Rear Admiral of the Red & Commander in Chief of a Squadron of His Majesty's Ships and Vessels employed and to be employed at and about Newfoundland, the Islands of Madelaine & Anticosti, and upon the Coast of Labrador, from the River S^t John to the Entrance of Hudson's Straits.

Whereas you have received the King's Commission appointing you Governor and Commander in Chief in and over the Island of Newfoundland and of the Islands of Madelaine in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence and of all the Forts and Garrisons erected and established in the said Islands, and also His Majesty's Instructions for your Government therein, You are to take particular care to act in all respects conformably to what is required by the said Commission and Instructions, and any other Instructions you may receive from His Majty relating to the aforesaid Island of Newfoundland, or any other parts within the Limits of your Command; doing everything in your power to prevent any illegal Trade during your continuance on that Station; and also to secure and protect the Fisheries and Coasts from Piratical Ships or Vessels, which you are to use your utmost endeavours to take or destroy.

You are, agreeable to an Act of Parliament of the 10th & 11th Years of King William the 3^d, entitled "An Act to encourage the Trade to Newfoundland"—(a Copy of which you will receive herewith) to be aiding and assisting to the Admirals, Vice and Rear Admirals of the respective Ports and Harbours of Newfoundland, from time to time as need shall require, in preserving the Peace & good Government among the Seamen and Fishermen and in apprehending Offenders: And you are, so far as the same may relate to you as Commander in Chief of His Majty's Ships and Vessels at and about Newfoundland, to comply with the following Acts of Parliament (Copies of which you will also receive herewith) viz^t

15th Geo: 3^d Cap^t : 31st
18th 55th
20th 6th
„ 10th

3^d

You are to be careful that there be not taken on board the Ships and Vessels under your Command, to be transported to Newfoundland, any Seamen or others than such as do belong to them: And, as you are not to lend any of their men to the Fishing Ships, so neither are you to suffer to be taken on board the Ships or Vessels of your Squadron any sort of Fish by way of Merchandize, Freight or otherwise, excepting what shall be necessary for the use and spending of their respective Companies.

And whereas it is very prejudicial to this Kingdom that the Fishing Ships do not bring Home from Nf^d Land the Complement of men they carry out, many of them being enticed array to other places, and others left in the Country; You are to let the Masters know that it will behove them to bring Home the number of Men they carry out (except in case of Death) for that otherwise they will be prosecuted at their return: And you are to use your best Endeavours to oblige them thereto so far as in you lies, except only with regard to such of their Men as shall have entered into His Majesty's Service.

And whereas no Foreign Ships and Vessels whatever (except as hereinafter excepted) have any right to fish at or about Newfoundland, and the Commanders of the Ships of War, bound as Convoy thither, have, at all times past, been directed not to allow of their fishing in those parts; It is, therefore, His Majesty's Pleasure that you take especial care to prevent the same, & that his Orders given therein be strictly complied with; And, if you shall find any Foreign Ships fishing at or about Newfoundland, you are to oblige them to desist & depart from off the Coast, excepting Ships and Vessels belonging to the Subjects of the most Christian King and to the People of the United States of America, fishing according to the Stipulations contained in the Definitive Treaties of Peace concluded at Versailles on the 3^d September 1783 between His Majesty, the most Christian King & the United States above mentioned; printed Copies of which you will receive herewith.

th th th

And whereas, by the 4 , 5 and 6 Articles of the first mentioned Treaty, His Majesty is maintained in His Right to the Island of Newfoundland and to the adjacent Islands, as the whole were assured to him by the 13th Article of the Treaty of Utrecht, excepting the Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon, which are ceded in full Right to His Most Christian Majesty, who, in order to prevent the Quarrels which had before arisen, has consented to renounce the Right of fishing which belonged to him in virtue of the aforesaid Article of the Treaty of Utrecht from Cape Bona Vista to Cape S^t John situated on the Eastern Coast of Newfoundland in Degrees North Latitude: And His Majesty has consented on his part that the Fishery assigned to the subjects of His Most Christian Majesty, beginning at the said Cape S^t John, passing to the northward and descending by the Western Coast of the Island of Newfoundland shall extend to the Place called Cape Raye, situated in 47 Degrees 50 Min. Latitude: And that with regard to the Fishery in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, the French shall continue to exercise it conformably to the 5th Article of the Definitive Treaty of Peace between His Majesty and the Most Christian King and the King of Spain concluded at Paris on the 10th February 1763; You are therefore to use your utmost diligence and attention that the several Stipulations hereinmentioned, and referred to, be suitably performed as far as they shall come within the Limits of your Command And upon every occasion to take particular care that the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty have full and ample Enjoyment of the Fishery within the Limits & Boundaries assigned to them as aforesaid, as they have a right to enjoy the same.

And whereas an Act passed in the 28th Year of His present Majesty's Reign (twelve Copies of which are herewith sent to you) entitled "An Act to enable His Majesty to make such Regulations as may be necessary to prevent the Inconvenience which might arise from the Competition of His Subjects and those of the Most Christian King in carrying on the Fishery on the Coasts of the Island of Newfoundland." And His Majesty is desirous to fulfill with the utmost good faith and punctuallity the Conditions of the Treaty with the most Christian King concluded at Versailles as above mentioned, and the Declaration subjoined thereto, and for that purpose to take the most positive measures for preventing His Subjects from interrupting in any manner the Fishery of the French during the temporary Exercise of it granted to them upon the Coasts of the said Island, and thereby to remove all occasions of daily Quarrels between the Fishermen of the two Nations; You are therefore, in pursuance of His Majesty's Pleasure, signified to Us by Lord Sydney, late one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, hereby required and directed, immediately after you arrive upon the Coasts of the said Island, to give notice to all His Majesty's Subjects resorting thereto, that they are not to interrupt in any manner, by their Competition, the aforesaid Fishery of the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty on the Coasts of the said Island within the Limits assigned to them by the said Treaty and during the temporary Exercise thereof, which is thereby granted to them, but to depart from within the said Limits. And in case any of His Majesty's Subjects (after such notice shall have been given) shall refuse to depart within a reasonable time, you are to instruct the Officers under your Orders, who may be dispatched to that part of the Coasts of the said Island, to cause any Stages, Flakes, Train Vats, or other Works whatever, erected by His Majesty's Subjects for the purpose of carrying on the said Fishery to be remov'd; and also all Ships, Vessels and Boats belonging to them which shall be found within the Limits aforesaid, and to use such means as may be found necessary for compelling them to depart from that part of the Coasts of the said Island: And in pursuance of His Majesty's further pleasure, signified as aforesaid, you are to enjoin the Commanders of such of the Ships of your Squadron as maybe employ'd within the Limits assign'd to the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty, as aforesaid, to be particularly attentive to their Proceedings: And in case they shall at any time discover that any of them shall be employ'd in carrying on their Fishery at more than the distance of half a mile above the Entrance or mouth of any River, or shall in any manner employ themselves except for the purpose of cutting Wood for building their Scaffolds & for repairing their Fishing Vessels, as allowed by the said Treaty, to order them forthwith to desist from pursuing the same: And in case they shall refuse a Compliance with such Orders, you are to direct the said Commanders to seize and retain their Nets and other Implements, & to make a special Report thereof to you, that the matter may be communicated to His Majesty through one of His Principal Secretaries of State; And you are to send one or more of the Ships of your Squadron to the several Ports which shall have been occupied by the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty within the Limits assigned to them as aforesaid after the Season for their exercising the Fishery shall be over, with Orders to their Commanders in case they shall find that any of His Most Christian Majesty's Subjects remain upon the said Island contrary to the Treaty of Peace abovementioned to bring them to you, together with any Nets or Implements seized as aforesaid, or to Great Britain in case you shall have left NfdLand, that further Instructions may be given concerning them.

You are also to take due care that no Subject of His Most Christian Majesty be permitted to reside or remain in any part whatever of the said Island of Newf^dLand after the Fishing Season is over, and during the Winter; And also that His Majesty's Subjects be not allow'd to take charge of, preserve or prepare any Boat, Stage, Flake or Erection whatever for the purpose of the Fishery on account or for the use of any Subject of His Most Christian Majesty for the ensuing Fishing Season. And you are strictly charged not to allow any of the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty to cut down or carry off any Wood or Timber from the said Island of Newfoundland and the Islands adjacent for any purpose whatever except for building their Scaffolds and repairing their Fishing Vessels, as abovemention'd: And in case it shall happen that any of His Majesty's Subjects shall in any wise act contrary to the true Intent and Meaning of the Stipulations made by the Treaty of Versailles or the Treaty of Utrecht, as aforesaid: And the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty shall in that respect have just Cause of Complaint; You are immediately to grant them due redress, by exercising the Authority vested in you by His Majesty's Commission & Instructions, or by any Act of Parliament in force for that purpose; taking due care nevertheless that no Subject or Officer of His Most Christian Majesty do exercise any Act of Authority upon the Island of Newfoundland or the adjacent Islands or the Coasts thereof in derogation to His Majesty's Sovereignty over the same; But that in every case of just Complaint on their parts, they do apply to you, or His Majesty's Officers in Command under you, for Redress.

And in order effectually to prevent any Disputes arising between His Majesty's Subjects and those of His Most Christian Majesty carrying on the Fisheries on the Coasts of the Island of Newfoundland; You are, in pursuance of His Majesty's Pleasure, to prevent as far as possible any of His Subjects fishing within the Limits hereinbefore described, and within which the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty are now allow'd to carry on the Fishery.

And whereas by the abovementioned Treaty of Peace between His Majesty and the United States of America, the Provinces of New Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pensylvania, Delaware; Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, were declared by His Majesty to be free and independent States, and by the 3^d Article of the said Treaty "The People of the said United States were allowed to continue to enjoy unmolested the Right to take Fish of every kind on the Grand Bank and on all the other Banks of Newfoundland; also in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, and at all other places in the Sea where the Inhabitants of both Countries used at any time theretofore to fish; & also liberty to take Fish of every hind on such part of the Coast of Newfoundland as British Fishermen should use (but not to dry or cure the same on that Island) and also on the Coasts, Bays and Creeks of all other of His Majesty's Dominions in America; and the American Fishermen were to have liberty to dry, and cure Fish in any of the unsettled Bays, Harbours and Creeks of Nova Scotia, Magdalen Islands and Labrador, so long as the same should remain unsettled; but so soon as the same, or either of them, should be settled, it should not be lawful for the said Fishermen to dry or cure Fish at such Settlement without a previous Agreement for that purpose with the Inhabitants, Proprietors or Possessors of the Ground." You are therefore, in pursuance of His Majesty's Pleasure to take due care that the People of the United States of America do fully and amply enjoy every Right of fishing, drying & curing of Fish allowed them by the said 3^d Article of the Treaty above recited; not allowing them however to dry or cure their Fish on His Majesty's Island of Newfoundland, or in any Bay, Harbour or Creek of any other part within the Limits of your Government, which is settled. And you are on every occasion to exact and require a full & specific performance of the said Treaty on their parts within those Limits.

You are for the abovementioned purposes to visit the several Bays and Places in Newfoundland between Cape S^t John (passing to the North and descending by the Western Coast) and Cape Raye, or cause them to be visited by any of the Ships of your Squadron, as you shall judge best, having due regard also to such part of His Majesty's Declaration and the Counter

Declaration of His Most Christian Majesty subjoined to the abovementioned Treaty between their Majesties, which was concluded at Versailles on the 3^d September 1783, as relates to the Fishery between the Islands of S^t Pierre & Miquelon: And as from the vicinity of those Islands to Newf^dLand and other parts of His Majesty's Dominions in North America, an illicit Trade may be attempted to be carried on between the British, Indian, or any other Inhabitants of His Majesty's Dominions and the Subjects of France residing on the said Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon, or employed in the Fishery by virtue of Treaty, or between His Majesty's said Subjects and other Subjects of France, or other Powers trading, or pretending to trade to or with the said Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon. In case any endeavour shall be used to carry on such illicit Trade as aforesaid, you are to be particularly attentive to the same, and to prevent if possible all communication whatever between the said Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon and Newfoundland, or any part of His Majesty's Dominions in North America contrary to the plain & strict meaning of this Instruction.

You are to settle and guard the Fishery not only at Placentia and S^t Johns, but as far to the northward upon the Coasts of Newfoundland and upon those of the Continent of Labrador as your Command extends; to use your best Endeavors to encourage and support the Whale Fishery in the Straits of Belleisle, the Cod Fishery in York Harbour and on the other parts of the Coast of the abovementioned Continent; as also the Seals and Sea Cow and Salmon Fisheries on the said Coast; and to hinder any Trade or Intercourse being carried on by any Persons whomsoever, other than the Subjects of Great Britain and the Inhabitants of the United States of America as beforement^d with the Inhabitants of that Country, which of rights belongs solely to His Majesty: And whereas the Coast of Labrador and the Islands adjacent have by Act of Parliam^t been reannexed to the Province of Quebec, and His Majesty hath by His Instruction to the Governor of that Province signified to him that the Fisheries on the said Coast & Islands are objects of the greatest Importance, not only on account of the Commodities they produce but also as Nurseries of Seamen upon whom the Strength of His Majesty's Kingdoms depends; that Justice & Clemency demand that the real and actual property of the Canadian Subjects on that Coast (whose Claims however extend but to a small District, on the greatest part of which a Cod Fishing is stated to be practicable) should be preserved entire, and that they should not be molested or hindered in the exercise of any Sedentary Fisheries they may have established there; and that on all such parts of the Coast where there are no Canadian Possessions, and more especially where a valuable Cod Fishery may be carried on, it will be his duty to make the Interest of the British Subjects going out to fish there in Ships fitted out from Great Britain the first object of his Care, and as far as circumstances will admit, to establish on that Coast the Regulations in favor of British Fishing Ships which have been so wisely adopted by the beforementioned Act of the 10th and 11th of King William the Third, and that he is on no account to allow any Possession to be taken, or Sedentary Fisheries to be establish'd on any part of the Coast, that are not already private Property by any Persons whatsoever, except only such as shall produce annually a Certificate of their having fitted out from some Port in Great Britain; You are, in pursuance of His Majesty's Pleasure, signified to us by Lord Dartmouth, late one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, to make those Fisheries particular objects of your attention and Enquiry; affording them every reasonable and necessary Protection, and transmitting to us for His Majesty's Information the fullest Report of the State and Condition and the progress thereof.

The Society of Unitas Fratrum, urged by a laudable Zeal for promoting Christianity, having already under His Majesty's Protection, and with His Permission formed Establishments in the Northern Parts of the Coast of Labrador for the purposes of civilizing the Savages and converting them to the Christian Religion, in which their Success has been answerable to their Zeal: And His Majesty having signified His express Will and Pleasure to the Governor of Quebec that he do give them every countenance and assistance in his power, and not allow any Establishment to be made, but with their Consent, within the Limits of their Possessions; You are, in pursuance of His Majesty's further Pleasure signified to us by Lord Dartmouth, as abovemention'd, to give such Support and Protection to the Establishment of the said Society as shall correspond with His Majesty's Most gracious Intentions towards them.

Besides the Superintendance and Regulation of the Fisheries of the Island of Newfoundland and the Coast of Labrador, you are to afford every Protection in your power to those which are carried on in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence within the Limits of your Command, & also upon the Islands in that Gulph, and to take particular care that the Sea Cow Fisheries which have been or may be established on the Islands of Madelaine &c. by His Majesty's Subjects, be not disturbed by the Crews of any Ships or Vessels whatever destroying those Animals in the water, or by any means deterring them from the usual places of landing; disposing of some of the Ships or Vessels under your Command in such manner as shall best serve for that purpose, without prejudice to the more material parts of the important Service committed to your Care.

And in order that these Services may be more effectually performed, you are to assign to the several Ships and Vessels under your Command such Stations on the Coast of Newfoundland and Labrador, including the Islands of Madelaine in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence as shall be most proper; giving to their respective Comm^{rs} full and clear Instructions on the several points herein beforemention'd conformable to the foregoing Articles of these Our Instructions to yourself, and directing them also very carefully to visit the several Coasts, Harbours & Fishing Grounds within the Limits of their respective Stations: And you are yourself (if practicable) to visit such parts of the said Coasts &c. as your necessary Attention to the other Branches of your Duty will admit of in the course of the Season, that you may compare the Reports made to you with your own Observations before you transmit them to Us.

p. 586

When the early Trade shall be ready about the latter end of August, you are to order the Commander of one of the Frigates to take them under his Care, and, repairing off Cape Finisterre, to leave those bound to the Ports on the North Coast of Spain, and proceed off the Coast of Portugal with the rest, calling at Lisbon, where he is to remain not exceeding ten days for such Trade as may be ready and willing to accompany him, and then proceed to England with them, repairing to Spithead, where he is to remain 'til further order; and seeing the Trade in safety as far as his way and theirs may lie together.

And when the Service will admit, you are to send Home the other Ships and Vessels of your Squadron, directing their Commanders to repair to Spithead & remain there til farther order, bringing with them any Homeward bound Trade that may be ready and willing to accompany them, and seeing such Trade in safety as far as their way may lie together.

By the end of October you are to take under your Convoy any Fishing Ships which may be then bound to Portugal and Spain and see them off their respective Ports, as far to the Southward as Cadiz: And, in case you shall find at that Port any Homeward bound Trade ready & willing to accompany you to England, you are to take them under your Care. And, putting to Sea with the first opportunity of Wind and Weather, proceed to Lisbon, where you are, in like manner, to take under your Care such Homeward bound Trade as may be there, and then, after a Stay not exceeding eight days at farthest, you are to leave that Port and make the best of your way with the whole of the aforesaid Trade to England, repairing to Spithead, where you are to remain until further orders, and seeing the said Trade in safety as far as your way and theirs may lie together. In case, however, it shall be necessary or more eligible for you to send a Frigate to perform this Service, you are at liberty to do so; & to proceed yourself, directly, in the Assistance to England, with such Homeward bound Trade as may be desirous and in readiness to accompany you; repairing to Spithead, and sending to Us an Account of your Arrival and Proceedings.

But whereas the Court of Spain, in consequence of repeated Complaints, from their Ports, of a Contraband Trade being carried on by the Commanders of Foreign Ships of War, did formerly notify to the different Courts of Europe that Orders would be given for their respective Ships of War to be permitted to enter into and stay in the Ports of Spain only as they were entitled to do by Treaty; you are to give the strictest Orders to the respective Captains and Commanders of the Ships under your command who may be sent to the Coast of Spain, to take especial care to conform themselves, in going into and remaining in the Ports of that Kingdom, to the 16th Article of the Treaty of Peace & Commerce between Great Britain and Spain concluded at Madrid the 23^d May 1667, which has been confirmed by subsequent Treaties and by the Regulations of the Port, of which they are to inform themselves for their Government during their continuance therein: And you are to be governed, in your own Proceedings accordingly, if you shall go yourself into any of the Ports of Spain.

For the better maintaining a proper Government & strict Discipline in the Squadron under your Command, We do hereby authorize and empower you to call and assemble Courts Martial in Foreign Parts as often as you shall see occasion: And whereas Commanders in Chief of Squadrons of His Majesty's Ships in Foreign Parts have, sometimes, neglected to hold Courts Martial for enquiring into the occasion of the Loss of H.M. Ships when such misfortunes have happen'd, whereby the Crown has been put to an unnecessary Expense & the Officers and Companies to great Inconvenience by being kept out of their Wages; You are, in case of such an Accident, to cause a Court Martial to be assembled, as soon afterwards as possible, to try the Officers and Company for the same and to transmit to Our Secretary the Proceedings and Judgement thereupon by the first Conveyance afterwards.

But you are most strictly charged and enjoin'd not to permit, or suffer, any Lieutenant acting as a Commander of any Ship, Sloop or Vessel, to assist at, or compose a part of such Court Martial, the twelve Judges of England having, upon a Question refer'd to them by His Majesty's Order in Council of the 2^d of September 1791, given it as their opinion, that Persons, under those Circumstances, are not Commanders within the Meaning of the Act of the 22^d Year of the Reign of His late Majesty

You are to send, by all opportunities, to Our Secretary, for Our Information, an Account of your Proceedings relative to the Service, & such Intelligence as you may have collected proper for Our knowledge: And you are, moreover, upon your return to England, to transmit to Our Secretary, to be laid before Us, a Journal of your Proceedings with the Squadron under your Command, or any part thereof, and of the Services upon which you may send any of the Ships or Vessels, with your reasons for the same, & to note therein all such particular and remarkable Occurrences as may be proper for Our Information.

obtained and in case you cannot visit all the said Coasts and Harbours you are to give directions to the Officers under your Command for the purposes before mentioned and you are to report to Us through One of Our Principal Secretaries of State the condition of the said Forts and whether it may be necessary to erect any new Forts or Posts in the Islands under your Command You are also to transmit to the Master General of Our Ordnance an account of the Arms Ammunition & Stores in Our said Forts and you are to follow such Directions in this respect as you shall receive from Our said Master General of the Ordnance.

3^d You are to be particularly careful to carry into execution the several Provisions of the Acts passed in the 10th and 11th of William 3^d and in the 15th 26th 28th and 33^d Years of Our Reign respecting Our Island of Newfoundland and the Right of fishing and drying or curing Fish there as well as of divers subsequent Acts of Parliament for continuing the said last mentioned Act And to see that all the regulations of the said Acts are strictly complied with And you are likewise to enforce the Provisions of all Acts of Parliament for encouraging the Shipping Navigation and Trade of Our Dominions and to prevent all Evasions and Frauds contrary to the same and you are not to suffer any Foreigners whatever to fish or dry or cure any Fish on any of the Coasts or Shores within your Government except in cases in which the Subjects of any foreign Power are entitled by Treaty to fish or dry or cure Fish there.

4th And Whereas by the 15th Article of the Treaty of Peace concluded at Amiens on the 27th of March last, between Us and the French Republic His Catholic Majesty and the Batavian Republic it was stipulated that the Fisheries on the Coast of Newfoundland and the adjacent Islands and the Gulph of Saint Lawrence should be replaced on the same footing on which they were previous to the War and that the French Fishermen and the Inhabitants of S^t Pierre and Miquelon shall have the privilege of cutting such Wood as they may stand in need of in the Bays of Fortune & Despair for the space of One Year from the date of the Notification of the said Treaty And Whereas by the 4th Article of the Treaty of Peace concluded at Versailles on the 3^d of September 1783 between Us and His Most Christian Majesty It was stipulated that We should preserve in full Right the Island of Newfoundland and the adjacent Islands in the same manner as the whole was ceded to Great Britain by the 13th Article of the Treaty of Utrecht with the exception of the Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon which by the 4th Article of the said Treaty of Versailles We agreed to cede in full right to His most Christian Majesty and the right of Fishing preserved to His Most Christian Majesty by the said Treaty of Utrecht being now allowed to commence at Cape S^t John on the East Coast of Newfoundland and going round by the North and down the Western Coast of the said Island of Newfoundland to be bounden by Cape Raye It is Our Will and Pleasure that upon every occasion you do take particular care that the Citizens of the French Republic have full and ample enjoyment of the Fishery within the limits and boundaries assigned to them as aforesaid in the manner they are entitled to enjoy the same under the said Treaty of Utrecht And for this purpose you are to give positive Orders and Injunctions to all Officers and others under your Command that they do not in the several Stations and as far as depends upon each of them respectively permit or allow that any obstructions or interruptions be upon any pretence given to the Citizens of the French Republic in the enjoyment of the said Fishery as it is allowed to them by the Treaties before mentioned within the limits before described But that they do give them all reasonable countenance therein You are nevertheless to take due care that no French Citizen be permitted to reside or remain in any part whatever of the said Island of Newfoundland after the Fishing Season is over and during the Winter And also that none of Our Subjects be allowed to take charge of preserve or prepare any Boat Stage Flake or Erection whatever for the purpose of the fishing on account or for the use of any Citizen of the French Republic for the ensuing Fishing Season And We do further especially direct that you do not allow any of the Citizens of the French Republic to cut down and carry off any Wood or Timber from Our said Island of Newfoundland and Islands adjacent for any purpose whatever save and except in the Bays of Fortune and Despair in which you are to take especial Care that they shall enjoy the Privilege of cutting such Wood as they may stand in need of for the space of One Year only from the date of the Notification of the afore mentioned Treaty of Amiens being the 26th day of April last unless Our Will and Pleasure therein shall in that respect be duly signified to you allowing them however to cut any Wood necessary for repairing upon the Spot their Scaffolds Huts and Fishing Vessels And further if it shall happen that any of Our Subjects shall in any wise act contrary to the true intent and meaning of the Stipulations made by the Treaty of Versailles or the Treaty of Utrecht as aforesaid And the Citizens of the French Republic shall in that respect have just cause for Complaint you are immediately to remove the same by granting them due redress and exercising the Authority vested in you by Our Commission and these Our Instructions or by any Act of Parliament in force for that purpose You are nevertheless to take due care that no Officer or Citizen of the French Republic do exercise any act of Authority upon Our Island of Newfoundland or the adjacent Islands or the Coasts thereof in Derogation of Our Sovereignty over the same but that in every Case of just Complaint or their parts they do apply to you or Our Officers in Command under you for redress.

5th And Whereas the better to enable Us to oblige Our Subjects in repairing to Newfoundland for the purpose of carrying on the Fishery to conform to the conditions of the said Treaty of 1783 and of the Declaratin made by Our Ambassador Extraordinary on the exchange of the Ratification of the said Treaty an Act was passed in the 28th Year of Our Reign (Cap: 35) Intituled "An Act to enable His Majesty to make such Regulations as may be necessary to prevent the inconvenience which might arise from a competition of His Majesty's Subjects and those of The most Christian King"

"in carrying on the Fishery on the Coast of the Island of Newfoundland" And Whereas We are desirous to fulfil with the utmost good faith and punctuallity the Conditions of the said Treaty and Declaration and for that purpose to take the most positive measures for preventing Our Subjects from interrupting in any manner the Fishery of the French during the temporary exercise of it granted to them upon the Coasts of the said Island and thereby to remove all occasions of daily Quarrels between the Fishermen of the two Nations It is Our Royal Will and Pleasure and We do hereby Direct you in pursuance of the Powers vested in Us by the said Act immediately after your arrival upon the Coasts of the said Island to give Notice to all Our Subjects resorting thereto that they are not to interrupt in any manner by their competition the aforesaid Fishery of the Citizens of the French Republic on the Coasts of the said Island within the limits assigned to them by the said Treaty & during the temporary exercise thereof which is thereby granted to them but to depart from within the said limits And in case any of Our Subjects after such Notice has been given shall refuse to depart within a reasonable time It is Our further Will and Pleasure that you do instruct the Officers under your Orders who may be dispatched to that part of the Coasts of the said Island to cause any Stages Flakes Train Fatts or other Works whatever erected by them for the purpose of carrying on the said Fishery to be removed And also all Ships Vessels and Boats belonging to them which shall be found within the limits aforesaid And to use such means as may be found necessary for compelling them to depart from that part of the Coasts of the said Island And also to cause them to be prosecuted in the Courts of Law for such their refusal in the manner which the Act before mentioned particularly directs It is Our further Will and Pleasure that you do enjoin the Commanders of such of the Ships of Our Squadron under your Orders as may be employed within the limits assigned to the Citizens of the French Republic upon the Coasts of the said Island to be particularly attentive to their proceedings And in Case they shall at any time discover that any of the Citizens of the French Republic shall be employed in carrying on their Fishery at more than the distance of half a mile above the entrance or mouth of any River or shall in any manner employ themselves except for the purpose of cutting Wood for building their Scaffolds and for repairing their Fishing Vessels as allowed by the said Treaty and the Treaty of Amiens hereinbeforementioned to order them forthwith to desist from pursuing the same And in case they shall refuse a compliance with such Orders the Officers employed on this Service are to seize and retain their Nets and other Implements and to make a special Report thereof to you that the matter may be communicated to Us through One of Our Principal Secretaries of State It is also Our Will and Pleasure that one or more of the Ships of the Squadron under your Orders should repair to the several parts which shall have been occupied by the Citizens of the French Republic within the limits assigned to them by the said Treaty after the Season for their exercising the Fishery shall be over And in Case they shall find that any of the Citizens of the French Republic remain upon any of the said Islands contrary to the said Treaty of Peace they are to bring them to you But if you shall have left your Station then to Great Britain together with any Nets or Implements seized as aforesaid where upon their arrival further Instructions will be given concerning them And you are to direct the Captains of Our Ships of War under your Command whenever they shall visit the French Fisheries either upon the Coast of Newfoundland or on the Great Banks thereof to collect as accurate an account of the said Fisheries as possible noting the number of Vessels Boats and Men employed and Quantities of Fish and Oil taken distinguishing whether such Fish be cured wet or dry and making such other Remarks as to their manner of carrying on the Fishery as may be necessary to enable you to report to Us a true state of the said French Fisheries You are also to direct the said Captains of Our Ships of War to obtain the best account of the number and force of the Ships of War belonging to the French Republic employed in the protection of the said Fisheries all which circumstances you are to report to Us through One of Our Principal Secretaries of State.

6th And Whereas by the 3^d Article of the Definitive Treaty of Peace between Us and the United States of America concluded at Paris the 3^d day of September 1783 the People of the said United States were allowed to continue to enjoy unmolested the right to take fish of every kind on the Grand Bank and on all the other Banks of Newfoundland also in the Gulph of St^e Lawrence and at all other places in the Sea where the Inhabitants of both Countries used at any time theretofore to fish And also that the Inhabitants of the said United States should have liberty to take Fish of every kind on such part of the Coast of Newfoundland as British Fishermen should use (but not to dry or cure the same on that Island) and also on the Coasts Bays and Creeks of all other Our Dominions in America and that the American Fishermen should have liberty to dry and cure Fish in any of the unsettled Bays Harbours and Creeks of Nova Scotia Magdalen Islands on the Coast of Labrador so long as the same shall remain unsettled But as soon as the same or either of them should be settled it should not be lawful for the said Fishermen to dry or cure Fish at such Settlements without a previous Agreement for that purpose with the Inhabitants Proprietors or Possessors of the Ground It is Our Will and Pleasure that you do take due care that the People of the United States of America shall fully and amply enjoy every right of fishing drying and curing of Fish allowed them by the said 3^d Article of the Treaty above recited not allowing them however to dry or cure their Fish on Our Island of Newfoundland or in any Bay Harbour or Creek of any other part of your Government which is settled And you are on every occasion to exact and require a full and specific performance of the said Treaty on their parts within the limits of your Government.

7th And Whereas it hath been represented to Us that divers of Our Subjects have upon various unwarrantable pretences and under pretended Grants or Permissions given by former Governors of Our Island of Newfoundland possessed them of and claim as their private Property large tracts of Land and Beaches commodious for the Fishery upon the Coasts and within;

the several Harbours and Rivers of the said Island and the Islands adjacent contrary to Law in order therefore to prevent such unwarrantable practices in future It is Our Will and Pleasure that you do not upon any pretence whatever allow any Person or Persons to take as private Property any Lands or Rivers or parts thereof on the Island of Newfoundland or the Coasts thereof or on the Islands adjacent And you are to take care that the Ancient Ship Rooms and Fishing Rooms do continue under the Provisions of Statutes of 10th and 11th William the 3^d Cap: 25 for the encouragement of New Adventurers that they may be sure of finding proper and convenient places for curing salting drying and husbanding their Fish whenever they resort thither It is Our further Will and Pleasure that the remaining Shores of Newfoundland shall be held by such of Our Subjects resorting thither from Our Dominions in Europe as shall first arrive and take possession of the same for the like purpose of carrying on the Fishery in proportion to the number of Ships and Boats they shall employ and they shall continue to hold the same in the like manner and for the like purpose so long as they shall carry on their fishing there But in case they shall neglect so to carry on the Fishery for One entire Season such Shores or parts thereof as shall be neglected or deserted by such Possessors shall be held for the like purpose and in like manner, by any of Our Subjects resorting thither from Our Dominions in Europe who shall first occupy the same for the purpose of carrying on the Fishery And you are to put and maintain such Persons in possession thereof And you are not to allow or suffer any Buildings to be erected (except Fishing Stages Cook Rooms Ship Rooms and Flakes or such Erections as shall be absolutely necessary for curing salting drying and husbanding Fish) within Two hundred Yards* distance from high Water mark And you are not to allow any possession as private property to be taken of or any right of Property whatever acknowledged in any Land whatever even beyond that distance It is Our further Will and Pleasure nevertheless that all and any Buildings Erections Wharfs Slips or Fences already erected may remain provided the same are not erected and built upon Ancient Ship Rooms And provided they are not in your judgment considered to be nuisances and detrimental to the interests of the Fishery in general But in case they shall clearly appear to you to be so you shall cause the same to be removed giving due and reasonable notice to the Parties claiming or pretending any interest therein if upon the Spot or to the Persons in possession and occupation thereof and putting the said Parties or Persons to as little inconvenience as the case will admit if such Parties or Persons do not cause to remove the same in due time after such Notice is given.

8th And Whereas it has also been represented to Us that divers of Our Subjects residing in Newfoundland Sell

Mortgage and Lease for considerable Sums Houses Lands Fishing Stages Cook Rooms and Flakes of which they have been in possession as if they had an exclusive and Indefeasible Title therein contrary to the Intention of Us and Our Predecessors contrary to the Laws made for preventing the same* Now in order that We may be better informed concerning the Premises and that We may be able to determine what measures in this respect shall be pursued in future It is Our Will & Pleasure that you in conjunction with Our Chief Justice of the said Island do cause such enquiry to be made as you and he shall judge most proper (but in such a manner as not to create unnecessary alarm) for ascertaining the pretended Titles and Claims under which such Property is held the length of time the present Possessors or those under whom they claim have enjoyed the same and the nature extent supposed Rent & Value of such Property And you are further to enquire whether it has ever been ascertained in the several Harbours of Newfoundland what fishing places did belong to the fishing ships before the Year 1685 And whether any account is kept of those fishing places that have been possessed since that Year in order to prevent the disputes that may otherwise happen between the Masters of Ships and the Inhabitants And whether there is any want of convenient places unoccupied on the Beach or Shores of Newfoundland fit for the purpose of carrying on the Fishery by the Adventurers who may arrive from His Majesty's European Dominions And whether the Fishing Admirals and others discharge their duty according to the Provisions of Statute 10 and 11 William 3 Cap. 25.

9th You are not to permit or allow any of Our Officers or Soldiers or other Persons whatsoever belonging to the Garrisons within your Government to engage or be any way concerned or employed directly or indirectly in any Branch of the Fisheries carried on within your Government or to take up for themselves any Beaches Stages or Cook Rooms upon any pretence whatever or in any way to interrupt the Fishermen in catching drying or curing their Fish And if any such Officers Soldiers or other Persons shall act in contradiction to this Our Instruction you are to report the same to Us through One of Our Principal Secretaries of State that such Persons may be made sensible of Our highest Displeasure.

10th And Whereas it is of great importance to the prosperity and extension of the Fishery that the Fish caught by Our Subjects should be properly cured and fitted for Sale at the Foreign Markets You are therefore to command the Admirals of the Harbours strictly to enjoin the Masters of the Fishing Ships the Bye Boat Keepers and Inhabitants to take the greatest care in curing their Fish with, good Salt and with a proper and sufficient quantity and in preparing husbanding and ordering the same that the credit thereof may be maintained and augmented in the several places to which it is carried for Sale And you are to require the said Admirals to report to you the Names of those who will not comply with this Admonition And further you are upon this occasion very particularly to enquire into their manner and method of taking and curing their Fish what quantity of Salt they allow for the curing of every hundred Quintals whether they are guilty of any abuse in the ordering thereof And whether any improvements can be made in any of the foregoing particulars And whether the Fish taken at a distance from the Land by their small Vessels is not damaged before it is brought on Shore and whether in the Seal of their Fish to those who are to carry it to the Foreign

Market experienced Cullers are employed in ascertaining the good quality thereof and whether the Sack Ships jealous of each other and contriving who shall carry their Fish first to Market do not frequently ship it before it is cured whereby it suffers in the passage. And lastly whether the Inhabitants the Masters of the Sack Ships or Fishing Ships or the Bye Boat Keepers are most to be blamed in whatever is amiss and what methods are to be taken to prevent or rectify the same.

11th And Whereas the Salmon Fishery carried on in different parts of Our Island of Newfoundland has already proved of great advantage to Our Kingdoms and We have reason to suppose that there is at present a great demand for Salmon properly cured in the Foreign Markets particularly in several of the Ports of Italy You are therefore to give all due encouragement and protection to Our Subjects concerned in the said Salmon Fishery taking care that none of the places where the said Salmon are caught be improperly monopolized contrary to Our Intentions expressed in the foregoing Instructions with respect to the Fisheries in general And you are to inform yourself of the actual state of this Salmon Fishery and how far the same may be properly extended and improved.

12th You are further to enquire whether any Whale Fishery Sea Cow Fishery or Seal Fishery is or can be carried on in the Seas within your Government or adjacent thereto and how far the same can be extended and improved.

13th You are to use your best endeavours to encourage a Trade with the Indians residing within Our Island of Newfoundland or resorting thither And you are to use your best endeavours to conciliate their affections so as to induce them to trade with Our Subjects and in order to prevent any improper conduct towards the said Indians you are as soon after your arrival as conveniently may be to cause a Proclamation in Our Name to be published and dispersed through Our said Island of Newfoundland and parts adjacent

strictly enjoining and requiring all Our Subjects to live in Amity and kindness with the said Indians and commanding and requiring all Officers and Magisstrates[sic] to maintain and support good order and behaviour towards them And in case any Person or Persons shall murder or commit any Outrage upon any of the said Indians You and the said Magistrates are to use your utmost endeavours to apprehend and bring to justice such Offenders You are also to obtain the best account you are able of the number of the said Indians the places they usually frequent for Trading the Countries from whence they come the nature and extent of the Trade that is or may be extended and improved.

14th Whereas We did in the 15th Year of Our Reign grant to John Agnew of Strencham* in the County of Wigton in North Britain Esquire and his Associates certain Mines at Shoal Bay in the East Coast of Our said Island of Newfoundland supposed to contain Copper Ore One tenth part of which Ore by the special condition of Our said Grant is thereby reserved to

Us Our Heirs and Successors We do therefore hereby direct and empower you Our Governor or Our Commander in Chief for the time being of Our said Island of Newfoundland to take and receive One tenth part of all such Metals Ore and Minerals as now are or hereafter shall be raised or extracted from the said Mines and to pay and make over the same to such Person or Persons as the Lords Commissioners of Our Treasury shall appoint for that purpose And you are further to enquire whether there are any other Mines in the said Island of Newfoundland or Islands adjacent and whether they may be worked to advantage.

15. And Whereas the different species of Birds frequenting the Shores of Newfoundland and the adjacent Islands are used for food and for bait and are useful in Fogs by warning Vessels that they are near the Land And it having been represented to Us that they are frequently destroyed for the purpose only of taking their Feathers It is Our Will and Pleasure that you do take such measures as in your Opinion will effectually prevent their being so destroyed in future.

16th And Whereas you are by Our Commission authorized to constitute and appoint Justices of the Peace and other necessary Officers and Ministers for the administration of Justice and maintaining the Peace within the different parts of your Government You are therefore upon your arrival in your Government to enquire what Justices of the Peace are now in Commission and in the New Commission to be issued you are to nominate them or such Persons as shall appear to you to be proper for executing the Office of Justice of the Peace and you are by your Authority and Influence to give all due support as well to Our Chief Justice as to the said Justices of the Peace and to all other Magistrates and Officers in the legal discharge of their duty And you are to endeavour to prevent any disputes between Our said Justices of the Peace and the Fishing Admirals in the discharge of their respective Functions And Whereas you are by your Commission authorized to appoint Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer It is Our Will and Pleasure that you make no such Appointment so as to interfere with the Criminal Jurisdiction belonging to the Supreme Court of Judicature but only in Cases where it may be inconvenient to try Offenders in the said Supreme Court.

17th Whereas You are empowered by Our Commission to pardon all Offenders and remit all Offences Wilful Murder only excepted in which case you have power upon extraordinary occasions to grant Reprieves to such Offenders until Our Royal Pleasure may be know therein It is Our express Will and Pleasure that you do not suffer any of the Officers of Our Ships of War or of any of the Trading Ships of Our Subjects which shall happen to be within your Government to be deprived of Life or Limb by the Sentence of any Court But in such Case you shall reprieve the Criminal until Our pleasure be known therein And it is Our further Will and Pleasure that you take especial care that all Persons guilty of Treason be sent over to this Kingdom with such Witnesses and proof of the Crime as can be obtained in order to their being tried here.

18. And Whereas the immoderate use of Liquors has been found to be pernicious to the Health and Morals of Our Subjects dwelling in and resorting to Newfoundland for the purpose of carrying on the Fishery and has been the cause that the Fishermen have expended a considerable part of their Wages You are not to allow in any part of your Government more Public Houses than may be necessary for the accommodation and supply of Our said Subjects and particularly in the Town of Saint John's the number of such Public Houses is on no account to exceed Twenty four And it is Our Will and Pleasure that every Person who shall be allowed to keep a public House within your Government do give full and ample Security for his or her good behaviour and that every Person keeping such Public House shall keep and employ in the Fishery One Shallop at least.

19. And Whereas the monopolizing and engrossing of any Provisions Stores & Commodities necessary for the subsistence of the Fishermen and others employed in the Fishery or necessary for carrying on the same will be highly prejudicial to the general Interests thereof You are by every legal means in your power to prevent and suppress any attempt that may be made for that purpose And you are to consider & report to Us whether any proper method can be adopted for supplying more cheaply the Articles before mentioned and for preventing any Frauds that may be committed in the Sale of these Articles or any Combinations to enhance the price of Provisions or of any of the Articles before mentioned tending to the distress of the Fishermen And you are to take Oath that according to the ancient practice every Person who shall keep on his or her own account any Shop or Store for selling or retailing any Goods or Commodities whatsoever shall keep and employ in the Fishery one Shallop at least.

20. It is Our Intention that all Persons inhabiting and frequenting the Island under your Government should have full liberty of Conscience and the free exercise of all such modes of Religious Worship as are not prohibited by Law We do hereby require you to permit all Persons within Our said Islands to have such liberty and to exercise such modes of Religious Worship as far as is consistent with Law provided they be contented with a quiet and peaceable enjoyment of the same not giving Offence or Scandal to the Government.

21. It is Our Will and Pleasure that you do cause the Laws made against Blasphemy Profaneness Adultery Fornication Polygamy Incest Profanation of the Lord's Day Swearing and Drunkenness to be rigorously executed and that you take due care for the punishment of the aforementioned Vices by presentment upon Oath to be made before the Justices of the Peace in their Sessions by their Constables or other inferior Officers at the several Harbours at the proper time of the Year to be appointed for that purpose And for the further discouragement of Vice and promotion of Virtue and good Morals you are not to admit any Person to act as Justice of Peace whose ill fame or conversation may occasion scandal and especially you shall take care that the Lord's Day be devoutly and duly observed that the Book of Common Prayer as by Law established in this Kingdom be read each Sunday and Holyday and the Blessed Sacrament administered according to the Rites of the Church of England in all such Chapels or public places of Worship as are already or may be settled there for Public Worship according to the Rites of the Church of England.

22. And if any Minister of the Church of England shall appear to give Scandal either by his Doctrine or Manners or if any Persons not being in Orders shall preach or administer the Holy Sacrament in any Church or Chapel you shall give an account thereof to the Lord Bishop of London.

23. And you are to take especial care that a Table of Marriages as established by the Canons of the Church of England be hung up in every Church or Chapel or other public place of Worship and be duly observed.

24. And Whereas it is of the highest importance to the Naval Power of Great Britain that the Seamen and Fishermen employed in the Fisheries carried on at Newfoundland should return annually at the end of the Fishing Season to some part of Our European Dominions You are to use your utmost endeavours at the end of every Fishing Season to encourage and promote the return of every such seaman and Fisherman to such part of Our European Dominions to which he belongs You are to take care that the wise Provisions of the Acts passed in the 15th and 26th Years of Our Reign for the purpose above mentioned be carried into strict execution and that the Monies retained and deducted out of the Wages of such Seamen or Fishermen by their Hirers or Employers for paying their passage home be applied to that salutary purpose And you are to report whether the said Provisions are any ways defective And whether any frauds are practised in order to evade them and whether the Hirers or Employees consider themselves as entitled to retain and deduct such Monies although no part thereof is paid or Agreement made with the Master of any Passage Ship for a Passage home And you are to discourage the practice which has lately prevailed among the Inhabitants of the said Island of Newfoundland of retaining during the Winter the said Seamen and Fishermen under the name and description of Dieters And you are also to discourage and as far as you are able to prevent any of the said Seamen and Fishermen from deserting to any Foreign Country or from going to reside and establish themselves in the Countries belonging to the United States or even in any of Our own Colonies in North America.

25. You shall use your best endeavours to obtain an accurate account of the numbers of Persons resorting in each Season to the Island of Newfoundland and the Islands adjacent distinguishing those who come from the Ports of Great Britain from the Ports of Ireland and from Jersey Guernsey Alderney and Sark and distinguishing such as are Seamen from such as are Passengers and of the numbers which continue to reside there all the Year distinguishing the number of Catholics and Protestants and the number of Births Marriages and Burials in every Year And you are to obtain an account of the British

Sack Ships and Fishing Ships and of their Tonnage that annually arrive in the Harbours under your Government and of the number of their Tonnage that depart annually for the different Markets either Foreign or British distinguishing to what Countries or Places the same are bound and of the quantities of each sort of Fish Oil or other Articles with which they are respectively laden And you are also to obtain an account of the number of Boats employed in the said Fisheries either by Our Subjects resorting thither from Our European Dominions or by the Inhabitants of the said Island respectively You are also to obtain an account of the number of Quintals of the different sorts of Fish taken in each Season and of the quantity of Oil made whether of Seal or Cod or other Animals living in the Sea And you are also to obtain an account of the quantity of each of the before mentioned Articles reserved and not sent to Market at the end of the Fishing Season You are also to obtain an account of the average prices at which each of these Articles sell during each Season in the Island You are hereby strictly commanded to be very exact in making all these enquiries and to enjoin Our Officers under your Command as also the Admirals and the proper Officers in those Harbours to which your personal Inspection cannot extend to be as accurate as may be in the Returns which they shall make to you that those Returns be properly attested and signed by them And all these particulars you are to report to Us through One of Our principal Secretaries of State according to the Form of the Schedule marked A hereunto annexed And with respect to such of the said particulars of which it is possible more accurate accounts may be obtained after your Departure from the said Island by the Collector or other Officers of the Customs and by Our Naval Officer You are to give directions to Our said Officers of the Customs and Our Naval Officer that they prepare accounts thereof attested by each of them according to the form of the said Schedule and transmit the same to you to be laid before One of Our Principal Secretaries of State for Our information You are also to endeavour to obtain as accurate an account as you are able of the Fishery carried on by the Citizens of the French Republic and to report the same to Us through One of Our Principal Secretaries of State according to the form of the Schedule hereunto annexed marked B You are to give all due and legal support to the Officers of Our Customs in the discharge of their duty and they are hereby required with all convenient speed at the end of the Fishing Season to transmit to the Lords Commissioners of Our

Treasury an annual account of all Articles imported into the Island of Newfoundland and the Islands adjacent distinguishing the Countries from whence the same were brought and particularly the Provisions imported under the Regulations of an Act passed in the 28th Year of Our Reign Cap: 6. See: 13 from the Countries of the United States of America with an account of the duties paid on such Articles as are liable to duty You are also to endeavour to obtain the best account you are able of the Wages paid to the Seamen & Fishermen and in what manner the same are paid and whether the old custom of carrying on the Fishery upon Shares is now continued and to what extent You are also to endeavour to obtain an account of the Prices at which Provisions and other important Articles are sold in the course of the Fishing Season and also during the Winter and whether the same are paid for in Cash Fish or Bills and if in Fish whether the Fish is rated at the Market price or at what rate It is Our further Will and Pleasure that you pay attention to every circumstance that may in your judgement contribute to the prosperity of the said Trade and Fishery and to the well being of all Persons concerned in them and that you consider of such measures as it may be proper for Us to pursue for attaining those important purposes And you are upon all occasions to send unto Us thro' One of Our Principal Secretaries of State a particular account of all your proceedings and of the condition of the affairs of the Islands under your Government and the Trade and Fishery thereof and of the Banks Seas and Ports adjacent And also a Copy of the same to the Lords of Our Privy Council appointed for the consideration of all Matters relating to Trade and Foreign Plantations.

And whereas by the 4 & 5 Articles of the Treaty of Peace signed at Versailles on the 3rd of Septem^r 1783, His Majesty is maintained in His Right to the Island of Newfoundland, and to the adjacent Islands as the whole were assured to him by the

Pierre and Miquelon which were ceded in full right to His late

which had before arisen, had renounced the right of fishing degrees North Latitude; His Majesty consented on His part, that the Fishery assigned to the French, beginning at the said Cape S^t John, passing to the North and descending by the Western Coast of the Island of Newfoundland, should extend to the place called Cape Raye situated in 47°—50 Latitude, and that the French Fishermen should enjoy the Fishery which is assigned to them by the said 5: Article, as they had a right to enjoy that which was assigned to them by the Treaty of Utrecht ; and that with regard to the Fishery in the Gulf of S^t Lawrence, the French should continue to exercise it conformably to the 5. Article of the Treaty of Paris.

And whereas by the Treaty concluded at Amiens between His Majesty and the First Consul on behalf of the French People on the 27th of March last, the two Contracting Parties have agreed that the Fisheries on the Coast of Newfoundland and of the adjacent Islands and of the Gulf of S^t Lawrence should be replaced on the same footing on which they were previous to the War; that the French Fishermen and the Inhabitants of S^t Pierre & Miquelon shall have the privilege of cutting such Wood as they may stand in need of in the Bays of Fortune & Despair, for the space of One Year from the date of the Notification of the said Treaty, You are therefore to use your utmost care, diligence & attention, that the several stipulations herein mentioned and referred to, be suitably performed as far as they shall come within the limits of your Command, having due regard in doing thereof to such part of His Majesty's Declaration and the Counter Declaration of His late Most Christian Majesty subjoined to the first mentioned Treaty as may relate thereto, and also to the Fishery between the Island of Newfoundland and the Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon by visiting the several Bays and places in Newfoundland between Cape S^t John (passing to the North and descending by the Western Coast) and Cape Raye, or causing them to be visited by any of the ships of your Squadron as you shall judge best for that purpose But as from the vicinity of the Islands of S^t Pierre & Miquelon to Newfoundland and other parts of H.M. Dominions in North America, an illicit Trade may be attempted to be carried on between the British, Indian or any other Inhabitants of H .M. Dominions and the people of France residing on the said Islands of S^t Pierre & Miquelon or employed in the Fishery by virtue of Treaty, or between H.M. said Subjects and other people of France or subjects of other Powers, trading, or pretending to trade, to, or with, the said Islands of S^t Pierre & Miquelon; In case any endeavours shall be used to carry on such illicit Trade as aforesaid, You are to be particularly attentive to the same, and to prevent if possible, all communication whatever between the said Islands of S^t Pierre & Miquelon, and any part of H.M. Dominions in North America, contrary to the plain and strict meaning of this Instruction.

5th And whereas it hath been represented unto us that divers of Our Subjects have upon various unwarrantable Pretences and under pretended Grants or Permissions given by former Governors of Our Island of Newfoundland possessed them of and claim as their private Property large Tracts of Land and Beaches commodious for the Fishery upon the Coasts and within the several Harbours and Rivers of the said Island and the Islands adjacent contrary to Law. In order therefore to prevent such unwarrantable practices in future it is Our Will and Pleasure that you do not upon any pretence whatever allow any Person or Persons to take as Private Property any Lands or Rivers or parts thereof on the Island of Newfoundland or the Coasts thereof or on the Islands adjacent including Saint Pierre and Miquelon And you are to take care that the ancient Ship Rooms and Fishing Rooms do continue under the Provisions of Statute tenth and Eleventh William the third Chapter Twenty fifth for the encouragement of New Adventurers that they may be sure of finding proper and convenient Places for curing salting drying and husbanding their Fish whenever they resort thither. It is Our further Will and Pleasure that the remaining Shores of Newfoundland shall be held by such of Our Subjects resorting thither from Our Dominions in Europe as shall first arrive and take possession of the same for the like purpose of carrying on the Fishery in proportion to the number of the Ships and Boats they shall employ and they shall continue to hold the same in like manner and for the like purpose so long as they shall carry on their Fishery there, but in case they shall neglect so to carry on the Fishery for one entire Season such Shores or parts thereof as shall be neglected or deserted by such Possessors shall be held for the like purpose and in like manner by any of Our Subjects resorting thither from Our Dominions in Europe, who shall first occupy the same for the purpose of carrying on the Fishery and you are to put and maintain such Persons in possession thereof And you. are not to allow or suffer any Buildings to be erected except Fishing Stages Cook Rooms Ship Rooms and Flakes or such erections as shall be absolutely necessary for Curing Salting Drying and Husbanding Fish within two Hundred Yards distance from High Water Mark and you are not to allow any possession as private Property to be taken of or any Right of Property whatever acknowledged in any Land whatever even beyond that distance It is Our further Will and Pleasure nevertheless that all and any Buildings Erections Wharfs Ships or Fences already erected may remain provided the same are not erected or built upon ancient Ship Rooms and provided they are not in Your Judgement considered to be nuisances and detrimental to the Interest of the Fishery in general But in case they shall clearly appear to you to be so you shall cause the same to be

thereof and putting the said Parties or Persons to as little inconvenience as the case will admit if such Parties or Persons do not cause to remove the same in due time after such notice is given.

6th And whereas it has also been represented to Us that divers of Our Subjects residing in Newfoundland sell mortgage and lease for considerable Sums Houses Lands Fishing Stages Cook Rooms and Flakes of which they have been in possession as if they had an exclusive and indefeasible Title therein contrary to the intention of Us and Our Predecessors and contrary to the Laws made for preventing the same Now in order that We may be better informed concerning the premises and that We may be able to determine what measures in this respect shall be pursued in future. It is Our Will and Pleasure that you in conjunction with Our Chief Justice of the said Island do cause such enquiry to be made as you and he shall judge most proper (but in such a manner as not to create unnecessary alarms) for ascertaining the pretended Titles and Claims under which such Property is held the length of time that the present Possessors or those under whom they claim have enjoyed the same and the nature extent supposed Rent and Value of such Property and you are further to enquire whether it has ever been ascertained in the several Harbours of Newfoundland what fishing Places did belong to the Fishing Ships before the Year One Thousand six hundred and Eighty five and whether any account is kept of those Fishing Places that have been possessed since that year in order to prevent the disputes that may otherwise happen between the Masters of Ships and the Inhabitants and whether there is any want of convenient places unoccupied on the Beach or Shores of Newfoundland fit for the purpose of carrying on the Fishery by the adventurers who may arrive from His Majesty's European Dominions and whether the fishing Admirals and others discharge their duty according to the Provisions of Statute Tenth and Eleventh William the third Chapter twenty fifth.

MANUAL AND SIGNET FOR JOHN HOLLOWAYAS GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF IN AND OVER THE ISLAND OF NEWFOUNDLAND.C.O. 195. VOL. 16, p. 151.

Instructions to Our Trusty and Wellbeloved John Holloway Esq^{re} Vice Admiral of the Red Squadron of Our Fleet Our Governor and Commander in Chief in and over Our Island of Newfoundland in America & the Islands adjacent including the Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon as also of Our Forts and Garrisons erected & established or that shall be erected or established in Our said Island of Newfoundland and the Islands aforesaid Given at Our Court at Saint James's the Seventh day of May 1807 In the 47th Year of Our Reign.

1st With these Our Instructions You will receive Our Commission under Our Great Seal of Our United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland constituting you Our Governor and Commander in Chief in and over Our Island of Newfoundland in America & Islands adjacent including the Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon And also of all Our Forts & Garrisons erected and established or which shall be erected or established in Our said Islands with directions to obey and follow such Orders and Instructions as shall from time to time be given you under Our Signet and Sign Manual or by Our Order in Our Privy Council You are therefore to prepare yourself with all convenient speed to repair to your said Command and being there arrived You are to take upon you the Execution of the Office and Trust which We have reposed in you and as soon as conveniently may be you are to assemble the principal Inhabitants of the said Island of Newfoundland and of such other of the Islands under your Command as you shall judge expedient and with all due solemnity you are to cause Our said Commission constituting you Our Governor and Commander in Chief as aforesaid to be read and published at such Meeting.

2^d It is Our Will and Pleasure that you do from time* as the nature of the Service will allow visit all the Coasts and Harbours of the Islands under your Government You shall also procure accurate Drafts or Maps of such of the said several Harbours Bays and Coasts as are situated between Cape Bonavista and Cape St John it having been represented to Us that the other parts of the Coast of the said Island have already been carefully surveyed for the due Execution of which Service you will have Authority to employ a competent Officer with proper Assistants and to hire a small Vessel to attend him And in Case You cannot visit all the said Coasts and Harbours you are to give Directions to the Officers under your Command for the purposes beforementioned taking care to report to us through One of Our Principal Secretaries of State the Condition of Our said Forts and whether it may be necessary to erect any new Forts or Posts in the Islands under your Command You are also to transmit to the Master General of Our Ordnance an account of the Arms Ammunition and Stores in Our said Forts In which respect you are to follow such Directions as you shall receive from Our said Master General of the Ordnance.

3^d You are to be particularly careful to enforce the Provisions of all Acts of Parliament for encouraging the Shipping Navigation and Trade of Our Diminions* and to prevent all Evasions and Frauds contrary to the same And you are not to suffer any Foreigners whatever to fish or dry or cure any Fish on any of the Coasts or Shores within your Government except in Cases in which the Subjects of any Foreign Power are entitled by Treaty to fish or dry or cure Fish there.

4th And Whereas by the Third Article of the Definitive Treaty of Peace between Us and the United States of America concluded at Paris the third day of September 1783 the People of the said United States were allowed to continue to enjoy unmolested the right to take Fish of every Kind on the Grand Bank and all the other Banks of Newfoundland also in the Gulph of St Lawrence and at all other Places in the Sea where the Inhabitants of both Countries used at any time theretofore to fish and likewise that the Inhabitants of the said United States should have liberty to take Fish of every Kind on such part of the Coast of Newfoundland as British Fishermen should use (but not to dry or cure the same on that Island) And also on the Coasts and in the Bays and Creeks of all other of Our Dominions in America And that the American Fishermen should have liberty to dry and cure Fish in any of the unsettled Bays Harbours and Creeks of Nova Scotia and Magdalen Islands on the Coast of Labrador so long as the same should remain unsettled but so soon as the same or either of them should be settled it would not be lawful for the said Fishermen to dry or cure Fish at such Settlements without a previous Agreement for that purpose with the Inhabitants Proprietors or Possessors of the Ground It is Our Will and Pleasure that you do take due Care that the People of the United States of America shall fully and amply enjoy every right of fishing drying and curing of Fish allowed them by the said third Article of the Treaty above recited not allowing them however to dry or cure their Fish on Our Island of Newfoundland or in any Bay Harbour or Creek of any other part of your Government which is settled.

And you are on every occasion to exact and require a full and specific performance of the said Treaty on their parts within the limits of your Government.

5th Several Observations apparently of Importance having been made by the two Governors who preceded you in the Government of Our Island of Newfoundland respecting various Measures likely in their Opinion greatly to promote the Success of the Fishery there as well as to encrease the advantages thereof to Great Britain many of which Measures (stated to have arisen from an unavoidable Change of Circumstances) requiring Alterations in the Laws now in force for regulating the said Fisheries and appearing to Us to deserve the most serious Consideration before any Proposal on the Subject shall be submitted to Parliament We have directed Copies of these Observations to be transmitted to you herewith. And it is Our Pleasure that you shall during the approaching Season while you remain on the Station obtain the best Information in your power from the most authentic Sources respecting the expediency of proposing to the Legislature any & what Alterations in the several Acts of the 10th & 11th W. 3^d and the 15th 26th 28th and 33^d Years of Our Reign particularly with respect

1st To confirming the Title of Persons to Ship Rooms and Buildings which have for a considerable Time been in the Possession of the present Holders without any legal Right thereto or who derive their Claims from the Usurpation of Others as well as with respect to the Governors of the Island being authorized to grant Leases of such Ship Rooms as have not been occupied and on what Conditions and for what Terms.

2^{dly} With respect to the Provisions in the 10th & 11th W. 3. relative to the Fishing Admiral which it is represented have long been in Dis-use and substituting some competent Jurisdiction (if it shall be thought necessary) for settling disputes about Fishing Rooms.

3^{dly} Respecting the Employment of Two Green Men in each Boat under a Provision in the same Act which for the Reasons stated neither has been for some Time nor can apparently be hereafter acted upon.

4^{thly} The Provisions in the Act of the 15th Year of Our Reign C. 31. Sec. 13 respecting the retaining 40^s/to pay the Passage of the Fishermen Home and in the 14th Section of the same Act respecting Restrictions in the mode of paying the Men neither of which it is stated can be enforced.

And it is Our Will and Pleasure that you do not upon any pretence whatever allow any new Possession to be taken of Lands or Rivers or Parts thereof on Our Island of Newfoundland or the Coast thereof or on the Islands adjacent including S^t Pierre and Miquelon until it shall be decided whether any Alteration of the Laws above referred to shall be proposed to Parliament. And you are in the mean time to take care that the Ancient Ship Rooms and Fishing Rooms do continue under the Provisions of Statute 10th & 11th W. 3. C. 25 for the Encouragement of New Adventurers that they may be sure of finding proper and convenient Places for curing salting drying and husbanding their Fish whenever they shall resort thither It is Our further Will and

Pleasure that the remaining Shores of Newfoundland shall be held by such of Our Subjects resorting thither from Our Dominions in Europe as shall first arrive and take possession of the same for the like purpose of carrying on the Fishery in proportion to the number of Ships and Boats they shall employ and they shall continue to hold the same in like manner and for the like purpose so long as they shall carry on their Fishing there But in Case they shall neglect so to carry on the Fishery for one entire Season such Shores or Parts thereof as shall be neglected or deserted by such Possessors shall be held for the like purpose and in like manner by any of Our Subjects resorting thither from Our Dominions in Europe who shall first occupy the same for the purpose of carrying on the Fishery And you are to put and maintain such Persons in possession thereof. And Whereas it appears by the Observations of your Predecessors already alluded to that the Instructions from time to time given to prevent the Erection of any Buildings except Fishing Stages Cook Rooms Ship Rooms and Flakes or such Erections as shall be absolutely necessary for curing salting drying and husbanding Fish within two hundred Yards distance from High Water Mark have not for a considerable Period been enforced and Reasons have been submitted why that System should be departed from It is Our Will and Pleasure that you should while you remain on the Station inform yourself as fully as you can on that Subject also and report your Opinion thereupon on your return It is Our further Will and Pleasure nevertheless that all or any Buildings Erections Wharfs Slips or Fences already erected may remain provided the same are not erected or built upon ancient Ship Rooms and provided they are not in your Judgment considered to be Nuisances and detrimental to the Interest of the Fishery in general But in case they shall clearly appear to you to be so you shall cause the same to be removed giving due and reasonable Notice to the Parties claiming or pretending any Interest therein if upon the Spot or to the Persons in Possession and Occupation thereof putting the said Parties or Persons to as little inconvenience as the Case will admit if such Parties or Persons do not choose to remove the same in due time after

6th And Whereas it has also been represented to Us that divers of Our Subjects residing in Newfoundland Sell Mortgage and Lease for considerable Sums Houses Lands Fishing Stages Cook Rooms and Flakes of which they have been in possession either under Grants or Permission from former Governors or otherwise as if they had an exclusive and indefeasible Right therein contrary to the Intention of Us and Our Predecessors and contrary to the Laws made for preventing the same Now in order that We may be better informed concerning the Premises as well with a view to enable a Judgment being formed relative to Lands &^{ca} of which Persons have already possessed themselves as to a due Consideration of what Measures in this respect should be pursued in future It is Our Will and Pleasure that you in conjunction with Our Chief Justice of Our said Island do cause such Enquiry to be made as You and he shall judge most proper using very great Caution

in the manner of conducting this Enquiry so as to avoid most carefully creating unnecessary Alarms in the minds of Persons in Possession of the Lands &^{ca} suggesting to them that it is equally the Interest of themselves and of the Public that the Question should be put at rest and that if any Proceeding on the part of the Public shall be thought necessary there is every reason to believe attention will be paid to the Interests of the Parties liable to be affected thereby In the course of that Enquiry it will be important to ascertain as accurately as you can the nature of the Titles and Claims under which such Property is held The length of time that the present Possessors or those under whom they claim have enjoyed the same and the Extent supposed Rent and value of such Property And you are further to enquire whether it has ever been ascertained in the several Harbours of Newfoundland what Fishing Places did belong to the Fishing Ships before the Year 1685 and whether any Account is kept of such Fishing Places as have been possessed since that Year in order to prevent the disputes that may otherwise happen between the Masters of Ships and the Inhabitants And whether there is any want of convenient Places unoccupied on the Beach or Shores of Newfoundland fit for the purpose of carrying on the Fishery by the Adventurers who may arrive from His Majesty's European Dominions.

7th You are not to permit or allow any of Our Officers or Soldiers or other Persons whatever belonging to the Garrisons within your Government to engage or be in any way concerned or employed directly or indirectly in any Branch of the Fisheries carried on within your Government or to take up for themselves any Beaches Stages or Cook Rooms upon any pretence whatever or in any manner to interrupt the Fishermen in catching drying or curing their Fish And if any such Officers Soldiers or other Persons shall act in Contradiction to this Our Instruction you are to report the same to Us through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State that such Persons may be made sensible of Our highest displeasure.

8th And Whereas it is of great Importance to the Prosperity and extension of the Fishery that the Fish caught by Our Subjects should be properly cured and fitted for Sale at the Foreign Markets you are therefore to cause strict Injunctions to be given to the Masters of the Fishing Ships the Bye Boat Keepers and Inhabitants to take the greatest care in curing the Fish with a proper and sufficient Quantity of good Salt and in preparing husbanding and ordering the same that the Credit thereof may be maintained and augmented in the several Places to which it is carried for Sale And in order to render the attainment of that Object effectual as far as possible It is Our Pleasure that you shall consider & report to Us for Our Royal Consideration whether any & what means can be devised for observing whether the said Injunction is duly complied with And you are while on the Station to make very particular enquiries into the manner and method of taking and curing the Fish what Quantity of Salt is allowed for the curing of every One hundred Quintals Whether the Parties are guilty of any abuse in the ordering thereof and whether any Improvements can be made in any of the foregoing particulars And whether the Fish taken at a distance from the Land by the small Vessels is not damaged before it is brought on Shore And whether in the Sale of the Fish to those who are to carry it to the Foreign Markets experienced Cullers are employed in ascertaining the good Quality thereof And whether the Sack Ships jealous of each other and struggling who shall carry their Fish first to Market do not frequently ship it before it is properly cured whereby it suffers in the Passage And lastly whether the Inhabitants the Masters of the Sack Ships or the Bye Boat Keepers are most to be blamed in whatever is amiss and what methods would be most likely to prevent and to rectify the same The result of all which Enquiries you are not to fail to report to Us on your first return to Great Britain.

9th And Whereas the Salmon Fishery carried on in different parts of Our Island of Newfoundland has already proved of great advantage to Our United Kingdom and We have reason to suppose the same may be considerably extended You are therefore to give all due Encouragement and Protection to Our Subjects concerned in the said Fishery taking care that none of the Places where the Salmon are caught shall be improperly Monopolized contrary to Our Intentions expressed in the foregoing Instructions with respect to the Fisheries in general And you are to inform yourself of the actual State of this Fishery and how far the same may be properly extended and improved.

10th You are further to enquire particularly into the State of the Whale Fishery and of the Seal Fishery carried on in the Seas within your Government or adjacent thereunto And whether any means can be suggested for promoting the Success and Extension thereof particularly of the latter as it furnishes employment for a most useful body of Men before the Cod Fishery commences.

11th You are to cause your best Endeavours to encourage a Friendly Intercourse with the Indians residing in Our Island of Newfoundland or resorting thither using your best endeavours to conciliate their Affections so as to induce them to trade with Our Subjects And in order to prevent any improper Conduct towards them you are as soon after your arrival as conveniently may be to cause a Proclamation in Our Name to be published and dispersed through Our said Island of Newfoundland and Parts adjacent strictly enjoining and requiring all Our Subjects to live in Amity and Kindness with the said Indians and commanding and requiring all Officers and Magistrates to maintain and support good Order and Behaviour towards them And in Case any Person or Persons shall murder or commit any Outrage upon any of the said Indians you and the said Magistrates are to use your utmost Endeavours to apprehend and bring to Justice such Offenders

You are also to obtain the best Account you are able of the number of the said Indians the Places they usually frequent for trading the Countries from whence they come the nature and extent of the Trade that is or may be carried on with them and how far the same may in your Opinion be extended and improved.

p. 630

12th Whereas We did in the 15th Year of Our Reign grant to John Agnew Esquire of Strencham* in the County of Wigton in North Britain and his Associates certain Mines at Shoal Bay on the East Coast of Our said Island of Newfoundland supposed to contain Copper Ore one tenth part of which Ore by the special Condition of Our said Grant is thereby reserved to Us Our Heirs and Successors We do therefore hereby direct and empower you Our Governor or Our Commander in Chief for the time being of Our said Island of Newfoundland to take and receive one tenth part of all such Metals Ore and Minerals as now are or hereafter shall be raised or extracted from the said Mines and to pay and make over the same to such Person or Persons as the Lords Commissioners of Our Treasury shall appoint for that purpose And you are further to enquire whether there are any other Mines in Our said Island of Newfoundland or Islands adjacent and whether they may be worked to advantage.

13th And Whereas it has been represented to Us that different Species of Birds frequenting the Shores of Newfoundland and the adjacent Islands which afford a Supply of Food and of Bait and are useful in Fogs by warning Vessels that they are near the Land are frequently destroyed for the purpose of taking their Feathers It is Our Will and Pleasure that you do take such Measures as in your Opinion will effectually prevent their being so destroyed in future.

14th And Whereas You are by Our Commission authorized to constitute and appoint Justices of the Peace and other necessary Officers and Ministers for the Administration of Justice and maintaining the Peace within the different Parts of your Government You are therefore upon your arrival in Our said Island to enquire what Justices of the Peace are now in the Commission in order that in the new One to be issued you may nominate them or such other Persons as shall appear to you to be proper for executing the Office of Justice of the Peace And you are by your Authority and Influence to give all due Support as well to Our Chief Justice as to the said Justices of the Peace and to all other Magistrates and Officers in the legal discharge of their Duty And you are to endeavour to prevent any Disputes between Our said Justices of the Peace and all other Persons in Authority in the discharge of their respective Functions And Whereas you are by your Commission authorized to appoint Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer It is Our Will and Pleasure that you shall not make any such Appointment as shall interfere with the Criminal Jurisdiction belonging to the Supreme Court of Judicature except only in Cases where it may be inconvenient to try Offenders in the said Supreme Court.

15th Whereas you are empowered by Our Commission to pardon all Offenders and remit all Offences Wilful Murder only excepted in which Case you have Power upon extraordinary occasions to grant Reprieves to such Offenders until Our Royal Pleasure may be known It is Our Express Will and Pleasure that you do not suffer any Commission or Warrant Officer of any of Our Ships of War or the Master of any trading Ship of Our Subjects which shall happen to be within your Government to be deprived of Life or Limb by the Sentence of any Court But in such Case you shall relieve the Criminal until Our Pleasure be known therein And it is Our further Will and Pleasure that you take especial Care that all Persons guilty of Treason be sent over to this Kingdom with such Witnesses and Proof of the Crime as can be obtained in order to their being tried here.

16th And Whereas the immoderate use of Liquors has been found pernicious to the Health and Morals of Our Subjects dwelling in and resorting to Newfoundland for the purpose of carrying on the Fishery and has been the cause of the Fishermen expending a considerable part of their Wages You are not to allow in any part of your Government more Public Houses than may be requisite for the accommodation and Supply of Our said Subjects particularly in the Town of Saint John the number necessary for which you will when on the Spot be able to judge of It has been suggested as you will find in the accompanying Observations that Thirty six will be amply sufficient And it is Our Will and Pleasure that every Person who shall be allowed to keep a Public House within your Government do give full and ample Security for his or her good behaviour.

17th And Whereas the Monopolizing & engrossing of any Provisions Stores or Commodities necessary for the Subsistence of the Fishermen and Others employed in the Fishery or necessary for carrying on the same will be highly prejudicial to the general Interests thereof You are by every legal means in your Power to prevent and suppress any attempt that may be made for that purpose And you are to consider and report to Us whether any proper method can be adopted for supplying more cheaply the Articles beforementioned and for preventing any Frauds that may be committed in the Sale thereof or any Combinations to enhance the Price of Provisions or of any of the Articles beforementioned tending to the distress of the Fishermen.

18th And as it is Our Intention that all Persons inhabiting and frequenting the Islands under your Government should have full liberty of Conscience and the free exercise of all such Modes of Religious Worship as are not prohibited by Law We do therefore require you to permit all Persons within Our said Islands to have such liberty and to exercise such Modes of religious Worship as far as is consistent with Law provided they be contented with a quiet and peaceable Enjoyment of the same not giving Offence or Scandal to the Government.

21st And you are to take especial Care that a Table of Marriages as established by the Canons of the Church of England shall be hung up in every Church or Chapel or other Public Place of Worship and be duly attended to.

22^d And Whereas it has been thought of the highest Importance to the Naval Power of Great Britain that the Seamen and other Persons employed in the Fisheries carried on at Newfoundland should return annually at the end of the Fishing Season to some part of Our European Dominions for the Attainment of which Object various Laws have been passed and Instructions given but the same having failed to a great extent in producing the effect proposed You are to make the most attentive Enquiries you can whether any Measures could now be taken for further encouraging and promoting the return of every such Seaman & Fisherman to the part of Our European Dominions to which he belongs if it shall be thought advisable to adopt such Measures under the Change of Circumstances that has taken place and how far the Provisions of the Acts passed in the 15th & 26th Years of Our Reign for the purpose above mentioned can be made effectual And you are also to discourage and as far as you are able to prevent any of the said Seamen or Fishermen from deserting to any Foreign Country or from going to reside and establish themselves in the Countries belonging to the United States

Secretaries of State according to the Form Schedule A Marked A hereunto annexed And as to such of the said Particulars respecting which more accurate Information may possibly be obtained after your departure from the Island by the Collector or other Officers of the Customs or by Our Naval Officer You are to give directions to the said Officers to prepare accounts thereof attested by each of them according to the Form of the said Schedule and to transmit the same to you to be laid before One of Our Principal Secretaries of State for Our Information And you are to give all due and legal Support to the Officers of Our Customs in the discharge of their Duty who are hereby required with all convenient speed at the end of the Fishing Season to transmit to the Lords Commissioners of Our Treasury an Account of all Articles imported into Our Island of Newfoundland and the Islands adjacent distinguishing the Countries from whence the same were brought and particularly the Provisions imported under the Regulations of an Act passed in the 28th Year of Our Reign Cap. 6 Sec. 13 from the Countries of the United States of America with an Account of the Duties paid on such Articles as are liable to Duty You are also to endeavour to obtain the best Accounts you are able of the Wages paid to the Seamen and Fishermen and in what manner the same are paid And whether the Old Custom of carrying on the Fishery upon Shares is now continued and to what Extent. You are also to endeavour to obtain an account of the Prices at which Provisions and other Important Articles are sold in the course of the Fishing Season and also during the winter And whether the same are paid for in Cash Fish or Bills and if in Fish whether the Fish is rated at the Market price or at what Rate It is Our further Will and Pleasure that you pay attention to every Circumstance that may in your Judgement contribute to the Prosperity of the said Trade and Fishery and to the well being of all Persons concerned in them and that you consider of such Measures as it may be proper for Us to pursue for attaining those important purposes And you are upon all occasions to send unto Us through One of Our Principal Secretaries of State a particular account of all your Proceedings and of the Condition of the Affairs of the Islands under your Government and the Trade and Fishery thereof and of the Banks Seas and Ports adjacent And also a Copy of the same to the Lords of Our Privy Council appointed for the Consideration of all Matters relating to Trade and Foreign Plantations.

LETTER, W. FAWKENER TO EDWARD COOKE,TRANSMITTING DRAFT OF INSTRUCTIONS FOR VICE-ADMIRAL HOLLOWAY
AS GOVERNOR OF NEWFOUNDLAND.COL. COR. NEWFOUNDL^D, VOL. 23.Office of Committee of Privy Council for Trade
Whitehall 28th of May 1807.

Sir,

The Observations made by Admiral Gambier and Vice Admiral Sir Erasmus Gower, during the Periods in which they were Governors of Newfoundland, respecting the Instructions they were furnished with, for their Conduct in that Trust, induced the Lords of the Committee of Council for Trade to revise those Instructions with great care.—Lord Visc^t Castlereagh will observe that many of the Alterations proposed by these respectable Officers cannot be effected without the Interposition of the Legislature, and that the Remainder are of sufficient Importance to render it desirable to have the whole attentively considered by the New Governor on the Spot, before they are adopted: On framing the accompanying Instructions therefore to Vice Admiral Holloway whom His Majesty has been pleased to appoint to the Government of the said Island, regard has been had to the Change of Circumstances that has taken place within the last few Years, and the Admiral's Attention is called to the Observations of his two Predecessors; These Instructions so altered I am directed to transmit to you for the Information and Consideration of Lord Castlereagh, and to request you will call his Lordship's Attention to the 2^d Article thereof, by which the Governor is directed to cause a Survey to be made of the Harbours, Bays and Coasts situated between Cape Bonavista and S^t John, because, if that shall be approved of, it will be necessary that proper Authority should be given to the Governor to employ a competent Officer, with proper Assistants, and to hire a small Vessel for that purpose; and it will also be necessary that proper Directions should be given for defraying the Expence to be incurred in carrying that measure into Execution.

The Lords of the Committee are further of Opinion that it may be adviseable that the Governor should be furnished with a Warrant authorizing him to permit the Importation into Newfoundland from the United States, of such Articles of Provision as may now be lawfully imported, for the whole Year, instead of confining such Importation to the Fishing Season only, as is the Case at present.

I herewith inclose a Schedule of such Papers as in the Opinion of the Lords of this Committee it may be proper to communicate to the Governor, for the purpose of assisting him in his Enquiries on the several Points to which by the Instructions he is particularly called on to direct his Attention.

I am, Sir,
Your most obedient humble Servant,

W. FAWKENER.

p. 643

Art. 2nd Having executed the usual routine of business of S^t John's, and made arrangements to provide for a month's absence, I sailed from thence on Tuesday the 7th of August to visit the several Harbours to the Northward. Arrived at Harbour Grace on the 8th, at Trinity on the 11th, at Croque Harbour on the 16th, at Pitts Harbour (Labrador) on the 21st, and returned to S^t John's on Friday the 7th of September. The several Coasts and Harbours on the other parts of the Station have been duly visited by the Officers under my Command.

With respect to the procuring drafts of the several Harbours and Coasts situate between Cape Bonavista and Cape S^t John, I have not been furnished with authority to employ a competent Officer with proper assistants for the execution of this Service, nor have I received any directions on the subjects from the Admiralty. It has not indeed been in my you our Governor and Commander in Chief as aforesaid to be read and published at such meeting.

2nd It is our will and pleasure that you do from time to time as the nature of the Service will allow, visit all the Coasts and Harbours of the Islands under your Government, you shall also procure accurate Drafts or Maps of such of the said several Harbours, Bays and Coasts as are situated between Cape Bonavista and Cape Saint John; It having been represented to us that the other parts of the Coast of the said Island have already been carefully surveyed; for the due execution of which service, you will have authority to employ a competent Officer with proper Assistants, and to hire a small Vessel to attend him, and in case you cannot visit all the said Coasts and Harbours, you are to give directions to the Officers under your Command for the purposes beforementioned, taking care to report to us through one of our Principal Secretaries of State, the Condition of our said Forts, and whether it may be

power this year to take any measures for the accomplishment of this object, but I shall not fail to make application to their Lordship's to enable me to do so on my return to Newfoundland.

In compliance with the latter part of this Article, directing me to state the Condition of the Forts, and whether it may be desirable to erect any new Forts or Posts in the Island, I have procured from Chief Engineer his report of the works at S^t Johns (Appendix A.) and beg to submit my own remarks which are annexed to it; Offering them however with the utmost deference to the necessary to erect any new Forts or Ports in the Islands under your Command, you are also to transmit to the Master General of our Ordnance an account of the Arms, Ammunition and Stores in our said Forts, in which respect you are to follow such directions as you shall receive from our said Master General of the Ordnance.

professional skill of the Chief Engineer.

I have obtained an Account of the Arms, ammunition and Stores in the Forts at Newfoundland; and shall transmit the same to the Master General of the Ordnance as this Article directs.

With respect to the Our Ports, the only appearance that I have found of defence has been here and there a dismantled Gun; which has generally too been spiked.

The ruinous Fort at Placentia indeed has not yet been dismantled, but it is not in any degree fit for Service, and ought certainly to be abandoned, for it might at any time be plundered by a Privateer, and the Stores taken away. In the present tranquil state of these Seas in which the enemy has so rarely appeared, there is little necessity perhaps for the expence of erecting batteries: the Navy should be considered as the prime security of the Station in general; a fishery can only be protected by the Navy.

But it is necessary to confess that in the absence of the British Cruizers there is no one of the Our Harbours that I have visited which would not lie at the mercy of the most insignificant Privateer: Those for instance of Conception Bay, in which frequently twenty ships are laden in the course of the Season for Europe, are so perfectly, and as it were so invitingly open to attack, that it is almost surprising that no attempt upon them should every have been made. It is not well that security should be grounded only on the absence of an Enemy. The naval Force usually employed on the Station does not admit of a Vessel being stationed at each of the principal Harbours for its exclusive protection; and unless it could be so the question is simply, whether the probability of an Enemy every coming upon the Coast is, or is not, sufficiently great to warrant the expenditure of such a sum as would defend the entrance of the principal Harbours against an occasional cruizer. At those which I have visited, Harbour Grace, Carbonear, and Trinity, there are so many natural facilities that works might at very little expence be raised for their defence. For instance at Harbour Grace, a Martello tower upon the Summit called the Peak of Teneriffe, and a Battery of three Guns upon a lower point called Labour-in-vain would afford in my opinion an ample security. A Tower on the Island of Carbonear would defend the entrance of that Harbour and would be all that appears necessary.

Appendix F.

For the defence of Trinity Harbour (one of the finest certainly in the world, and where from fourteen to twenty sail of Vessels are laden in the season) a Tower placed upon the Hill called Rider's Hill would perhaps be sufficient.

These are the only stations of those I have visited which seem to require any works on the Land, and perhaps there are none other North of S^t John's which would be deemed worth of any.

Art. 3rd The Provisions of the several Acts of Parliament for the encouragement of Shipping and Navigation have been observed. no foreigners have attempted to fish on the Coasts or shores within this

3rd You are to be particularly careful to enforce the Provisions of all Acts of Parliament for encouraging the Shipping Navigation and Trade of our Dominions, and to prevent all evasions and frauds contrary to the same, and you are not to suffer any Foreigners whatever to fish, or dry or cure any Fish on any of the Coasts or Shores within your Government, except in cases in which the subjects of any Foreign Power are entitled by Treaty to fish or dry or cure fish there.

Art. 4th The stipulations of the treaty of Versailles have been punctually enforced; but I am informed that great activity is necessary in the earlier part of the season to prevent the Americans from Trading improperly with the British Fishermen.

4th And whereas by the third Article of the definitive Treaty of Peace between us and the United States of America concluded at Paris the third day of September 1783 the People of the said United States were allowed to continue to enjoy unmolested the right to take fish of every kind on the Grand Bank and all the other Banks of Newfoundland, also in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence and at all other places in the sea where the Inhabitants of both Countries used at any time theretofore to fish, and likewise that the Inhabitants of the said United States should have liberty to take fish of every kind on such part of the Coast of Newfoundland as British Fishermen should use; (but not to dry or cure the same on that Island) and also on the Coasts and in the Bays and Creeks of all other of our Dominions in America, and that the American Fishermen should have liberty to dry and cure fish in any of the unsettled Bays, Harbours and Creeks of Nova Scotia and Magdalen Islands on the Coast of

Labrador so long as the same should remain unsettled; but as soon as the same or either of them should be settled it would not be lawful for the said Fishermen to dry or cure fish at such Settlements without a previous agreement for that purpose with the Inhabitants, Proprietors or

Possessors of the Ground. It is our will and pleasure that you do take due care that the People of the United States of America shall fully and amply enjoy every right of Fishing, drying and curing of fish, allowed them by the said third Article of the Treaty above recited, not allowing them however to dry or cure their fish in our Island of Newfoundland, or in any Harbour, Bay or Creek of any other part of our Government which is settled, and you are on every occasion to exact and require a full said specific performance of the said Treaty on their parts within the limits of your Government.

Art. 5th The policy which has hitherto been observed with respect to Newfoundland, of discouraging whatever might be supposed to lead to the increase of population, and ultimately to a necessity for its establishment as a colony, is in my opinion too wise to be abandoned until much stronger reasons can be given than I have yet heard advanced for a change of system. The fisheries it is true have taken a direction

5th Several observations apparently of importance having been made by the Governors who have preceded you in the Government of our Island of Newfoundland and respecting various measures likely in their opinion greatly to promote the success of the Fishery there as well as to encrease the advantages thereof to Great Britain, many of which so evidently tending to this result that the evil may perhaps be inevitable, but it is still I trust remote, and the great object should be to keep it as far remote as possible. With this object sincerely at heart, it still appears to me desirable that in consideration of the material change of circumstances some little alteration of the Acts by which Newfoundland has been hitherto regulated should now take place. The observations of my predecessors which are stated to accompany my Instructions were not delivered to me. Those only of measures (states to have arisen from an unavoidable change of circumstances) requiring alterations in the Laws now in force for regulating the said Fisheries and appearing to us to deserve the most serious consideration before any proposal on the subject shall be submitted to Parliament. We have directed copies of these observations to be transmitted to you herewith; and it is our pleasure that you shall during the approaching Season, while you remain on the Station obtain the best information in your power from the most authentic sources, respecting the expediency of proposing to Admiral Holloway are in my possession, and I receive them for himself. It is with great hesitation therefore that I can venture, upon the strength of so small experience, to give a decided judgement upon this important subject. The opinions of my predecessors may perhaps in many instances be directly at variance with my own, and perhaps too they have been formed on better principles.

However, to reply regularly to the questions proposed as well as I am able; and first, With respect to confirming the title of Persons to shipsrooms and buildings which have for a considerable time been in the possession of the present holders without any legal right thereto, or who derive their claims from the usurpations of others; It is in the Legislature any and what alterations in the several Acts of the tenth and eleventh of William the third, and the fifteenth, twenty sixth, twenty eighth, and thirty third years of our reign, particularly with respect, first — to confirming the title of persons to ship-rooms and buildings, which have for a considerable time been in the possession of the present holders without any legal right thereto, or who derive their claims from the usurpation of others, as well as with respect to the Governors of the Island being authorized to grant leases of such ship-rooms as have not been occupied, and on what conditions and for what terms. Secondly — with respect to the Provisions in the tenth and eleventh of William the

my opinion expedient to confirm, or perhaps more correctly, give, a title to persons possessing such Ship's-rooms and the buildings thereon; exacting however a certain ground rent, such as for instance two per Cent on the sum which could be obtained by the possessors as rent from others; for example

£15 and under, to pay 5 shillings

50 to 75	"	30	"	"
75 to 100	"	40	"	"

The unoccupied Ships-rooms remaining in S^t John's amount to no more than nine.

It is long since any Ships have arrived to claim them, and they have continued altogether useless.

Whether in the event of peace it is to be expected that the ancient system of carrying on the fishery in third, relative to the fishing Admirals, which, it is represented, have long been in disuse, and substituting some competent Jurisdiction (if it shall be thought necessary) for settling disputes about Fishing-rooms. Thirdly — respecting the employment of two Green men in each boat under a provision of the same Act which for the reasons stated, neither has been for some time nor can apparently be hereafter acted upon. Fourthly — the Provisions in the Act of the fifteenth year of our reign Chap: 31, Sect. 13 respecting the retaining forty shillings to pay the Passage of the fishermen home and in the 14th Section of the same Act respecting restrictions in the mode of paying the men, neither of which it is stated can be enforced; and it is our will and pleasure that you do not upon any pretence whatever allow any new possession to be taken of Lands or Rivers or parts thereof on our Island of Newfound

Ships would return, or whether it is likely to continue on its present footing, is the only question to be considered as to the propriety of retaining these ancient Ship's rooms as they now are, or of authorizing the Governor to grant leases of them. It is decidedly my opinion that no benefit can ever arise from keeping them vacant; and that it would be infinitely preferable that the greater part of them, which from the land or the Coast thereof, or on the Islands adjacent, including Saint Pierre and Miquelon, until it shall be decided whether any alteration of the Laws above referred to shall be proposed to Parliament, and you are in the mean time to take care that the Ancient Ships-rooms and fishing-rooms do continue under the Provisions of Statute Tenth and eleventh of William the Third. Cap: 25 for the encouragement of new present construction of the Town can never again be rendered available to their original purposes, should be leased, and the rents applied to various public uses in S^t John's. The conditions of these leases should depend on local circumstances and the terms could not perhaps be limited to less than thirty years to admit of those expensive buildings which it would be for the advantage both of individuals and of the public to erect. I have brought with me a plan of the Town which was some time since constructed with great labour, and will more clearly illustrate this subject.

To compensate for the appropriation of those Ship's-rooms which I should point out as useless for the banking fishery, it will here be seen that towards the upper part of the Harbour there is an excellently convenient space which might at little expence be rendered admirably fit for the ancient fishery if that system should ever return. Secondly, with respect to the provisions in the 10th and 11th of William 3rd relative to the fishing Admirals, which have long been in disuse, and substituting some competent jurisdiction for settling disputes about fishing rooms; The civil establishment of Newfoundland in its present state is so adventurers, that they may be sure of finding proper and convenient places for curing, salting, drying and husbanding their fish whenever they shall resort thither.

It is our further will and pleasure that the remaining Shores of Newfoundland shall be held by such of our subjects resorting thither from our Dominions in Europe as shall first arrive and take possession of the same for the like purpose of carrying on the Fishery in proportion to the number of ships and Boats they shall employ and they shall continue to hold the same in like manner and for the like purpose so long as they shall carry on the Fishery for one entire Season, such shores or parts thereof as shall be neglected or deserted by such possessors shall be held for the like purpose and in like manner by any of our Dominions in Europe who shall first occupy the same for the purpose of carrying on the fishery, and you are to put and maintain such Persons in possession thereof; And whereas it appears by the observations of your predecessors already alluded to that the Instructions from time to time fully competent, and the jurisdiction of the Fishing Admirals Court has now so

properly devolved to the Supreme and Surrogate Courts and Courts of Session, that in my opinion it is quite unnecessary to substitute any other. Indeed it does not appear that the Admiral's jurisdiction was at any time attended with much benefit, and there is certainly now no reason to regret its loss. Thirdly, with respect to the employment of two Green men in each boat, under a provision in the same Act; It does indeed appear to be utterly impossible that this provision of the Act should be enforced again. In the first place, because in the present sedentary way of carrying on the fishery it would not be practicable to procure such Green men, and more especially after so many years of War; and in the second because a very considerable share of the fishery is now managed in Skiffs never carrying more than three men, and very frequently a Man and two Boys, or only a Man and Boy; and not generally in Chaloups as in former times. Fourthly, with respect to the provisions in the 13th Sec. of the Act of the 15th of His Majesty, for the retaining forty Shillings to pay the passage of the Fishermen home; and in the 14th Sec. of the same Act respecting restrictions in the mode of paying the Men. It is not perhaps necessary to make any alteration in that part of the Act which specifies forty shillings as the sum to be retained for passage money home. The wages of the Fishermen will not bear a greater burden; rooms, Ship rooms and flakes or such erections as shall be absolutely necessary for curing, salting, drying and husbanding Fish within two hundred yards distance from High Water mark, have not for a considerable period been enforced, and reasons have been submitted why that system should be departed from. It is our Will and pleasure that you should, while you remain on the Station, inform yourself as fully as you can on that subject also, and report your opinion thereupon on your return. It is our further will and pleasure nevertheless that all, or any building, erections, Wharfs, Slips or Fences already created may remain, provided the same are not erected or built upon Ancient Ship rooms, and provided they are not, in your judgement, considered to be nuisances and detrimental to the Interest of the Fishery in General; but in case they shall cause the same to be removed, giving due and reasonable notice to the parties claiming or pretending any Interest therein, if upon the spot, or to the Persons in Possession and occupation thereof, putting the said parties or persons to as little inconvenience as the case will admit, if such parties or persons do not chuse to remove the same in due time after such notice shall be given.

but if the return of the fishermen be an object to be enforced, the deficiency in the passage money might be made up by Government out of the rents accruing from the Ship's rooms; and the Governor should by proclamation establish the rate of passage at the end of every Season. One great impediment at present to the return of the Fishermen is the absolute want of Tonnage. They come out in the Spring when the Cargoes of the Vessels are more valuable, and less bulky; but when those Vessels return they are laden even to their Cabins with Fish, and cannot in any manner afford the Space.

There can I think be no necessity for an alteration of the law as far as it relates to the restrictions in the mode of paying the Men. But again, with respect to the return of the Fishermen, there is yet another cause which must in some measure operate against it, and that is, the continued increase of the Seal Fishery, which can only be carried on by persons who remain during the Winter in the Island, to be ready for the breaking up of the ice, and to seize the first moment for putting to Sea. It may be perhaps to be deplored that the fishery is now constituted so as to render the continued residence of the Fishermen in a great degree necessary, but there is still the consolation that in any event of emergency a very excellent body of Men might at a moment be drafted from hence into the Navy.

I have not suffered any new possession to be taken of Lands or Rivers or parts thereof. I have taken care that the ancient Ship's rooms should continue under the Statute 10th and 11th of William 3rd but it does not appear that Ships are likely to arrive from the British

p. 652

Dominions in Europe to occupy either those or the other vacant Shores of Newfoundland.

It is true that notwithstanding whatever instructions may have been given from time to time to prevent the erection of any building except Fishing Stages, Cook rooms, Ship rooms and flakes within two hundred yards distance from high water mark, such buildings have been erected in every part of the North side of St John's Harbour.

In the present altered state of St John's, no longer considerable for its fishery, but very particularly so as the great mercantile depot of the Island from whence all the supplies are drawn, (arising, no doubt, from a long course of War and a necessity for concentrating those supplies in a place of security) it is not necessary, and in fact it is not possible, that a regulation of this nature should be enforced.

The Wharfs and capacious Store houses of the Merchants, for obtaining as well the provisions and various articles of Supply with which they furnish the planters, as the great quantities of fish which they receive in barter for those supplies, occupy nearly the whole extent of the strand; and as it is indispensable in the present circumstances of the fishery that such magazines should exist, they can be no where more properly placed. But there are also innumerable smaller buildings, retail shops of various descriptions, which are crowded very closely, and very perniciously together, immediately behind the great Stores of the Merchants; and form a street so unhappily narrow and confined as greatly to endanger the health of the inhabitants, and in case of fire to leave no chance of its being extinguished. It is in my opinion an object of essential importance that these houses should be removed. They cannot be considered in any other light than as great public nuisances; but as the value of the whole is so considerable, and the interests of so many person would be affected by removing them, it could not be done suddenly, nor without an adequate compensation.

The owners of such property might for instance be given reasonable warning that it would be necessary for them to remove, and portions of land, with the right of erecting what might be deemed sufficient buildings thereon for their respective purposes should be allotted to them in the higher part of the Town, in the Street called Gower Street. But as the mere right of building in Gower Street might not be a sufficient inducement to them to quit their present habitations without some positive remuneration for the expence of the removal, it could be made either by granting to them land of adequate extent out of the Town, or by devoting to this purpose for a certain time a portion of the rents arising from the proposed lease of the Ships-rooms. Although in my replies to this Article I have strictly confined myself to the several queries, yet they are so comprehensive as to leave little room for further observation.

There is however one suggestion which I should desire to make; It is, that the unoccupied Ship rooms in the Out Harbours might be rendered more available if the law respecting them were thus altered. Instead of preserving them wholly vacant for the adventurers, by whom they have not for many years been claimed, the Planters or inhabitants might be permitted to use them on condition of delivering them up on their being claimed by fishing Ships which might arrive. They should be restricted from establishing any building whatever upon them other than those indispensable for the fishery, and for whatever buildings or conveniencies they might erect of this denomination, they should be allowed such compensation by the claimant as should be deemed equitable by a certain number of Arbitrators to be named by each of the parties. In every point of view an arrangement of this sort would in my opinion be attended with advantage. In the first place many of the excellent Ships-rooms now lying useless might be turned to account, and it is not surely necessary to impede the Fishery in its present system, unless it be by means which obviously tend at the same time to its revival on the ancient system. A measure such as I propose would certainly not increase the difficulty of bringing back the ancient System; but on the contrary it would be the means of removing one very serious impediment; that to which fishing Ships arriving would be subject from the necessity of erecting their own Flakes, and Stages, and Cook rooms; in the preparation of which consideration time is necessarily lost, nor after all is it possible that sufficient pains should be bestowed to render them so commodious or in any manner so fit for the purpose as they ought to be, when those who erect them are in the first instance greatly pressed in point of time, and in the next uncertain whether their Labours will profit them beyond the present Season.

The advantages of curing the fish in situations which have been regularly adapted for the process are so essential, that the mode of drying it on the beach, or of using temporary conveniences only, can scarcely again be resorted to; and in the generality of the Harbours the wood has been so entirely cleared from their immediate neighbourhood that much difficulty has occasionally prevailed in finding it for the flakes. As a remarkable instance of this fact; upon observing at Carbonear (in Conception Bay) a large enclosure of young fir Trees, the common wood of the whole Country, and enquiring of the Fisherman who owned it what had been his motives for undertaking so laborious a work, he assured me that indeed he had spent on that enclosure the labour of his youth; but that it well repaid him in the end, for he found there sticks to repair his Flake when otherwise he must have lost much valuable fishing time in hunting for them.

Constrained as I am to report my opinions on these various subjects (many of which involve considerations of the very first importance) on this my first return from Newfoundland, I have stated them with more precision than perhaps in real wisdom I ought to have done.

It is not impossible that in many points a more familiar acquaintance with its affairs may induce me to alter in some degree my present sentiments. In such case however I shall feel it my duty candidly to confess the errors of this my first judgement, which cannot possibly be so well grounded as if it were the result of longer experience

Art. 6th It is most true that a very considerable extent of property is held in Newfoundland by Individuals whose claim is simply that of having cleared the land with their own labour, and erected their buildings thereon without interruption; or of having inherited or purchased it from those who could still give them no better title.

It appears that the late Governor and his predecessor had issued Proclamations requiring from the several Surrogates a general return of the property held in their respective districts. In some instances the difficulty is said to have been so great that these returns have not yet been made.

I have however enforced the Proclamations of my Predecessors, and have especially endeavoured with the assistance of the Chief Justice to procure an exact knowledge of the particulars required.

In the Office of the records of S^t John's are Lodged those reports that have hitherto been given in; which serve moderately well to answer the enquires contained in this article, and would, as far as they extend,

6th And whereas it has also been represented to us that divers of our Subjects residing in Newfoundland sell, mortgage, and lease for considerable sums, Houses, Lands, Fishing Stages, Cook rooms and Flakes, of which they have been in possession, either under Grant or permission from former Governors or other wise, as if they had an exclusive and indefeasible right therein, contrary to the intention of us and our Predecessors, and contrary to the Laws made for preventing the same: now in Order that we may be better informed concerning the premises, as well with a view to enable a judgement being formed relative to Lands &ca, of which persons have already possessed themselves, as to a due consideration of what measures in this respect should be pursued in future. It is our Will and pleasure that you, in conjunction with our Chief Justice of our said Island, do cause such enquiries to be made as you and he shall judge most proper, using very great caution in the manner of/conducting this enquiry so as to avoid most carefully creating unnecessary alarms in the afford considerable facilities to any arrangement respecting property which might be ultimately made. It is the opinion of the Chief Justice that although divers of His Majesty's subjects in Newfoundland do sell, mortgage and lease Houses, Lands, Stages &c &c of which they have been minds of persons in possession of Lands &ca, suggesting to them that it is equally the interest of themselves and of the public that the question should be put at rest, and that if any proceedings on the part of the public shall be thought necessary, there is every reason to believe attention in possession either under grant from former Governors to otherwise, yet is not as if they had an exclusive and indefeasible right therein; but that they merely sell, Mortgage or demise for a term of years their interest in such premises, without defining what that interest may be; and that the rule of caveat emptor seems to be the guide and understanding of the parties. I have caused copies to be made of the books containing returns of the property held in Conception Bay; and they will be transmitted to the Lords of the Committee of Council for Trade &ca to afford some idea to their Lordships of the nature of the general tenure of property throughout the Island, with the exception, in some degree of S^t John's.

I do not find that any record has been preserved of the fishing places that belonged to the Fishing Ships before the year 1685; but those which have since been claimed by fishing Ships, and are now known as Ship's-rooms, appear to be generally acknowledged and respected; excepting will be paid to the interests of the parties liable to be affected thereby.

In the course of that enquiry it will be important to ascertain as accurately as you can the nature of the Titles and claims under which such property is held, the length of time that the present possessors or those under whom they claim have enjoyed the same, and the extent supposed rent and value of such property; And you are further to enquire whether it has ever been ascertained in the several Harbours of Newfoundland what Fishing places did belong to the Fishing Ships before the year 1685 and whether any Account is kept of such Fishing places as have been possessed since that year in Order to prevent the Disputes that may otherwise happen between the Masters of Ships and the Inhabitants and whether there is any want of convenient places unoccupied on the Beach or Shores of Newfoundland fit for the purpose of carrying on the fishery by the adventurers who may arrive from His Majesty's European Dominions.

some palpable encroachments at S^t John's which are known to have been for many years solely at the mercy of the Governor. In the Harbour of S^t John's there certainly remains but little of the shore unoccupied; but in all the other Harbours, as well those which I have myself inspected, as others which have been visited by my Orders, there is an abundance of very convenient places unoccupied which are perfectly fit for the purpose of carrying on the fishery by Adventurers who may arrive from Europe; especially in the District of Ferryland, the most contiguous to the Grand Bank, and most convenient in every instance for the banking fishery.

Art. 7th It does not appear that any Officers or Soldiers of the Garrison are in any way concerned or employed in the fishery.

7th You are not to permit or allow any of our Officers or Soldiers or other Persons whatever belonging to the Garrison within your Government to engage or be in any way concerned or employed directly or indirectly in any branch of the Fisheries carried on within your Government, or to take up for themselves any Beaches, Stages, or Cook rooms upon any pretence, whatever, in any manner to interrupt the Fishermen in catching, drying or curing their Fish, and if any such Officers, Soldiers, or other persons shall in contradiction to this our Instruction, you are to report the same to us

Art. 8th I have caused those injunctions to be given to the Masters of the Fishing Ships, By Boat Keepers, and Inhabitants which this Article directs; and have given considerable attention myself to the subject, and availed myself to the subject, and availed myself of many opportunities for investigating it. It does indeed appear that the fish is in every instance properly cured and fitted for sale at the Foreign Markets, and that good salt is used, and in sufficient quantity.

*Sic.

With respect to the manner and method of taking and curing the Fish; In the early part of the Season, and before the bait has come in, the abundance of the Cod is so great as to admit of them being jigged, that is to say hooked up by means of a jig, or instrument with through one of our Principal Secretaries of State, that such Persons may be made sensible or our highest displeasure.

8th And whereas it is of great importance to the prosperity and extension of the Fishery, that the fish caught by our Subjects should be properly cured and fitted for sale at the Foreign Markets, you are therefore to cause strict injunctions to be given to the Masters of the Fishing Ships, the Bye Boat keepers and Inhabitants to take the greatest care in curing the Fish with a proper and sufficient quantity of good salt, and in preparing, husbanding and ordering the same that the Credit thereof may be maintained and augmented in the several places to which it is carried for sale, and in Order to render the attainment of that object effectual as far as possible. It is our Will and Pleasure that you shall consider and report to us for many hooks which is kept continually jirking until it strikes the Fish. As the season advances, and the Fish become less plenty, they are taken almost exclusively with bait; and the degree of success to be expected in the fishery depends on the regular coming in of the smaller fish which are used for this purpose. The Capelin, the Herring, and the Squid are the principal reliance of the Fishermen, and they succeed each other on the

our Royal consideration whether any and what means can be devised for observing whether the said Injunctions* is duly complied with; and you are, while on the Station, to make very particular enquiries into the manner and method of taking and curing the Fish, what quantity of Salt is allowed for the curing of every one hundred Quintals, whether the Parties are guilty of any abuse in the ordering thereof, and whether any Coast.

It occasionally happens, and has in some instances this year, that one species of bait has quitted the Shore before the other has come in. In this case the fishermen are greatly at a loss, and there may yet remain abundance of Cod without the means of taking them.

The method of curing, is, in the first instance to head and split the fish, and to extract the back bone. It is then salted in bulk, and left for five days, or longer as circumstances may require, until it is supposed to be sufficiently impregnated with the Salt; when it is washed, to remove from the surface the undissolved particles, which if suffered to remain would render it too dry.

It then only requires to be spread carefully upon the Flakes, occasionally to be taken in, and exposed again according to the Weather, until it shall be thoroughly cured. The quantity of Salt allowed to the hundred quintals of Fish is generally ten, eleven, or twelve hogsheads; and depends on its strength.

I am not aware of any improvement that could be made in any of the foregoing particulars. I have heard no complaint of any want of diligence in the Fishermen, and improvements can be made in any of the foregoing particulars, and whether the Fish taken at a distance from the Land by the small Vessels is not damaged before it is brought on shore, and whether in the sale of the Fish to those who are to carry it to the Foreign markets experienced Cullers are employed in ascertaining the good quality thereof and whether the Sack Ships, jealous of each other, and struggling who shall carry their Fish first to Market, do not frequently Ship it before it is properly cured, whereby it suffers in the passage, and lastly whether the Inhabitants, the Masters of the Sack Ships or the Bye Boat Keepers are most to be blamed in whatever is amiss, and what methods would be most likely to prevent and to rectify the same; the result of all which enquiries you are not to fail to report to us on your first return to Great Britain.

those who are employed in curing appear to be skilful and industrious.

The fish taken at a distance from the land in the small Vessels is salted on board, and continues in bulk until the Vessel comes in; when it is spread upon the Flakes for curing.

I have not understood that it is subject to any damage in this way; nor do I believe that it suffers at all. However, by far the greater portion of fish is caught in small skiffs which go out in the morning and return at night, and in such case it is never suffered to remain until the morning, but is directly headed, split and salted.

In answer to the question whether in the sale of the fish to those who are to carry it to the foreign markets experienced Cullers are employed in ascertaining the good quality thereof:

The principal exporters of fish to the Foreign Markets are the Merchants of S^t John's, and a few principal Merchants at the Out Harbours, to whom it is sold by the Planters, or made over in barter for supplies that have been rendered to them. When the Fish is brought by the Planter for Sale to the merchant, a Culler is employed, whose duty it is to judge between the parties, and to assort the Fish according to its qualities; viz^t into three distinct classes, bearing each a distinct price; the merchantable (that which is carried to the foreign markets), the Madeira Fish, and the West India.

I have made it an object to be frequently present at these sortings of the Fish; and the Cullers whom it happened to me to overlook were certainly no novices in their Trade, from the rapidity, and as I found on

------	---	---	---	---	---	---	---

examination, the accuracy with which they distributed the several kinds.

I have been particular in my enquiries respecting the Sack Ships, whether jealous of each other, and struggling who shall carry their fish first to market they do not frequently ship it before it is properly cured.

I cannot ascertain that this had occurred; and am strongly inclined to think that it is not the case; for this reason, that the Sack Ships are generally consigned by Houses in England or otherwise, to Houses with which they are connected in Newfoundland; and therefore, that as the Merchant who ships the fish is himself interested in its sale, he is naturally careful that it should be properly cured, and in a fit state for shipping.

Art. 9th I have not understood that the Salmon Fisheries are, from the best enquiries that I have been able to make, improperly monopolized. There appears to be considerable impediment thrown in its way from the present extremely high price of the materials for carrying on that Fishery; which can only be managed with nets.

I have endeavoured in vain to discover any means of improving it.

9th And whereas the Salmon Fishery carried on in different parts of our Island of Newfoundland has already proved of great advantage to our United Kingdom and we have reason to suppose the same may be considerably extended, you are therefore to give all due encouragement and protection to our Subjects concerned in the said Fishery, taking care that none of the places where the Salmon are caught shall be improperly monopolized contrary to our intentions expressed in the foregoing Instructions with respect to the Fisheries in general, and you are to inform yourself of the actual state of this Fishery, and how far the same may be properly extended and improved.

10th You are further to enquire particularly into the state of the Art. 10th The Whale fishery is not carried on by any of His Majesty's

p. 662

Subjects on the Coast of Newfoundland. I have submitted to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State, and to the Lords of the Committee of Council for Trade the request of Doctor Carson of St John's to be granted a Patent for taking Whales within the precincts of this Government on the principals of a plan which he has invented; and am greatly desirous that he should be protected in his undertaking; for I am convinced that it only requires enterprize in this case to insure success. I have seen myself in my way to the Coast of Labrador this summer so many Whales, that it appears strange that persons have not been induced to make experiment of this important fishery.

Whale Fishery and of the Seal Fishery carried on in the Seas within your Government or adjacent thereunto, and whether any means can be suggested for promoting the success and extension thereof, particularly of the latter as it furnishes employment for a most useful Body of Men before the Cod fishery commences

The Seal Fishery continues to flourish and improve considerably.

The People of Newfoundland are so sensible of its value that no other stimulus appears necessary to urge them to pursue it. It would have been more productive this year but for the very unusual frequency of the Ice Islands impeding the progress of the Vessels towards the Field Ice, on which alone the Seals are to

Art. 11th I have issued a Proclamation as directed by this Article respecting the Native Indians; (Appendix B) and have given every attention to this interesting subject which it assuredly deserves.

It appears that the Governors my predecessors have for many years endeavoured to establish an intercourse with these Indians, and have invariably failed. If the work be therefore to be accomplished at all, (and I am strongly inclined to hope

11th You are to use your best endeavours to encourage a friendly intercourse with the Indians residing in our Island of Newfoundland or resorting thither, using your best endeavours to conciliate their affections so as to induce them to trade with our Subjects, and in Order to prevent any improper conduct towards them, you are as soon after your arrival as conveniently may be, to cause a Proclamation in our Name to be published and dispersed through that it may) it is evident that other measures must be resorted to than those which have yet been tried. Proclamations have been issued, rewards have been offered, and inducements otherwise held out which have occasionally tempted individuals to make the trial, but no good result has ever followed these efforts, because they have been always made by persons totally unfit for such a work.

The obstacles to surmount in this case are so many, and so difficult, that for any promise of success to attend the enterprize, it must be undertaken by a man of no ordinary turn of mind, of considerable fortitude and perseverance, who would engage in it with some degree of enthusiasm, and be sensible to the honor with which he might expect his success to be crowned, as well as to the less worthy motives of interest.

our said Island of Newfoundland and parts adjacent, strictly enjoining and requiring all our Subjects to live in amity and kindness with the said Indians, and commanding the requiring all Officers and Magistrates to maintain and support good Order and behaviour towards them, and in case any Person or Persons shall Murder or Commit any outrage upon any of the said Indians, you and the said Magistrates are to use your utmost endeavours to apprehend and bring to Justice such Offenders; you are also to obtain the best account you are able of the number of the said Indians, the places they usually frequent for trading, the Countries from whence they come, the nature and extent of the Trade that is or may be carried on with them and how far the same may, in your opinion, be extended

I have very sanguine hopes of having met with such a person in Lieutenant Buchan of the Adonis Schooner. The Orders which I have given to this Officer are in the (Appendix C.) He will execute them I am sure to the very utmost of his ability, and I have pledged my best interest to obtain promotion for him in the event of his success. and improved.

The number of the Native Indians remaining does not appear to be known, nor can I find the means of forming any judgment of what it may be; but the prevailing idea is that they are about five hundred. A few families of the Micmac Indians from the Coast of Canada have been long settled in the neighbourhood of S^t George's and Fortune Bay; but they do no amount to more than seventy or eighty persons and the only Trade which they carry on is in the Sale of a few furs occasionally to the Merchants. Other Indians from Nova Scotia and Canada come over occasionally to the northern parts of this Island to hunt; and perhaps it would be quite as well if they were prohibited from doing so, as little advantage is gained from an intercourse with them, and they destroy great numbers of animals for the sake of their furs, even when with young.

A few of the Esquimaux also came over from Labrador, but our settlements are so remote that they do not frequently visit them. With these latter Indians I am informed that the Society of Unitas Fratrum carry on a considerable trade on the Continent, and I am sorry to add, impose upon them in a very shameful degree if the reports which have been made to me are founded in truth.

Art.12th No mines of any sort appear to have been worked in Newfoundland, nor have I been able to discover that any valuable mines exist. Coals have indeed been found, but never within less than twelve miles from the Water side, and by no means in a situation to be procured with advantage.

12th Whereas we did in the fifteenth year of our reign grant to John Agnew Esquire of Shewchan in the County of Wigton in North Britain and his Associates certain mines at Shoal Bay on the East Coast of our said Island of Newfoundland supposed to contain Copper Ore, one tenth part of which Ore by the special Condition of our said Grant is thereby reserved to us, our Heirs and Successors; We do therefore hereby direct and empower you our Governor or our Commander in Chief for the time being of our said Island of Newfoundland to take and receive one Tenth part of all such Metal Ore and Minerals as now are or hereafter shall be raised or extracted from the said mines, and to pay and make over the same to such Person or Persons as the Lords Commissioners of our Treasury shall appoint for that purpose, and you are further to enquire whether there are any other mines in our said Island of Newfoundland or Islands adjacent and whether they may be worked to advantage.

Art. 13 I have not found that Birds of any kind frequent the Shores of Newfoundland in any considerable numbers.

Having however understood that the Penguin Islands have been a great deposit for their eggs, and that persons have come in the spring from Halifax and otherwise, who made a constant practice of taking them away, and of destroying the Birds merely for the sake of their feathers,

I have authorized a fisherman to take eggs there for his own use the next spring, on condition of his preventing al other persons from taking them, or from molesting the birds.

Art. 14th I have appointed Justices of the Peace as usual, and principally those gentlemen whom I found in the Commission.

There appeared however to be a great want of proper persons to perform this important Office, as it would be quite inadmissible to entrust it to those who were concerned in the fishery, and thereby render them judges in their own cause; and in Newfoundland, in the Out Ports especially, there are very few Persons indeed who are not concerned in the fishery. It was certainly an object of moment to find in some sort a remedy for this inconvenience; and that which has

13 And whereas it has been represented to us that different Species of Birds frequenting the Shores of Newfoundland and the adjacent Islands which afford a supply of Food and of Bait and are useful in Fogs by warning Vessels that they are near Land, are frequently destroyed for the purpose of taking their feathers; It is our Will and pleasure that you do take such measures as in your opinion will effectually prevent their being so destroyed in future.

14th And whereas you are by our Commission authorized to constitute and appoint Justices of the Peace and other necessary Officers and Ministers for the administration of Justice and maintaining the Peace within the different parts of your Government, you are therefore upon your arrival in our said Island to enquire what Justices of the Peace are now in the Commission, in Order that in the new one to be issued you may nominate them, or such other Persons as shall appear to you to be proper for executing the Office of Justice of the Peace, and you are by your authority and influence to give all due support as well to our suggested itself to me appears likely to be sufficiently effectual.

I have selected from the most respectable of the Merchants at each of the several Out ports where it seemed necessary (and where in many instances there was before no Magistrate) the person whom I conceived best qualified, and have given to them Commissions for keeping the Peace with full power and authority as to the other Justices, except only that a clause of limitation is inserted forbidding them strictly to hold plea of any disputes concerning Fishermen's or Seamen's wages, or concerning Seamen or Fishermen absenting themselves from their duty or employ; or to inflict any of the penalties and forfeitures incurred by any Act of Parliament relating to Newfoundland.

Art. 15th There has not been any case this year to require that this Article should be acted upon; and it is pleasing to add that there has not been a single cause before the Criminal Court.

Chief Justice as to the said Justices of the Peace, and to all other Magistrates and Officers in the legal discharge of their duty; and you are to endeavour to prevent any disputes between our said Justices of the Peace, and all other Persons in authority in the discharge of their respective Functions.

And whereas you are by your Commission authorized to appoint Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer, It is our Will and pleasure that you shall not make any such appointment as shall interfere with the Criminal Jurisdiction belonging to the Supreme Court of Judicature, except only in cases where it may be inconvenient to try Offenders in the Said Supreme Court.

15th Whereas you are empowered by our Commission to pardon all Offenders and remit all Offences, Wilful murder only excepted, in which case you have power upon extraordinary occasions to grant reprieves to such Offenders until our Royal Pleasure may be known.

It is our express will and pleasure that you do not suffer any Commission or Warrant Officer of any of our Ships or War, or the Master or any Trading Ship of our Subjects which shall happen to be within your Government, to be deprived of Life or Limb by the sentence of any Court; but in such case you shall relieve the Criminal until our pleasure be known therein, and it is our further Will and pleasure that you take especial care that all Persons guilty of Treason be sent over to this Kingdom with such Witnesses and proof of the Crime as can be obtained, in order to their being tried here.

Art. 16th I am of opinion that thirty six Public Houses is a very proper number to be licenced for the Town of St Johns, and have directed that number to be licenced this year accordingly.

16th And whereas the immoderate use of Liquors has been found to be pernicious to the Health and Morals of our Subjects dwelling in and resorting to Newfoundland for the purpose of carrying on the fishery; and has been the cause of the Fishermen expending considerable part of their wages, you are not to allow in any part of your Government more Public Houses than may be requisite for the accommodation and supply of our said Subjects, particularly in the Town of Saint John, the number necessary for which, you will when on the spot, be able to judge of; It has been suggested, as you will find in the accompanying observations that Thirty six will be amply sufficient; And it is our will and pleasure that every person who shall be allowed to keep a Public House within your Government do give

Art. 17th The Provisions Stores and Commodities necessary for the use of the Fishermen are in my opinion supplied to them at as low a rate as can reasonably be expected. The Houses of the Merchants established at S^t John's are on a scale so respectable, and their Trade is so extensive that they can better afford to furnish such supplies at a moderate profit than any other persons from whom the Fishermen could procure them; and their number is such as always to secure a proper competition.

full and ample security for his or her good behaviour.

17th And whereas the monopolizing and engrossing of any Provisions, Stores, or Commodities necessary for the subsistence of the Fishermen and others employed in the Fishery, or necessary for carrying on the same will be highly prejudicial to the general interests thereof, you are by every legal means in your power to prevent and suppress any attempt that may be made for that purpose, and you are to consider and report to use whether any proper methods can be adopted for supplying more cheaply the Articles before mentioned, and for preventing any Frauds that may be committed in the sale thereof, or any combinations to enhance the price of Provisions or of any of the Articles beforementioned, tending to the distress of the Fishermen.

Art. 18th All persons inhabiting and frequenting Newfoundland have been allowed the free exercise of their religion.

18th And it is our intention that all Persons inhabiting and frequenting the Islands under your Government should have full liberty of conscience and the free exercise of all such modes of Religious Worship as are not prohibited by law. We do therefore require you to permit all persons within our said Islands to have such liberty, and to exercise

enjoyment of the same, not

Art. 19th The directions and pleasure that you do

Art. 22nd My sentiments upon the subject of this Article are contained in my answer to the fourth question in Art. 5th.

I can scarcely suggest any effectual means for enforcing the return of the Fishermen. — The nature of the present system of the Newfoundland fishery is such as to render the object nearly impracticable: If however it is to be attained at all, it must in some measure be at the expence of Government.

22nd And whereas it has been thought of the highest importance to the Naval Power of Great Britain that the Seamen and other persons employed in the fisheries carried on at Newfoundland should return annually at the end of the Fishing Season to some part of our European Dominions, for the attainment of which object various laws have been passed and Instructions given; but the same having failed to a great extent in producing the effect proposed; you are to make the most attentive enquiries you can, whether any measures could now be taken for further encouraging and promoting the return of every such Seaman and Fisherman to the part of our European Dominions to which he belongs, if it shall be thought advisable to adopt such measures under the change of circumstances that has taken place, and how far the Provisions of the Acts passed in the fifteenth and twenty sixth years of

p. 670

our reign, for the purpose abovementioned can be made effectual, and you are also to discourage, and as far as you are able to prevent any of the said Seamen or Fishermen from deserting to any foreign Country or from going to reside and establish themselves in the Countries belonging to the United States of America, or even in any of our own Colonies in North America.

Art. 23rd The more material part of the information required by this Article is given in the Schedule containing the return of the Fishery, for the remainder see the appendix E.

J. T. DUCKWORTH
Doc. Signed.

23rd You shall use your best endeavours to obtain an Accurate Account of the number of persons resorting in each Season to our Island of Newfoundland and the said Islands adjacent distinguishing those who shall arrive from the ports of Great Britain and of Ireland respectively, and from Guernsey and Jersey, Alderney and Sark, distinguishing also such as are Seamen from Passengers and those who continue to reside there all the year, and the number of Roman Catholics and Protestants, which the number of the ministers of each religion respectively, together with the number of places of worship and of Schools belonging to each with the best account you can obtain of the Funds for the maintenance of the same, and the number of Births, Marriages and Burials in every year; you are likewise to obtain an Account of the British Sack Ships and Fishing Ships, and of their Tonnage, that annually arrive at the Harbour under your Government, and sail for the different Markets, either Foreign or British, shewing

the Ports they are bound to and the quantities of each sort of fish, Oil or other Articles with which they are respectively laden; you are also to obtain an Account of the number of Boats employed in the said Fisheries either by our subjects resorting thither from our European dominions, or by the Inhabitants of the said Island respectively; you are in like manner to obtain an Account of the number of Quintals of the different sorts of Fish taken in each Season and of the quantity of Oil made, whether of Whale, Seal or Cod, or other animals living in the Sea, together with an Account of the quantity of each of the abovementioned articles reserved and not sent to market at the end of the Fishing Season: You are also to obtain an Account of the average prices at which these several Articles sell during each Season in the Island; in making which enquiries you are to be extremely careful and exact, enjoining our Officers under your Command as well as the proper Officers in those Harbours to which your personal inspection cannot extend, to be as accurate as possible in the returns which they shall make to you, properly attested and signed by them; And all these particulars you are to report to us through one of our Principal Secretaries of State according to the form of the Schedule marked A, hereunto annexed, and as to such of the said particulars respecting which more accurate information may possibly be obtained after your departure from the Island by the Collector or other Officers of the Customs or by our Naval Officer; You are to give directions to the said Officers to prepare Accounts thereof attested by each of them according to the form of the said Schedule and to transmit the same to you to be laid before one of our Principal Secretaries of State for our Information, and you are to give all due and legal support to the Officers of our Customs in the discharge of their duty, who are hereby required with all convenient speed at the end of the Fishing Season to transmit to the Lords Commissioners of our Treasury an Account of all articles imported into our Island of Newfoundland and the Islands adjacent, distinguishing the Countries from whence the same were brought and particularly the Provisions imported under the regulations of an Act passed in the twenty eighth year of our reign Cap 6 Sect 13 from the Countries of the United States of America, with an Account of the duties paid on such Articles as are liable to duty; You are also to endeavour to obtain the best accounts you are able of the Wages paid to the Seamen and Fishermen and in what manner the same are paid, and whether the old Custom of carrying on the Fishery upon Shares is now Continued and to what extent You are also to endeavour to obtain an account of the prices at which Provisions and other important Articles are sold in the course of the Fishing Season and also during the Winter, and whether the same are paid for in Cash, Fish or bills, and if in Fish, whether the Fish is rated at the Market Price, or at what rate. It is our further will and pleasure that you pay attention to every circumstance that may in your judgment contribute to the prosperity of the said Trade and Fishery and to the well being of all Persons concerned in them, and that you consider of such measures as it may be proper for us to pursue for attaining those important purposes, and you are upon all occasions to send unto us through one of our Principal Secretaries of State a particular account of all your proceedings, and of the condition of the Affairs of the Islands under your Government and the Trade and fishery thereof, and of the Banks, Seas, and Ports adjacent, and also a Copy of the same to the Lords of our Privy Council appointed for the consideration of all matters relating to Trade and Foreign Plantations.

4th. Several observations apparently of importance having been made by the Governors who have preceded you in the Government of Our Island of Newfoundland and respecting various Measures likely in their opinion greatly to promote the Success of the Fishery there as well as to increase the advantages thereof to Great Britain many of which Measures stated to have arisen from an unavoidable change of circumstances requiring alterations in the Laws now in force regulating the said Fisheries and appearing to Us to deserve the most serious consideration before any Proposal on the Subject shall be submitted to Parliament We have directed Copies of these observations to be transmitted to your herewith And It is Our Will and Pleasure that you shall during the approaching obtain the best Information in your power from the most authentic sources respecting the expediency of proposing to the Legislature any and what alterations in the several Acts of the 10th and 11th William 3^d and the 15th, 26th, 28th, & 33^d. years of Our Reign particularly with respect.

1st to confirming the Title of Persons to Ship Rooms and Buildings which have for a considerable time been in the possession of the present Holders without any legal Right thereto or who derive their Claims from the usurpation of others as well as with respect to the Governors of the Island being authorized to grant Leases of such Ship Rooms as have not been occupied and on what conditions and for what Terms.

2^{dly} With respect to the Provisions in the 10th and 11th W^m 3^d relative to the Fishing Admiral which it is represented have long been in disuse and substituting some competent Jurisdiction (if it shall be thought necessary for settling disputes about fishing Rooms).

3^{dly} Respecting the Employment of two Green Men in each Boat under a Provision in the same Act which for the reasons stated neither has been for some time nor can apparently be hereafter acted upon.

4^{thly} The Provisions in the Act of the 15th Year of Our Reign Ch 31 Sect 13 respecting the retaining 40^s to pay the Passage of Fishermen home and in the 14th Section of the same Act respecting Restrictions in the mode of paying the Men neither of which it is stated can be enforced

And It is Our further Will and Pleasure that you do not upon any pretence whatever allow any new Possession to be taken of Lands or Rivers or Parts thereof in Our Island of Newfoundland or of the Coast thereof or on the Islands adjacent including S^t Pierre and Miquelon until it shall be decided whether any alteration of the Laws above referred to shall be proposed to Parliament and you are in the mean time to take care that the ancient Ship Rooms and Fishing Rooms do continue under the Provisions of Statute 10th and 11th W^m 3^d Ch 25 for the Encouragement of new Adventurers that they may be sure of finding proper and convenient Places for curing salting drying and husbanding their Fish whenever they shall resort thither It is Our further Will and Pleasure that the remaining Shores of Newfoundland shall be held by such of Our Subjects resorting thither from Our Dominions in Europe as shall first arrive and take possession of the same for the like purpose of carrying on the Fishery in proportion to the number of Ships and Boats they shall continue to hold the same in like manner and for the like purpose so long as they shall carry on their Fishing there But in case they shall neglect so to carry on the Fishery for one entire Season such Shores or Parts thereof as shall be neglected or deserted by such Possessors shall be held for the like purpose and in like manner by any of Our Subjects resorting thither from Our Dominions in Europe who shall first occupy the same for the purpose of carrying on the Fishery and you are to put and maintain such Persons in possession thereof And Whereas it appears by the observations of your Predecessors

already alluded to that the Instructions from time to time given to prevent the Erection of any Buildings except Fishing Stages Cook Rooms Ship Rooms and Flakes or such Erections as shall be absolutely necessary for curing salting drying and husbanding Fish within two hundred Yards distance from High Water mark have not for a considerable period been enforced and Reasons have been submitted why that System should be departed from It is Our Will and Pleasure that you should while you remain on the Station inform yourself as fully as you can on that Subject also and report your opinion thereupon on your Return It is Our further Will and Pleasure nevertheless that all or any Buildings Erections Wharfs Slips or Fences already erected may remain provided the same are not erected or built upon Ancient Ship Rooms and provided they are not in your judgement considered to be nuisances and detrimental to the Interest of the Fishery in general But in case they shall clearly appear to you to be so you shall cause the same to be removed giving due and reasonable notice to the Parties claiming or pretending to claim any Interest therein if upon the Spot or to the Persona in possession and occupation thereof putting the said Parties or Persons to as little inconvenience as the case will admit if such Parties or Persons do not cause to remove the same in due time after such notice shall be given

5th And Whereas it has also been represented to Us that divers of Our Subjects residing in Newfoundland sell mortgage and lease for considerable Sums Houses Lands Fishing Stages Cook Rooms and Flakes of which they have been in possession either under Grants or permission from former Governors or otherwise as if they had an exclusive and indefeasible Right therein contrary to the intention of Us and Our Predecessors and contrary to the Laws made for preventing the same Now in order that We may be better informed concerning the Premises as well with a view to enable a Judgement being formed relative to Lands &^c of which Persons have already possessed themselves as to a due consideration of what Measures in this respect should be pursued in future It is Our Will and Pleasure that you in conjunction with Our Chief Justice of Our said Island do cause such Enquiries to be made as you and he shall judge most proper using very great caution in the manner of conducting this Enquiry so as to avoid most carefully creating unnecessary alarms in the Minds of Persons in possession of the Lands &c suggesting to them that it is equally the Interest of themselves and of the Public that the Question should be put at rest and that if any Proceeding on the part of the Public shall be thought necessary there is every reason to believe attention will be paid to the Interest of the Parties liable to be affected thereby in the course of that Enquiry it will be important to ascertain as accurately as you can the nature of the Titles and Claims under which such Property is held the length of time that the present Possessors or those under whom they claim have enjoyed the same and the Extent supposed Rent and value of such Property and you are further to enquire whether it has ever been ascertained in the several Harbours of Newfoundland what Fishing Places did belong to the Fishing Ships before the year 1685 and whether any account is kept of such Fishing Places as have been possessed since that year in order to prevent the disputes that may otherwise happen between the Masters of Ships and the Inhabitants and whether there is any want of convenient Places unoccupied on the Beach or Shores of Newfoundland and fit for the purpose of carrying on the Fishery, by the Adventurers who may arrive from His Majesty's European Dominions.

And whereas no Foreign Ships or Vessels whatever (except as hereinafter excepted) have any right to fish at or about Newfoundland, and the Commanders of Ships of War proceeding hither have at all times been directed not to allow of their fishing in those situations. It is therefore the Prince Regent's Pleasure that you take especial care to prevent the same, and that His Orders given therein be strictly complied with, and if you should find any Foreign Ships or vessels fishing at or about Newfoundland you are to oblige them to desist, and depart from off the Coast excepting Ships or Vessels belonging to the subjects of the King of France, fishing according to the Stipulations contained in the Definitive Treaty of Paris concluded at Versailles on the 3rd September, 1783, between His Majesty and the King of France.

With regard to the said Ships and Vessels belonging to the Subjects of His Most Christian Majesty, you are to observe that by the 4th and 5th Articles of the Treaty of Peace before mentioned, His Majesty is maintained in his right to the Island of Newfoundland, and to the adjacent Islands, as the whole were assured to him by the 13th Article of the Treaty of Utrecht, excepting the Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon, which were ceded in full right to His Most Christian Majesty, who in order to prevent the quarrels which had before arisen had renounced the right of fishing which belonged to him, in virtue of the aforesaid Article of the Treaty of Utrecht, from Cape Bona Vista to Cape S^t John, situated on the Eastern Coast of Newfoundland in fifty degrees North Latitude; and that His Majesty consented, on his part, that the Fishery assigned to the French beginning at the said Cape S^t John, passing to the North, and descending by the Western Coast of the Island of Newfoundland, should extend to the Place called Cape Raye situated in 47° 50 North Latitude, and that the French Fishermen should enjoy the Fishery which is assigned to them by the said 5th Article, as they had a right to enjoy that which was assigned to them by the Treaty of Utrecht, and that with regard to the Fishery in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, the French should continue to exercise it conformably to the 5th Article of the Treaty of Paris.

And whereas by the 13th Article of the Definitive Treaty of Peace between His Majesty and the King of France, signed at Paris on the 30th of May 1814, it was stipulated that the French right of Fishery, upon the Great Bank of Newfoundland, upon the Coasts of the Island of that name, and of the adjacent Islands in the Gulph of S^t Lawrence, should be replaced upon the footing in which they stood in 1792: and by the 11th Article of the Definitive Treaty between Great Britain and France, signed at Paris on the 20th of November 1815, it was again stipulated that the Treaty of Paris of the 30th of May 1814, should be confirmed and maintained in all such of its enactments as should not have been modified by the Articles of the said Treaty of the 20th of November; You are therefore to use your utmost care, diligence, and attention, that the several stipulations herein mentioned or referred to be suitably performed, as far as they shall come within the limits of your Command; having due regard to such part of His Majesty's Declaration and the Counter Declaration of His Most Christian Majesty, subjoined to the Treaty of Versailles of the 3th of September 1783, as may relate thereto, and also to the Fishery between the Island of Newfoundland and the Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon; and visiting the several Bays and Places in Newfoundland, between Cape S^t John (passing to the North and descending by the Western Coast,) and Cape Raye, or causing them to be visited by any of the Ships of your Squadron, as you shall judge best for that purpose. But as from the vicinity of the Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon to Newfoundland and other parts of His Majesty's Dominions in North America, an illicit Trade may be attempted to be carried on between the British, Indian, or any other Inhabitants of His Majesty's Dominions, and the People of France residing on the said Islands of S^t Pierre and Miquelon, or employed in the Fishery by virtue of Treaty, or between His Majesty's said Subjects and other People of France, or Subjects of other Powers, trading, or pretending to Trade to, or with, the said Islands of St Pierre and Miquelon; In case any endeavour should be used to carry on such illicit Trade, as aforesaid, You are to be particularly attentive to the same, and to prevent if possible all communication whatever between the said Islands of St Pierre and Miquelon, and any part of His Majesty's Dominions in North America, contrary to the plain and strict meaning of this Instruction.

With respect to the Subjects of the United States of America and their ships and vessels We refer you to the Instructions addressed by Earl Bathurst, His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonial Department to Vice Admiral Sir Richard Goodwin Keats on the 17 June 1815 with reference to the recent Treaty between this Country and the United States, and also to our Secretary's letter to you on the 23rd of last month conveying to you our directions for your attending to such communication as you might from time to time receive from Mr. Bagot His Majesty's Minister at Washington as to the limits within which the Fisheries will hereafter be allowed to be carried on in North America by Subjects of the United States, And We hereby require and direct you to be guided by Lord Bathurst's said Instructions until you shall receive the Communications alluded to from Mr. Bagot, and upon receiving such communications to pay even attention thereto, and to issue the necessary Orders therein to the Squadron under your Command.

[7th same as Article 7 to Rear Admiral Sir R. G. Keats, ante p. 682. 8th same as Article 9 to Rear Admiral Sir Richard King, ante p. 585.]

Besides the superintendence and regulations of the Fisheries of the Island of Newfoundland and the Coast of Labrador you are to afford every protection in your power to those Fisheries which are carried on in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, within the limits of your command, disposing of some of the Ships or Vessels under your orders, in such manner as shall best serve for that purpose without prejudice to the more material parts of the important service committed to your care.

[10th same as Article 11 to Vice Admiral Sir Richard King. ante p. 585, but omitting the instructions as to the Islands of Madelaine. 11th relates to Naval Establishments on Foreign Stations.]

You are to consider the Limits of your Station to be as follows viz.

At and about the Island of Newfoundland, but having for its Western boundary a straight line drawn from the Latitude of 40° North and Longitude 50° West to a position midway between Cape Ray on the Newfoundland Coast and Cape North on Cape Breton Island and from thence in a direct line to Mount Joli on the Labrador Coast, and you are to restrict Your Cruizers to these limits accordingly.

* * * *

You are to retain the Ships and Vessels under your Command upon the Station until the Fishing Season shall be completely over, or for such further period as the Colonial Service may require, ordering them, severally, as they can be spared, to return to Spithead, And by the end of October, or as soon after as you shall find consistent with the duties of your Command, You are yourself to quit the Island, in the Ship bearing your Flag, and return to Spithead reporting your arrival to our Secretary for our information.

If however you should consider it adviseable for the purposes of the Colony, to leave at the Island one or more of the small Vessels under your orders, You are authorized so to do, giving to the Senior Officer such Instructions as you may think necessary for his guidance.

You are to send by all opportunities to our Secretary for our information, accounts of your proceedings relative to the service on which you are employed, and such intelligence as You may have collected proper for our knowledge; and You are on your return to England to transmit to our Secretary, to be laid before Us, a Journal of your proceedings with the Squadron under your Command or any part thereof, and of the services on which you may send any of the Ships or Vessels, with your reasons for the same, and to note therein all such particulars and remarkable occurrences as may be proper for our information.

1st June 1817.V. Adm^l. Pickmore

Sir,

His Majesty's Government have had under consideration the representations which have from time to time been made to them as to the distressed State of the population of Newfoundland and being most anxious to devise means by which some supply of provisions may in future be secured to the Island independent of Foreign supplies; and it having been represented that notwithstanding the ungenial climate and Soil of that Colony it might nevertheless be possible to raise many articles of subsistence and especially Potatoes if Lands were granted for cultivation. I have to signify to you the Commands of His Royal Highness The Prince Regent that you should immediately upon your arrival in Newfoundland take measures for ascertaining those parts of the Island in which cultivation is most likely to be attended with success and that you should proceed to make Grants of the same to any individuals who may be desirous or willing to engage in the cultivation taking care always that the Grants made be not beyond the means of the individual to cultivate and that a small quit Rent per Acre be reserved for the use of His Majesty.

I have the Honor to be &c.

With these our Instructions you will receive our Commission under our Great Seal of our United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland constituting you our Governor and Commander in Chief in and over our Island of Newfoundland in America and Islands adjacent and all the Coast of Labrador from Mount Joli to the entrance of Hudson's Straits, the Island of Anticosti and all other adjacent Islands, the Islands of Madelaine excepted, according to the provisions of an Act passed in the 49th year of our Reign intituled "An Act for establishing Courts of Judicature in the Island of Newfoundland & the Islands adjacent, and for re-annexing part of the Coast of Labrador and the Islands lying on the said Coast to the Government of Newfoundland" and also of all our Forts and Garrisons, erected and established or which shall be erected and established in our said Island of Newfoundland Anticosti, and the Islands adjacent or on the Coast of Labrador within the limits aforesaid, with directions to obey and follow such Orders and Instructions as shall from time to time be given you under our Signet and Sign Manual, or by our Order in our Privy Council, You are therefore to prepare yourself with all convenient speed to repair to your said Command, and being there arrived, you are to take upon you the execution of the Office and Trust we have reposed in you, and as soon as conveniently may be you are to assemble the principal Inhabitants of the said Island of Newfoundland and of such other of the Islands under your Command as you shall judge expedient, and with all due solemnity you are to cause our said Commission, constituting you our Governor & Commander in Chief as aforesaid to be read and published at such Meeting.

Unobjectionable. But it is suggested that in place of the clause underlined in Red Ink, the substance of the following be inserted, viz. "The Survey of which has already been begun, and for the completion of which Competent authority and means will be afforded you by the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty."

It is our Will and pleasure that you do from time to time as the nature of the Service will allow visit all the Coasts and Harbours of the Islands under your Government. You shall also procure accurate drafts or Maps of such of the said several harbours Bays and Coasts as are situated between Cape Bonavista and Cape St John, it having been represented to us that the other parts of the Coast of the said Island have already been carefully surveyed for the due execution of which Service you will have authority to employ a Competent Officer with proper Assistants, and to hire a small vessel to attend him* And in case you cannot visit all the said Coasts & harbours, you are to give directions to the Officers under your Command for the purposes beforementioned taking care to report to us through one of our Principal Secretaries of State the Condition of our said Forts, and whether it may be necessary, to erect any new Forts or Posts in the Islands under your Command. You are also to transmit to the Master General of our Ordnance an Account of the Arms, Ammunition and Stores in our said Forts in which respect you are to follow such directions, as you shall receive from our said Master General of the Ordnance.

Unobjectionable. But as His Majesty was pleased to issue certain Instructions respecting the Privileges granted to the People of the United States, of fishing and drying Fish in the British American Dominions, as communicated to me in Earl Bathurst's Dispatch of the 21st June 1819, it might be proper that the same should be introduced into the Standing Instructions.

You are to be particularly careful to enforce the provisions of all Acts of Parliament for encouraging the Shipping Navigation and Trade of our dominions and to prevent all evasions and frauds contrary to the same, and you are not to suffer any foreigners whatever to fish, or dry or cure any fish on any of the Coasts or Shores within your Government except in cases in which the subjects of any Foreign Power are entitled by Treaty to fish, or dry or cure fish there.

My opinion that alterations were required on several points in the Laws relating to Newfoundland has been at different times communicated to the Earl Bathurst but more particularly at the commencement of the year 1822, and I had been led to that Conclusion by observing that so far from the return of a state of Peace having realized the once general expectation of a return of the ancient System of carrying on the Fishery in Qualified Fishing Ships from England, the number of such Ships had annually decreased from 48 which was the number in the year 1817, to 15 the number that arrived last year. Whereas in the year 1792 there were no less than 276 Fishing Ships employed, of which 187 were Bankers. The protracted warfare, in which the Country was in the interim engaged, rendered this System greatly hazardous to the Interests of those concerned by the frequent losses they were liable to sustain from the Enemy, while the already increased population of the Island was every year augmenting, and gradually greatly to promote the success of the fishery there as well as to encrease the advantages thereof to Great Britain, many of which measures (stated to have arisen from an unavoidable change of circumstances) requiring alterations in the Laws now in force, regulating the said Fisheries, and appearing to us to deserve the most serious Consideration before any proposal on the subject shall be Fishing submitted to Parliament: We have directed Copies of these observations in to be transmitted to you herewith, and it is our Will and Pleasure that you shall during the approaching Season while you remain on the station, obtain the best information in your power, from the most authentic sources respecting the expediency of proposing to the Legislature any and what alterations in the establishing a Fishery in Boats along shore or at inconsiderable distances from the Island, this being also favoured by a Winter and Spring Seal Fishery, which employed considerable numbers before the Season for Cod fishing commenced. Thus the Ship Fishery has diminished to little more than a name, the result of the two systems being last year the production of 750,000 Quintals from the Boat or Island Fishery, while that of the Ships made only 34,000 Q^s It was several Acts of the 10 & 11 W^m 3 and the 15 26th 28th and 33rd Years of our Reign, particularly with respect.

Several Observations apparently of importance having been made by the Governors who have preceded you in the Government of our Island of Newfoundland, & respecting various Measures likely in their opinion

evident therefore that Laws created as well for the encouragement of a Ship Fishery from England as with a view to discountenance settlement and a resident Fishery, were become nearly a dead Letter, and that some provisions on the other hand were wanting for the regulation of the latter. The subject having been brought into the Bill now before Parliament for consolidating the Laws relating to Newfoundland, this Article would appear to be no longer necessary. I have therefore only to remark on the several heads which it embraces and on which enquiry is Sought.

1st As to confirming the Title of Persons to Ship Rooms and Buildings, the Bill proposes that the Governor shall lease out all the Ship Rooms, in order to do which, it will become necessary to abate encroachments on them, when the question the of right from long possession will be legally determined.

2^{ndly} The Jurisdiction of the Fishing Admirals is abolished by the

2nd With respect to the provisions in the 10th & 11th W^m 3 relative to

Establishment of Regular Courts of Judicature, therefore Obsolete. the Fishing Admirals, which it is represented have long been in disuse, and substituting some competent Jurisdiction if it shall be thought necessary, for settling disputes about Fishing Rooms.

3^{rdly} Nearly all the rising population being brought up to the use of Boats, it would become a measure next to impossibility to comple an Inhabitant to employ Green men, in compliance with the provisions of the 10 and 11 Will. 3rd and the rejection of that measure is an object of the new Bill.

3^{rdly} Respecting the employment of two green Men in each boat under a Provision in the same Act which for the reasons stated neither has been for some time nor can apparently be hereafter acted upon.

4^{thly} With regard to the Provisions of the 15th Geo. 3 respecting the retaining of 40^s to pay the Fisherman's Passage home, I conceive in the present encreased state of the resident population and the before mentioned change in the fishing system, it is impracticable to compel the return of the Fishermen annually. And this provision is omitted in the new Bill. Indeed the Native or resident population is considered in itself almost sufficient to answer the call for hands in the Fishery. With regard to the mode of paying the Fishermen, the Bill proposes that in lieu of only One half, three fourths (but I should recommend 2/3) of a mans wages should be allowed to be Advanced; the remainder would be applicable either to find him a passage out of it, or to his provision for the Winter if he remained.

4th The Provisions in the Act of the 15th Year of our Reign Cap 31 Sec 13, respecting the retaining Forty Shillings to pay the passage of the fishermen home, & of the 14th Sec: in the same Act respecting restrictions in the mode of paying the men, neither of which it is stated can be enforced.

This Restriction would appear to be obsolete on two principles. 1st as regards the privilege of His

And it is our further Will and that you do not on any pretence whatever allow any new

p. 698

Majesty's Subjects to take possession of any vacant part of the Coast for the purposes of the Fishery, and 2^{ndly} as respects the small Grants of Land which the Governor has been authorized to make for the purposes of Cultivation, with both which it is at variance.

And with regard to the Ships Rooms, it has already been proposed to lease them out, since the few Bankers that annually fit out for the Fishery, cure their voyage at this day (with one or two exceptions) upon their own rooms: for no prudent man would spend his money in expensive Buildings, to which he had no exclusive claim beyond the current Season.

This clause will be unnecessary, as the New Bill provides that any person who shall build or cut out any Fishing room at Newfoundland shall hold the same according to Ancient Custom. And it may happen, & it is not unfrequently the case that untoward circumstances may prevent an individual from prosecuting his fishery for one entire Season—in which Case, under this clause, all his previous labour and expence would be thrown away, were another person to possess his room.

possession to be taken of lands or Rivers or parts thereof, in our Island of Newfoundland or of the Coast thereof or on the Islands adjacent until it shall be decided whether any alteration of the laws above referred to, shall be proposed to Parliament, and you are in the mean time to take Care that the ancient Ship Rooms and Fishing Rooms do continue under the Provisions of Statute 10th & 11th of W^m 3 Cap 25 for the encouragement of new adventurers that they may be sure of finding proper and convenient places for curing salting, drying and husbanding their Fish, whenever they shall resort thither.

It is our further Will and pleasure that the remaining Shores of Newfoundland shall be held by such of our subjects resorting thither from our Dominions in Europe as shall first arrive and take possession of the same for the like purpose of carrying on the fishery, in proportion to the number of Ships and Boats they shall employ, and they shall continue to hold the same in like manner and for the like purpose, so long as they shall carry on their fishery there but in case they shall neglect so to carry on the fishery for one entire Season, such Shores or parts thereof as shall be neglected or deserted by such possessors, shall be held for the like purpose and in like Manner by any of our Subjects resorting thither from our Dominions in Europe who shall first occupy the same for the purpose of carrying on the fishery, and you are to put and maintain such persons in possession thereof. And whereas it appears by the observations of your Predecessors.

The result of my Observations and enquiries on this Subject, is that the

p. 699

Restriction herein contained, as I view it, namely,

"To prevent as far as circumstances will admit the erection of buildings not necessary to a Fishery, in Situations where they would create inconvenience or detriment to it" is a very proper one to be continued, but the present Instruction is inadequate to the object, without a legal enactment, for unless the right of the ground could be proved to be in the Crown, the executive Officer, who might be deputed by the Governor to remove any such buildings could not justify himself under the Governor's directions I would therefore submit that the proceeding in such cases Should be not dependent upon the opinion of the Governor alone as to the Nuisance, but that it should already alluded to that the Instructions from time to time given to prevent the erection of any buildings except fishing Stages, Cook Rooms, & Flakes or such erections as shall be absolutely necessary for curing, salting, drying and husbanding Fish within Two hundred yards distance from High Water Mark, have not for a considerable period been enforced, and reasons have been submitted wery that system should be departed from. It is our Will and pleasure that you should while you remain on the station, inform yourself as fully as you can on that subject also, and report Your opinion thereupon on your return. It is our further will and pleasure nevertheless that all or any buildings, Erections Wharfs Slips or fences already erected may remain provided the same are not erected or built upon Ancient Ship Rooms and

be by Indictment or due Course of Law, and that this part of the Instruction should be suited accordingly.

provided they are not in Your Judgment considered to be Nuisances and detrimental to the interests of the fishery in general, but in Case they shall clearly appear to you to be so, you shall cause the same to be removed giving due and reasonable notice to the parties claiming or pretending to claim any interest therein, if upon the Spot, or to the persons in possession and occupation thereof, putting the said Parties or persons to as little inconvenience as the case will admit, if such Parties or Persons do not cause to remove the same after such notice shall be given.

It is perfectly true that Sales, Mortgages, and Leases are made of Houses, Lands, &c in Newfoundland, and in the town of S^t John's alone,

And whereas it has also been represented to us that divers of our Subjects residing in Newfoundland, sell, mort-gage and lease for con-

the rents amount to many thousands a year, of Houses, Stores, &c built on land, to which most of the Proprietors can spew no other Title than long possession. But the New Bill appears to Sanction the ancient usage—and indeed in most Cases it would not be now adviseable to disturb the long possession, however improperly acquired in the first instance, particularly as such Sales, Mortgages, &c have long since been recognized in the Courts in England. And a late Act of Parliament 1 Geo. IV. for regulating the rebuilding of siderable Sums, Houses, Lands, fishing Stages, Cook Rooms & Flakes of which they have been in possession, either under Grants or permission from former Governors or otherwise, as if they had an exclusive and indefeasible right therein contrary to the intention of us and our Predecessors and contrary to the laws made for preventing the same. Now in order that we may be better informed concerning the premises as well with a view to enable a judgment being formed relative to lands &c of which persons have already possessed the Town of St. John's has provided for the indemnifying persons giving up ground for the Public use, and thereby implied, at least, an acknowledgment of their right. This Article would therefore appear to be unnecessary—and in place of it, it would perhaps be as well to substitute the Instruction given to Vice Admiral Pickmore dated June 1817 to make Grants of Land for Cultivation, with such further directions on that score, as may be deemed necessary under existing circumstances; and upon this Subject, I beg to refer to my dispatch N^o 119 of the 28 Nov^r last wherein I have submitted the applications of several persons for grants of Land upon a more extended Scale than has hitherto been observed.

themselves, as to a due consideration of what measures in this respect should be pursued in future. It is our Will and pleasure that you in conjunction with our Chief Justice of our said Island do cause such enquiries to be made as you and he shall judge most proper using very great caution in the manner of conducting this enquiry, so as to avoid most carefully creating unnecessary alarm in the minds of persons in possession of the lands &^c suggesting to them that it is equally the interest of themselves & of the Public that the question should be put at rest, and that if any proceeding on the part of the Public shall be thought necessary there is every reason to believe that attention will be paid to the interests of the Parties liable to be affected thereby—in the course of the enquiry it will be important to ascertain as accurately as you can the nature of the titles and claims under which such property is held, the length of time that the present possessors or those under whom they claim have enjoyed the same and the extent, supposed Rent, possessed since that year, in order to prevent the disputes that may otherwise happen between the Masters of Ships and the Inhabitants, and whether there is any Coast of convenient places unoccupied on the Beach or Shores of Newfoundland fit for the purpose of carrying on the Fishery by adventurers who may arrive from His Majesty's European Dominions.

This Fishery requires to be regulated by Local circumstances, and by Local Authority, and is highly worthy of the consideration of His Majesty's Government, and of the Legislature. Persons who have been long in possession of Salmon Brooks, and Rivers, whether by Old Grants or otherwise, have lately been considerable Sufferers from Adventurers, who under pretence that by the Act of the 10 & 11 Will. 3rd every description of Fishery is free to them, have set their nets at the entrance of Rivers at the head of which extensive Buildings and Establishments had been made by long Possessors, whose whole prospects have thus been marred by these Casual intruders. GEORGE THE FOURTH by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, To our trusty and well beloved Sir Thomas John Cochrane, Knight, Captain in our Royal Navy, Greeting. p. 733

10. And whereas effectual care ought to be taken to oblige the members of Our said Council to a due attendance therein, and thereby to prevent the inconveniences that may happen from want of a quorum to transact business as occasion may require, it is Our will and pleasure that if any of the members of Our said Council shall hereafter absent themselves from the said Island, and continue absent above the space of six months together without leave from you or Our Commander-in-Chief for the time being first obtained under your or his hand or seal, or shall remain absent for the space of two years successively without leave given them under Our Royal Sign Manual and Signet, their place or places in the said Council shall immediately thereupon become void; and that if any of the members of Our said Council then residing within Our said island shall hereafter absent themselves when duly summoned without a sufficient cause, and shall persist in such absence after being thereof admonished by you, you suspend the said Councillors so absenting themselves till Our further will and pleasure therein be known, giving immediate notice thereof to Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State: And we do hereby will and require that Our royal pleasure be signified to the members of Our said Council and entered in the Council-book as a standing rule.

11. And whereas by Our aforesaid Commission you are authorized and empowered to summon and call General Assemblies of the freeholders and householders within Our said island, in such manner and form, and according to such powers, instructions and authorities as are granted or appointed by these Our instructions in that behalf, you are therefore, for the purpose of electing the members of such Assemblies, hereby authorized to issue a proclamation dividing Our said island in districts or counties, town or townships, and appointing the limits thereof, and declaring and appointing the number of representatives to be chosen by each of such districts or counties, town or townships respectively, and from time to time to nominate and appoint proper persons to execute the office of returning officer in each of the said districts or counties, towns or townships; and you are, so soon as you shall see expedient, to issue writs in Our name, directed to the proper officers in each district or county, town or township, directing them to summon the free holders and householders thereof to proceed to the election of persons to represent them in the General Assembly according to the regulations and directions to be signified in the proclamation to be issued by you as aforesaid.

12. You are to observe in the passing of all laws, that the style of enacting the same be by the Governor, Council, and Assembly.

13. And We do hereby require and command that you do not, on any pretence whatever, give your assent to any law or laws to be passed by which the number of the Assembly shall be enlarged or diminished, the duration ascertained, the qualifications of the electors or the elected fixed or altered. or by which any regulations shall be established with respect thereto, until you shall have first transmitted unto Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, the draft of such Bill or Bills, and shall have received Our royal pleasure thereupon, unless you take care in the passing such Bill or Bills that a clause or clauses be inserted therein suspending and deferring the execution thereof until Our will and pleasure shall be known thereupon.

14. And you shall not re-enact any law to which the assent of Us or Our royal predecessors has once been refused, without express leave for that purpose first obtained from Us, upon a full representation by you, to be made to Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, of the reason and necessity for re-enacting such law.

15. And it is Our express will and pleasure, that no law for constituting and court or courts of judicature, or for establishing the militia, shall be a temporary law; and that no law for granting unto Us any sum or sums of money by duties of impost, tonnage, or excise, be made to continue for less than one whole year; as also that no other laws whatsoever be made to continue for less than two years, except only in cases where it may be necessary for some unforeseen emergency to make provision by law for a service in its nature temporary and contingent.

16. You are also, as much as possible, to observe in the passing of all laws, that each different matter be provided for by a different law, without intermixing in one and the same Act such things as have no proper relation to each other; and you are more especially to take care that no clause or clauses be inserted in, or annexed to, any Act which shall be foreign to what the title of such respective Act imports; and that no perpetual clause be part of any temporary law; and that no Act whatever be suspended, altered, continued, revived, or repealed by general words, but that the title and date of such Act so suspended, altered, continued, revived, or repealed, be particularly mentioned and expressed in the enacting part.

17. And you are particularly enjoined not to pass any law, or do any act, by grant, deed, conveyance, or otherwise, whereby Our revenue may be lessened or impaired without Our especial leave or command thereon

18. It is Our will and pleasure that you do not give your assent to any Bill or Bills for raising money by the institution of any public or private lotteries whatsoever until you shall have first transmitted unto Us, through one of our Principal Secretaries of State, a draft or drafts of such Bill or Bills, and shall have received our directions thereupon.

19. It is Our will and pleasure that you do not, on any pretence whatever, give your assent to, or pass any Bill or Bills in Our island under your government, by which the lands, tenements, goods, chattels, rights and credits of persons who have never resided within Our said island, shall be liable to be seized or taken in execution for the recovery of debts due from such persons, otherwise than is allowed by law in cases of a like nature within Our realm of England, until you shall have first transmitted unto Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, the draft of such Bill or Bills, and shall have received Our royal pleasure thereupon, unless you take care, in the passing of such Bill or Bills, that a clause or clauses be inserted therein, suspending and deferring the execution thereof until Our royal will and pleasure shall be known thereupon.

20. It is Our further will and pleasure that you do not, upon any pretence whatsoever, give your assent to any Bill or Bills that may have been or shall hereafter be passed by the Council and Assembly of the island under your government for the naturalization of aliens, nor for the divorce of persons joined together in holy matrimony, nor for establishing a title in any person to lands, tenements, and real estates in Our said island, originally granted to or purchased by aliens antecedent to naturalization.

21. Whereas great mischiefs have arisen by the frequent passing of Bills of an unusual and extraordinary nature and importance in the plantations, which Bills remain in force there, from the time of enacting, until Our pleasure be signified to the contrary, We do hereby will and require you not to pass or give your assent to any Bill or Bills passed in the Assembly of an unusual and extraordinary nature and importance, whereby Our prerogative or the property of Our subjects may be prejudiced, nor to any Bill or Bills whereby the trade of shipping of this kingdom shall be in anywise affected, until you shall have first transmitted unto Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, a draft of such Bill or Bills, and shall have received Our royal pleasure thereupon, unless you take care in the passing any such Bills as afore mentioned that there be a clause inserted therein, suspending and deferring execution thereof until Our pleasure shall be known concerning the same.

22. You are also to take care that no private Act be passed, whereby the property of any private person may be affected, in which there is not a saving of the right of Us, Our heirs and successors, all bodies politic and corporate, and of all other, except such as are mentioned in the said Act, and those claiming by, from, and under them; and further, you shall take care that no such private Act be passed without a clause suspending the execution thereof until the same shall have received Our royal approbation. It is likewise Our will and pleasure that you do not give your assent to any private Act until proof be made before you in Council, and entered in the Council-book, that public notification was made of the parties' intention to apply for such an Act in the several parish churches where the premises in question lie, for three Sundays at least successively, before any such Act shall be brought into the Assembly, and that a certificate, under your hand, be transmitted with, and annexed to every such private Act, signifying that the same has passed through all the forms above mentioned.

23. You are to take care that in all Acts or Orders to be passed within Our said island, in any case for levying money or imposing fines and penalties, express mention be made that the same is granted or reserved to Us, Our heirs and successors, for the public uses of the said island, and the support of the government thereof, as by the said Act or Order shall be directed.

24. You are not to suffer any public money whatsoever, whether it be appropriated to any particular service or not by the Act granting the same, to be issued or disposed of otherwise than by warrant under your hand, by and with the consent of the said Council. But the Assembly may nevertheless be permitted from time to time to view and examine the accounts of money or value of money disposed of by virtue of laws made by them, as there shall be occasion.

25. You are not to permit any clause whatsoever to be inserted in any law for levying of money, or the value of money, whereby the same shall not be made liable to be accounted for unto Us, here in this kingdom, and to Our Commissioners of Our Treasury, or Our High Treasurer for the time being; and we do particularly require and enjoin you, upon pain of Our highest displeasure, to take care that fair books of accounts of all receipts and payments of all such money be duly kept, and copies thereof be transmitted to Our Commissioners of Our Treasury, or to Our High Treasurer for the time being, and in which books shall be specified every particular sum raised or disposed of, together with the names of the persons to whom any payment shall be made, to the end We may be satisfied of the right and due application of the revenue of Our said island, with the probability of the increase and diminution of it, under every head and article thereof

26. It is Our will and pleasure that you do in all things conform yourself to the provisions contained in an Act of Parliament passed in the fourth year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Third, intituled, "An Act to prevent Paper Bills of Credit hereafter to be issued in any of His Majesty's Colonies or Plantations in America from being declared to be a legal tender in payment of money, and to prevent the legal tender of such Bills as are now subsisting from being prolonged beyond the periods limited for recalling in and sinking the same;" and also of an Act passed in the thirteenth year of the reign of his late Majesty to explain and amend the above-recited Act passed in the fourth year of his reign as aforesaid; and you are not to give your assent to, or pass any Act whereby bills of credit may be struck or issued in lieu of money, or for payment of money, either to you, Our Governor, or to any person whatsoever, unless a clause be inserted in such Act, declaring that the same shall not take effect until the said Act shall have been approved and confirmed by Us, Our heirs or successors.

27. You are to transmit an authenticated and separate copy of every Law, Statute or Ordinance that at any time hereafter shall be made or enacted within the island under your Government, under the Public Seal, unto Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, within three months, or sooner, after their being enacted, upon pain of Our highest displeasure, and of the forfeiture of that year's salary wherein you shall omit to send over the said Laws, Statutes and Ordinances as aforesaid, within the time above mentioned, as also of such other penalty as We shall please to inflict: but if it shall happen that no shipping shall come from Our said island within three months after the making such Laws, Statutes and Ordinances, the same are to be transmitted by the next conveyance after the making thereof, whenever it may happen, for Our approbation or disallowance of the same.

28. And it is Our further will and pleasure that the copies and duplicates of all Acts that shall be transmitted as aforesaid be fairly abstracted in the margents, and there be inserted the several dates or respective times when the same passed the Council and Assembly, and received your assent; and you are to be as particular as may be in your observations, to be sent to us through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, upon every Act; that is to say, whether the same is introductive of a new law, declaratory of a former law, or does repeal a law then before in being, and you are likewise to send to Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, the reasons for the passing of such laws, unless the same do fully appear in the preambles of the said Acts.

29. You are to require the Secretary of the island under your government, or his deputy for the time being, to furnish you with transcripts of all such Acts and Public Orders as shall be made from time to time, together with copies of the journals of the Council, and that all such copies be fairly abstracted in the margents, to the end the same may be transmitted to Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, which he is duly to perform upon pain of incurring the forfeiture of his office.

30. You are also to require from the clerk of the Assembly of the said island, or other proper officer, transcripts of all the journals and other proceedings of the said Assembly, and that all such transcripts be fairly abstracted in the margents, to the end the same may in like manner be transmitted as aforesaid.

31. You shall not appoint any person to be a Judge or Justice of the Peace without the advice and consent of the majority of the Council of Our said island, signified in Council. And it is Our further will and pleasure that all commissions to be granted by you to any person or persons to be Judges, Justices of the Peace, or other necessary officers, be granted during pleasure only.

32. You shall not suspend any of the Judges, Justices, or other officers or ministers, without good and sufficient cause, which you shall signify in the fullest and most distinct manner to us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State.

33. It being of the greatest importance to Our Service, and to the welfare of Our subjects, that justice be everywhere speedily and duly administered, and that all disorders, delays, and other undue practices in the administration thereof, be effectually prevented, We do particularly require you to take especial care that in all courts where you are authorized to preside justice be impartially administered; and that in all other courts established within Our said island, all Judges and other persons therein concerned do likewise perform their several duties without any delay or partiality. You shall not erect any court or office of judicature not before erected or established, nor dissolve any court or office already erected or established, without Our especial order.

34. You are, for the better administration of justice, to endeavour to get a law passed in our said island, wherein shall be set the value of men's estates, either in goods or lands, under which they shall not be capable of serving as jurors.

35. You are to take care that all writs be issued in Our name throughout Our said island under your government.

36. Whereas, in pursuance of an Act passed in the 5th year of the reign of his late Majesty, King George the Fourth, intituled, "An Act for the better Administration of Justice in Newfoundland, and for other purposes," by Our Charter or Letters Patent, issued under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, a supreme court of jurisdiction, called the "Supreme Court of Newfoundland," was erected and established in Our said island, with certain powers and authorities, and under certain regulations therein specified, you are hereby required to take care that the same be duly complied with, and put in execution.

37. You are, with the advice and consent of Our Council, to take especial care to regulate all salaries and fees belonging to places, or paid upon emergencies, that they be within the bounds of moderation, and that no extortion be made on any occasion whatsoever, as also that tables of all fees be publicly hung up in all places where such fees are to be paid; and you are to transmit copies of all such tables of fees to Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State.

38. You shall not by colour of any power or authority, hereby or otherwise granted or mentioned to be granted to you, take upon you to give, grant, or dispose of any office or place within Our said island, which now is or shall be granted under the Great Seal of this kingdom, or to which any person is or shall be appointed by warrant under Our Sign Manual and

Signet, any further than you may, upon the vacancy of any such office or place, or upon the suspension of any such officer by you, put in any fit person to officiate in the interim till you shall have represented the matter to Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, which you are to do by the first opportunity, and have received our further directions therein.

39. You are to transmit unto Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, with all convenient speed, a particular account of all establishments of jurisdictions, courts, offices and officers, powers, authorities, fees, and privileges, granted and settled, or which shall be granted and settled within our said island, as likewise an account of all the expenses attending the establishments of the said courts, and of such funds as are settled and appropriated to discharge the same.

40. It is Our express will and pleasure that you be at all times aiding and assisting unto the officers appointed for the managing, levying, collecting and receiving public revenues, and such duties and revenues as are or shall hereafter be laid and imposed within your government, and the seizures, forfeitures and arrears which shall accrue and grow due by reason thereof.

41. And whereas complaints have been made by the officers of Our Customs in Our plantations in America that they have been frequently obliged to serve on juries, and personally to appear in arms whensoever the militia is drawn out, and thereby are much hindered in the execution of their employments, Our will and pleasure is that you take effectual care, and give the necessary directions that the several officers of Our Customs be excused and exempted from serving on any juries, or personally appearing in arms in the militia, unless in case of absolute necessity, or serving any parochial offices which may hinder them in the execution of their duties.

42. And in case of the vacancy of the Collector, or any of Our officers of the Customs by death, removal, or otherwise, and in order that there may be no delay given on occasion of such vacancy to the masters of ships or merchants in their despatch, you are hereby empowered, subject to such instructions as you shall receive from Our Commissioners of Our Treasury, or Our High Treasurer, or from the Commissioners of our Customs for the time being in this behalf, to appoint other persons duly qualified to execute such offices, until further directions shall be received from Our Commissioners of Our Treasury, or Our High Treasurer, to whom you are to give notice of such appointments by the first opportunity, taking care that you do not, under pretence of this instruction, interfere with the powers and authorities given to Our said Collector by Our Commissioners of Our Treasury, or

Our High Treasure, or by the Commissioners of Our Customs.

43. You shall not remit any fines or forfeitures whatever above the sum of 50*l.*, nor dispose of any forfeitures whatsoever until upon signifying unto Our Commissioners of Our Treasury, or Our High Treasurer for the time being, the nature of the offence and the occasion of such fines and forfeitures, with the particular sums or value thereof (which you are to do with all speed), you shall have received Our directions therein, but you may in the mean time suspend the payment of the said fines and forfeitures.

44. It is Our will and pleasure that you do not dispose of forfeitures or escheats to any persons until the Provost Marshal or other proper officer have made inquiries by a jury upon their oaths into the true value thereof, nor until you shall have transmitted to Our Commissioners of Our Treasury, or to Our High Treasurer for the time being, a particular account of such forfeitures and escheats and the value thereof, and shall have received Our directions thereupon, and you are to take care that the produce of the said forfeitures and escheats, in case We shall think proper to give you direction to dispose of the same, be duly paid to the receiver of Our casual revenue; and that a full account thereof be transmitted to Our Commissioners of Our

Treasury, or to Our High Treasurer for the time being, with the names of the persons to whom disposed of.

45. Whereas you will receive from Our Commissioners for executing the office of High Admiral a commission constituting you Vice Admiral of Our said island, you are hereby required and directed carefully to put in execution the several powers thereby granted to you.

46. And whereas commissions have been granted in our colonies and plantations for trying pirates in those parts, pursuant to the Acts for the more effectual suppression of piracy, Our will and pleasure is, that in all matters relating to pirates you govern yourself according to the intent of the Acts before mentioned, and any commission you may receive in reference thereto.

47. And whereas there have been great irregularities in the manner of granting commissions to private ships of war, you are to govern yourself whenever there shall be occasion according to the commission and instructions granted in this kingdom: but you are not to grant commissions of marque or reprisal against any prince or state or their subjects in amity with Us to any person whatsoever without Our special command.

48. Whereas We have thought it necessary for Our service to constitute and appoint a Receiver-general of Our rights and perquisites of the Admiralty, it is therefore Our Will and pleasure that you be aiding and assisting to the said Receiver-general, his deputy or deputies, in the execution of the said office of Receiver-general; and We do hereby enjoin and require you to make up your accounts with him, his deputy or deputies, of all such rights of Admiralty (effects of pirates included) as you or your officers have received, or shall or may receive for the future, and to pay over to the said Receiver general, his deputy or deputies, for Our use, all such sum or sums of money as shall appear upon the foot of such accounts, to be and remain in your hands, or in the hands of any of your officers: And whereas Our said Receiver-general is directed, in case the parties chargeable with any part of such Our revenue refuse, neglect, or delay payment thereof, by himself, or sufficient deputy, to apply in Our name to Our Governors, Judges, Attorney-general or any other Our officers or magistrates, to be aiding or assisting to him in recovering the same, it is therefore Our will and pleasure that you, Our Governor, Our Judges, Our Attorney-general, and all other officers whom it may concern, do use all lawful authority for the recovering and levying thereof.

49. And whereas by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of Our United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, bearing date at Westminster the 10th day of May 1825, the Island of Newfoundland was constituted to be part of the See of the Bishop of Nova Scotia, and the said bishop was thereby duly authorized to exercise jurisdiction, spiritual and ecclesiastical, in the said colonies, it is Our will and pleasure that in the administration of the government of our said island you should be aiding and assisting to the said bishop, and to his commissary or commissaries, in the execution of their charge, and the exercise of such ecclesiastical jurisdiction, excepting only the granting licences for marriages and probates of wills.

50. We do enjoin and require that you do take especial care that Almighty God be devoutly and truly served throughout your government, the Book of Common Prayer, as by law established, read each Sunday and holiday, and the Blessed Sacrament administered according to the rites of the Church of England. You shall be careful that all orthodox churches already built there be well and orderly kept, and that more be built, as Our island shall, by God's blessing, be improved. And that besides a competent maintenance to be assigned to the minister of each orthodox church, a convenient house be built at the common charge for each minister, and a competent portion of land for a glebe be allotted to him. And you are to take care that the parishes be so limited and settled as you shall find most convenient for the accomplishing this good work, and in all matters relating to the celebration of Divine Worship, the erection and repair of churches, the maintenance of ministers, and the settlement of parishes throughout your government, you are to advise with the Right Reverend Father in God the Bishop of Nova Scotia for the time being.

51. Upon the vacancy of any ecclesiastical benefice in Our said island, you will present to the said Bishop of Nova Scotia for the time being, for institution to such vacant benefice, any clerk in holy orders of the United Church of England and Ireland, who shall have been actually resident within the said diocese, and officiating there as a clerk in holy orders, for six calendar months at the least next before such benefice shall have become vacant, whom the said bishop may certify to you to be a fit and proper person to fill such vacancy, and to be a person of good life and conversation, and conform able to the doctrine and discipline of the said United Church. But if at the time of any such vacancy occurring there shall not be resident within the said diocese any clerk in holy orders of the said United Church who shall have been resident and officiating therein as aforesaid, in whose favour the said bishop shall think proper so to certify to you, or if no such certificate shall be received by you from the said bishop within three calendar months next after such vacancy shall occur, then and in either of such cases you shall forthwith report the circumstances to Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, to the intent that We may nominate some fit and proper person, being a clerk in holy orders as aforesaid, to fill the said vacancy. And We do enjoin and command you to present to the said bishop for institution to any such vacant ecclesiastical benefice, any clerk who may be so nominated by Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State.

52. You are to inquire whether there be any minister within your government who preaches and administers the Sacrament in any orthodox church or chapel, without being in due orders, and to give an account thereof to the said Bishop of Nova Scotia.

p. 742

53. And whereas doubts have arisen whether the powers of granting licences for marriages and probates of wills, commonly called the Office of Ordinary, which We have reserved to you, Our Governor, can be exercised by deputation from you to any other person within Our said island under your government, it is Our express will and pleasure, and you are hereby directed and required not to grant deputations for the exercise of the said powers, commonly called the Office of Ordinary, to any person or persons whatsoever in Our said island under your government.

54. And you are to take especial care that a table of marriages established by the canons of the Church of England be hung up in every orthodox church and duly observed.

55. The Right Reverend Father in God, Edmund, then Lord Bishop of London, having presented a petition to his Majesty King George the First, humbly beseeching him to send instructions to the governors of all the several colonies and plantations in America, that they cause all laws already made against blasphemy, profaneness, adultery, fornication, polygamy, incest, profanation of the Lord's-day, swearing and drunkenness in their respective governments to be rigorously executed, and We, thinking it highly just that all persons who shall offend in any of the particulars aforesaid should be prosecuted and punished for their said offences, it is therefore Our will and pleasure that you take due care for the punishment of the afore-mentioned vices, and that you earnestly recommend that effectual laws be passed for the restraint and punishment of all such of the afore-mentioned vices against which no laws are as yet provided. And also you are to use your endeavours to render the laws in being more effectual, by providing for the punishment of the afore-mentioned vices, by presentment upon oath to be made to the temporal courts by the churchwardens of the several parishes, at proper times of the year to be appointed for that purpose ; and for the further discouragement of vice and encouragement of virtue and good living, you are not to admit any persons to public trusts or employments in the island under your government whose ill fame and conversation may occasion scandal.

56. It is Our further will and pleasure that you recommend to the Legislature to enter upon proper methods for the erecting and maintaining schools in order to the training up of youth to reading, and to a necessary knowledge of the principles of religion. You are not, however, to give your consent to any Act respecting religion without a clause suspending its operation until Our pleasure shall have been signified thereupon, unless a draft thereof shall have been previously transmitted by you for Our consideration and approval.

57. And We do further direct that in all matters arising within your government connected with the education of youth in the principles of the Christian religion according to the doctrine of the said United Church of England, or connected with the prevention of vice and profaneness, or the conversion of negroes and other slaves, or connected with the worship of Almighty God, or the promotion of religion and virtue, you be advising with the Bishop for the time being of the said diocese of Nova Scotia, and be aiding him in the execution of all such designs and undertakings as may be recommended by the said Bishop for the promotion of any of the objects before mentioned, so far as such designs and undertakings may be consistent with the law and with your said commission, and these Our instructions.

58. You are to transmit to Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, regular monthly returns of the militia of Our said island whenever and so long as the same shall be embodied, with a particular state of their arms and accoutrements; and for the due preservation and security of which you are to establish such regulations as you shall judge to be most effectual for that purpose.

59. You shall not upon any occasion whatsoever establish or put in execution any articles of war, or other law martial, upon any of Our subjects, inhabitants of Our said island, without the advice and consent of Our Council.

60. And in case of any distress of any other of Our plantations, you shall, upon application of the respective Governors thereof unto you, assist there with what aid the condition and safety of Our island under your government can spare.

61. You shall, from time to time, give unto Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, an account of the wants and defects of the island under your government, what are the chief products thereof, what improvements have been lately made, and what further improvements you conceive may be made, or advantages gained by trade, and in what way We may contribute thereunto.

62. If any thing shall happen which may be of advantage or security to Our island under your government, which is not herein or by Our Commission provided for, We do hereby allow you, with the advice and consent of Our Council, to take orders for the present therein, giving unto us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, speedy notice thereof, that so you may receive Our ratification, if We shall approve the same : Provided always, that you do not, under colour of any power or authority hereby given to you, commence or declare war without Our knowledge and particular commands therein first obtained leave for so doing from Us, under Our Sign-Manual and Signet, or by Our Order in Our Privy Council.

63. And whereas we have thought fit, by Our Commission, to direct, that in case of your death or absence, and there be at that time no person within Our said island commissioned or appointed by Us to be Lieutenant governor, or specially appointed by Us to administer the government within our said island, that the Councillor whose name is first placed in Our instructions to you, (unless it shall therein be otherwise signified), and who shall be, at the time of your absence, residing within Our said island, and who shall take the oaths appointed to be taken by you or the Commander-in-Chief or Our said island, shall take upon him the administration of the government, and execute Our said Commission and instructions and the several powers and authorities therein contained, in the manner therein directed. It is, nevertheless, Our express will and pleasure that in such case the Councillor so administering the government shall forbear to pass any Act or Acts but what are immediately necessary for the peace and welfare of the said island, without Our particular order for that purpose; and that he shall not take upon him to dissolve the Assembly then in being, or to remove or suspend any of the members of Our Council, nor any judges, justices of the peace, or other officer, civil or military, without the advice and consent of at least seven of the Council, nor even then without good and sufficient reason for the

64. And whereas We are willing to provide in the best manner for the support of the government of Our said island, by setting apart sufficient allowances to such as shall be Our Governor or Commander-in-Chief, residing for the time being within the same, Our will and pleasure is, that when it shall happen that you shall be absent from Our said island, one full moiety of the salary, and of all perquisites and emoluments whatsoever, which would otherwise become due unto you, shall, during the time of your absence, be paid and satisfied unto such Lieutenant-governor or President of the Council for the time being, which we do hereby order and allot unto him for

65. And you are upon all occasions to send to Us, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, a particular account of all your proceedings, and of the conditions of affairs within your government.

part of Our said island bounded by the shore which is situate and lying between Petty Harbour and Broad Cove.

And that the beforementioned district of Conception Bay shall consist of and include all that part of Our said island which, bounded in like manner, is situate and lying between Broad Cove and Bay Verd's Head.

MANUAL AND SIGNET, FOR JAMES MURRAY

GEORGE R.

Instructions to Our Trusty and Wellbeloved JAMES MURRAY, ESQ^r, Our Captain General and Governor in Chief in and over Our Province of Quebec in America, and all of Our Territories dependent thereupon. Given at Our Court at S^t James's the Seventh Day of December 1763 in the Fourth Year of Our Reign.

1. With these Our Instructions You will receive Our Commission under Our Great Seal of Our United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland constituting you Our Captain General and Governor in Chief in and over Our Province of Quebec in America, bounded on the Labrador Coast by the River S^t John, and from thence by a Line drawn from the Head of that River through the Lake S^t John to the South End of the Lake Nipissin; from whence the said Line crossing the River S^t Lawrence and the Lake Champlain in forty five Degrees of North Latitude, passes along the High Lands, which divide the Rivers that empty themselves into the said River S^t Lawrence, from those which fall into the Sea; and also along the North Coast of the Baye des Chaleurs and the Coast of the Gulph of S^t Lawrence to Cape Rosieres, and from thence crossing the Mouth of the River S^t Lawrence by the West End of the Island Anticosti, terminates at the aforesaid River of S^t John: You are therefore to take upon You the Execution of the Office and Trust We have reposed in You, and the Administration of Government, and to do and execute all Things in due manner that shall belong to your Command, according to the several Powers and Authorities of Our said Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, and these Our Instructions to You, or according to such further Powers and Instructions as shall at any Time hereafter be granted or appointed You under Our Signet and Sign Manual, or by Our Order in Our Privy Council.

2. And You are, with all due Solemnity, to cause Our said Commission to be published at Quebec, which We do appoint to be the Place of your Residence and the principal Seat of Government, in the Districts of Montreal and Trois Rivieres, and in such other parts of your Government as You shall think necessary and expedient, as soon as possible; which being done, You are in the next place to nominate and establish a Council for Our said Province, to assist You in the Administration of Government, which Council, is, for the present, to be composed of the Persons, whom We have appointed to be Our Lieutenant Governors of Montreal and Trois Rivieres, Our Chief Justice of Our said Province, and the Surveyor General of Our Customs in America for the Northern District, and Eight other Persons to be chosen by You from amongst the most considerable of the Inhabitants of, or Persons of Property in Our said Province; which Persons so nominated and appointed by You as aforesaid (Five of which We do hereby appoint to be a Quorum), are to be Our Council for Our said Province, and to have and enjoy all the Powers, Privilege and Authority usually exercised and enjoyed by the Members of Our Councils in Our other Plantations, and also such others as are contained in Our said Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, and in these Our Instructions to You; and they shall meet together at such Time or Times, Place or Places, as You, in your Discretion, shall think necessary and expedient: It is nevertheless Our Will and Pleasure, that the said Chief Justice, or Surveyor General of Our Customs, shall not be capable of taking the Administration of the Government upon the Death or Absence of You Our Governor, or the Commander in Chief for the Time being.

3. And You are forthwith to call Our said Council together, or such of them as can be conveniently assembled, and to cause Our said Commission to You to be read at such Meeting; which being done, You shall then take yourself, and also administer to Our Lieutenant Governors respectively, and to the Members of Our said Council, the Oaths mentioned in an Act, passed in the first Year of the Reign of His Majesty King George the First, intituled, "An Act for the further Security of His Majesty's Person and Government, and the Succession of the Crown in the Heirs of the late Princess Sophia, being Protestants, and for extinguishing the Hopes of the pretended Prince of Whales, and his open and secret Abettors;" — as also to make and subscribe, and cause them to make and subscribe the Declaration mentioned in an Act of Parliament made in the Twenty fifth Year of the Reign of King Charles the second, intituled, "An Act for preventing Dangers which may happen from popish Recusants." And You and every one of Them are likewise to take an Oath for the due Execution of your and their Places and Trusts, with regard to your and their equal and impartial Administration of Justice; — and You are also to take the Oath required by an Act passed in the seventh and eighth Years of the Reign of King William the Third to be taken by Governors of Plantations, to do their utmost that the Laws relating to the Plantations be observed.

4. And You are forthwith to transmit unto Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, in order to be laid before Us for Our Approbation or Disallowance, the Names of the Members of the Council, so to be appointed by You, as aforesaid; as also a List of the Names and Characters of Eight other Persons in Our said Province, whom You judge properly qualified to serve in that Station; to the End that, if any of the Persons appointed by You, as aforesaid, shall not be approved and confirmed by Us, under Our Signet and Sign Manual, the Place or Places of such Persons so disapproved may be forthwith supplied from the said List, or otherwise, as We shall think fit.

5. And if it shall at any time happen, that, by the Death, Departure our of Our said Province, Suspension of any of Our said Councillors, or otherwise, there shall be a Vacancy in Our said Council, Our Will and Pleasure is, that You signify the same to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations by the first Opportunity, that We may, under Our Sign Manual, constitute and appoint Others in their Stead; to which End, You are, whenever such Vacancy happens, to transmit to Our said Commissioners, in order to be laid before Us, the Names of three or more Persons, Inhabitants of Our said Province, whom You shall esteem best qualified for such Trust.

6. But that Our Affairs may not suffer for want of a due Number of Councillors, if ever it shall happen, that there be less than Seven residing in Our said Province, We do hereby give and grant unto you, the said James Murray, full Power and Authority to chuse as many Persons out of the principal Inhabitants of Our said Province, as will make up the full Number of the Council to be Seven, and no more; which Persons, so chosen and appointed by You, shall be, to all Intents and Purposes, Councillors in Our said Province, till either they shall be confirmed by Us, or, by the Nomination of Others by Us, under Our Signet and Sign Manual, Our said Council shall have Seven or more Persons in it.

7. And it is Our Will and Pleasure, that You do, and You are hereby authorized and impowered to suspend and remove any of the Members of Our said Council from sitting, voting, and assisting therein, if You shall find just Cause for so doing; (and also in like manner to suspend any of Our Lieutenant Governors of Our said Province from the Execution of their Commands), and to appoint Others in their Stead, until Our Pleasure shall be known. It is nevertheless Our Will and Pleasure that You do not suspend or remove any of the Lieutenant Governors of Our said Province respectively, or any of the Members of Our Council, when they shall have been confirmed by Us, as aforesaid, without good and sufficient Cause, nor without the Consent of the Majority of the said Council, signified in Council, after due Examination of the Charge against such Lieutenant Governor, or Councillor, and his Answer thereunto; and in case of Suspension of any of them, You are to cause your Reasons for so doing, together with the Charges and Proofs against such Person, forthwith to transmit Copies thereof to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, in order to be laid before Us; nevertheless if it should happen, that You should have Reasons for suspending any of the said Persons, not fit to be communicated to the Council, You may in that Case suspend such person without the Consent of the said Council; but you are thereupon immediately to send to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, in order to be laid before Us, an Account of your Proceedings therein, together with your Reasons at large for such Suspension, as also your Reasons at large for not communicating the same to the Council; and Duplicates thereof by the next Opportunity.

8. Whereas We are sensible, that effectual Care ought to be taken to oblige the Members of the Council to a due Attendance therein, in order to prevent the many Inconveniencies that may happen from the Want of a Quorum of the Council, to transact Business as Occasion may require; It is Our Will and Pleasure, that if any of the Members of Our said Council shall hereafter absent themselves from the said Province, and continue absent above the Space of six Months together, without Leave from You, or from Our Commander in Chief of Our said Province for the time being, first obtained under your or his hand and seal; or shall remain absent for the Space of one Year, without Our Leave given them under Our royal Signet and Sign Manual, their Place or Places in the said Council shall immediately thereupon become Void; and that, if any of the Members of Our said Council, then residing in the Province under your Government, shall hereafter wilfully absent themselves, when duly summoned, without a just and lawful Cause, and shall persist therein after Admonition, You suspend the said Councillors so absenting themselves, till Our further Pleasure be known, giving Us timely Notice thereof: And We do hereby will and require You, that this Our Royal Pleasure be signified to the several Members of Our Council aforesaid, and entered in the Council Books of the Province under your Government, as a standing Rule—

9. You are forthwith to communicate such and so many of these Our Instructions to Our said Council, wherein their Advice and Consent are mentioned to be requisite; as likewise all such others, from time to time, as You shall find convenient for Our Service to be imparted to them.

10. You are to permit the Members of Our said Council to have and enjoy Freedom of Debate and Vote, in all Affairs of public Concern that may be debated in Council.

11. And whereas it is directed, by Our Commission to You under Our great Seal, that so soon as the Situation and Circumstances of Our said Province will admit thereof, You shall, with the Advice of Our Council, summon and call a General Assembly of the Freeholders in Our said Province; You are therefore, as soon as the more pressing Affairs of Government will allow to give all possible attention to the carrying this important object into Execution: But, as it may be impracticable for the present to form such an Establishment, You are in the mean time to make such Rules and Regulations, by the Advice of Our said Council, as shall appear to be necessary for the Peace, Order and good Government of Our said Province, taking Care that nothing be passed or done, that shall any ways tend to affect the Life,

p. 767

Limb or Liberty of the Subject, or to the imposing any Duties or Taxes; and that all such Rules and Regulations be transmitted to Us, by the first Opportunity after they are passed and made, for Our Approbation or Disallowance. And it is Our Will and Pleasure, that when an Assembly shall have been summoned and met, in such manner as You, in your Discretion, shall think most proper, or as shall be hereafter directed and appointed, the following Regulations be carefully observed in the framing and passing all such Laws, Statutes and Ordinances, as are to be passed by You, with the Advice and Consent of Our said Council and Assembly; Viz^t

That the Style of Enacting the said Laws, Statutes and Ordinances be by the Governor, Council, and Assembly, and no other;—

That each different Matter be provided for by a different Law, without including in one and the same Act such Things as have no proper Relation to each other;—

That no Clause be inserted in any Act or Ordinance, which shall be foreign to what the Title of it imports; and that no perpetual Clause be part of any temporary Law;—

That no Law or Ordinance whatever be suspended, altered, continued, revived, or repealed by general Words; but that the Title and Date of such Law or Ordinance be particularly mentioned in the enacting part;—

That no Law or Ordinance, respecting private Property, be passed without a Clause suspending it's Execution, until Our Royal Will and Pleasure is known; nor without a Saving of the Right of Us, Our Heirs and Successors, and of all Bodies politic and corporate, and of all other Persons, except such as are mentioned in the said Law or Ordinance, and those claiming by, from, and under them; and before such Law or Ordinance is passed, Proof must be made before You, in Council, and entered in the Council Books, that public

Notification was made of the Party's Intention to apply for such Act in the several Parish Churches, where the Lands in Question lie, for three Sundays at least successively before any such Law or Ordinance shall be proposed; and You are to transmit, and annex to the said Law, or Ordinance, a Certificate under your hand, that the same passed through all the Forms abovementioned;—

That in all Laws or Ordinances for levying money, or imposing Fines, Forfeitures or Penalties, express mention be made, that the same is granted or reserved to us, Our Heirs and Successors, for the public Uses of the said Province, and the Support of the Government thereof, as by the said Law, or Ordinance shall be directed; and that a Clause be inserted, declaring, that the Money arising by the Operation of the said Law, or Ordinance shall be accounted for unto Us in this Kingdom, and to Our Commissioners of Our Treasury, or our High Treasurer for the time being, and audited by Our Auditor General of Our Plantations, or his Deputy;—

That all such Laws, Statutes and Ordinances be transmitted by You within three Months after their passing, or sooner, if Opportunity offers, to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations; that they be fairly abstracted in the Margents, and accompanied with very full and particular Observations upon each of them, that is to say, whether the same is introductive of a new Law, declaratory of a former Law, or does repeal a Law then before in being; and you are also to transmit, in the fullest manner, the Reasons and Occasion for enacting such Laws, or Ordinances, together with fair Copies of the Journals of the Proceedings of the Council and Assembly, which You are to require from the Clerks of the said Council and Assembly.

12. And to the end that nothing may be passed or done to the Prejudice of the true Interests of his Our Kingdom, the just Rights of Us, Our Heirs and Successors, or the Property of Our Subjects; it is Our express Will and Pleasure, that no Law whatever, which shall in any wise tend to affect the Commerce or Shipping of this Kingdom, or which shall any ways relate to the Rights and Perogative of Our Crown, or the Property of Our Subjects, or which shall be of an unusual or extraordinary Nature, be finally ratified and assented to by You, until You shall have first transmitted a Draught of such Law, and shall have received Our Directions thereupon, unless You take care, that a Clause be inserted, suspending and deferring the Execution thereof, until Our Pleasure is known concerning the same.

13. And whereas Laws have formerly been enacted in several of Our Plantations in America for so short a time, that Our Royal Assent or Refusal thereof could not be had before the Time, for which such Laws were enacted, did expire; You shall not give your Assent to any Law, that shall be enacted for a less Time than two Years, except in Cases of imminent Necessity, or immediate temporary Expediency; and You shall not reenact any Law, to which Our Assent shall have been once refused, without express Leave for that purpose first obtained from Us, upon a full Representation by You to be made to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, in order to be laid before Us, of the Reasons and Necessity for passing such Law; nor give your Assent to any Law for repealing any other Law, which shall have passed in your Government, and shall have received Our Royal Approbation, unless You take Care that there be a Clause inserted therein, suspending and deferring the Execution thereof, until Our Pleasure shall be known concerning the same.

14. And We do particularly require You to take Care, that fair Books of Accounts of all Receipts and Payments of all Publick Money be duly kept, and the Truth thereof attested upon Oath; and that all such Accounts be audited, and attested by Our Auditor General of Our Plantations, or his Deputy, who is to transmit Copies thereof to Our Commissioners of Our Treasury, or to Our High Treasurer, for the time being; and that You do, every half Year or oftener, send another Copy thereof, attested by yourself, to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, and Duplicates thereof by the next Conveyance; in which Books shall be specified every particular Sum raised or disposed of, together with the Names of the Persons to whom any Payment shall be made; to the end We may be satisfied of the right and due Application of the Revenue of Our said Province, with the Probability of the Increase or Diminution of it under every Head and Article thereof.

15. And whereas the Members of several Assemblies in the Plantations have frequently assumed to themselves Privileges no ways belonging to them, especially of being protected from Suits as Law during the Term they remain of the Assembly, to the great Prejudice of their Creditors and the Obstruction of Justice; and some Assemblies have presumed to adjourn themselves at Pleasure, without Leave from Our Governor first obtained; and Others have taken upon them the sole framing of Money Bills, refusing to let the Council alter or amend the same; all which Practices are very detrimental to Our Prerogative; If therefore You find, that the Members of the Assembly of Our Province of Quebec insist upon any of the said Privileges, You are to signify to them that it is Our express Will and Pleasure, that You do not allow any Protection to any Member of the Council or Assembly, further than in their Persons, and that only during the Sitting of the Assembly; and that You do not allow them to adjourn themselves otherwise than de die in diem, except Sundays and Holy-days, without Leave from You, or the Commander in Chief for the time being, first obtained; It is also Our further Pleasure, that the Council have the like Power of framing Money Bills as the Assembly.

16. And whereas by Our aforesaid Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, You are authorized and impowered, with the Advice and Consent of Our Council, to constitute and appoint Courts of Judicature and Justice; it is therefore Our Will and Pleasure, that You do, as soon as possible, apply your Attention to these great and important Objects; and that, in forming the necessary Establishments for this purpose, You do consider what has taken place in this respect in Our other Colonies in America, more particularly in Our Colony of Nova Scotia.

17. And whereas it is for the Ease, Satisfaction and Benefit of all Our Subjects, that Appeals should be allowed, in all Civil Causes, from the Courts in our Plantations; it is therefore Our Will and Pleasure, that, when the several Courts and Offices necessary for the Administration of Justice shall have been settled, appointed and confirmed, in Consequence of the Power vested in You by Our Commission under Our Great Seal and by these Our Instructions, You do, as near as different Circumstances will admit, conform yourself to the Regulations prescribed in the Instructions given to Our Governor of Nova Scotia in respect to such Appeals, Copies of which Instructions are hereunto annexed.

18. You are, with the Advice and Consent of Our Council in the Province under your Government, to take especial Care to regulate all Salaries and Fees belonging to Places, or paid upon Emergencies, that they be within the Bounds of Moderation, and that no Exaction be made on any Occasion whatsoever; as also that Tables of all Fees be publickly hung up in all Places where such Fees are to be paid; and You are to transmit Copies of all such Tables of Fees to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, in order to be laid before Us.

19. It is Our express Will and Pleasure, that You do, by the first Opportunity, and with all convenient Speed, transmit unto Us, by Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, authentic Copies of all Acts, Orders, Grants, Commissions or other Powers, by Virtue of which any Courts, Offices, Jurisdictions, Pleas, Authorities, Fees and Privileges have been settled or established, for Our Confirmation or Disallowance; and in case all or any of them shall, at any time or times, be disallowed and not approved, then such and so many as shall be so disallowed and not approved, and no signified by Us, shall cease, determine, and be no longer continued or put in Practice.

20. You shall not appoint any Person to be a Judge or Justice of the Peace, without the Advice and Consent of the Majority of the Members of Our Council, present in Council; nor shall You execute yourself, or by Deputy, any of the said Offices; and it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that all Commissions, to be granted by You, to any Person or Persons to be Judges or Justices of the Peace, or other necessary Officers, be granted during Pleasure only.

21. You shall not displace any of the Judges, Justices of Peace, or other Officers or Ministers, without good and sufficient Cause, which You shall signify in the fullest and most distinct manner to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, in order to be laid before Us, by the first Opportunity after such Removals.

22. And whereas frequent Complaints have heretofore been more of great Delays and undue Proceedings in the Courts of Justice in several of Our Plantations, whereby many of Our good Subjects have very much suffered; and it being of the greatest Importance to Our Service, and to the Welfare of Our Plantations, that Justice be every where speedily and duly administered, and that all Disorders, Delays, and other undue Practices in the Administration thereof, be effectually prevented; We do particularly require You to take especial Care, that in all Courts, where You are authorized to preside, Justice be impartially administered; and that in all other Courts, established within Our said Province, all Judges, and other Persons therein concerned, do likewise perform their several Duties without any Delay or Partiality.

23. You are to take Care, that all Writs be issued in Our Name throughout the Province under your Government.

24. Whereas there are several Offices in Our Plantations granted under the Great Seal of Great Britain, and Our Service may be very much prejudiced by reason of the Absence of the Patentees, and by their appointing Deputies not fit to officiate in their Stead; You are therefore to inspect such of the said Offices as are in the Province under your Government, and to enquire into the Capacity and Behaviour of the Persons exercising them, and to report thereupon, to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, what you think fit to be done or altered in relation thereunto; and you are, upon the Misbehaviour of any of the said Patentees or their Deputies, to suspend them from the Execution of their Office, till you shall have represented the whole Matter unto Us, and received Our Directions therein; And in case of the Death of any such Deputy, it is Our express Will and Pleasure, that You take Care that the Person appointed to execute the Place, until the Patentee can be informed thereof and appoint another Deputy, do give sufficient Security to the Patentee, or, in case of Suspension, to the Person suspended, to be answerable to him for the Profits accruing during such Interval by Death, or during such Suspension, in case We shall think fit to restore the Person suspended to his Place again. It is nevertheless Our Will and Pleasure, that the Person executing the Place during such Interval by Death or Suspension, shall, for his Encouragement, receive the same Profits as the Person dead, or suspended did receive; And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that, in case of a Suspension of a Patentee, the Person appointed by you to exercise the Office during such Suspension, shall receive a Moiety of the Profits which would otherwise become due to such Patentee, giving Security to such Patentee to be answerable to him for the other Moiety, in case We shall think fit to restore him to his Office again; And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that you do countenance and give all due encouragement to all our Patent Officers in the Enjoyment of their legal and accustomed Fees, Rights, Privileges and Emoluments, according to the true Intent and Meaning of their Patents.

25. You shall not, by Colour of any Power or Authority hereby or otherwise granted, or mentioned to be granted unto you, take upon you to give, grant or dispose of any Office or Place within Our said Province, which now is or shall be granted under the Great Seal of this Kingdom, or to which any Person is or shall be appointed by Warrant under Our Signet and Sign Manual, any further than that you may, upon the Vacancy of any such Office or Place, or upon the Suspension of any such Officer by You, as aforesaid, put in any fit Person to officiate in the Interval, till you shall have represented the Matter unto Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, in order to be laid before Us, as aforesaid, (which You are to do by the first Opportunity,) and till the said Office or Place be disposed of by Us, Our Heirs or Successors, under the Great Seal of this Kingdom, or until some Person shall be appointed thereto by Warrant under Our Signet and Sign Manual, or Our further Directions be given therein.

26. And whereas several Complaints have been made by the Surveyor General, and other Officers of Our Customs in Our Plantations in America, that they have frequently been obliged to serve as Jurors, and personally to appear in Arms whenever the Militia is drawn out, and thereby are much hindered in the Execution of their Employments; Our Will and Pleasure is, that You take effectual Care, and give the necessary Directions, that the several Officers of Our Customs be excused and exempted from serving on any Juries, or personally appearing in Arms in the Militia, unless in case of absolute Necessity, or serving any parochial Offices, which may hinder them in the Execution of their Duty.

27. And whereas the Surveyor General of Our Customs in the Plantations are impowered, in case of the Vacancy of any of Our Offices of the Customs by Death, Removal, or otherwise, to appoint other Persons to execute such Offices, until they receive Directions from Our Commissioners of the Treasury, or Our High Treasurer, or Commissioners of Our Customs, for the time being; but in regard the Districts of Our said Surveyors General are very extensive, and that they are required at proper times to visit the Officers in the several Governments under their Inspection; and that it might happen that some of the Officers of Our Customs in the Province under your Government may die, at the Time when the Surveyor General is absent in some distant Part of his District, so that he cannot receive Advice of such Officer's Death within a reasonable Time, and thereby make Provision for carrying on the Service, by appointing some other Person in the room of such Officer who may happen to die; therefore, that there be no Delay given on such Occasion to the Masters of Ships or Merchants in their Dispatches, it is Our further Will and Pleasure, in case of such absence of the Surveyor General, or if he should happen to die, and in such Cases only, that, upon the Death of any Collector of Our Customs within Our said Province, You, or, in your Absence, our Lieutenant Governor or Commander in Chief, shall make Choice of a Person of known Loyalty, Experience, Diligence and Fidelity, to be Employed in such Collector's room, for the Purposes aforesaid, until the Surveyor General of Our Customs shall be advised thereof, and appoint another to succeed in such Place, and that further Directions shall be given therein by Our Commissioners of Our Customs, for the time being, which shall be first signified; taking care that You do not, under any Pretence of this Instruction, interfere with the Powers and Authorities given by the Commissioners of OUR Customs to the said Surveyors General, when they are able to put the same in Execution.

28. And whereas We have stipulated, by the late Definitive Treaty of Peace concluded at Paris the 10th Day of February 1763, to grant the Liberty of the Catholick Religion to the Inhabitants of Canada, and that We will consequently give the most precise and most effectual Orders, that Our new Roman Catholick Subjects in that Province may profess the Worship of their Religion, according to the Rites of the Romish Church, as far as the Laws of Great Britain permit; It is therefore Our Will and Pleasure, that you do, in all things regarding the said Inhabitants, conform with great Exactness to the Stipulation of the said Treaty in this respect.

29. You are, as soon as possible, to summon the Inhabitants to meet together, at such Time or Times, Place or Places, as you shall find most convenient, in order to take the Oath of Allegiance, and make and subscribe the Declaration of Abjuration mentioned in the aforesaid Act passed in the first Year of the Reign of King George the First, for the further Security of His Majesty's Person and Government, and the Succession of the Crown in the Heirs of the late Princess Sophia, being Protestants, and for extinguishing the Hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales, and his open and secret Abettors; which Oath shall be administered to them by such Person or Persons as you shall commissionate for the Purpose; and in case any of the said French Inhabitants shall refuse to take the said Oath, and make and subscribe the Declaration of Abjuration, as aforesaid, You are to cause them forthwith to depart out of Our said Government.

30. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Inhabitants, professing the Religion of the Romish Church, do, at all such Meetings, or at such other Time or Times as You shall think proper, and in the Manner you shall think least alarming and inconvenient to the said Inhabitants, deliver in upon Oath an exact Account of all Arms and Ammunition, of every Sort in their actual Possession, and so, from time to time, of what they shall receive into their Possession, as aforesaid.

31. You areas soon as possible to transmit to Us, by Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, an exact and particular Account of the Nature and Constitution of the several Religious Community of the Romish Church, their Rights, Claims, Privileges and Property, and also the Number, Situation and Revenue of the several Churches heretofore established in Our said Province, together with the Number of Priests of Curates officiating in such Churches.

32. You are not to admit of any Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction of the See of Rome, or any other foreign Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction whatsoever in the Province under your Government.

33. And to the End that the Church of England may be established both in Principles and Practice, and that the said Inhabitants may be Degrees be induced to embrace the Protestant Religion, and their Children be brought up in the Principles of it; We do hereby declare it to be Our Intention, when the said Province shall have been accurately surveyed, and divided into Townships, Districts, Precincts or Parishes, in such manner as shall be hereinafter directed, all possible Encouragement shall be given to the erecting Protestant Schools in the said Districts, Townships and Precincts, by settling, appointing and allotting proper Quantities of Land for that Purpose, and also for a Glebe and Maintenance for a Protestant Minister and Protestant School-Masters; and you are to consider and report to Us, by Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, by what other Means the Protestant Religion may be promoted, established and encouraged in Our Province

34. And You are to take especial Care, that God Almighty be devoutly and duly served throughout your Government, the Book of Common Prayer, as by Law established, read each Sunday and Holyday, and the blessed Sacrament administered according to the Rites of the Church of England.

p. 774

35. You are not to prefer any Protestant Minister to any Ecclesiastical Benefice in the Province under your Government, without a Certificate from the Right Reverend Father in God the Lord Bishop of London of his being conformable to the Doctrine and Discipline of the Church of England, and of a good Life and Conversation; And if any Person hereafter preferred to a Benefice shall appear to you to give Scandal, either by his Doctrine or Manners, you are to use the best Means for his Removal.

36. You are to give Orders forthwith, that every Orthodox Minister within your Government be one of the Vestry in his respective Parish, and that no Vestry be held without him, except in case of Sickness, or, after Notice of a Vestry summoned, he omit to come.

37. And to the End that the Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction of the Lord Bishop of London may take place in Our Province under your Government, as far as conveniently may be, We do think fit, that You give all Countenance and Encouragement to the Exercise of the same, excepting only the collating to Benefices, granting Licences for Marriage, and Probates of Wills, which We have reserved to You, Our Governor, and to the Commander in Chief of Our said Province for the Time being.

38. And We do further direct, that no Schoolmaster, who shall arrive in Our said Province from this Kingdom, be henceforward permitted to keep School, without the Licence of the said Lord Bishop of London; and that no other Person now there, or that shall come from other Parts, shall be admitted to keep School in your Government, without your Licence first obtained.

39. And you are to take especial Care, that a Table of Marriages, established by the Canons of the Church of England, be hung up in all Places of publick Worship, according to the Rites of the Church of England.

40. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that, in order to suppress, as much as in you lies, every Species of Vice and Immorality, You forthwith, do cause all Laws already made against Blasphemy, Profaneness, Adultery, Fornication, Polygamy, Incest, Profanation of the Lord's Day, Swearing and Drunkenness, to be vigorously put in Execution in every part of your Government; And that you take due Care for the Punishment of these, and every other Vice and Immorality, by Presentment upon Oath to be made to the Temporal Courts, by the Church Wardens of the several Parishes, at proper Times of the year to be appointed for the Purpose; and, for the further Discouragement of Vice, and Encouragement of Virtue and good living, (that by such Examples the Infidels may be invited and persuaded to embrace the Christian Religion), You are not to admit any Persons to publick Trusts and Employments in the Province under your Government, whose Ill-Fame and Conversation may occasion Scandal.

41. And whereas it is stipulated by the aforesaid Treaty concluded at Paris the 10th Day of February 1763, that the French Inhabitants, or Others, who have been Subjects of the Most Christian King in Canada, may retire with all Freedom and Safety wherever they shall think proper, and may sell their Estates, provided it be to Our Subjects, and bring away their Effects, as well as their Persons, without being restrained in their Emigration under any Pretence whatsoever, except that of Debts, or criminal Prosecution, and that the Time limited for the Emigration shall be fixed to the Space of Eighteen Months, to be computed from the Day of Exchange of the Ratifications of the Treaty; You are therefore in all things to conform yourself to this Stipulation, and to take care, that such of the French Inhabitants, as intend to remove within the Time limited, be not obstructed or impeded, provided they do not sell their Estates to Others than His Majesty's Subjects, and that, so long as they remain under your Government, they do in all things conform thereto in like manner as Our other Subjects.

42. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that all and every the French Inhabitants in Our said Province, who are now possessed of Lands within the said Province, in Virtue of Grants or Concessions made before the signing of the Preliminary Articles of Peace on the third Day of November 1762; do, within such limited Time as you in your Discretion shall think fit, register the several Grants, or other Deeds or Titles, by which they hold or claim such Lands, in the Secretary's Office; which said Grants, Deeds or other Titles, shall be entered at large in the said Office, so that the particular Quantity of Land, it's Site and Extent, the Conditions upon which it is granted, either as to Rents, Services, or Cultivation, may appear fully and at length.

43. And in case it shall appear, upon a strict and accurate Examination of the said Grants and Title Deeds, to be taken in such manner as You shall think proper, that any of the Grantees, or Persons claiming Lands under such Grants and Title Deeds, are in Possession of more Land than is contained within such Grants or other Concessions; or that the Terms and Conditions, upon which the Lands were granted, have not been complied with, agreeable to what is stipulated in such Grants or Concessions; It is Our Will and Pleasure, that you forthwith represent the same to Us, by Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, to the End that you may receive such Directions thereupon, as the Nature and Circumstances of the Case shall appear to require.

44. And whereas it is necessary, in order to the advantageous and effectual Settlement of Our said Province, that the true State of it should be fully known; You are therefore, as soon as conveniently may be, to cause an accurate Survey to be made of the said Province by such able and skilful Person as is or shall be appointed for that Service, who is to report to you in writing, for your Judgement in the Measures which you may in general pursue for the making of Settlements, not only the Nature and Quality of the Soil and Climate, the Rivers, Bays and Harbours, and every other Circumstance attending the natural State of it; but also his opinion, in what manner it may be most conveniently laid out into Countries, and to annex to his Report a Map of such Survey, with the several Divisions proposed marked upon it: But as the Making such Survey will be a Work of great Length, You are in the meantime to carry on Settlements upon that Plan, which shall appear to you to be most expedient from the best Information You can collect.

45. And whereas it has been found by Experience, that the settling Planters in Townships hath very much redounded to their Advantage, not only with respect to the Assistance they have been able to afford Each other in their civil Concerns, but likewise with regard to the Security they have thereby acquired against the Insults and Incursions of neighbouring Indians, or other Enemies; You are therefore to lay out Townships of a convenient Size and Extent in such Places, as you, in your Discretion, shall judge most proper. And it is Our Will and Pleasure, that each Township do consist of about Twenty Thousand Acres having, as far as may be, natural Boundaries extending up into the Country, and comprehending a necessary Part of the River St Lawrence, where it can be conveniently had.

46. You are also to cause a proper Place in the most convenient Part of each Township, to be marked out for building a Town sufficient to contain such a Number of Families as you shall judge proper to settle there, with Town and pasture Lots convenient to each Tenement, taking Care, that the said Town be laid out upon, or, as near as conveniently may be, to some navigable River, or the Sea Coast; And you are also to reserve to Us proper Quantities of Land in each Township for the following Purposes Viz; For erecting Fortifications, and barracks, where necessary, or for other military or naval Services, and more particularly for the Growth and Production of Naval Timber, if there are any Wood-Lands fit for that Purpose.

47. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that a particular Spot, in, or as near each Town as possible, be set apart for the building a Church, and four Hundred Acres adjacent thereto allotted for the Maintenance of a Minister, and two Hundred for a Schoolmaster.

48. And you are to give strict Orders to the Surveyors, whom you shall employ to mark out the said Townships and Towns, to make Returns to you of their Surveys as soon as possible, with a particular Description of each Township, and the Nature of the Soil within the same.

49. And You are to oblige all such Persons as shall be appointed to be Surveyors of the said Lands in each Township, to take an Oath for the due Performance of their Offices, and for obliging them to make exact Surveys of all Lands required to be set out.

50. And whereas nothing can more effectually tend to the speedy settling Our said Colony, the Security of the Property of Our Subjects, and the Advancement of Our Revenue, than the disposing of such lands as are Our Property upon reasonable Terms, and the establishing a regular and proper Method of proceeding with respect to the passing of Grants of such land; It is therefore our Will and Pleasure, that all and every Person and Persons, who shall apply to You for any grant or Grants of Land, shall, previous to their obtaining the same, make it appear before you in Council, that they are in a Condition to cultivate and improve the same, by settling thereon, in Proportion to the Quantity of Acres desired, a sufficient Number of White Persons and Negroes; And in case you shall, upon a Consideration of the Circumstances of the Person or Persons applying for such Grants, think it adviseable to pass the same, in such Case You are to cause a Warrant to be drawn up, directed to the Surveyor General, or other proper Officers, so petitioned for, and to return the said Warrant within six Months at furthest from the Date thereof, with a Plot or Description of the Lands so surveyed thereunto annexed; Provided that you do take Care, that before any such Warrant is issued, as aforesaid, a Docquet thereof be entered in the Auditor's and Register's Office: And when the Warrant shall be returned by the said Surveyor, or other proper Officer, the Grant shall be made out in due Form, and the Terms and Conditions required by these Our Instructions be particularly and expressly mentioned in the respective Grants. And it is Our Will and Pleasure, that the said Grants shall be registered within six Months from the Date thereof in the Register's Office there, and a Docquet thereof be also entered in Our Auditor's Office there, in Case such Establishment shall take Place in Our said Province, or that, in Default thereof, such Grant shall be void; Copies of all which Entries shall be returned regularly, by the proper Officer, to Our Commissioners of Our Treasury and to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, within six Months from the Date thereof.

51. And whereas great Inconveniences have arisen in many of Our Colonies in America from the granting excessive Quantities of Land to particular Persons, who have never cultivated or settled it, and have thereby prevented Others more industrious from improving the same; in order therefore to prevent the like Inconveniences for the future, You are to take especial Care, that in all Grants to be made by you, by and with the Advice and Consent of Our Council, to Persons applying for the same, the Quantity be in Proportion to their Ability to cultivate; And you are hereby directed to observe the following Directions and Regulations in all Grants to be made by you; Viz^t

That one hundred Acres of Land be granted to every Person being Master or Mistress of a Family, for himself or herself, and fifty Acres for every white or black Man, Woman or Child, of which such Person's Family shall consist, at the actual Time of making the Grant; and in case any Person applying to you for Grants of Land shall be desirous of taking up a larger Quantity than the actual Number of Persons in his or her Family would intitle such Persons to take up; it is Our Will and Pleasure, and you are hereby allowed and permitted, to grant unto every such Person or Persons, such further Quantity of Land as they may desire, not exceeding one Thousand Acres over and above what they are intitled to by the Number of Persons in their respective Families;—Provided it shall appear to you, that they are in a Condition and Intention to cultivate the same; and provided also, that they do pay to the Receiver of Our Quit Rents, or to such other Officer as shall be appointed to receive the same, the Sum of five Shillings only for every fifty Acres, so granted, on the Day of the date of the Grant;—

That all Grantees be subject to the payment of two Shillings Sterling for every Hundred Acres, to commence at the Expiration of two years from the Date of such Grant, and to be paid yearly and every year, or in Default of such payment, the Grant is to be void;—

That every Grantee, upon giving Proof that he or she has fulfilled the Terms and Conditions of his or her Grant, shall be entitled to another Grant, in the Proportion and upon the conditions abovementioned;—

That for every Fifty Acres of Land accounted plantable, each Patentee shall be obliged, within three years after the Date of his Patent, to clear and work three Acres at the least, in that part of his Tract which he shall judge most convenient and advantageous; or else to clear and drain three Acres of swampy or sunken Grounds, or drain three Acres of Marsh, if any such be within the Bounds of his Grant;—

That for every Fifty Acres accounted barren, every Patentee shall be obliged to put and keep on his Land, within three years after the Date of his Grant, three neat Cattle; which Number he shall be obliged to continue on his Land, until three Acres for every Fifty be fully cleared and improved;—

That if any Person shall take up a Tract of Land, wherein there shall be no Part fit for present Cultivation without manuring and improving the same, every such Grantee shall be obliged, within three years from the Date of his Grant, to erect on some part of his Land one good Dwelling-House, to contain at least twenty Feet in Length, and sixteen Feet in Breadth; and also to put on his Land the like Number of three neat Cattle for every fifty Acres;—

That every three Acres, which shall be cleared and worked, as aforesaid, and every three Acres, which shall be cleared and drained, as aforesaid, shall be accounted a sufficient Seating, Planting, Cultivation and Improvement, to save for ever from Forfeiture Fifty Acres of Land in any Part of the Tract contained within the same patent; and the Patentee shall be at Liberty to withdraw his Stock, or to forbear working in any Quarry or Mine, in Proportion to such Cultivation and Improvement, as shall be made upon the plantable Lands, or upon the Swamps, sunken grounds and Marshes, which shall be included in the same Patent;—

That when any Person, who shall hereafter take up and patent any Lands, shall have seated, planted and cultivated or improved the said Land, or any part of it, according to the Directions and Conditions above-mentioned, such Patentee may make Proof of such Seating, Planting, Cultivation and Improvement in the general Court, or in the Court of the County, District or

Precinct, where such Lands shall lie, and have such Proof certified to the Register's Office, and there entered with the Record of the said Patent, a Copy of which shall be admitted, on any Trial, to prove the seating and planting of such Land;—

And lastly, in order to ascertain the true Quantity of plantable and barren Land contained in each Grant hereafter to be made, every Surveyor be required and enjoined to take particular Notice, according to the best of his Judgement and Understanding, how much of the Land so surveyed is plantable, and how much of it is barren and unfit for Cultivation; and accordingly to insert in the Survey and Plott by him to be returned into the Register's Office, the true Quantity of each kind of Land.

52. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that in all Grants of Land to be made by You, as aforesaid, regard be had to the profitable and unprofitable Acres, so that each Grantee may have a proportionable Number of one Sort and the other; as likewise that the Breadth of each Tract of Land, to be hereafter granted, be one Third of the Length of such Tract; and that the Length of each Tract do not extend along the Banks of any Rivers, but into the main Land, that thereby the said Grantees may have each a convenient Share of what Accommodation the said River may afford for Navigation or otherwise.

53. And whereas it hath been represented to Us, that many Parts of the Province under your Government are particularly adapted to the Growth and Culture of Hemp and Flax; It is therefore Our Will and Pleasure, that, in all Surveys of Land for Settlement, the Surveyor be directed to report, whether there is any, or what Quantity of Lands contained within such Survey, fit for the Production of Hemp and Flax; And you are to take particular Care to insert a Clause in every Grant of Land, where any part thereof is fit for such Production, obliging the Grantee annually to sow a proportionable Part of his Grant with Hemp or Flax Seed.

54. And whereas it hath been further represented to Us, that a great part of the Country in the Neighbourhood of Lake Champlain, and between that Lake and the River S^t Lawrence, abounds with Woods producing Trees fit for Masting for Our Royal Navy, and other useful and necessary Timber for Naval Construction; You are therefore expressly directed and required to cause such Parts of the said Country, or any other within your Government, that shall appear upon a Survey to abound with such Trees, and shall lye convenient for Water Carriage, to be reserved to Us, and to use your utmost Endeavour to prevent any Waste being committed upon the said Tracts, by punishing in due Course of Law any Persons who shall cut down or destroy any Trees growing thereon; and you are to consider and advise with Our Council, whether some Regulation that shall prevent any Saw mills whatever from being erected within your Government, without a Licence from you, or the Commander in Chief of Our said Province for the Time being, may not be a Means of preventing all Waste and Destruction in such Tracts of Land as shall be reserved to Us for the Purposes aforesaid.

55. And whereas it appears from the Representations of OUR Governor of the District of Trois Rivieres, that the Iron Works of S^t Maurice in that District are of the great Consequence to Our Service; It is therefore Our further Will and Pleasure, that no part of the Lands, upon which the said Iron Works were carried on, or from which the Ore used in such Works was procured, or which shall appear to be necessary and convenient for the Establishment, either in respect to a free Passage to the River S^t Lawrence, or for producing a necessary Supply of Wood, Corn and hay, or for Pasture for Cattle, be granted to any private Person whatever; and also that as large a District of Land as conveniently may be, adjacent to and lying round the said Iron Works, over and above what may be necessary for the above Purposes, be reserved for Our Use, to be disposed of in such manner as WE shall hereafter direct and appoint.

56. And whereas it is necessary, that all Persons who may be desirous of settling in Our said Province, should be fully informed of the Terms and Conditions, upon which Lands will be granted in Our said Province; You are therefore, as soon as possible, to cause a Publication to be made, by Proclamation or otherwise, as you in your Discretion shall think most adviseable, of all and every the foregoing Terms, Conditions and Regulations of every kind, respecting the Grants of Lands; in which Proclamation it may be expedient to add some short Description of the natural Advantages of the Soil, and Climate, and it's peculiar Conveniences for Trade and Navigation; and you are to take such Steps as you shall think proper for the publishing such Proclamation in all the Colonies in North America.

57. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that all the foregoing Instructions to you, as well as any which You may hereafter receive, relative to the Form and Method of passing Grants of Lands, and the Terms and Conditions to be annexed to such Grants, be entered upon Record, with the Grants themselves, for the Information and Satisfaction of all Parties whatever, that may be concerned therein.

58. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that you do consider of a proper and effectual Method of collecting, receiving and accounting for our Quit Rents, whereby all Frauds, Concealment, Irregularity or Neglect therein may be prevented, and whereby the Receipt thereof may be effectually checked and controlled; And if it shall appear necessary to pass an Act for the more effectually ascertaining, and the more speedily and regularly collecting Our Quit Rents, you are to prepare the Heads of such a Bill, as you shall think may most effectually conduce to the procuring the good Ends proposed, and to transmit the same to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, in order to be laid before Us for Our further Directions therein.

59. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that the Surveyor General, or such other Person or Persons as you shall think proper to appoint, do, once in every year or oftener as Occasion shall require, inspect the State of all Grants of Lands made by you, and make report thereof to you in Writing, specifying whether the Conditions therein contained have or have not been complied with, or what Progress has been made towards fulfilling the same; and you are annually to transmit Copies of such Reports to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations.

60. And whereas Our Province of Quebec is in part inhabited and possessed by several Nations and Tribes of Indians, with whom it is both necessary and expedient to cultivate and maintain a strict Friendship and good Correspondence so that they may be induced by Degrees, not only to be good Neighbours to Our Subjects, but likewise themselves to become good Subjects to Us; You are therefore, as soon as you conveniently can, to appoint a proper Person or Persons to assemble, and treat with the said Indians, promising and assuring them of Protection and Friendship on Our part, and delivering them such Presents, as shall be sent to you for that purpose.

61. And you are to inform yourself with the greatest Exactness of the Number, Nature and disposition of the several bodies or Tribes of Indians, of the manner of their Lives, and the Rules and Constitutions, by which they are governed or regulated. And You are upon no Account to molest or disturb them in the Possession of such Parts of the said Province, as they are present occupy or possess; but to use the best means You can for conciliating their Affections, and uniting them to Our Government, reporting to Us, by our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, whatever Information you can collect with respect to these People, and the whole of your Proceedings with them.

62. Whereas We have, by Our Proclamation dated the seventh day of October in the Third year of Our Reign, strictly forbid, on pain of Our Displeasure, all Our Subjects from making any purchases or Settlements whatever, or taking possession of any of the Lands reserved to the several Nations of Indians, with whom We are connected, and who live under

Our Protection, without Our especial Leave for that Purpose first obtained; It is Our express Will and Pleasure, that you take the most effectual Care that Our Royal Directions herein be punctually complied with, and that the Trade with such of the said Indians as depend upon your Government be carried on in the Manner, and under the Regulations prescribed in our said Proclamation.

63. You are to use your best Endeavours in improving the Trade of those Parts, by settling such Orders and regulations therein, with the Advice of Our said council, as may be most acceptable to the Generality of the Inhabitants. And it is Our express Will and Pleasure, that you do not, upon any Pretence whatever, upon pain of Our highest Displeasure, give your Assent to any Law or Laws for setting up any Manufactures and carrying on any Trades, which are hurtful and prejudicial to this Kingdom; and that You do use your utmost Endeavours to discourage, discountenance and restrain any Attempts which may be made to set up such Manufactures, or establish any such Trades.

64. Whereas by the 5th and 6th Articles of the Treaty of Peace and Neutrality in America,¹ concluded between England and France the 6th 16 Day of November 1686, the Subjects and inhabitants of each Kingdom are prohibited to trade and fish in all Places possessed, or which shall be possessed by the other in America; and if any Ships shall be found trading contrary to the said Treaty, upon due Proof the said Ships shall be confiscated; but in case the subjects of either King shall be forced by Stress of Weather, Enemies, or other Necessity into the Ports of the other in America, they shall be treated with Humanity and Kindness, and may provide themselves with Victuals, and other Things necessary for their Sustenance, and the Reparation of their Ships, at reasonable Rates; provided they do not break bulk, nor carry any Goods out of their Ships, exposing them to Sale and Goods; It is therefore Our Will and Pleasure, that You signify to Our Subjects under your Government the Purport and Intent of the abovesaid two Articles; and that you take particular Care, that none of the French Subjects be allowed to trade from their said Settlements to the Province under your Government, or to fish upon the Coast thereof.

65. And it is Our Will and Pleasure, that You do not dispose of any Forfeitures or Escheats to any Person, until the Sheriff, or other proper Officer, have made Enquiry, by a Jury upon their Oaths, into the true Value thereof, nor until you have transmitted to Our Commissioners of Our Treasury, and to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, a particular Account of such Forfeitures and Escheats, and the Value thereof. And you are to take Care, that the Produce of such Forfeitures and Escheats, in case We shall think proper to give You Directions to dispose of the same, be duly paid to Our Treasure or Receiver General of Our said Province, and a full Account transmitted to our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, with the Names of the Persons to whom disposed.

66. And whereas Commissions have been granted unto several Persons in Our respective Plantations in America for the trying or Pirates in those Parts, pursuant to the Acts for the more effectual Suppression of Piracy; and by a Commission already sent to Our Province of New York, Our Governor there is impowered, together with Others therein mentioned, to proceed accordingly in Reference to Our said Province; Our Will and Pleasure is, that you do use your best Endeavours to apprehend all Persons whatever who may have been guilty of Piracy within your Government, or who having committed such Crimes at other Places, may come within your Jurisdiction; and until We shall think proper to direct the like Commission to be established for Our Government of Quebec, You are to send such Pirates, with what Proofs of their Guilt You can procure or collect, to our Governor of New York to be tried and punished under the Authority of the Commission established for those Parts.

67. And whereas you will receive from Our Commissioners for executing the Office of High Admiral of Great Britain and of Our Plantations, a Commission constituting you Vice Admiral of Our said Province; You are hereby required and directed carefully to put into Execution the several Powers thereby granted to you.

68. Whereas great Inconveniencies have happened heretofore by Merchant Ships and other Vessels in the Plantations wearing the Colours borne by Our Ships of War, under Pretence of Commissions granted to them by the Governors of the said Plantations, and, by trading under those Colours, not only amongst Our own Subjects, but also those of other Princes and States, and committing divers Irregularitys, they may very much dishonor Our Service; For preventing thereof You are to oblige the Commanders of all such Ships, to which you shall grant Commissions, to wear no other Colours than such as are described in an Order of Council of the seventh of January 1730, in relation to Colours to be worn by all Ships and Vessels, except Our Ships of War.

69. And whereas there have been great Irregularitys in the manner of granting Commissions in the Plantations to private Ships of War, You are to govern yourself, whenever there shall be Occasion, according to the Commissions and Instructions granted in this Kingdom; But you are not to grant Commissions of Marque or Reprizal against any Prince or State, or their Subjects, in Amity with Us, to any Person whatsoever, without Our special Command.

70. Whereas We have been informed that, during the time of War, Our Enemies have frequently got Intelligence of the State of Our Plantations by Letters from private Persons to their Correspondents in Great Britain, taken on board Ships coming from the Plantations, which has been of dangerous Consequence; Our Will and Pleasure therefore is, that you signify to all Merchants, Planters and Others, that they be very cautious, in time of War, whenever that shall happen, in giving any Accounts by Letters of War, whenever that shall happen, in giving any Accounts by Letters of the public State and

Condition of Our Province under your Government; And you are further to give Directions to all Masters of Ships, or other Persons to whom you may entrust your Letters, that they put such Letters into a Bag, with a sufficient weight to sink the same immediately in Case of imminent danger from the Enemy; And you are also to let the Merchants and Planters know, how greatly it is for their Interest that their Letters should not fall into the Hands of the Enemy, and therefore that they should give like Orders to Masters of Ships in relation to their Letters; And you are further to advise all Masters of Ships, that they do sink all Letters, in case of Danger, in the Manner before mentioned.

71. And whereas, in Time of War, the Merchants and Planters in Our Plantations in America did correspond and trade with Our Enemies, and carry Intelligence to them, to the great Prejudice and Hazard of Our said Plantations; You are therefore by all possible Methods to endeavour to hinder such Trade and Correspondence in Time of War.

72. And You are to report to Us, by Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations—

What is the Nature of the Soil and Climate of the Province under your Government. If it differs in these Circumstances for Our other Northern Colonies, in what that Difference consists? And what beneficial Articles of Commerce the different Parts of it are capable of producing?

What rivers there are, and of what Extent and Convenience to the Planters?

What are the principal Harbours; how situated, of what Extent; and what is the Depth of Water, and Nature of the Anchorage in each of them?

What Quantity of Land is now under actual Improvement and Settlement? What are the chief Articles of Produce and Culture; the annual amount of the Quantity of each; and upon what Terms and Conditions the Inhabitants hold their Lands, either of Cultivation, Rent, or Personal Service?

What is the Quantity, Nature and Property of the Land uncultivated; how much of it is capable of Culture; and what part thereof is private Property?

What is the Number of Inhabitants, Whites and Blacks, distinguishing each? What Number of the Former is capable of bearing Arms, and what Number of the Latter is annually necessary to be supply'd in proportion to the Land cultivated?

What was the Nature, Form and Constitution of the Civil Government; what Judicatures were there established, and under what Regulations did the French Inhabitants carry on their Commerce?

73. You are from time to time to send unto Us, by Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, as aforesaid, an Account of the Increase and Decrease of the Inhabitants, Whites and Blacks, and also an Account of all Persons born, christened and buried.

74. Whereas it is absolutely necessary, that We be exactly informed of the State of Defence of all Our Plantations in America, as well in relation to the Stores of War that are in each Plantation, as to the Forts and Fortifications there; and what more may be necessary to be built for the Defence and Security of the same; You are as soon as possible to prepare an Account thereof with relation to Our said Province in the most particular manner; And You are therein to express the present State of the Arms, Ammunition and other Stores of War, belonging to the said Province, either in public Magazines, or in the Hands of private Persons; together with the State of all Places, either already fortified, or that you judge necessary to be fortified for the Security of Our said Province; And you are to transmit the said Accounts of Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, as also a Duplicate thereof to Our Master General or principal Officers of Our Ordnance; Which Accounts are to express the Particulars of Ordnance, Carriages, Balls, Powder, and other Sorts of Arms and Ammunition in Our public Stores, and so from time to time of what shall be sent you, or bought with the public Money, and to specify the Time of the Disposal, and the Occasion thereof: And You are half yearly to transmit a general Account of the State of the Fortifications and Warlike Stores, specify'd in the manner above mentioned.

75. You are from time to time to give an Account, what Strength your Neighbours have by Sea and Land, and of the Condition of their Plantations, and what Correspondence You keep with them.

76. And in case of any Distress of any other of Our Plantations, You shall, upon Application of the respective Governors thereof unto you, assist them with what Aid the Condition and Safety of Our Province under Your Government can spare.

77. If anything shall happen, which may be of Advantage or Security to Our Province under your Government, which is not herein, or by your Commission provided for, We do hereby allow unto you, with the Advice and Consent of Our Council, to take Order for the present therein, giving unto Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations speedy Notice thereof, in order to be laid before Us, that you may receive Our Ratification, if We shall approve the same:—provided always, that you do not, by Colour of any Power or Authority hereby given you, commence or declare War without Our Knowledge and particular Commands therein.

78. And whereas We have, by the second Article of these Our Instructions to you, directed and appointed that your chief Residence shall be at Quebec; you are nevertheless frequently to visit the other parts of your Government, in order to inspect the Management of all public Affairs, and thereby the better to take Care, that the Government be so administered, that no disorderly Practices may grown up contrary to Our Service and the Welfare of Our Subjects.

79. And whereas great Prejudice may happen to Our Service, and the Security of the Province, by your Absence from those Parts, You are not, upon any Pretence whatsoever, to come into Europe, without having first obtained Leave for so doing from Us under Our Sign Manual and Signet, or by Our Order in Our Privy Council; Yet nevertheless in case of Sickness, You may go to South Carolina, or any other of Our Southern Plantations, and there stay for such Space as the Recovery of your Health may absolutely require.

80. And whereas We have thought fit by Our Commission to direct, that in case of your Death or Absence, and the Death or Absence of Our Lieutenant Governors of Montreal and Trois Rivieres, and in Case there be at that time no Person within Our said Province, commissioned or appointed by Us to be Commander in Chief, that the Eldest Councillor, who shall be at the time of your Death or Absence, or at the Death or Absence of Our Lieutenant Governors, as aforesaid, residing with Our said Province under your Government, shall take upon him the Administration of Government, and execute Our said COMmission and Instructions, and the several Powers and Authorities therein directed; It is nevertheless Our express Will and Pleasure, that in such Case the said President shall forbear to pass any act or Acts, but what are immediately necessary for the Peace and Welfare of the said Province, without Our particular Order for that purpose; And that he shall not remove or suspend any of the Members of Our Council, nor any Judges , Justices of the Peace, or other Officers Civil or Military, without the Advice and Consent of at least Seven of the Members of Our said Council, nor even then without good and sufficient Reasons for the same, which the said President is to transmit, signed by himself and the rest of Our said Council, to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, by the first Opportunity in order to be laid before Us.

81. And whereas We are willing in the best manner to provide for the Support of the Government of Our Province aforesaid, of which You are Governor, by setting apart sufficient Allowances to such as shall be Our Governor or Commander in Chief, residing for the time being within the same; Our Will and Pleasure is, that when it shall happen that you are absent from Our said Province, One full Moiety of the Salary, and all Perquisites and Emoluments whatsoever, which would otherwise become due unto You, shall, during the time of your Absence, be paid and satisfied unto Our Commander in Chief, who shall be resident within Our said Province for the Time being; which We do hereby order and allot unto him for his Maintenance, and for the better Support of the Dignity of that Our Government.

82. And You are upon all Occassions to send unto Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations only, a particular Account of all your Proceedings, and of the Condition of Affairs within your Government, in order to be laid before Us; provided nevertheless, whenever any Occurrences shall happen within your Government of such a Nature and Importance as may require Our more immediate Directions by One of Our Principal Secretaries of State and also upon all Occassions and in all Affairs wherein you may receive Our Orders by One of Our Principal Secretaries of State, you shall in all such Cases transmit to Our Secretary of State only an Account of all such Occurances, and of your Proceedings relative to such Orders:

MANUAL AND SIGNET, FOR GUY CARLETON,AS CAPTAIN GENERAL AND GOVERNOR IN CHIEF OF THE PROVINCE OF

Carleton Esquire, Our Captain General and Governor in Chief in and over Our Province of Quebec in America and of all Our Territories Dependent

First—With these Instructions You will receive Our Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, constituting You Our Captain General and Governor in Chief in and Over Our Province of Quebec in America, bounded on the Labrador Coast by the River S^t John, and from thence by a Line drawn from the Head of that River through the lake S^t John to the South End of the Lake Nipisson; from whence the said Line crossing the River S^t Lawrence and the Lake Champlain in forty five Degrees of North Latitude passes along the Highlands which divide the Rivers that Empty themselves into the said River S^t Lawrence from those which fall into the Sea, and also along the North Coast of the Bay des Chaleurs and the Coast of the Gulph of S^t Lawrence to Cape Rosieres and from thence crossing the Mouth of the River S^t Lawrence by the West End of the Island of Anticosti, terminates at the aforesaid River S^t John. You are therefore to take upon you the Execution of the Office and Trust We have reposed in You, and the Administration of Government, and to do and Execute all things in due manner that shall belong to Your Command according to the several powers and Authorities of Our said Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain and these Our Instructions to You, or according to such further powers and Instruction as shall at any time hereafter be Granted or appointed You under Our Signet and Sign Manual or by Our Orders in Our Privy Council, and you are to call together at Quebec, which We do appoint to be the place of Your residence, and the principal Seat of Government the following persons whom We hereby appoint to be Our Council for Our said Province of Quebec, viz^t. William Hey, Our Chief Justice of Our said Province, Hector Theophilus

Esquires—It is nevertheless Our Will and Pleasure, that Our Chief Justice or Chief Justice for the time being shall not be capable of taking upon him the Administration of the Government upon your Death or Absence, or the Death or Absence of the Commander in Chief for our said province for the time being—

2. And You are with all due and usual Solemnity to cause Our said Commission to be read and published at the said meeting of Our Council which being done, You shall then take and also administer to each of the members of Our said Council, the Oaths mentioned in an Act passed in the first year of the Reign of His Majesty King George the first, intituled "An Act for the further Security of His Majestys person and Government, and the Succession of the Crown, in the Heirs of the late Princess Sophia being Protestants, and for extinguishing the hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales and his Open and secret abettors," And in an Act passed in the sixth Year of Our Reign, intituled, "An Act for altering the Oath of Abjuration and the Assurance, and for amending so much of An Act of the seventh year of Her late Majesty Queen Anne, Intituled, An Act for the Improvement of the Union of the two Kingdoms, as, after the time therein Limited requires the Delivery of certain Lists and Copies therein mentioned to persons Indicted of High Treason or Misprison of Treason;" as also make and Subscribe, and cause them to make and Subscribe, the Declaration mentioned in an Act of Parliament made in the 25th year of the Reign of King Charles the second intituled, "An Act for preventing Dangers which may happen from Popish Recusants"—And You and every one of them are likewise to take an Oath for the due Execution of Your and their places and Trusts, with regard to Your and their equal and impartial Administration of Justice; And You are also to take the Oath required by An Act passed in the seventh and eight Years of the Reign of King William the third to be taken by Governors of Plantations to do their Utmost that the Laws relating to the plantations be observed.

3. And that We may be always Informed of the Names and Characters of persons fit to Supply the Vacancies which shall happen in Our said Council, You are to transmit to Us by One of Our principal Secretaries of State the Names and Characters of three persons Inhabitants of Our said province who You shall esteem the best Qualified for that Trust and You are also to Transmit a Duplicate of the said Account to Our Commissioners for Trade and plantations for their Information.

4. And if it shall at any time happen, that by the Death,

Departure out of Our said province, suspension of any of Our said Councillors, or otherwise, there shall be a Vacancy in Our said Council, Our Will and Pleasure is that You signify the same to Us, by One of Our principal Secretaries of State, by the first Opportunity, that We may under Our Sign Manual, constitute and appoint others in their Stead; to which end You are whenever such Vacancy happens, to transmit unto Us by One of Our principal Secretaries of State, the Names of three or more persons, Inhabitants of Our said province whom you shall esteem best Qualified, for such Trust, and you are also to Transmit duplicates of such Accounts to Our Commissioners for Trade and plantations for their Information.

5. But that Our Affairs may not Suffer for want of a due number of Councillors; if ever it shall happen that there be less than Seven residing in Our said province, We do hereby give and grant unto You the said Guy Carleton full power and Authority to chuse as many persons out of the principal Inhabitants of our said province, as will make up the full number of the Council to be seven and no more, which persons so chosen and appointed by You, shall be to all intents and purposes, Councillors in Our said Province 'till either they shall be confirmed by Us, or, by the Nomination of others by Us under our sign Manual and Signet, Our said Council shall have seven, or more persons in it.

6. And it is Our Will and Pleasure, that You do, and You are hereby Authorized and Impowered to Suspend and amove any of the Members of Our said Council, from Sitting, Voting, and Assisting therein, if You shall find just Cause for so doing, and to appoint others in their Stead until our pleasure shall be known, It is nevertheless Our Will and Pleasure, that You do not Suspend or Remove any of the Members of Our Council when they shall have been Confirmed by Us as aforesaid, without good and sufficient cause, nor without the Consent of the Majority of the said Council, signified in Council, after due Examination of the Charge against such Councillor, and his Answer thereunto; and in Case of suspension of any of them, You are to cause Your Reasons for so doing, together with the Charges and proofs against such person, and his Answer thereto be duly entered upon the Council-Books, And forthwith to transmit Copies thereof to Us, by one of Our principal Secretaries of State, and also Duplicates to Our Commissions for Trade and Plantations for their Information nevertheless if it should happen that You should have Reasons for Suspending any of the said Persons, not fit to be communicated to the Council, You may in that Case suspend such person without the Consent of Our said Council; but You are thereupon immediately to send Us by One of Our Principal Secretaries of State An Account of Your proceedings therein;

together with Your Reasons at large for such suspension as also your Reasons at large for not communicating the same to the Council and Duplicates thereof by the first opportunity and you are also to transmit a Duplicate of such Account to Our Commissioners for Trade and plantations for their Information.

7. Whereas We are Sensible that Effectual Care ought to be taken to oblige the Members of Our Council to a due attendance therein, in order to prevent the many Inconveniences that happen for the want of a Quorum of the Council to transact business as occasion may require; It is Our Will and Pleasure that if any of the Members of Our said Council shall hereafter absent themselves from the said Province and Continue absent above the

Space of Six Months together, without leave from you, or from Our Commander in Chief of Our said Province for the time begin first obtained, under your or his Hand and Seal, or shall remain absent for the Space of One Year without Our Leave given them under Our Royal Signet and Sign Manual their place or places in the said Council shall immediately thereupon become Void: and that if any of the members of Our said Council, then residing in the province under Your government shall hereafter wilfully absent themselves when duly summoned, without a just and lawful Cause and shall persist therein after admonition, you suspend the said Councillors so absenting themselves 'till Our further pleasure be known giving Us timely Notice thereof; And we do hereby Will and Require You that this Our Royal Pleasure be Signified to the several Members of Our Council aforesaid, and entered in the Council Books of the province under Your Government as a Standing rule—

8. You are forthwith to communicate such and so many of these Our Instructions to Our said Council, wherein their Advice and Consent are mentioned to be requisite, as likewise all such others, from time to time, as You shall find Convenient for Our Service to be Imparted to them—

9. You are to permit the Members of Our said Council to have and Enjoy freedom of Debate and Vote in all Affairs of publick concern that may be debated in Council—

10. And Whereas it is directed by Our Commission to You under Our Great Seal, that as soon as the Situation and Circumstances of Our said Province will admit thereof You shall with the Advice of Our Council, Summon and call a general Assembly of the Freeholders of Our said province, You are therefore as soon as the more pressing Affairs of Government will allow, to give all possible attention to the carrying this Important Object into Execution, but as it may be Impracticable for the present to form such an Establishment

You are in the mean time to make such Rules and Regulations by the Advice of our said Council as shall appear to be necessary for the peace Order and good government of our said province; taking Care that nothing be done or passed that shall any way tend to affect the Life Limb or Liberty of the Subject, or to the Imposing any Duties or Taxes; and that all such rules and Regulations be transmitted to Us by the first Opportunity after they are passed and made for our Approbation or Disallowance. And it is Our Will and Pleasure that when An Assembly shall have been Summoned and met in such manner as you in Your discretion shall think most proper, or as shall be hereafter directed and appointed, the following Regulations be carefully observed in the framing and passing all such Laws Statutes and Ordinances, as are to be passed by You with the Advice and Consent of Our said Council and Assembly, Viz^t That the Stile of Enacting the said Laws, Statutes and Ordinances be by the Governor, Council and Assembly and no other—That each different matter be provided for by a different Law without including in one and the same Act, such things as have no proper relation to each other;—That no Clause be inserted in any Act or Ordinance which shall be foreign to what the title of it Imports and that no perpetual Clause be part of any temporary Law;—That no Law or Ordinance whatever be suspended, altered Continued, revived or repealed by general Words; but that the title and Date of such Law or Ordinance be particularly mentioned in the Enacting part; That no Law or Ordinance respecting private property be passed without a Clause suspending it's Execution, until Our Royal Will and pleasure is known, nor without a Saving of the Right of Us, Our Heirs and Successors, and of all Bodies Politick and Corporate, and of all other persons except such as are mentioned in the said Law or Ordinance, and those claiming by, from, or under them, and before such Law or Ordinance is passed, proof must be made before You in Council and Entered in the Council-Books, that publick Notification was made of the partys Intention to apply for such Act in the several parish Churches, where the Lands in Question lye for three Sundays at least successively before any such Law or Ordinance shall be proposed; and you are to transmit and Annex to the said Law or Ordinance a Certificate under your Hand that the same passed through all the Forms above mentioned; That in all Laws or Ordinances for the Levying Money, or Imposing Fines, forfeitures or penalties, express mention be made, 20 that the same is granted or reserved to Us Our Heirs and Successors for the publick Uses of the said province, and the Support of the Government thereof, as by the said Law or Ordinance shall be directed; and that a clause be inserted, declaring that the Money arising by the Operation of the said Law or Ordinance shall be accounted for unto Us in this Kingdom, and to Our Commissioners of the Treasury or Our High Treasurer for the Time being and audited by Our Auditor General of our Plantations or his Deputy—That all such Laws, Statutes and Ordinances be transmitted by You within three Months after their passing or sooner if opportunity offers, to Us, by One of Our principal Secretaries of State and Duplicates thereof to Our Commissioners for Trade and plantations for their Information—That they be fairly abstracted in the Margents and accompanied with very full and particular observations upon each of them (that is to say) whether the same is Introductive of a new Law, Declaratory of a former Law, or does repeal a Law then in being And you are also to transmit in the fullest manner the Reasons and Occasion for Enacting such Laws or Ordinances together with fair Copies of the Journals of the proceedings of the Council and Assembly which You are to require from the Clerks of the said Council and Assembly—

11. And to the End that nothing may be passed or done to the prejudice of the true Interests of this Our Kingdom the Just Rights of Us Our Heirs and Successors or the property of Our Subjects It is Our Express Will and pleasure, That no Law whatsoever which shall in any wise tend to Affect the Commerce or Shipping of this Kingdom, or which shall any ways relate to the Rights and prerogative of Our Crown or the property of Our Subjects or which shall be of an Unusual or Extraordinary Nature be finally ratified or Assented to by You, until You shall have first transmitted unto Us by one of Our principal Secretaries of State, and to Our Commissioners for Trade and plantations for their Information a Draught of such Law, and shall have received Our Directions thereupon Unless You take Care that a Clause be Inserted therein, suspending and Deferring the Execution thereof until Our pleasure is known concerning the same.—

12. And Whereas Laws have formerly been Enacted in several of Our Plantations in America for so short a time that Our Royal Assent or Refusal thereof could not be had before the time for which such Laws were Enacted did expire, You shall not give Your Assent to any Law that shall be Enacted for a less time than two Years, except in Cases of imminent Necessity, or imminent temporary expediency and You shall not re-enact any Law to which Our Assent shall have been once refused, without Express leave for that purpose first obtained from Us upon a full representation by You to be made to Us by One of Our principal Secretaries, and to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations for their Information, of the Reasons and necessity for passing such Law; nor give Your Assent to any Law for repealing any other Law, which shall have passed in Your Government, and shall have received Our Royal Approbation unless You take Care that there be a Clause inserted therein Suspending and Deferring the Execution thereof until Our pleasure shall be known concerning the same.—

13. And We do particularly require you to take care, that fair Books of Accounts of all Receipts and Payments of all publick Money be duly kept, and the truth thereof attested upon Oath and that all such Accounts be audited and attested by Our Auditor General of our plantations or his Deputy, who is to Transmit Copies thereof to Our Commissioners of Our Treasury, or to Our High Treasurer for the time being And that You do every half Year or oftener, send another Copy thereof, Attested by Yourself to Our Commissioners for Trade and plantations, and duplicates thereof by the next Conveyance; in which Books shall be specified, every particular Sum raised or Disposed of together with the Names of the persons to whom any payment shall be made, to the End We may be satisfied of the Right and due application of the Revenue of Our said province with the probability of the Increase or diminution of it under every head and Article thereof

14. And Whereas the Members of several Assemblies in the plantations have frequently Assumed to themselves privileges no ways belonging to them especially of being protected from Suits at Law during the Term they remain of the Assembly to the great prejudice of their Creditors and the Obstruction of Justice; and some Assemblies have presumed to adjourn themselves at pleasure without leave from Our Governor first obtained; and others have taken upon themselves the sole framing of Money Bills, refusing to let the Council Alter or amend the same; all which practices are very detrimental to Our Prerogative. If therefore you find that the Members of Our Province of Quebec Insist upon any of the said Privileges, You are to signify to them that it is Our Express Will and Pleasure, that You do not allow any protection to any member of the Council or Assembly further than in their persons, and that only during the sitting of the Assembly, and that You do not allow them to adjourn themselves otherwise than de diem, except Sundays and Holidays, without Leave from you or the Commander in Chief for the time being first obtained: It is also Our further pleasure that the Council have the like power of framing Money Bills as the Assembly.—

15. And Whereas by Our aforesaid Commission under Our Great Seal of Great Britain, You are authorized and impowered with the Advice and Consent of Our Council to Constitute and appoint Courts of Judicature and Justice; It is therefore Our Will and Pleasure, that You do as soon as possible apply Your attention to these great and Important Objects and that in forming the necessary Establishments for this purpose, You do consider what has been Established in this respect in Our other Colonies in America more particularly in Our Colony of Nova Scotia—

16. Our Will and Pleasure is, that You or the Commander in Chief for the time being do in all civil Causes, on application being made to You or the Commander in Chief for the time being for that purpose, permit and allow appeals from any of the Courts of Common Law in Our said Province until You or the Commander in Chief, and the Council of the said Province, and You are for that purpose to Issue a Writ in the manner which has been usually accustomed, returnable before Yourself and the Council of the said province, who are to proceed to hear and Determine such Appeal, wherein such of the said Council, as shall be at that Time Judges of the Court from whence such appeal shall be so made to You Our Captain General, or to the Commander in Chief for the time being and to Our said Council as aforesaid shall not be admitted to Vote upon the said Appeal, but they may nevertheless be present at the hearing thereof, to give the Reason of the Judgment given by them, in the Causes wherein such Appeal shall be made provided nevertheless that in all such appeals the Sum or Value appealed for do exceed the sum of three hundred pounds Sterling, and that Security be first duly given by the Appellant to Answer such Charges as shall be awarded in Case the first Sentence be affirmed; and if either party shall not rest satisfied with the Judgment of You or the Commander in Chief for the time being and Council as aforesaid, Our Will and Pleasure is that they may then appeal unto Us in Our privy Council;

Provided the Sum or Value so appealed for unto Us do exceed five hundred pounds Sterling, and that such appeal be made within fourteen Days after Sentence and good security given by the Appellant, that he will Effectually prosecute the same and answer the Condemnation as also pay such Costs and Damages as shall be awarded by Us in Case the sentence of You or the Commander in Chief for the time being and Council be affirmed; provided nevertheless where the matter in Question relates to the taking or Demanding any Duty payable to Us or to any Fee of Office, or annual Rents or other such like matter or thing where the Rights in future may be bound in all such Cases

You are to admit An Appeal to Us in Our privy Council, though the Immediate Sum or Value appealed for be of less Value; And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that in all places where, by Your Instructions you are to admit Appeals unto Us in Our privy Council, execution be suspended until the final Determination of such Appeal, unless good and sufficient Security be given by the Appellee to make ample Restitution of all that the Appellants shall have lost by means of such Decree or Judgment in Case upon the Determination of such Appeal such Decree or Judgment should be reversed and restitution awarded to the Appellant.

17. You are also to admit Appeals unto Us in Our privy Council in all Cases of Fines Imposed for Misdemeanours provided the Fines so Imposed, Amount to or Exceed One hundred pounds Sterling; the Appellant first giving good Security, that he will Effectually prosecute the same, and answer the Condemnation If the Sentence by which such fine was Imposed in Quebec shall be Confirmed.

18. You are, with the Advice and Consent of Our Council in the Province under Your government to take Especial care to regulate all Sallaries and fees belonging to places, or paid upon Emergencies, that they be within the bounds of Moderation, and that no Exaction be made on any Occasion whatsoever; as also that Tables of all Fees be publickly hung up in all places where such Fees are to be paid and You are to transmit Copies of all such Tables of Fees unto Us by One of Our principal Secretaries of State and duplicates thereof to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations for their Information

19. It is Our Express Will and Pleasure that You do by the first Opportunity and with all convenient Speed transmit unto Us by One of Our principal Secretaries of State and duplicates thereof to Our Commissioners for trade and plantation for their Information Authentick Copies of all Acts Orders Grants Commissions or other powers by Virtue of which any Courts Offices, Jurisdictions, pleas, Authorities, Fees and privileges, have been Settled or Established, for our Confirmation or Disallowance; and in case all or any of them shall at any time or times be disallowed and not approved then such and so many as shall be disallowed and not approved, and so Signified by Us shall cease determine and be no longer continued or put in practice.—

20. You shall not appoint any person to be a judge or Justice of the peace, without the advice and Consent of the Majority of the Members of Our Council, present in, nor shall You Execute yourself or by Deputy and of the said Offices; and it is Our further Will and Pleasure that all Commissions to be Granted by You to any person or persons to be Judges or Justice of the peace, or other necessary officers, be granted during pleasure only—

21. You shall not displace any of the Judges Justices of the peace or other Officers or Ministers without good and sufficient Cause, which You shall Signify in the fullest and most Distinct manner to Us by one of our principal Secretaries of State and to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantation for their Information—

p. 795

22. And Whereas frequent Complaints have heretofore been made of Great Delays and undue proceedings in the Courts of Justice in several of Our plantations, whereby many of Our Good Subjects have very much Suffered, And it being of the greatest Importance to Our Service and to the Welfare of Our Plantations that Justice be every where speedily and Duly administered, and that all Disorders Delays and other undue practices, in the administration thereof be Effectually prevented; We do particularly require You to take Especial Care, that in all Courts, where you are Authorized to preside, Justice be Impartially administered, and that in all other Courts, established within Our said Province all Judges and other persons therein concerned do likewise perform their several Duties without any Delay or partiality.

23. You are to take Care, that all Writs be issued in Our Name throughout the Province under Your Government.

24. Whereas there are several Offices in Our plantations Granted under the Great Seal of Great Britain, and Our Service may be very much prejudiced by reason of the absence of Patentees, and by their appointing, Deputies not fit to officiate in their Stead, You are therefore to inspect such of the said Offices as are in the province under Your Government, and to Enquire into the Capacity and behaviour of the persons exercising them, and to report thereupon to Us by One of Our principal Secretaries of State and to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations what You think fit to be done or Altered in Relation thereunto; and You are upon the misbehaviour of any of the said Patentees or their Deputies to Suspend them from the Execution of their Office 'till You shall have represented the whole matter unto Us as aforesaid and received our Directions therein And in Case of the Death of any such Deputy, It is Our Express Will and pleasure, that you take Care, that the person appointed to Execute the place until the patentee can be Informed thereof and appoint another Deputy do give sufficient Security to the patentee, or, in Case of Suspension to the person Suspended to be answerable to him for the profits accruing during such Interval by death or during Suspension, in Case We shall think fit to restore the person Suspended to his place again—It is nevertheless Our Will and pleasure that the person Executing the place during such Interval, by Death or Suspension shall for his Encouragement receive the same profits as the person suspended or dead did receive; And it is Our further Will and Pleasure, that, in Case of a Suspension of a patentee, the person appointed by You to Execute the office during such Suspension shall receive a Moiety of the profits which would otherwise become due to such patentee, giving Security to such patentee to be answerable to him for the other Moiety, in case We shall think fit to restore him to his Office again, And it is our further Will and pleasure that You do countenance and give all due Encouragement to all Our Patent Officers in the Enjoyment of their legal and Accustomed Fees, Rights privileges and Emoluments according to the true Intent and meaning of their patents—

25. You shall not by Colour of any power or Authority hereby or other wise Granted or mentioned to be Granted unto You, take upon You to give, grant or Dispose of any office or place within Our said Province which now is or shall be Granted under the Great Seal of this Kingdom, or to which any person is or shall be appointed by Warrant under Our Signet and Sign Manual, any further than that You may, upon the Vacancy of any such Office or place, or upon the Suspension of any such Officer by you, as aforesaid put in any fit person to Officiate in the Interval 'till You shall have represented the matter unto Us by one of our principal Secretaries of State; and to Our Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, for their Information as aforesaid, which You are to do by the first Opportunity, and 'till the said Office or place be disposed of by Us Our Heirs or Successors under the Great Seal of this Kingdom, or until some person shall be appointed thereto by Warrant under Our Signet and Sign Manual or Our further Directions be given therein—

26. And Whereas several Complaints have been made by the Officers of Our Customs in Our plantations in America, that they have frequently been obliged to serve as Jurors, and personally to Appear in Arms whenever the Militia is drawn Out and thereby are much hindred in the Execution of their

Employments, Out Will and Pleasure is that You take Effectual Care and give the necessary Directions that the several officers of Our Customs be Excused and exempted from serving on any Juries, or personally appearing in Arms in the Militia, unless in Cases of absolute Necessity or serving any parochial Offices which may hinder them in the Execution of their Duty—

27. And Whereas We have Stipulated by the late Definitive Treaty of Peace concluded at Paris on the 10th Day of February 1763 to Grant the Liberty of the Catholick Religion to the Inhabitants of Canada, and that We will consequently give the most precise, and most Effectual Orders, that Our New Roman Catholick Subjects in that Province may profess the Worship of their Religion according to the Rites of the Romish Church, as far as the Laws of Great Britain permit; It is therefore Our Will and Pleasure that You do in all things regarding the said Inhabitants Conform with Great Exactness to the Stipulations of the said Treaty in this respect—

28. You are as soon as possible to Summon the Inhabitants to meet together at such time or times, place or places, as You shall find Convenient in Order to take the Oath of Allegiance, and make and Subscribe the Declaration of Abjuration mentioned in the aforesaid Act passed in the first Year of the Reign of King George the 1st for the further Security of His Majestys person and Government, and the Succession of the Crown in the Heirs of the late Princess Sophia, being Protestants, and for Extinguishing the Hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales and his Open and Secret Abettors, and in the aforesaid Act passed in the Sixth Year of Our Reign for Altering the Oath of Abjuration and the Assurance and for amending so much of An Act of the seventh Year of her late Majesty Queen Anne Intituled An Act for the Improvement of the Union of the two Kingdoms as after the time therein Limited requires the Delivery of certain Lists and Copies therein mentioned to persons Indicted of High Treason, or Misprison of Treason; which Oath shall be Administered to them by such person or persons as You shall Commissionate for that purpose, and in Case any of the said French Inhabitants shall refuse to take the said Oath and make and Subscribe the Declaration of Abjuration as aforesaid, You are to cause them forthwith to Depart out of Our said Government—

29. And it is Our further Will and Pleasure that all such Inhabitants professing the Religion of the Romish Church, do at all meetings, or at such other time or times You shall think proper and in the manner you shall think least alarming and Inconvenient to the said Inhabitants Deliver in upon Oath an Exact Account of all Arms and Ammunition of every sort in their Actual possession, and so from time to time, of what they shall receive into their Possession as aforesaid—
